"DEAR MR. HOWARD,— "Sept. 25, 1906.
"You seem to improve every time. 'Her Love Against the World' is certainly an attraction as proved by last night's (Monday) returns, which were as good as the opening Monday. The fact that this result was achieved in face of the fine weather, and without any printing other than what was issued for the opening week, speaks volumes for the play. You will have a big task on hand to produce a greater draw than 'Her Love Against the World' has proved itself to be.—

Dear Mr. Harris,
I really must send you a line to tell you how delighted I am with my gowns, &c., that you have just cleaned for me. You have done several lots of things for me, and each time seem to surpass yourself, for these look just like new again.
Please accept my best thanks for the care you must have given them, and believe me
Yours very truly

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA.

Kind expressions from Authors and Managers.

SIR SQUIRE BANCROFT.

"I congratulate you on your 'Fifty Years of the Drama': the list must prove both interesting and useful to lovers of and workers for the stage."

MR. GEORGE EDWARDES.

"I think the new feature of The Era is most interesting and useful. A list of plays produced from 1850 to 1900 will certainly be of great service to a very large number of your readers."

MR. EDWARD TERRY.

"An admirable idea, and will prove a most valuable record."

MR. FRANK CURZON.

"Your list, I think, will be most useful for reference."

MRS. W. K. CLIFFORD.

"I think the list will be immensely useful."

MR. SYDNEY GRUNDY.

"Your list will be exceedingly useful. But, of course, there is no reason why old titles should not be used again. Indeed, some day we shall have to go back to them. Some of our modern titles, when they are not mere proper names with an adjective attached, display the desperation of the dramatist in too ludicrous a light. Such a title as 'The Importance of Being Earnest' amounts to a misdemeanour."

MR. ARTHUR W. PINERO.

"The list of plays produced during the last half-century is a most valuable record. The thanks of those interested in the theatre are due to The Era for this and many other enterprises."

MR. ALFRED SUTRO.

"The list you are compiling will be of very great benefit, and I am looking forward to the time when it shall be complete, and obtainable in pamphlet form."

MR. JUSTIN HUNTLY McCARTHY.

"I have watched with the greatest interest the progress of your alphabetical list of the plays published during the last half of the nineteenth century. It is a most useful undertaking, and when it appears in volume form it must prove of great value to all who are concerned with the drama."

MR. ISRAEL ZANGWILL.

"The list of plays will be very interesting and useful when published in complete form. The etiquette of the profession apparently still allows of novelists' titles being used by playwrights. Thus, The Master, which will appear in your list as a play by somebody else, is the name of a book of mine; while the new play, Noah's Ark, has the same title as a shorter story of mine."

MR. ARTHUR LAW.

"The publication in The Era of a list of plays produced during the fifty years, 1850-1900, is an excellent idea, and will be most useful to authors who may be in doubt as to their right to a certain title. When it is issued in book form I shall be very glad to possess a copy."

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER.

"Mr. Arthur Bourchier thinks the list very useful indeed."

MR. TOM GALLON.

"Your idea seems to me to be a most excellent one. Quite apart from the fact that there is always a difficulty in knowing what titles have been used, there very often arises the question of when and where a play was actually produced—a question difficult to be answered. Actors and authors should alike be grateful to The Era."

MR. HAROLD MONTAGUE.

"I think the idea of printing a list of plays produced during the last fifty years an excellent one. It should be of great value to authors."

MR. ARTHUR SHIRLEY.

"The list of produced plays was not merely a happy thought, for the same idea has probably occurred to many, though until The Era carried it out no one took the pains to collect and publish such a truly valuable record.
"Managers, dramatists, as well as would-be authors, will henceforward have a long list of titles to refer to, and there will be neither reason nor excuse for encroaching on pre-existing copyright in play titles. What a lot of trouble it should save us all!"

MR. WALTER MELVILLE.

"I think it shows great enterprise on the part of your journal, and likely to prove most useful and at the same time interesting to the general profession"

MR. ARTHUR MORRISON.

"The list you are publishing will be a most valuable work of reference to everybody taking an interest in the stage, and I have no doubt that when it is published as a book you will find its success warrant you in issuing fresh editions from time to time, with the information brought to date in each case."

MR. J. J. DILLEY.

"The idea is an excellent one, and there can be no question at all of the usefulness of such a summary.

MR. COSMO HAMILTON.

"I think that your new feature is an excellent and most useful one. A list of plays produced during fifty years is interesting not only to the playgoer, but essentially so to the manager and the playwright. They will only have to consult it to be sure that a title has not been used before."

MR. CHARLES H. E. BROOKFIELD.

"My attention has been called to your list of plays produced between 1850-1900. I have no doubt it will prove interesting and useful to many."

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

EARLY TRAINS.

The Railway Companies are despatching many morning trains earlier than hitherto. This will enable subscribers and advertisers in the provincial towns to get copies of "The Era" in time for the breakfast table. Advertisers are requested to forward their advertisements as early in the week as possible, and not later than 7 p.m. on Thursday.

AMUSEMENTS IN MANCHESTER.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, the United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra.—The Housekeeper was played here on Monday, for the first time in Manchester, by Mr. and Mrs. Kendal and company, who served to attract, as usual, a very large and friendly audience. Tuesday's performance of The Ironmaster was throughout a distinguished achievement, the efforts of Mr. and Mrs. Kendal being most ably supplemented by Mr. Bassett Roe as the Duc de Bliquy, Mr. Edward Vaughan as the Marquis de Beaupre, Miss Violet Lewis as Athenais, Mrs. A. B. Tapping as the Marquise de Beaupre, and others in rôles of minor importance. On Wednesday a pleasing performance of The Elder Miss Blossom was given; and for Thursday, Friday, and Saturday matinée, A Tight Corner, described as a new and original comedy, occupies the bill.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, the United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—A return visit of Lady Madcap is the event of the week here. Mr. George Dance's company gives a bright performance of the piece; Miss Vera Vere's abilities in the title-rôle do not suffer by comparison with those of a notable predecessor; Mr Percival Knight gives a capable rendering of "Stony" Stratford, whose confederate, Posh Jenkins, is still played inimitably by Mr. Oliver Round; Mr. H. V. Surrey presents Oroya Brown with comic skill; Mr. Tommy Nelldon is a lively Corporal Ham; Miss Maisie North is a pleasing Gwenny Holden; Miss Peggy Primrose acts nicely as Susan; Mr. Alex. Chentrens does well as the Count de St. Hubert; and other good parts are admirably rendered by Mr. Martyn Roland, Mr. R. S. Comber, and Miss Florence Raymund. A full chorus, an augmented orchestra, and beautiful scenery and dresses, contribute to an all-round brilliant entertainment.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, the United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—A strong attraction here this week is Mr. W. G. Wills's Olivia, dramatised from "The Vicar of Wakefield." Miss Winifred Emery, who possesses a sympathetic personality, is responsible for an impersonation of Olivia, which is informed with the most charming grace and discretion. Equally strong is Mr. Brandon Thomas's depiction of the Vicar, a dignified and impressive piece of work; while Mr. Eille Norwood makes an excellent Burchell; Mr. Franklin Dyall is admirably good as Squire Thornhill; and high praise is due to Mr. Harry Ashford as Farmer Flamborough, Miss May Chevalier as Sophia, and Miss Keith Lytton as Mrs. Primrose. The play has the added advantage of really splendid scenery.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—After a highly successful fortnight at the Grand Junction Theatre, Mr. Walter Howard's new play, Her Love Against the World, is staged here this week with equally gratifying results.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—An excellent programme here is headed by the Brontes, in a comedy duologue, entitled Saucy Maud. Rose Elliott, a sweet singer of sensible songs, is also prominent; and another popular turn is that of Tom E. Hughes, comedian, "One of the Upper Ten." The Viponds add an excellent and dainty scena; the Seddons provide a capital juggling act; a clever and comic turn is given by the Errolls; York, Mac, and York are seen to advantage as the Washerwoman and the Urchins; and other good turns are the Sisters Volbecque, comedy duettists; and the Gladenbecks, in a speciality act. The Bioscope shows "The Horse Stealers."

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Richard Flanagan; Manager, Mr. Gus Flanagan.—One of the most entertaining pieces seen here for a long time is The 'Varsity Belle, which is presented by Mr. Henry E. Leigh's company. Mr. James Danvers as Professor Septimus Stoney contributes a huge amount of capital fun, and is responsible for roars of laughter; Miss Josephine Ellis is excellent as Gaye Sparkleton, the title-part; Miss Nellie Parker Dent gives a lively delineation of the Professor's mother-in-law; Miss Nellie Beacon adds to the fun as the Professor's wife; Mr. Edward Chester is well suited in the rôle of Sparkleton, the travelling manager; and other good parts are admirably filled by Mr. R. Harley West, Mr. Roy Barraclough, Mr. Frank Lilliput, and Miss Beatrice Egerton. The action is embellished by the introduction of several excellent songs and specialities; the scenery and accesories are bright and ample; and the whole piece goes with an infectiously humorous swing from start to finish.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Messrs. Carpenter and Cooper's company present here this week their London success, The Spider and the Fly. A good performance is given, Mr. Stanley S. Gordon being seen to advantage as the hero, Cyril Girdlestone, and Miss Nina Vaughton sustaining the part of the heroine, Edith McAllister, with equal success. Mr. Ellis J. Preston as the villainous Welby Girdlestone, and Miss Amy Venimore as Stella Gray, "the spider," sustain their parts with distinct credit; while others worthy of praise are Mr. Frederick Ross (a very fine David Strong), Mr. Fred Terris, Mr. Charles A. Preece, and Miss Lucy Murray (a clever Molly Blake). The drama is very well staged.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—A capital programme here this week includes Chirgwin, the white-eyed musical joker, who is in great form, and tremendously popular with the house. The Caledonian Boys play a number of pieces with their well-known skill; Albert Le Fre, a clean and clever comedian and dancer, is very well received; the Brothers Lang indulge in a "friendly bout," with comic effects; Hanvarr and Lee, "the golfer and the maid," give a wonderfully smart juggling and athletic performance; Stelling and Revell, comic acrobats on the bars, raise shouts of laughter; the Coloured Meisters sing and harmonise agreeably; and other good turns are Billy Tucker, an expert ball-puncher; and Bouverie Pleydell, comedienne and dancer. The Bioscope adds a cleverly-arranged series called "Mephisto's Son, a Modern Version of Faust."

PALACE.—General Manager, Mr. Walter De Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Tarro Myaki, the champion ju-jitsu wrestler of the world, is the attraction here this week, and some interesting bouts are taking place nightly. Claude Ginnett and company are seen to advantage in Rejected Remounts, including four trained horses; Jack Pleasants, comedian, makes a hit; Edwin Barwick, character comedian, is well received, his impersonations being well done; and Alice Maydue, vocal comedienne, sings well. Other capital items are contributed by Cavalli, a very clever ventriloquist; Milner Verrin, the popular tenor; and Jessie Merrilees, comedienne. As usual, the Palace pictures are good.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—Welcome Home is a capital pantomimic absurdity, presented here in fine style by Bobb Hutt and company; Millie Hilton and Decima Brooke appear in a delightful song-scena, Somebody's Sweetheart; the Clement Trio are clever flying gymnasts; Colby and May, the ventriloquist and the dancing doll, are entertaining; and the Australian twin Andersons (Lily and Minnie), are clever dancers. Abdy's Canine Circus is a show well worth seeing; Jose Collins is a pleasing singer and neat dancer; the Three Albions are good comedy musicians; and Mme. Marvelle's birds are wonderfully well trained. Mr. F. J. Hedlam sings to pictures, "When the roses bloom again"; a part-song is rendered by the choir, who, accompanied by the orchestra, also render the Bridal Chorus from "The Rose Maiden"; and a series of animated pictures complete.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—The Two Bees (Harry and Flora Blake) top the bill here this week, and present with success a new comedy scena, The Man in the Moon; George French is to the front with eccentric business; and Frank Coyle, the "continuous" comedian, is also amusing. Cyrus and Maude, musical comedians, are entertaining; Charles Woodward is a capital actor-vocalist; and good turns are those of Little Lily Arthur, the "toy" comedienne; Alexandra Royal, burlesque artist; the Tivoli Girls, speciality dancers; and the Sisters Redfern, banjoists and dancers. Raymond's Vivagraph complete.

KING'S, LONGSIGHT.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The programme here this week is excellent all round. Claude Felman's troupe of clever Beau-Ideal Juveniles head the bill, and their mirth, mimicry, song, and dance, are greatly appreciated; La Belle Lillian is a graceful trick cyclist; the Montaldos, in an original equilibristic slack-wire act, introduce some well-trained birds; and Mephisto, the society contortionist, assisted by Mlle. Marie, contributes quite a novel turn; the Three Royal Temples, including Mme. Temple, are exceptionally good singers; Bert Weston is a good swell comedian; the Sisters Belmont are particularly smart dancers; and considerable amusement is caused by Sandy and Carl, comedians and eccentric boxers; and Lack and Ford, the "india-rubber man" and the "twister." "What the Boots Saw" is shown on the Bioscope.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Lost Coon, a smart musical sketch, is the attraction here this week, ably presented by Dinah Morris and company. Jack Truman, tenor, sings in good style, and is well received; as is also Herbert Bettis, Callie and Walker are entertaining in a comedy act; Peakman and Walsh are clever and amusing jugglers; Monty Biggs is a capital female impersonator; and Baby Lilybelle sings and dances prettily. The Ottawas, who are billed, did not appear on the occasion of our visit. "Saved by Rover" is an interesting film, depicted on the Bioscope.

HIPPODROME, HULME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Milton Ray's company top the bill here this week in a musical farcical comedy, entitled The Cruise of the Calabar, which is well staged, and goes with an excellent swing throughout, the comic element being well brought out by Mr. Arthur Milton and Mr. Joe English, whose whimsicalities cause much laughter; Miss Minnie Mulvey and Mr. Fred Russell also contribute to the success of the piece, and other parts are in good hands. The songs, dances, dresses, and scenery are all excellent. Billy Williams, "the man in the velvet suit," is an old favourite here, and, as usual, is well received; Warden Reed and company are successful in their sketch, The Right Road; Selby and Myers, comedians, dance smartly; Dolly Denver is an excellent buck dancer; the Smarte Brothers are good in an acrobatic speciality; and Harry Tomlinson is a pleasing vocalist. The pictures complete a very entertaining programme.

RUSHOLME PAVILION.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Leslie; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles North.—Good business is still being done here, the programme being up to the usual high standard.

AMUSEMENTS IN BRUSSELS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BRUSSELS, OCT. 2.—We may safely say that our theatrical season is now in full swing. Our national Theatre de la Monnaie has reopened its doors. Some of our artists have left, such as Dalmorès and Albers; others have taken their place. Saint-Saens' Samson et Dalila, Gounod's eternal Faust, and his clever contrast, Berlioz's Damnation of Faust, with Verdi's Aïda and Puccini's Bohème, have been the opening spectacles.

AT the Parc, M. de Féraudy, with Mme. Pierson, Mme. Kolb, and a host of "Comédie Française" talented pensionnaires, are giving performances of Mirabeau's Les Affaires sont les Affaires and of the clever comedian's own play, Brichanteau.

THE Galeries, pending their official reopening with Offenbach's Perichole, whose principal part will be taken by "transfuges" from the Monnaie (Mlle. Maubourg and M. Forgeur), are occupied by Berryer, an artist à la Fregoli.

THE Molière has just revived Bazin's light comic opera, Le Voyage en Chine. The Alhambra has unearthed more melodramas, and the Olympia announces Le Bourgeon, a comedy which seems to depict the actual struggles between Church and State within a future priest's bosom.

THE Vaudeville, faithfully sticking to farcical comedies, keeps its audiences roaring with La Grimpette, and the Scala has just launched the first revue of the season, Ca vaut de l'Or (It is worth gold), and we hope it will be for the manager, M. Brouette, who has been lavish in this production.

THE Palais d'Eté remains the only music hall in Belgium with a programme full of first-class attractions. This week we have Ady Hett, a chanteuse; the Lios Alfa; Clement de Lion, as clever with billiard balls as Thurston with his cards; Ara Mozza, a pretty and clever cyclist; the fanciful duettists, Raphael-Colombel, of international fame; Florizell, a lady contortionist; the Three Willés, a first-class star turn in their acrobatic wonder; the Lepicq, on the flying trapeze; Rosa and Jeannette, American dancers; and the Bonnes, gymnasts.

"THE ERA" EARLY DELIVERY.

SPECIAL NEWSPAPER EXPRESS SERVICES now running on the London and North-Western, Great Northern, Midland, and Great Central Railways, carry The Era to the following important cities and towns at the times named. Newsvendors and subscribers obtain their papers at a much earlier hour than was previously possible.

THE O.P. Club held its annual general meeting on the 28th ult., and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Mr. Sidney Dark as president; Mr. T. Orton Roberts, vice-president; Mr. Carl Hentschel, hon. treasurer; Mr. Guy Repton, trustee; and Messrs. J. Davis Smith and Stanley Greig, joint hon. secretaries. Under the presidency of Mr. T. McDonald Rendle the O.P. Club have had a very successful year, both socially and financially, the balance-sheet showing a profit of £212.

THE members of the theatrical profession in Paris have risen in arms. They held a crowded meeting at the Théâtre Antoine last week to consider the question of a weekly day of rest. The theatrical managers have hitherto maintained that the Weekly Rest Act does not apply to theatres. According to them, those employed in a theatrical enterprise belong to a liberal profession, and therefore cannot rank as wage-earners. Several amusing speeches were made, one man, a scene-painter, raising roars of laughter by stating that he never knew what a "liberal profession" was, but presumed it was a profession wherein people earned a liberal salary. This, he said, was certainly not the case with theatrical employees, and the managers' excuse consequently was a lame one. After some further discussion, the meeting unanimously passed a resolution repudiating any connection with a "liberal profession," insisting on being treated as mere wage-earners.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Cavannah, C.A.—The Orchid, as presented by Mr. George Dance's company, proves a source of genuine pleasure this week. On Monday Mr. Bertie Wright's part of Meakin was successfuly understudied by Mr. Michael Courtenay; and Messrs. J. R. Val, Sinclair Holden, and E. Nainby gave capital portraitures of Zaccary, the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour, and the Comte Raoul de Cassignal. Mr. Stenson Liddard as the pushful statesman, and Messrs. Burt and Hall as the two "shadows," and Mr. Du Cane as the amorous Dr. Faussett also play well. Miss Emily Stevens acts cleverly as Caroline Vokins; and pleasant work is contributed in their various rôles by Mesdames Dorothy Firman, Desiree Desmond, Jenny Bonney, Florence Wakeman, and Ethel Holdsworth. Several of the songs are heartily encored, and the graceful dancing is also greatly appreciated.

Palace Theatre. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—The Sisters Sprightly display more than their usual vivacity and versatility this week; and Miss Nini Gordon, an exceedingly clever mimic, has also a hearty reception. Miss May Mars gives a striking and most original burlesque turn, and Black Apollo shows his remarkable skill on no less than ten instruments; while Cliff and Kean excel alike as vocalists, comedians, and dancers. Leonard and Larry appear in a bright comedy act with much success; Mr. Cade Burnett's singing is generally appreciated; Raglus's feats are not only extremely dexterous but highly novel; and Mr. Barney Salmon makes a good appearance as a soldier-vocalist.

ABERTILLERY. — Theatre Metropole.—Lessees, Messrs. Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; General and Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. W. Ventom.—Miss Frances Delaval and her No. 1 London Company are here in the drama, Her Lost Self. Miss Frances Delaval as Phillippine Marcel gives a powerful interpretation of the part; Mr. Cecil Gray well sustains the rôle of Wilfred Daventry; Mr. G. Osmond Tearle gives a clever reading of Norman Esmond; Mr. Leslie York as Paul Kimberley deserves praise; as Victor Elsworth Mr. Fred Lillywhite is all that can be desired; Mr. L. W. Halfpenny and Mr. Edmund Lyons as Abraham and Rachel Cohen respectively are very good; Mr. Jimmy Stewart and Miss Hetty Stewart cause much fun as Tom Flyaway and Bridget Mahone; Miss Clare O'Sullivan deserves great praise for her able portrayal of Lucille and Dorothy; Miss Min Johnson as Dorothy Daventry acts with grace and charm, and deserves special mention for a speciality introduced in Act 2.

ACCRINGTON.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—A return visit is being paid this week by Miss Florence Baines in Miss Lancashire, Limited, which was welcomed by a crowded house. Miss Baines as Mary Ellen Thompson is the life of the piece, and keeps the house in continuous laughter. John Higgins is amusingly represented by Mr. D. Donaldson; Harry is well played by Mr. Pat Evans; Mr. Will Casey gives a quaint performance as Herbert Fox; and Mr. Walter Hicks makes an ideal butler; Miss Muriel Thompson looks very chic as Bertha; Mr. Payne Fletcher plays Farmer Thompson to the life, and a capital piece of character acting is given by Miss Pattie Groves. The other parts are in capable hands.

Hippodrome — Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Vandy, Potter, and Wersker.—A very good entertainment is provided here this week. The Carney Brothers are excellent duettists; Sid Bandon sings some good character songs; Brothers Ashley convulse the house with laughter; and Bob Sanderson is also amusing; Sisters Cora must be complimented on a very smart turn, and Allsopp and Bekwith are very good. One of the attractions this week is a clog dancing contest for the championship of the world.

ALDERSHOT.—Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Williams.—Mr. William Greet's company, on a return visit with that always popular farcical comedy, The Earl and the Girl, is again being welcomed in the heartiest possible manner. Apart from the very excellent performance given by this capable company, the costumes, staging, and dressing are magnificent. The infectious humour introduced by Mr. Alfred Donohoe as Jim Cheese places that rôle among the favourites; and he has an able partner in the coster comedy in Miss Lina Hicks (Liza). Miss May Yates—an old favourite here—is a charming Elphin Hay, and she dances and sings in a captivating manner. Mr. Thos. Kennard, who is an admirable Wargrave, and Miss Yates are heartily received for their descriptive duet. There are many others who help materially in the success, including Messrs. Leslie Owen, Greville Hayes, Ernest Plumpton, S. Anlyson, Tom Stephens; Misses K. Gerrard, Ida Stratham, Winnie Plumpton, J. Rutter, M. Grey, and E. Grey.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Fairbairn.—Under the direction of Mr. Jas. Willard, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company is reappearing here this week in The Midnight Mail. A dramatic interpretation is given of Billy Brewer, a drunken stoker, by Mr. Fred G. Evison; Mr. Alfred Goddard sustains in fine manly fashion the part of Harry Steyne; Miss Mildred Carr as Nancy Brewer, the drink-sodden stoker's wife, and Miss Phyllis Dailby as Lady Eustace are both prominent figures in the plot; and Miss Kate Johnson, Miss Dolly Gilroy, Miss Grace Chesterfield, and Miss Ada Oakley are also well cast.

Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—The bill submitted at the Empire for the week is one of the best we have seen for some time. Lovelaces, American song illustrators, give a very clever and taking turn; the Keith and Merson Four are amusing in their hunting absurdity, The Meet; in acrobatic exercises Tate and Tate introduced an expert display of Trampolin acrobatic work; another turn of importance is the troupe of Gondoliers, who sing in an artistic manner. Penstone richly merits the applause evoked by his conjuring; Little Beattie is a clever comedienne, Bert Dawson a good eccentric vocalist, Clifton and Gibson expert eccentrics, and Geo. Hoyle a talented character-comedian.

ATTERCLIFFE.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. H. Beagle.—Mr. Reginald H. Adair's company occupies the boards here this week, presenting "twice nightly" a compressed version of the exciting drama The Luck of Life. The duel with knives engaged in by two of the leading female characters is a strong feature of the piece.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. H. Laycock.—A strong and diversified programme this week is headed by the Brothers O'Brien in an exceptionally smart triple-bar performance. Astarte, the aerial nymph, introduced by Professor Fuller, is a pleasing and mysterious turn; a laughable sketch entitled The Doctor and His Patient is given by Helm and Cozens; Miss May Marion is a pleasing comedienne; the Three Behans are highly appreciated; the Attergraph pictures presented by Mr. E. C. Clayton are up to the usual standard of excellence; Mr. George Barrington deserves warm praise for his refined and clever musical act; and Mr. W. J. Lytton, character comedian, is popular.

AYR.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—Three nights and a matinée performance of the new combination, formed at the Glasgow Grand Theatre about a month ago to play the musical version of Rob Roy, have been arranged, and on Monday the Gaiety was filled by a most enthusiastic audience. The Francis and Diana of Mr. Hedmondt and Miss Alice Esty received artistic treatment, both vocally and dramatically. The Mattie of Miss Jeanie L. Harle was clever, and she, too, sang well. Miss Marion Lind played the part of Helen Macgregor with acceptance; the Rob Roy of Mr. Nelson Ramsay was perfection; Mr. W. George Robb gave a fine portrayal of Bailie Nicol Jarvie; and Mr. Herbert Benton's Dougal Cratur was particularly droll. The scenery and setting were beautiful, and the choruses were admirable in their volume of tone, being particularly so in "Hail to the Chief."

BACUP. — New Court Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Richard Nightingale.—Mr. and Mrs. John Walter's juvenile pantomime, Babes in the Wood, is the attraction here this week. Miss Gerty McQueen is a bold and dashing Robin Hood, and contributes some excellent songs. Miss Fanny Adamson makes a vivacious Maid Marian, and also sings well; Miss Kitty Chester and Baby Blyth as Bertie and Cissie, the Babes, are highly successful, and their songs are fully appreciated. Blustering Bill and Wavering Willie are played with heartiness and vigour by Messrs. Traynor and O'Connor; Mr. Ernest Thirlway is a bold, bad Baron Whereamecastle; and Ally Benson is highly amusing as Dame Flossie. An excellent Soft Tommy is found in Paddy Mills, and Fairy Goodheart has a graceful representative in Miss Doris Grey.

BARNSLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. A. C. Mitchell.—Mr. George Dance's company in The Duchess of Dantzic opened here on Monday for the first time in Barnsley. Miss May Glenn is a charming Catherine; Mr. Gilbert Yorke makes a characteristic Napoleon; as Lefebvre Mr. Ernest Torrence's singing is greatly appreciated; Mr. Alec Johnson is successful as Philippe and Adhémar; Miss Maggie White is graceful as Renee; Mr. Steve Fitzgerald an amusing Papillon; and Miss Buena Bent a capable Lisette.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — Royalty Theatre and Opera House. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stoke.—The Beauty and the Barge is here this week. The quaint humour of Mr. Blake Adams in the part of Captain Barley is conspicuous; Mr. Walter Pemberton cuts a droll figure as the irascible Major; Mr. Chas. A. White is whimsical as the old gardener, and Mr. Pennington Gush as Herbert Manners, Mr. Edward Coventry as Lieut. Boyne, and Mr. W. R. Hammersmith as Joe leave nothing to be desired; Miss May Fairclough as Ethel Smedley, the Beauty, is most charming; Miss Mary Pemberton is pleasing as Lucy Dallas, and Miss Ruby Wyndham as Mrs. Baldwin and Miss Mona Robin as Mrs. Smedley are clever in their respective parts.

His Majesty's Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge. — Mr. Morton Powell's company is presenting here this week The Woman Who Gambles. Mr. Horatio Sinclair in the character of the Baron displays subtlety; Mr. James Duncan as Count Steinbach is effective; Miss Gertrude Hunt in the title-rôle shows considerable ability, and the part of Cora Goulthart is admirably portrayed by Miss Florrie Halson.

Tivoli Theatre of Varieties. — Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage Manager, Mr. Tom Whiting.—Mr. Jack McKenzie and company, in the droll musical burlesque, The Belle of Barcelona, tops an interesting programme here. The Cleveland team of comedy acrobats receive rounds of applause; George and Edward are clever comedians; J. P. Ling, mimic, gives an exceedingly refined entertainment; Frazer and Haley sing and dance successfully; and the pictures by Vernon's Bioscope continue to be much enjoyed.

BATH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Mr. and Mrs. Benson and colleagues are once again giving Bathonians a Shakespearean week, opening on Monday with Much Ado About Nothing, in which the popular actor and his gifted wife appeared as Benedick and Beatrice respectively. Each received a cordial welcome, and at the close Mrs. Benson was the recipient of a choice bouquet. Mr. George Buchanan made an excellent Claudio, and to Mr. Clarence Derwent credit is due for his handling of Don Pedro. Don John was impersonated with care and ability by Mr. Murray Carrington; Mr. E. A. Warburton, a new member of the company, was well suited as Leonato; Mr. George Weir once again brought his ripe comedy talents to bear upon Dogberry; Miss Helen Haye made a capital impression as Hero; and with a delightful singing voice Miss Gwladys Wynne as Ursula won encores for each of her solos. On Tuesday Henry the Fifth was presented, and other plays in the Benson répertoire are Macbeth, The Merchant of Venice, Twelfth Night, The Merry Wives of Windsor, Hamlet, and As You Like It.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schubert.—A charming stage spectacle is Maurin's Fountains, which forms the leading attraction here this week. J. A. Wilson, the black oracle, is assisted by his canine marvel, Private Towser; Almon does wonders while posing upside down; Will Vay's Juveniles present a comedy scene, Life in the Slums; Angelo paints portraits with lightning rapidity; Bliss and Bliss are a couple of amusing comedians; Nina Martino, French and English vocalist, has many admirers; and Maude Beaumont, burlesque actress, and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux complete the bill.

BEDFORD.—Royal County Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—This week the boards are occupied by Messrs. E. Lockwood and R. Crossman's company in the musical comedy Sergeant Brue. Mr. E. Russell makes an excellent Sergeant Brue, whose son Michael finds a clever exponent in Mr. J. H. Goldsworthy; Miss Kitty Dale is a charming Aurora Brue; Mr. T. A. Shole is the life of the piece as Crookie Scrubbs; Miss Lily Lingard as Lady Bickenhall leaves nothing to be desired; and Mr. Henry Chichester is an undoubted success as Mr Crank, the magistrate.

BELFAST.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. George Edwardes's company opened here on Monday in the comic opera, The Little Michus. The rôle of General Ifs fits Mr. Eric Thorne like the proverbial glove, and he achieves an instantaneous success. Mr. Leonard Mackay was a manly Aristide Vert, his singing being most acceptable, while the rôles of the Little Michus were ably undertaken by Miss Iris Holy and Miss Thelma Baye. Miss Baye further adds to her laurels by her vocal and violin numbers, which were most effective. Mr. W. Talleur Elgaud deserves congratulations for his fine conception of Gaston Rigaud; and another amusing impersonation was that of the General's servant, Bagnolet, contributed by Mr. Jack Cannot. Mr. George Miller was an admirable Pierre Michu; and the rôle of Madame Michu was in the safe hands of Miss Florence Farfrey. The dances contributed by Miss Vivien Talleur were received with enthusiasm.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Harris.—The Six Brothers Luck top the bill here, and present their farcical pantomime, entitled The Demon of the Cellar, which has created roars of merriment. Dale and O'Malley are exceedingly clever comedians; and a capital mystical interlude, entitled Semi-Detached, has been staged by the Meymotts (Harry and Ada); Blanche and Powell, vocal and instrumental duo, are well received; and much praise is due to the Carina Sisters, who have been most successful with their musical mélange. Also here are Miss Flo Warner, vocalist; Mr. Arthur Boyne, comedian; Mr. Mark Merry, droll comedian; Mr. Will Driscoll, swell comedian and dancer; and the Palace Pictures.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—The chief feature here is provided by Mr. Frank Danby and his clever company, who appear to the utmost advantage in a new musical comedy sketch, entitled The Chauffeur. Albertus and Millar present a novel act consisting of a scene in the fair grounds; Mr. Dion Wade is a droll comedian, with capital songs; and the fine voice of Mr. Ian Colquhoun has been heard with pleasure in well-known songs. Mr. Phil Herman, dialect comedian, repeats his former successes in this hall; and Miss May Tyler is a charming comedienne and a fine dancer. Also appearing are Miss Flo D'Orville, comedienne; and the Brothers Obo, laughing comedians.

New Alhambra Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Douns.—The Alhambra Dramatic Company is appearing here in the sterling drama, When Rogues Fall Out. The rôle of Madge Lorrimere was undertaken by that charming actress, Miss Nina Blake-Adams, who enhanced her reputation by her undoubtedly clever impersonation; Mr. Horace Denton was a manly Jack Lorrimere; while the villainies of Stephen Ralston were realistically portrayed by Mr. Percy M. Stevenson. Mr. Cyril Grier must be commended for his fine character sketch of Bill Jenkins, which he made sufficiently repulsive. Mr. Tom H. Solly, a new comedian here, was most amusing as Billy Faggles, and he was ably assisted by Miss Alice Clarke, who was decidedly humorous as Polly Peach. Miss Effie Macintosh deserves congratulations on her capital impersonation of Dick; and other rôles were ably sustained by Miss Norah Caronne and Messrs. B. Mostyn, H. Elmore Frith, H. Arnold Allen, &c. The Alhambra Bioscope exhibits some fine pictures this week, including The Miner's Daughter.

BILSTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Battersby; Manageress, Miss Grace Battersby.—The Sin of Her Childhood is presented here this week by Mr. J. A. Campbell's company. As Captain John Thornton Mr. Campbell is well suited, and Mr. Austin Milroy carries out his dastardly work, both as Stephen Haysel and as Dr. Henry Granger, with much zeal and determination; Miss Madge Devereux is emphatic in utterance and impressive in acting as Mary Haysel; in the dual characters of little Mary and of Eric Dugdale, Ivy Rochfort does well; Mr. Hugh Brady is outspoken as the comical Barney O'Reilly, and is well supported by Miss Nellie Hook as Eliza Muggins.

BIRKENHEAD.—New Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—The ever-interesting play A Royal Divorce, under the management of Mr. W. W. Kelly, is repeating one of many visits here, and, notwithstanding its long career, appears to enjoy undiminished popularity. The production is beautifully staged, and Miss Edith Cole repeats her powerful and absorbing performance of Josephine. Napoleon is assumed with almost startling fidelity by Mr. Frederick Victor; Mr. Percy H. Vernon is an admirable Talleyrand; General Augereau is well enacted by Mr. Thomas Barry; and Mr. Graham Woods is well suited as the Marquis de Beaumont. The rather uphill rôle of Marie Louise is effectively played by Miss Agnes Imlay; and Miss Gertrude Entwistle is an efficient Blanche d'Hervas.

Argyle Theatre of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—A really capital company here includes Mr. George Gilbey (comedian), Mr. W. J. Ashcroft (the solid man), Mr. Albert Whelan (Australian mimic and whistler), and Foreman and Fannan (comedians and patterers), all favourably known here. In addition we have Carter Livesey and Lilian Roseberry in The Would-be Actors; and also the Waldrons. Mr. Charles Beauland (cartoonist), Miss Lola Patey (comedienne), Mr. Billy Mobbs (coon comedian), and the Sisters Chester are also prominent.

BIRMINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—A most popular engagement this Musical Festival week is that of Mr. Willie Edouin in Our Flat. Mr. Edouin plays as Nathaniel Glover with all his old skill and drollery, keeping the audience in a state of rare delight, and he is excellently supported. Mr. Charles Stewart, by whom the play is produced, gives a well-polished and natural portrayal of Reginald Sylvester; Miss Daisy Atherton is charming as the wife, Margery; Miss Polly Emery furnishes an admirable study of the servant, Bella; Mr. Hubert Druce portrays the irascibilities of Mr. McCullum in a most amusing and clever manner; Mr. Frank Emery does excellently well with the rôle of Stout; and Mr. Chas. Hanbury as Clarence Vane, Miss Rosamund Rokeby as Lucy, and the others also score. Thomas Trotter, an original farcical trifle, ushers in the principal piece.

Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—This week Mr. Leonard Boyne is here in Raffles, which proves intensely exciting and entertaining. Mr. Boyne, who keeps the audience genuinely interested in the fortunes of the gentleman cracksman, is well supported. Mr. Clifford Brooke displays the detective's spirit and acumen with much success; Mr. Lewis Edgard as the faithful "fag," Harry Manders, otherwise "Bunny," shares in several fine passages; Mr. Dalziel Heron interprets the dogged manner of the professional cracksman, Crawshay, with fine skill. Miss Hazel Thompson expresses the devotion of Gwendoline Conran for Raffles with real charm; Miss Hilda Stewart is successful as the vengeful Mrs. Vidal; and Miss Amy Thomas, Miss Madge Murray, Miss Beatrice Fitzgerald, Mr. Arthur Willoughby, Mr. Edmund Breon, and Mr. E. Jephson participate in the play, which is preceded by A Lesson in Shakespeare, in which Mr. Dalziel Heron, Mr. Edmund Breon, and Miss Hilda Wright take part.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Victor Turner.—The new play by S. Buchanan Rogerson, founded on Guy Thorne's story, "When it was Dark," and produced under that title, is creating quite a stir here. In this dramatisation, which contains fresh dialogue and a new scene added by the novelist, Mrs. Morton Powell scores a notable success as Helena. Mr. G. H. Pitt as the faith-destroying Schawbe is very effective throughout; Mr. Cyril Austin-Lee provides a capital antidote in the rôle of the curate, Basil Gortre; Miss Mabel Mannering presents the actress, Gertrude Hunt, in a most telling guise; Mr. Riddell Robinson proves to possess sterling ability as Llewellyn. Mr. G. Rammell as Harold Spence, Mr. Millar Wilson (who relieves the tension somewhat with his entertaining comedy play as Gayfly), Mr. Henry Heller as the Vicar, Mr. Geo. Mortimer as Nunc Wallace, Miss Bessie Ellis as Gracie Goldeye, and the Misses E. and G. Allen, with songs and dances as Flossie Lovegay and Minnie Golightly respectively, also deserve honourable mention.

Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chris. Felton.—A capital week's fare has been provided here by Mr. F. B. Woulfe, who includes in his company Miss Ethel Griffies, a capable actress of sympathetic parts. As Lady Godiva, Nell Gwynne, and Jane Shore, Miss Griffies has given most satisfactory proofs of her ability; as Tom of Coventry (Lady Godiva), Charles II. (Nell Gwynne) and Richard III. (Jane Shore) Mr. F. B. Woulfe has been signally competent and successful; while the support has been most satisfactory, and includes Miss Katherine Brook, Miss Edith Lorraine, Miss Madge Nelson, Mr. R. Seath Innes, Mr. William Macready, Mr. Ernest Hamilton, Mr. A. Edward Dunstan, and Mr. Bob Anderson. The scenery, costumes, and armour are all appropriate to the period.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—Mr. Bert Coote's company is here in The Fatal Wedding, which is exceedingly well presented. The Little Mother is this time played by Miss Madge McCalla, whose bright and happy style and clever, taking songs mak a great impression. Mr. Wilson Howard portrays Howard Wilson in a worthy manner; Mr. Guy Hastings acts in a well-finished way as Robert Curtis; Miss Leah Marlborough depicts the adventuress in a most vivid light; Miss Katherine Clarke appears with much charm as Mabel Wilson; and the humorous rôles are well played by Mr. Walter Westwood as Schwartz, Mr. Edward Morgan as Toto, Mr. Jack Waring as O'Reilly, and Miss Blanche Stanley as Bridget. The varieties include Miss Dolly McCalla, whose smartly rendered speciality songs and dances make her an immense favourite; and Master Walter Audrey, a clever Lancashire step-dancer; Miss Ivy Westaby, vocalist, and Miss Winnie Crisp, juvenile dancer, are taken into favour.

Carlton Theatre, Saltley. — General-Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Mr. Henry Bedford and company fill the bill here with Gipsy Jack and (for Friday only) The See-Saw of Life. In the former, Mr. Bedford depicts the hero, Gipsy Jack, with all his virtues and manly qualities, securing a fine reception; Mr. Robert Gilbert acts as the principal villain, Gerald Skinner, with perfect success; Mr. David Curtis is good as the elder Skinner; Mr. E. Rayson Cousens is popular as the curate, Francis Harvey; Miss Violet Alwyn invests the heroine, Dorothy Dexter, with many endearing charms and qualities; Miss Frances Foley scores as Hagar, as does Mrs. Jeffrey as Mother Hunt; Miss Bessie Bedford acts in a graceful and good-humoured style as May Harvey; and the comic flights of Mr. Sid Bedford as Joe Banks, Mr. Archer Brown as Charley Bates, and Miss Jennie Risley as Jennie Huggins meet with much success.

Theatre Royal, Aston.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. B. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—Mr. Fredk. Melville's popular company is here this week in the drama Between Two Women. Miss Molly Malone as the gentle and true-hearted heroine and Miss Vera Fordyce as the base adventuress appeal to the feelings of the audience most successfully; Mr. Aurele Labat plays the hero, Harry Millard, with fine expression and verve; Mr. Walter Thornton embodies the evil points of the unscrupulous Durwood in a complete manner; Mr. Godfrey Tearle invests the rôle of the Rev. Philip Carton with virility; Mr. Roland Yorke as Major Strangeways proves an able advocate for the villain; Mr. Fred Goddard acts well as the Earl of Millard; Miss Lulu Bowes gives a pathetic picture of the blind boy, with songs; while in the comedy scenes Mr. Fred Danvers as Pringle and Miss Lilian Earle as Polly are pre-eminent.

Empire Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Winifred Hare heads an excellent programme here, her charming presence and excellent songs being much admired. Whit Cunliffe is as amusing as ever. Whimsical Walker and company have a smart sketch, Captain Hamilton, V.C.; the operatic selections rendered by Les Voce are well applauded; Minnie Cunningham is an Irish comedienne with a pleasing style; Nenotti is seen in a sensational cycling act which is decidedly clever; Ben Albert, Mont, and Corelli, comedy artists, and Charles Matthews, in a clever jumping act, complete the bill.

Gaiety Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Rogues of the Turf, a dramatic episode in which there is plenty of excitement, is proving a big attraction here. The sketch is presented by J. F. Preston and company; Ross and Grayson are on a return visit, and are most amusing, as also are Mabel Thorne and Harry Weldon; and Pete and Juno, in their coloured speciality "Dancing to Win"; Frank Maura, with his foot juggling, is smart, Fred Curran and Arthur Slater, comedians, are also popular.

Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Lew Lake and company are attracting crowded houses this week with a musical mélange, Muggins, V.C., which is elaborately staged, while the singing, dancing, and comedy element is much appreciated. The Four Avocas and Lottie Stone's Black and White Girls are also big attractions; Hal Godfrey, American comedian, is making a big impression; while Alix Lukos, actor-vocalist, is loudly applauded. A clever acrobatic display is presented by the Four Emilions; some smart juggling is displayed by Frank Hartley. Other popular turns are Nancy St. John, the Sisters Marion, and Rosalie Jacobi.

Bordesley Palace. — Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—The excellent programme this week is headed by Alexandre and Hughes, whose humorous and musical entertainment wins loud applause. Nelson's Newsboys also come in for a good share of praise; Herbert Clifton is a clever mimic; Lambeth and Robinson have a Scotch character study; Rosie Bartlett is an attractive comedienne; C. J. Johnson, Bernar's Fantoches, and the Bioscope complete the programme.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — Eden Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. Julian Malvern's company, under the direction of Mr. Charles M. Julian, is paying a return visit here with I Defy the World. Mr. Percy Ballard impersonates Leon Darville with good effect; the villainy of Count de Beaulieu is well portrayed by Mr. Chas. Wilton, who is ably supported by Mr. Chas. Conway as Laroche. The attractive character of Pauline Delaporte is skilfully acted by Miss Rosalie Heath; Miss Violet Craufaud is well suited to the part of Blanche Darville; and Miss Rosie Dane is very good as Fanchette. Mr. Alfred Denning is a satisfactory General Delaporte; and Mr. Arthur Chisholm a capital Andre. The comedy element is excellently supplied by Mr. Chas. M. Julian and Miss Maud Lilian as Samuel and Marie Wozzle respectively.

BLACKBURN. — Theatre Royal.— Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Manager, Mr. Reginald C. Yorke.—There have been especially good houses at this place of entertainment this week on the first visit to the town of Judge Parry's play, What the Butler Saw. The success of the piece is undoubtedly made by Mr. Lionel Rignold as the Butler, his drolleries being a constant source of diversion. Miss Ada Blanche plays the part of Mrs. Barrington with her accustomed charm, and Mr. Charles Fawcett as Jack Barrington is uncommonly funny. Mr. Harry Rignold gives an amusing portrayal of Abraham Weinstern; and Mr. George Ascott as General Dunlop is excellent. Mr. Reddick Anderson makes a capital Sir Charles Foden, and Miss Marie Daltra's acting as Miss Foden is also a good performance. As Vere de Bogyns Mr. Alec Alves is good, as are Mr. Roy Byford as Professor Shale, Mr. Louis Lingard as Sidney Clifford, Miss Hylda Davies as Clarissa Dunlop, and Miss Violet Gould as Mrs. Fleming Smyth.

Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page.—Miss Maud Hildyard's company in the drama, The Great Awakening, is drawing good audiences here.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—Those old favourites, Tom Foy and company, are here again in their sketch, The Yorkshire Lad in London, which is as potent in laughter-making as ever. Walter Emerson, the six-foot comedian, is also amusing, as are Florence Yaymen in her burlesque of coon songs, and the Five Bon-Bons in their pantomime sketch, Hot Time for One. The Three Rubys are clever lady acrobatic artists, and Playfair and Nikola tear pretty patterns in paper; Helen Martin is a popular vocalist, and Woodward and Walton do some smart rag-time dancing. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux exhibit some interesting living pictures.

BLACKPOOL.—Her Majesty's Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—A crowded house accorded to Miss Olga Nethersole a hearty welcome on making her reappearance in Blackpool on Monday night. The Second Mrs. Tanqueray was the play selected, and both she and the members of her company were seen to great advantage. As Paula Miss Nethersole has a part after her own heart, and she gave the audience of her best—which is saying a great deal. Mr. Frank Mills was good as Aubrey Tanqueray, and Mr. William Clark contributed a well-thought-out picture of Cayley Drummle. Eileen found an exceedingly capable exponent in Miss Rosalind Ivan; and Miss Ina Goldsmith did every justice to Mrs. Cortelyon; Miss Molly Pearson handled the part of Lady Orreyed in a very able manner; Mr. Julian Royce as Captain Ardale, Mr. John Nesbitt as Gordon Jane, and Mr. Slaine Mills as Frank Misquith also played their respective parts with credit and distinction. Sapho, Carmen, and Camille also have a place in the week's bill.

Grand Theatre.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—Mr. George Dance's company is in possession here this week with A Country Girl, and is meeting with well-deserved success. The title-rôle has an ideal exponent in Miss Maisie Gay, whose vivacity and light-heartedness, together with her tuneful singing, serve to establish her a tremendous favourite. Mr. Charles Walenn as Barry causes much amusement, and Mr. St. John Hamund scores a success as the Rajah of Bhong; Mr. Percy Carr acts and sings well as Geoffrey Challoner, and Mr. F. W. Pedgrift is to be commended for his clever character-sketch of Granfer Mummery. Sir Joseph Verity is in the capable and experienced hands of Mr. J. C. Graves, and Douglas Verity is well looked after by Mr. Robert Corray; Lord Ancester is played by Mr. Percy Corray, and Lady Ancester is pleasingly portrayed by Miss Kathleen Ronayne. The singing of Miss Nancy Rossiter, who makes a charming Marjory Joy, evokes loud applause, and Miss Winnie O'Connor gives the utmost satisfaction as Princess Mehelanah.

Palace. — General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Alice Hollander, the Australian contralto, tops the bill here, and wins warm approval by her tuneful singing. The Heidelberg Comedy Four provide a pleasing entertainment, and Bertha Winder gives neat exhibitions in clog and top-boot dancing; Albert Wyndham and company contribute a Shakespearean sketch; Ruth Molloy gives impersonations of music hall celebrities; Lillian and Vera appear in a sensational shooting act; Maud Mortimer sings nicely; Walter Wade is a clever comedian and mimic; Will E. Haines is successful as a character-comedian; Arthur Royce gives a humorous turn at the piano, and Amber Austa is a most acceptable coon singer and dancer. Vernon's Imperial Bioscope shows the latest pictures.

BLYTH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—Mr. J. Bannister-Howard's company has presented here again the well-known play entitled The Christian. The centre of attraction undoubtedly was the portrayal of Glory Quayle by Miss Laura Walker, who gave a careful and artistic performance and won the hearty applause of the audience. To Mr. E. Stanton Sharpe every praise is due for a masterful reading of the part of John Storm; Mr. Percy Johnson as Parson Quayle was most successful; Father Lamplugh, in the hands of Mr. Harry Colbeck left nothing to be desired; Mr. Phipps Stanley gave a powerful rendition of Archdeacon Wealthy; Mr. P. Gedge Twyman was much in evidence as Lord Robert Ure; Mr. Duncan Yarrow displayed ability in the part of Horatio Drake; and the Faro King of Mr. Anthony Rawles was a success.

Hippodrome.—Lessee, Mr. George E. Good.—The attractions at the 'Drome continue to draw popular audiences. The bill this week includes Gravetta and Parr, pot pourri artists, and Nellie Nora, society musical entertainer, and a series of animated pictures.

BOLTON.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Melvin.—Mr. Smith has this week renewed his acquaintance with the patrons of this theatre, and been well received by large and appreciative audiences nightly. Several changes have been made in the company since its last visit here. Mr. Cecil du Gue deserves warm praise for his easy and manly portrayal of the character of Mr. Earle Godwyn Smith; Mr. Sydney Price again appears as the Earl of Oxted, and plays the part cleverly; the spendthrift Duke of Angleland has a good representative in Mr. Wm. Dunlop; Mr. Austin Spencer is suited to the part of the Hon. Dudley Dysart; Jack Barkeley is in the able hands of Mr. Russell Norrie; Herr Diedrich Anheuser is amusingly sustained by Mr. George F. Ross; Miss Mildred Cottell plays well as the Duchess of Angleland; Miss Eisina Gaunt acts with much charm and dignity as Lady Mary Hildergate; Miss Phyllis Relph admirably sustains the character of Ruth Anheuser; and Miss Daisy England gives a good rendering of the part of the fond mother, Mrs. Smith.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—Hermann Meiot heads the bill, and performs some really smart conjuring tricks. Other turns are F. V. St. Clair, vocalist, &c.; Mabel Hind, character comedienne; the Adderley Bros., in their unique speciality Instrumental Mimicry; Charles Stoman, comedian; the Olive Trio of comedians and dancers; Palles and Cussick, eccentric comedians and funny knockabouts; Cora Casselli, a charming comedienne; Dan Thomas, comedian; the Three De Veres, in their amusing comedy speciality; Mlle. Cordite, assisted by Wild Buffalo, in a clever rope-spinning and lariat manipulating performance; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

BOOTLE.—Muncaster Theatre. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Manager, Mr. H. Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—*A Wrecker of

Harry Gordon; Mr. S. Major Jones submits an amusing character study as Joseph; excellent support is given by Mr. Tom Shelford as the frivolous Hon. Percy Fitzthistle; and the remaining characters are satisfactorily sustained. The chorus and augmented orchestra are very effective under the skilful direction of Mr. Basil Horsfall. The musical play is well staged and beautifully dressed.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter.—Mr. W. H. Hallatt's company opened here on Monday with Two Little Sailor Boys. Miss Blanche Steele gave a forcible portrayal of Lois Grey; Miss Alice Defoe made a charming Mildred Grey; Mr. W. H. Hallatt achieved much success as Captain Tom Yorke; Mr. Jerrold Heather's Commander Noel Tregarthen and Mr. Ellerslie Pyne's Lieut. Richard Redstone were well played; Mr. J. Court Harvard was a capital Admiral Grey; Mr. Ambrose Horton as Jim Royston was effective; and Mr. Tom Sinclair was entertaining as Ben Baxter. The two little sailor boys were ably represented by Miss May Day and Miss Ethel Frances Greene.

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; General-Manager, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—There is an excellent company here this week. Herbert Shelley is distinctly successful in his thrilling episode entitled, Dan the Outlaw; Harrigan and Holt are eccentric comedians and dancers; the Carlyles are clever and graceful waltz dancers; Mac Olive, assisted by Miss Daisy Baldrey, is well received in his whistling scena from The Belle of New York; the Four Juggling Geraldos perform clever tricks with clubs and hoops; Cosgrove and Burn win applause for their Scottish-American comedy act; Claver and Piccolo are sensational equilibrists; Nat Watkins is a capital comedian; Zeidler, legerdemain artist, displays great skill; Walter Levetto is a dancing wonder; Amy Elcock is a neat comedienne and dancer; and the Alhambrascope pictures are amusing and interesting.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—An attractive programme is sustained here this week. A capital turn is given by the Ford and Barras combination, Ford being a good buck dancer and mouth organ soloist and Barras an excellent vocalist and bone soloist; Phil Ray, the popular London abbreviating comedian, is enthusiastically received; Messrs. Corri and Dereye's company submits a delightful sketch entitled Office Hours; Ticotte and Lizette are successful in their Crazy Cook scene; Herbert Cyril, the seven-footed comedian, is favourably received; the Musical Schaffers prove highly effective in their comedy musical act, The Garden of Melody; Harry Edson and his wonderful dogs, Doc and Tige, provide a fine turn; Rex Fox is a clever ventriloquist; Frank Leslie is a pleasing vocal comedian; and the Barrascope pictures are amusing.

WEST PIER.—Secretary and Entertainment-Manager, Mr. A. W. Norman.—Mr. Norman V. Norman and company are here this week with The Chevalier de St. George and David Garrick. The former comedy, presented for the first time on any stage on Monday, is fully noticed in another column.

NEW PALACE PIER THEATRE.—Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope continues to prove very attractive here, the up-to-date pictures including the Springboks' first match and the great motor race, Isle of Man.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—The annual visit of the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company is always looked forward to as a special treat by the music-loving section of Bristol. On Monday evening Tannhäuser was performed to a full house. The opera was presented in a very complete and satisfactory style, the elaborate overture was splendidly played by the largely augmented orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Eugene Goossens, and special praise must be awarded to the large and well-balanced chorus, who did their work throughout in a most admirable manner. Mr. Julius Walther's interpretation of Tannhäuser is well known and appreciated. On Monday evening he was in excellent voice, and his fine dramatic acting added much to his success in the part. Miss Grace Nicoll sang remarkably well as Elizabeth, frequently with exquisite charm, while her acting was pleasingly graceful and sympathetic. Miss Marie Alexander was deservedly appreciated as Venus; she sang extremely well, her fine voice being heard to advantage in all her numbers, looked the part to perfection, and acted with considerable power. Miss Retta McAllister made a pretty and interesting shepherd boy, rendering her song excellently; Mr. Charles Victor sang well and impressively as Wolfram, his pure baritone being fully appreciated in the "Star of Eve" song; Mr. Arthur Winckworth displayed his fine bass as the landgrave, and acted with dignity; and Biterolf, Reinmar, Schreiber, and Walther were effectively rendered by Messrs. John Ebbeler, Charles Brierley, Albert Felton, and Charles Le Sueur. Faust was the attraction for Tuesday evening, and it "fetched" a fine house. The chorus again distinguished itself, and the orchestra, conducted by Mr. Walter van Noorden, did excellent work. Mr. Edward Davies sang well as Faust; Miss Elizabeth Burgess displayed to great advantage her fine soprano in the numbers allotted to Marguerite; Mr. Arthur Winckworth acted cleverly and sang remarkably well as Mephistopheles; Mr. Dillon Shalland was vocally and histrionically successful as Valentine; Mr. Frederick Clendon made the most of Wagner; Miss Dorothy Mayfield both acted and sang prettily as Siebel; and Miss Douglas Wilson was well placed as Martha. Lohengrin, Carmen, Bohemian Girl, Fidelio, and Il Trovatore are also billed.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Crowe.—The attraction here is the new drama, The Coal King, well staged and cleverly acted by Messrs. Polini and Maitland's company. The drama is above the average, a contingent of working colliers from the Bedminster (Bristol) pits adding much to the realistic effect. Miss Gertrude Valentine is pleasingly sympathetic as Grace Shirley; Mr. Lauderdale Maitland is manly and convincing as Tom Roberts; Mr. Lionel Thompson is well placed as Sir Reginald Harford; Mr. Escott Robson does well in the heavy part of Walter Harford; Mr. Alfred Terris is successful as Jim Williams; Miss Sinna St. Clair makes the most of Mad Ann; Miss Sybil Coghlan is effective as Araminta Green; and other parts are carefully taken by Miss Evelyn North, Mrs. Baker, Messrs. Frank Dalton, John Coghlan, William Bennett, Harry Nelson, L. Fenwick, Louis Stanford, and Fabian Lock.

PALACE THEATRE.—Resident-Manager, Mr Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. V. Welchman.—Fred Karno and company are here with their amusing sketches, Early Birds and The Smoking Concert, which are given at alternate performances; G. W. Hunter, comedian, obtains considerable applause; Nellie Rose, comedienne and dancer, is much appreciated; Hector and Paulus, acrobats, do a good turn; George Hyam, comedian, is successful; Daisy Mayer scores in her speciality scena, Topsy Up-to-Date; Rose Pink is an exceptionally clever juvenile vocalist and dancer; and interesting animated pictures, including "The Miner's Daughter," are depicted by Vernon's Bioscope.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Harriett Vernon, comedienne, obtains much applause for her songs, and also for an interesting scena, Sunshine and Shadow; James Fawn, comedian, is highly successful in old and new songs; Rene Ring is a pleasing soubrette and dancer; Diana and Natalia do a clever performance on a revolving gymnastic apparatus; Arthur Albert, actor-vocalist, is successful; Johnny Danvers, comedian, does a well-appreciated turn of song and eccentric dancing; Frank Elliston and company score in a comic sketch, Aunt Matilda; the Brothers Pasquali present a good exposition of head-to-head balancing and tumbling; and George M. Marriott and company are successful in a well-mounted sketch, Knights of Hampstead Heath. The performance concludes with interesting animated pictures.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—The Convict's Daughter is being presented here by Mr. Frank Bertram's company. Michael Graham is excellently played by Mr. Bertram; Mr. G. Nelson Wallace is well suited as Frederick Neville; Mr. Herbert M. King works well as Harold Trevelyan; Jasper Thorn is a thorough-paced stage villain in the hands of Mr. G. Moreton Williams; Miss Nellie Clyde makes a charming Edith; Mr. Sam Roberts as Patrick O'Laragan causes laughter; and a clever performance is that of Betty Hynes by Miss Phyllis Gibbon. Marion Thorn is fittingly presented by Miss Rose Carew. Mr. Percy Robinson is also successful as Frank Harper.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—OPERA HOUSE (NEW HIPPODROME).—Proprietor, Mr. H. Dudley Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Waller.—A good company is appearing here this week, consisting of Nellie Dunbar, coon songstress and dancer; Musical Silvio, novelty instrumentalist—a really clever turn; Charles Bu-Ual, the Happy Dutchman; Rene and Smith, American speciality artists; Linton, the Mexican Wonder, on the wire; Roland Hill, a really good comedian with funny songs and sayings; Daisy Morel, a clever ballad vocalist; Jack Sheppard, the handcuff king and gaol-breaker, and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

BUXTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Arthur Willoughby.—For Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, this week, we had Mr. A. H. Canby's powerful company in The Prince Chap. Mr. H. R. Roberts gave a delightfully smooth and easy rendering of the name-part, and Mr. George Shelton played with conspicuous success as his servant, Marcus. Miss Wilfred Draycott was well-placed as Lord Harringford, and the parts of Ballington, Nadder, and Fritz were in the capable care of Messrs. A. E. Greenaway, Arthur Eldred, and Ivan Berlyn. Miss Ethel Hollingstead's Alice Travers was capably acted, and Miss Katherine Kollie played her small part of Mrs. Harrington with evident ability. Miss Adie Boyne as Phœbe Puckers kept the house continually on the giggle, and Miss Lorna Lawrence was a pleasing Claudia of Act. III. Little Betty Green acted Claudia in Act. I. cleverly, and little Geraldine Wilson commendably took the same part in Act II. The play is admirably staged. For the remaining three days we had Mrs. Russ Whytal and company in Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire.

CAMBRIDGE.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—Mr. Fred Karno's company is here this week with the musical comedy, Saturday to Monday. Mr. Rolando Martin as John Willie Jagga works hard and successfully; Miss Amy Rogerson as Clorinda makes the most of the part; Mr. J. W. Bradbury as Mr. Blake is good, as are Mr. Dick Harcourt as Mr. Potts, Mr. C. Herbert Summers as Tom Freeman, Mr. J. Fletch as Spinks, Miss Daisy Stone as Violet Blake, and Miss Ada Maskell as Aunt Skinner.

CARDIFF.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robt. Redford.—On Monday night the popular comedian, Mr. James Welch, appeared before a crowded house with his capable company in the diverting farce, When Knights were Bold. Mr. Welch is seen to much advantage as Sir Guyde Vere. Miss Audrey Ford makes a capital Rowena, and scores a success, while Miss Daisy Cordell as Miss Isaacson is charming. As Sir Brian Mr. Edward Sass presents a capital portrayal, the Dean has a reliable exponent in Mr. James Nelson, and Mr. Arthur Grenville as Mr. Isaacson could scarcely be more suitably placed. Miss Emma Gwynne does well as Mrs. Waldegrave. The principal piece is preceded by The Lady Burglar, in which Miss Estelle Winwood and Mr. Henry J. Ford work extremely well together.

KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—The London Fireman is an excellent drama, and has been successful at the King's Theatre this week. A polished villain is found in Mr. Oliver Birrel, whose portrayal of Viscount Fleming is a distinct success. Mr. J. Forbes Knowles is responsible for a capital impersonation of Hal Curtis; Mr. Edward L. Garside gives a clever rendering of the ex-convict Ratty; and Mr. Welham Burgess is well suited to the part of Abel Fortnum. As Ida Curtis Miss Nellie Shirley has a difficult character to sustain; as the Countess Fleming Miss Nellie Waddington submits a powerful delineation; and as Grace Curtis Miss Florence M. Daly is all that could be desired. Comedy has two clever representatives in Mr. Harry C. Momber as Nixey and Miss Nellie Garside as Polly.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—An attractive programme is submitted here. Harry Cadle's Casey's Circus production is very amusing; Ancillotti's wonderful dog Pilue creates a sensation by his marvellous display of thought-reading; Howard and St. Clair are always welcome with their fresh original turn; Fred Russell's ventriloquial performance provides unbounded fun; and the Barrowsky Trio score with In the Woods. Little Ganty, described as a "lump of fun"; the Three Amorantha, lady acrobatic dancers; Madge May, comedienne; and George Formby, the comedian from Lancashire, are the remaining artists. Nat Clifford is also billed, but was unable to appear on Monday night.

CARLISLE.—H.M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Trustees of R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Stanley.—The Sign of the Cross is still a big draw here, the house being well filled on Monday night when Mr. William Greet's excellent company again presented this always interesting play. Mr. Frank E. Petley possesses a happy combination of the characteristics necessary for a successful impersonation of the hero, and his Marcus was a thoroughly sound piece of work; Mr. C. Yorke's Nero, too, was a clever interpretation, his powerful handling of the character creating quite a deep impression; Miss Marie Leonhard represented Mercia with charming grace and skill, and soon gained the sympathy of her audience; Miss Cissie Carlton's Dacia was a bright and clever study; and Miss Mary Newcombe was equally successful and delightful as Poppœa. Ancaria was admirably played by Miss Jessica Thorne; Mr. Frank Wood worked hard as Glabrio, and got as many laughs as it was possible out of the part. Mr. Charles Aldred as Tigellinus, Mr. J. Weatherall as Licinius, Miss Gertrude Price as Berenice, and Miss Effie Dane as Stephanus contributed excellent performances.

THE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Palace Theatre, Ltd., Carlisle; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—Datas, the memory man, heads the list here this week, and is creating quite a sensation with his wonderful feats in memory; Lotto, Lilo, and Otto, trick and comedy cyclists, are making a big hit, the daring feats accomplished by these clever performers being little short of marvellous; Lena Verdi does some remarkably lifelike impersonations of variety artists, and scores an instantaneous success; Henri Bekker, designated the pleasing conjurer, seems to go one better than any others that have been here; the absurdity The Porter and the Parcel, as submitted by Howard and Collinson, is an excellent item, and keeps the audience in one continual roar, the doll impersonation by the lady being extremely lifelike (?); the Ellimans present a very bright and entertaining musical act; and the singing and dancing of the Three Sisters Silcott are much admired. Some capital pictures are shown by the Pepiscope.

PUBLIC HALL.—The New York Animated Picture Company is exhibiting some capital pictures here this week. Several variety turns have been introduced, including a novel and amusing ventriloquial act by Will Hunter.

CARMARTHEN.—ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Proprietors, Public Rooms Company; Secretary, Mr. Edward Baldwin.—A crowded house greeted the appearance of Mr. Charles Macdona's excellent company on Monday evening in A Chinese Honeymoon. Mr. James Wilson as Hang Chow, the Emperor, was most commanding, and made all that was possible out of the part. Miss Kitty Clayton gave a clever impersonation of Fi-Fi, the little Cockney waitress; Mr. Louis Ashmeade was successful as Chippie Chop, Lord Chancellor; and Mr. Edwin Sykes as Hi Lung, Lord High Admiral, was responsible for much merriment. Soo-Soo was charmingly portrayed by Miss May Jelpka. She possesses a very sweet voice, and her artistic renderings of "Behind a paper fan," "The Little Maid of Pekin" and "Egypt" were received with outbursts of applause. Mr. C. F. Howard gave a capital impersonation of Tom Hatherton, and contributed a solo in fine style. Miss Florence Wilton was most successful as the dainty little Mrs. Pineapple, and she sustained her part throughout with piquancy and "go." Mr. Lindsay Harmon was equally successful as Mr. Pineapple. Miss Hattie Hyde and Miss Sybil Ross were bewitching bridesmaids, and Miss Frances Olgar and Miss Louie Love, as Soo-Soo's maids of honour, were charming; while Miss Florence Manners as Mi-Mi performed her part admirably, as did also Mr. Fred Talbot as Coolie. Miss Alma Bolton impersonated capitally Mrs Brown, that much-dreaded but amorous official mother-in-law.

CASTLEFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Cr. Hy. Masterman.—The attraction this week is Mr. Leonard Dalrymple's company in At Midnight Chimes. Witty Wally Walton provokes much merriment by his drolleries; Mr. Percy Maitland plays well the part of Luke Dezzard; Mr. Lewis Leslie, who fills the rôle of Dave Stannard, gives valuable aid; Mr. Herbert Belmore is a convincing Ezra Gamble; and Mr. Leonard Dalrymple acts with dramatic force in several parts. Miss Mary Campbell is impressive as Mary Stannard; Miss Madge Beresford is becomingly pert and vivacious Suzette; Miss May A. Hart a successful Zanora; and Little Davy is well portrayed by Miss Ethel Denville; Mr Robert Hope making a capital P.C. Tibbot.

CHATHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. G. Ridley.—This week's attraction is The Walls of Jericho, presented in capital style by Mr. Arthur Bouchier's company, under the management of Messrs. Silvanus Dauncey and M. V. Leveaux. The arduous rôle of Jack Frobisher is enacted in a highly creditable manner by Mr. Herbert Sutton, his efforts being very ably seconded by Miss Florence Jackson as Lady Alethea. Mr. George A. Brandram is a natural Hankey Bannister; Mr. Cyril Baleine does justice to the part of the Marquis of Steventon; Mr. Sydney Hamilton is well-placed as Harry Dallas; and the Misses Lydia Busch and Molly Carton are equally successful as Lady Westerby and Lady Lucy Derenham.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Fred Earle tops the bill here, and with "Seaweed" and other ditties is proving a big draw. The other items in the programme include Lacey's Brascope, with new pictures; the Borghette Troupe of Acrobats; Daisy De Roy, comedienne; Stacey and Williams, patter comedians and dancers; the Sisters Reno, duettists and dancers; Jennie Hartley, soubrette; Russell Carr, ventriloquist; and Bert Bowden, comedian.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Capt. H. B. Davis; Manager, Mr. Frank E. Doane.—The Delevines are on a return visit, their act, Flipp and Flopp, proving very amusing. George Prince's burlesque yodelling song still takes well; Galetti's Monkeys are very funny; Mignonette Kokin gives spirited dances; and Snowball and Miss Dolis, American comedy artists, Maud Marlow, burlesque artist, and J. H. Crow, comedian, complete the company.

CHELTENHAM.—OPERA HOUSE.—General Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—Mr. George Alexander's company in His House in Order is here this week. Mr. Frank Fenton's Hilary Jesson is easy and natural; Miss Auriol Lee's Nina creates a most favourable impression; Mr. Cyril Harcourt's study of Filmer Jesson is perfect in its way; Mr. Adam Alexander as Sir Daniel is excellent; and Lady Ridgley in the hands of Mrs. Kemmis is quite convincing. Price Ridgley is presented with realism by Mr. George Silver; Miss Audrey Campbell cleverly represents Geraldine; Major Maurewarde is excellent in the hands of Mr. Charles Tyrel; Miss Doris Champion is a delightfully child-like representative of the precocious Derek; Mlle. Juliette Milo is a dainty and captivating French governess; and Mr. Cyril Cattley as Forshaw, Mr. James Annand as Dr. Dilnott, and Mr. Langford Browne as Harding contribute to the success.

CHESTERFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. Wordsworth.—Mr. Augustine Knight's company is appearing here with The Assassin. Mr. Knight gives a vigorous portrayal of Prince Demetri; Mr. Edward E. Ashby is careful in the rendering of Ivan Ipanoff; Mr. Theo. Balfour is impressive as Duke Carl; Mr. Chauncy Morris is excellent as General Nichol; and Miss Ella Vane is capital in the title-rôle.

CORPORATION THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. J. Cranston.—This theatre was reopened by the new lessee on the 27th ult., when Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company appeared in The Eternal City, under the patronage and in the presence of the Mayor (Councillor G. A. Eastwood). At the interval Mr. Cranston made a neat little speech, and during the evening he was the recipient of many congratulatory telegrams. This week the boards are occupied by the famous Leopolds in The New Frivolity, preceded by The Houseboat.

CHORLEY (LANCS.).—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Hemingway.—On Monday Messrs. B. H. Knight and Geo. Denham's company came here with The Grip of Iron. Mr. Fred Powell as usual gave a sensational rendering of Jagon, Mr. George Denman capitally undertaking Loustalot; Mr. A. G. Polson-Turner was quite successful as Lorentz de Ribas; Mr. T. R. Lockwood as Alphonse de Concon, and Mr. John Brittain as Dodot were well placed and effective. Miss Rosabel Dodd charmingly rendered Cora Simmonet; Miss Muriel Inglis capably portrayed Sophie Blanchard; Miss Pope Royal was admirable as Mlle. Delaney, and Miss Cissie Hapes vivaciously sustained Babette.

CLYDEBANK.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert I. Montague.—The attraction here this week is the sensational drama, A Rogue's Daughter, presented by Mr. A. W. B. Kingston's company. Mr. Kingston portrays the hero, Frank Tyler, in a most capable manner; Sir George Mynard is ably performed by Mr. Tom Armitage; the heavy part of Colonel Foster is well sustained by Mr. Jack Armitage; Mr. S. C. Leslie is highly successful as Isaac Isaacs; Miss Emily Peel looks and acts charmingly as Lady Mynard; Miss Carrie Henderson is all that could be desired as Letty Gray; the Priscilla of Miss Dora Hamilton is also worthy of mention; Dickey, a waif, is cleverly acted by Miss Alice Royal; Mr. Harry Egan causes much merriment as Ebenezer Dunnem. Other plays billed are Trilby, East Lynne, Old Edinburgh, and Jeanie Deans.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton.—On Monday night Mr. J. Bannister-Howard's company in Oliver Twist opened a week's engagement. The difficult rôle of Fagin was essayed by Mr. Stanley Drewitt, and the great applause which was accorded him continuously was evidence that he fully fulfilled expectations. Mr. James Skea made a powerful Bill Sikes; whilst the parts of Artful Dodger and Charlie Bates are worthily depicted by Mr. Charlie Clark and Mr. R. C. Hunter respectively. Mr. Fred Penley was capital as Mr. Brownlow; and Mr. W. H. Rotherham doubled the parts of Mr. Grimwig and Monks in most realistic Dickensian style. Mr. Paige Lawrence as Harry Maylie, and Miss Dorothy Mayhew as Rose, were suitably placed; and Miss Dorothy Marsdin did splendidly as Oliver Twist. Miss Edith Anton Laing displayed real ability and much histrionic power as Nancy, and was heartily applauded for her meritorious performance.

HIPPODROME.—Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Ben De Frece.—This week the management have deviated from the beaten path by presenting the well-known Jubilee Minstrels, otherwise the Dandy Darkies, and the move is apparently a popular one. The troupe, which is a strong one, both in point of numbers and in the excellence of its choruses, is conducted by Mr. Tom Channing.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Mr. Edwin Garth and company are paying a welcome return visit here this week with McKenna's Flirtation. Mr. Denis Campbell as Tim McKenna, sen., is funny; as young Tim Mr. Wallace Childs is well placed; Mr. Edwin Garth makes a quaint Michael Ryan; and as Greenleaf Blackstone Mr. C. W. Cudd is acceptable. Miss Amy Knott is good as Mrs. Mary Ellen Ryan, and as Miss Mary Ellen Miss L. Langley is most attractive. As Anastasia Miss C. Vyner is successful.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. John Horgan.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company opened a week's engagement here on Monday in The Prince of Pilsen. The piece went with a swing from start to finish. Mr. John B. Fox makes a capital Prince, and sings in a skilful and robust style; as Hans Wagner Mr. Martin Adeson won unstinted appreciation. He is a capital vocalist and comedian. Mr. G. Villiers Arnold as Lieut. Tom Wagner sings with much taste, and has a nice voice; as the Earl of Shrimpton Mr. Laurence Wensley presented an entertaining study; Miss Millicent Marsden as Mrs. Madison Crocker proved herself to be an artist whose vocalism attains a high standard of excellence; as Nellie Wagner Miss Iza Bowman gave a finished performance, singing the music assigned to her carefully and well; Mr. Alfred Selby was a clever concierge, and Miss Nell Emerald as a maid was vivacious and sprightly.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—The management here present a capital programme. Mlle. Eldee is admirable in her turn entitled "Pose Plastique"; the Ando Troupe do some clever balancing and other feats; George Ridgwell is a singer with a well-trained baritone voice; Nancy Renshaw, comedienne and bone soloist, pleases with her songs, &c.; Dora Barrington gives a scena in which she sings some acceptable songs; Nellie Adrienne, comedienne and whistler, wins applause for her song and whistling chorus; Blarney and Kennard, comedians and patterers, evoke much laughter; the Four Watsons give an acceptable turn as vocalists and instrumentalists. The performance concludes with pictures shown by Brown's Bioscope.

COVENTRY.—THE OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Wm. Bennett.—A return visit of the popular play Leah Kleschna is being appreciated by large houses at the above house of amusement this week. Kleschna is in the capable hands of Paul Belmore, and he is ably supported by Mr. William P. Grant as Paul Sylvanie; Mr. Campbell Goldsmid is seen to advantage as Schram; and Mr. Roland Daniel is rather amusing as Raoul Berton. It would be difficult to find one more suited to the part of Leah Kleschna than Miss Bessie Rignold, who is a big success; Miss Ethel Russell and Miss Helene Belgrave are respectively responsible for Mme. Berton and Claire Berton.

THE HIPPODROME.—Manager, T. M. Sylvester.—The large audiences patronising this house of amusement again have a capital bill provided for them this week, one of the most attractive performances being that of the Kyasyas, who give proof of remarkable lifting capabilities, and are much appreciated. The Lloyd Phillips present an interesting military drama, entitled Betrayed Friendship, the various characters including the following: Mr. A. Davies, Mr. N. W. Phillips, Mr. T. B. Lloyd, Mr. Jas. Braham, Mr. Edgar Lawrence, Miss Howard, and Miss Ledare. The Four Figaros give an excellent turn as international character vocalists and dancers; Stan Aubrey, the comedian, is well received; the same remark applies to J. W. Rickerby; Harris and Worth are amusing; Wal Robbins is successful. The usual animated pictures conclude the performance.

CRADLEY HEATH.—EMPIRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton.—To crowded houses, Mr. Henry Swinerd's No. 1 company (under the direction of Mr. J. W. Cordiner) is playing Dare-Devil Dorothy. Mr. Will Brereton as Silas Crump shows great versatility, and his songs gain great favour; Miss Nellie Harcourt gives a very pleasing exhibition of acting and dancing in the character of Judith; Miss Dorothy Desmonde as Dorothy Montrose is to the fore all the time, and sings with great feeling and expression; Miss Mabel Blake and Miss Nellie Blake, as Polly and Rosy Ann, are clever acrobatic and speciality dancers; Miss Marie Vere gives a winsome rendering of Ruth Montrose; Mr. Walter Boyce makes a first-rate General Garston; and as his nephews Captain George Fielding and Captain Edward Dudley, Mr. Walter Ashley and Mr. Henry C. Ward have a lot to do, and do it well. Mr. Arthur Hartley makes a good Hawkins; and Mr. William G. Hearson a capital Smith, the footman; whilst we must not omit praise to Mr. Deane Cliff for his careful study of Featherstone Haugh.

CREWE.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor, J.P.—Mr. Bert Coote's company, in The Fatal Wedding, is paying a return visit here. Mr. Ernest Owtrim gives an excellent portrayal of Howard Wilson; and the part of Robert Curtis is in the capable hands of Mr. S. Herbert Humber. Mr. C. H. Hughes submits a clever rendering of Toto; and Mr. Cyril Melton is suitably placed as Peter Schwartz. Miss Madge Haines as Mabel Wilson portrays the varying emotions of that character with skill, and furnishes a striking contrast to the scheming Cora Williams of Miss Gertrude Harrison. Miss Maud Locker as Bridget achieves success; and Miss Marjorie Lawrence as Jessie gives a charming representation.

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—An important engagement here is Messrs. L. Glenister and Wood-Ingram's company in All-of-a-Sudden Peggy and Jerry and the Sunbeam. In the first-named comedy Miss Decima Moore is bright and attractive in the name-part; Mr. Lionel Glenister plays with skill and judgment in the rôle of the Hon. Jimmy Keppell; Mr. Frank Bayly is an excellent Lord Crackanthorpe; Mr. Henderson Bland a satisfactory Major Pluppos; Mr. Harold Weston a creditable Jack Menzies; and a good word is due to Mr. Harry Phillips as Parkes and Mr. Patrick Fitzgerald as Lucas. Miss Estelle Despa hits off to a nicety the rôle of the Hon. Mrs. Colquhoun; Miss Annie Brophy is capital as Mrs. O'Mara; and Miss Barton Astor is seen to advantage as the Hon. Millicent Keppell.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Herrick.—Mr. W. H. Hallatt's company is staging here the stirring drama by William P. Sheen, The Temptress. The play is written in a masterly style, and the interest is well sustained throughout the four acts. Mr. Claud Ashworth as Sir Oswald Fordyce is commendable; Mr. Wallace Campbell as Philip Welford proves himself a capable actor; Mr. Richard Talbot as Jack Rivers does well; Mr. Weldon Atherstone is a powerful exponent of Lucas Denbigh; the rôle of Pedro Gonzales is dramatically enacted by Mr. Fred H. Constable; Mr. Quinton Fulford cleverly depicts Austin Dale; Mr. Allen Carruthers as Francis FitzFluke is exceptionally smart; Mr. Chas. Reyne ably sustains the part of John Gregory; and Mr. William P. Sheen creates a perfect hurricane of laughter and makes the utmost of his opportunities as Bob Tanner. Miss Grace Jones as Marian Fordyce displays talent; the difficult part of Madge Denbigh is ably maintained by Miss Effie Bartlett; Miss Ivy Chandos as Rhoda Brown is very good; and Miss Lydia Donovan as Lady Fordyce, the temptress, is an actress of great ability.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Hugh Emmett.—An excellent programme here. Arden and Abel's company in Three of a Kind cause laughter; the Paytes, novelty duettists, are worth seing; Will English is quaint in song and dance; Henry A. Lytton and Claire Romaine are smart and amusing in the sketch United Service; Germaine, American wizard, gives a clever and mysterious turn; the Four Olympian Stars are first-rate dancers; Marie Blythe, contralto, sings with expression; Lottie Collins, the favourite comedienne, makes a big hit; Ben Brown, Geo. Le Clerq, and company are very droll in Black Justice; and Florence Schuberth is a neat burlesque artist.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Mr. Charles Carey's musical comedy, After the Ball is the attraction this week. Miss M. Sadie does well as Nancy; Mr. Percy Baverstock as a Colonel is very entertaining; Mr. Algernon Lee scores with his singing; Mr. Buckstone Clair and Mr. Norman Bowyer are successful in their respective parts; very pleasing are the Gibson Girls and the Four Little Waitresses.

DARWEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. A. M. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson.—An exceptionally good reception has been accorded here to Driven from Home. Mr. Felix Pitt stands out prominently as Anthony Raybrook; Mr. Clement Wakefield is also good as Walter Hatherleigh. In the dual rôles of Laura and Walter the younger Miss Minnie Waller is conspicuously successful; and Mr. Fred Sandy as Geoffrey, Mr. Harry Cornwall as Jabez, and Mr. Percy Dawsone as Willie help materially the success achieved.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley; Assistant Manager, Mr. Albert Orton.—The boards are occupied this week by Mr. George Dance's company with The Little Michus. Mr. Foster Courtenay, who plays the General des Ifs, is a veritable host in himself, and keeps the house in rollicking spirits; Mr. Gilbert Childs, who plays Bagnolet, is another clever comedian, whose efforts are hugely enjoyed; Miss Alice Coverick, who appears as Marie Blanche, and Miss Ethel Bryan, who is Blanche Marie, sing and dance charmingly; the Gaston Rigaud of Mr. Wm. Everard is excellent, the singing of this artist meriting high praise; Mr. Robert C. Harcourt is capital as Aristide Vert; Mr. Leon Simkin is exceedingly good as old Pierre Michu; and Mr. Cecil Moylan scores as a market man. Miss Florence is an excellent Mme. Michu, and Miss Bessie Mackenzie figures agreeably as Mlle. Herpin. A fine feature of the entertainment is the remarkably clever dancing of Mlle. Marjorie as Mlle. St. Cyr.

PALACE.—Lessee and General Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—Marie Loftus is an extra special attraction here this week, and, needless to say, is an unqualified success. Another turn deserving of special mention is that of Speedwell, lightning painter, whose delineations are duly recognised; the San Remo Girls are pleasing vocalists and dancers; Mabel Kessler is a clever vocalist and cornet soloist; Lytton and Bland appear in an amusing sketch, A Lesson of Love; Geo. Gulliver is successful as a ventriloquist; Bert Brantford, comedian, is entertaining; and the Palace Bioscope displays some interesting films.

DEVONPORT.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Geo. A. King.—Mr. Arthur Carlton's company is presenting here Sutton Vane's play, entitled In Sight of St. Paul's. A distinctive feature is the exceptionally fine staging of the play, and a favourable impression is created by the singing of a well-trained choir; Mr. Ernest R. Allen, in the leading part of Tom Chichester, gives a highly meretorious performance; other male members of the company deserving special mention are Messrs. H. Sidney, Arthur Armfield, G. Daiper, and W. H. Domony; Miss Lallah Davis comes in for a cordial reception, and her exceedingly good acting quite justifies the applause accorded; Miss Cissie Bellamy is also a most able performer.

DONCASTER.—GRAND THEATRE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—The variety programme here is headed by Adele Lincoln, an exceedingly neat dancer, followed by Sword and Rubb, comedians and dancers, who are quaintly humorous. Charles Valvo wins golden opinions with his ventriloquial sketches; and Ive Conway, boy comedian, revives pleasant reminiscences. A most acceptable turn is that of Fred Horsfall, humorist and mimic; Evelyn Taylor, with her ample repertoire of songs, is as popular as ever; and Primavesi, juggler, gives a smart display. Le Diabelo, in looping the devil's wheel, creates quite a furore.

DUBLIN.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Chas. Hyland.—The boards here this week are occupied by Mr. Geo. Dance's company with the popular musical play, The Orchid. The part of Meakin is amusingly presented by Mr. Colin Campbell, and Miss Mabel Sealby is responsible for DUNDEE. — Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—His House in Order was presented for the first time here on Monday. Mr. George Alexander's company is one of the best seen here for a long time. The part of Nina is finely played by Miss Jean Sterling Mackinlay, who holds the sympathy of the house from start to finish; Mr. Stephen T. Ewart as Hilary Jesson gives a forceful and telling performance; Mr. J. Edward Pearce as Filmer Jesson plays a difficult part exceedingly well; Mr. George Fitzgerald is excellent as Sir Daniel; and as Pryce Mr. E. R. Hollway is quite satisfactory. Miss Augusta Haviland acts the sanctimonious Lady Ridgeley to perfection; and Miss Elaine Stedall is likewise good as Geraldine. The small part of Derek is exceptionally well played by Miss Maisie Richardson; as Major Maurewarde, Mr. Lloyd Lowndes is responsible for a telling performance. The scenery and dressing are in excellent taste.

Palace Theatre. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—A feature of this week's programme is the turn provided by Walker and May, two "real live" coloured comedians; Little Lizzie Leaver is a young and promising comedienne; Alvantee gives a daring performance on the wire rope; Janet H. Reynolds renders her songs in taking style; J. J. Mannix scores with his naive style as a coon comedian; Mark Leslie, described as the Dusky Prince, is successful in amusing ditties; the Sisters Kennedy are clever dancers; and Ahrenesmeyer, the cowboy hypnotist, is the cause of much excitement. The bioscope, with the latest films, completes the bill.

Gaiety Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—Miss Winifred Maude and company, under the direction of Mr. Victor du Cane, appear here in the stirring drama, The Sins of a City. Miss Maude submits a sincere rendering of the rôle of Seaweed; Mr. Wm. Vane is a manly Sandy Macdonald; Mr. Ed. Harrison a good Donald M'Iver; Mr. Wm. Bradford an effective Ralph Blackwater; and Mr. du Cane acts with excellent effect in the character of Isaac Levi. Miss Jessie Mason is successful in the rôle of Jenny, a Scotch fisherwoman; and Mr. Norton Shields renders dual service in the rôles of Joe and Jasper Woodleigh.

Empire Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Mr. Arnold Bell's company holds the boards this week, and presented Ben-my-Chree on Monday to two large houses. The part of Dan Mylrea was undertaken by Mr. Arnold Bell, who played with great dramatic power; as Davy Fayle, Mr. F. C. Robson did well; and Mr. H. Fuller as old Hommey-beg was quaint and amusing. Miss Marion Forrester as Mona played with feeling and Miss V. Campbell as Kitty sang several ballads sweetly.

DUNFERMLINE.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—Miss Elaine Verner's company opened a week's engagement on Monday with Saints and Sinners. A well-filled house gave a hearty reception to this fine play, and expressed continually their deep interest in Mr. Harding Thomas's presentation of Jacob Fletcher—a study of character that reaches a high plane of excellence; Mr. Percy Brown was a capable George Kingsmill; Mr. Edgar Kent did ample justice to the part of Captain Eustace Fanshaw; Mr. Frank Lyndon was well placed as Samuel Hoggard; and Mr. Edward De Vere was successful as Lot Burden. Miss Elaine Verner gave a highly commendable impersonation of Letty Fletcher; and Miss Ada Clarke was an effective Lydia. The Middleman was billed for Thursday.

EASTBOURNE.—Devonshire Park Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. Standen-Triggs.—On Monday a flying matinée was given here under the direction of Mr. Bernhardt. Miss Camille Clifford contributed two songs, and was extremely well received; Miss Margaret and Miss Ruth Clarkson proved gifted musicians; Miss Violet Elliot sang well; Miss Gertrude Tomalin recited cleverly; and Mr. Harry Hemsley gave a humorous sketch. Mr. H. F. Maltby's company was announced to appear during the later part of the week in The Youngest of Three.

Pier Pavilion.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Silvanus Dauncey and Mr. M. V. Leveaux's company is appearing here throughout the week in The Fascinating Mr. Vanderveldt. Mr. Reginald Dance is a capital Vanderveldt; Mr. H. Lawrence Leyton a distinct Colonel Rayner, Mr. Edward Coutts a light and effective Lord Woolham, and Mr. George A. Seager an amusing Sir B. Cardick. Mr. Russel Barry makes a humorous Goddlestone. Mr. George Percy is a capital clergyman, Mr. Vernon Travers an excellent Melon, and Mr. Gerald Henson an earnest Alfie. Miss Gladys Mason is a pretty Lady Clarice; Miss Mary Weigall a dignified Marchioness; Miss May Brooke succeeds conspicuously well as Lady Clementina; Miss Eve Titheradge is a girlish Aggie Coles; Miss Agnes Gunn a penetrating Miss Pelling; Miss Dorothy Haigh an efficient Miss Brevell; Miss Helen Tytler a very capable Mrs. Mellon; and Miss Muriel Mason a very good Mary. The thrilling drama in one act, The Drums of Oude, precedes.

The Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Smith.—Kiss Your Father is a very successful sketch in which Mr. Lonnen Meadows as Callaghan is very amusing; the Ramlos are a trio of clever bar performers; Harri, the winner of the amateur competition held here, promises to become a successful comedian; Messrs. Grey and Welford are a smart couple; the Olmars are picturesque acrobats; Mr. Harry Maxam sings his comic songs well; Miss Sadie Seymour pleases as a comedienne; and new pictures are shown.

ECCLES.—Lyceum Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Wardle and Potasch; Manager, Mr. P. Potasch.—We are being entertained here by Mr. Bannister Howard's company in Florodora. Mr. Alf. E. Passmore as Anthony Tweedlepunch is very amusing; the Cyrus W. Gilfain of Mr. Stanley White is successful; Mr. Allen Morris, who takes the part of Lord Abercced, sings well; Miss Kate Leicester as Lady Holyrood is vivacious; as Dolores, Miss Josephine Sullivan fills the part admirably; and Miss Louie Danby is effective as Angela Gilfain.

EDINBURGH. — Theatre Royal. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—Mr. Tree's company is paying a welcome return visit to this house with Oliver Twist. The piece would be worth seeing if it were only for the powerful portraiture of Fagin by Mr. Wm. Mackintosh. A realistic study of Bill Sikes is given by Mr. Cecil A. Collins; and Miss Marie Polini suggests with admirable art the influences of a better nature in the sordid atmosphere surrounding Nancy. Mr. C. H. Croker King is a strong, effective Monks; and Mr. E. C. Buffinn is a pleasant, lovable Mr. Brownlow. Mr. Harvey Braban represents a manly Harry Maylie, and the actor's elocution is excellent; while as Rose Maylie Miss Jane Savile is certainly one of the most promising ingénues we have seen, her love scenes with Mr. Braban being charmingly done. Miss Maudie Ray is a pathetic Oliver; and other players who do well in their parts—slight sketches all—are Mr. T. P. Haynes as Mr. Grimwig, Mr. Miller Davidson as Giles, Mr. Horace Adamson as Brittles, Miss Elsie Carew as Mrs. Maylie, and Miss Helen Bouche as Mrs. Bedwin.

Royal Lyceum Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. G. T. Minshull.—The Spring Chicken, though no longer in the freshness of its early youth, has undergone a kind of moulting process, and, in the bright plumage of a second edition, is still gay enough to attract lovers of musical plays. The excellence of Mr. George Edwardes' Gaiety company, by whom this production is brought on a return visit to Edinburgh, has much to do with its continued success. Mr. George Gregory, in his former part of Mr. Girdle, repeats his richly humorous impersonation of that festive old gentleman; the rôle of Babori is taken by Mr. John Brabourne in exhilarating style; Mr. Fred Leslie, jun., as Boniface, the head clerk, shows that he has inherited a considerable share of his father's talent; and Messrs. Frank Hector, Ernest Maher, W. Spray, and Jocelyn Hope fill smaller parts with acceptance. Miss Irene Verona appears with great effect as Mrs. Girdle, earning well-merited applause by her capital singing; Miss Gertrude Glyn is a bright and lively Rosalie; Miss Gertrude Gilliam acts very nicely as Dulcie Babori; and Miss Nancy Langtyre as Baroness Papouche, Miss Nellie Lonnen as Emmy Lou, with Miss Amy Bingham as La Modiste, all do well in their respective rôles. The large and beautifully costumed chorus finds great favour with the audience, and gains repeated encores.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—The name of Mr. Geo. Lashwood is always one to conjure with, and crowded audiences are nightly filling this house to hear the popular comedian. Mr. Lashwood is in his best form, and his songs are rendered with the never-failing bonhomie and easy grace which make his style so attractive. The Di Pace Brothers well deserve the title of "mandolinists extraordinary," for their playing of the instrument is of no common order. There is drollery as well as skill in Professor Dunning's ventriloquial act; and Terry and Lambert score heavily in their sketches from American life. Miss Beatrice Willey approves herself to be a singer, not merely of culture, but possessed of dramatic expression; and Miss Marion Scott is also a pleasing vocalist. Lady Mansell's Juveniles appear with acceptance as singers and dancers; and the Brothers Redmond evoke warm applause and hearty laughter by their amusing knockabout turn. Lucia and Viati give a thrilling, graceful wire act; Kahn and Kahn are successful in their conjuring feats; and a pretty exhibition is submitted by Albertino Mellisch with some wonderful performing birds.

Alhambra Theatre of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. J. Ireland.—The theatre in the popular district of Fountainbridge, after undergoing many vicissitudes, and having been named, at various times, the Pavilion and the Prince of Wales's, was reopened on Monday last with the title of the Alhambra as a theatre of varieties. The new management has made a strong bid for popularity. Performances will be given twice nightly, and a goodly programme was presented to full houses on the opening night. The Three Zaracs, in a graceful triple-bar act; the Ladderites, in their expert ladder-balancing feats; Natalie, a clever lady juggler; and the Sisters Terry, were the principal artists in an excellent bill of fare.

EXETER.—Theatre Royal. — Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. E. J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Mr. Brandon Thomas's company is paying a visit here this week with Charley's Aunt. Mr. Stanley Cooke as Lord Fancourt Babberley is exceedingly funny in his impersonation of the title-rôle. Mr. Hastings Lynn is excellent as Jack Chesney, and Mr. Richard B. Mason ably sustains the part of Charley Wykeham. Mr. Walter Beaumont is amusing as Stephen Spettigue. Miss Lilyan Lait and Miss Kitty Carew as Kitty Verdum and Amy Spettigue respectively are charming; and Miss Gladys Storey as Ella Delahay is all that could be desired. The one-act play, Fourchette and Co., makes an excellent curtain-raiser, in which Mr. C. B. Keston as Prince Del Crillo is decidedly good.

Victoria Hall.—Secretary, Mr. Matt. Jno. Dunsford.—Gilbert's Circus, under the able management of Mr. Tom. R. Culleen, is filling the hall this week, and proves that the circus has lost none of its popularity. From start to finish there is not a dull moment. Little Rabbit is as funny as ever, and the performances this week include exquisite dancing by Bonnie Goodwin and her Apollo pickaninnies; the Avolos, in their startling turns on the perpendicular bars, and the Royal Bioscope, with some delightful pictures.

FALKIRK.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Manager, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. W. Ebbutt.—Sentenced for Life began a three nights' show on Monday. Mr. Balmer's company was a very capable one. Mr. Ernest Vaughan as the villain performed his arduous part with considerable credit, while as the hero, Mr. Edward E. Louis, who has a fine voice and manly presence, was not one whit behind. The character of the Rev. Martin Orris was well taken by Mr. Morris Maud. Miss Madge Douglas as Adele Grey proved herself to be an accomplished actress; Miss May Neilson played well as Kate Rennell, and Miss Mary Dalby did all that was required of her as Lady Stillwell. The humour of the drama was well sustained by Mr. Reg. Oldroyd (Toby the Tadpole), Mr. Arthur Keand (Bill Sharkey), and Mr. Jas. F. Firth (Percy McGentle). On Thursday evening Kitty Grey (Mr. George Stephenson's company) made a welcome reappearance.

FLEETWOOD.—Queen's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry J. Snelson.—This week Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Maclaren's No. 1 company is here in Proof. Mr. Gerald Kennedy gives an able portrayal of Pierre Lorance; Mr. W. J. Butler as Lazare is sufficiently callous in his stage criminality; Mr. Wilford Bailey is well suited to the part of Chamboran; Mr. Carl Beechy and Miss Nita Ashby as the Duke and Duchess D'Aubeterre are effective; and Mr. Arthur St. Aubyn is good as Victor. Miss Beatrice Shirley as Madeline and Adrienne takes her parts in good style; and Miss Phena Powell makes an excellent Madame Deprets. Miss Mary Grimshaw as Valentine and Miss Ellina Turner as Little Adrienne are both good.

FOLKESTONE.—Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland. — Miss Emma Hutchison's and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company were here for the first three nights of the week in Public Opinion. Mr. Charles Harley as Spencer Traughton was a capable exponent of the rôle; Mr. Percy Marshall as Horace Wibsey was all that could be desired; Mr. Fred Lewis gave a capable rendering of the Hon. Mr. Justice Mulley; Mr. Douglas Hamilton was decidedly clever as Sir Babington Mulley; Mr. Douglas Greet made the most of the part of Viscount Pomley; Mr. Ashton Pearse was seen to advantage as Lord Percy Kilgour; Miss Nancy Beresford was a commendable Pansy Bligh; Miss Connie Dene an attractive Phyllis Dagenham; Miss Violet Harley a charming Charlotte; and Miss Emma Hutchison may be highly congratulated upon her genuine success as Lady Diana. The Lights of London was announced for Thursday.

GAINSBOROUGH.—King's Theatre.—Proprietors, Arthur Carlton Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Robt. Kirk.—Miss Bonwin Carlton's company appeared here for three nights last week in The Plucky Nipper. Mr. Fred Rivers as Richard Vanbrugh was an excellent exponent of the villain; Mr. Edward Surrey gave a good character sketch of Bill Burgess; Miss Carlton showed ability in the title character; and Mr. Douglas Campbell proved himself an excellent comedian as Tommy Atkins.

GATESHEAD.—King's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. M. S. Hammond; General Manager, Mr. Joe May.—Occupying the top line here this week is Collinson's Burlesque Company, in a laughter-provoking item, entitled The Cook's Guest. A highly appreciated turn is that submitted by Spearman Potts, an illusionist; a musical and dramatic scena, entitled The Little Colonel, played by Ernest Montefiore and company, makes the hit of the bill; W. G. Webber, a bass vocalist of considerable merit has many admirers; the Three Schaffers, described as herculean gladiatorial wonders, have a very attractive turn. The humorous songs of the Kimberley Boys create boisterous laughter; Ray and Miles have an excellent comedy act; Craig, Roze, and Craig present refined and graceful gymnastic business; and Vera Mayne, a clever vocalist, completes the show.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—The chief item in a strong programme here is the extraordinary tumbling of the Achmed Ibrahim troupe of Arabs. Patty Yole, a vivacious comedienne, contributes three tuneful numbers which please her audience immensely; another strong favourite is Harry Briggs, a triple-voiced vocalist; very funny are the songs and sayings of J. C. Scatter, a local comedian; the Vekeys are excellent banjoists; and Downey's living pictures terminate the entertainment.

Metropole Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas France.—Mr. Frank E. Burdett's company appears here with considerable success in The Indian Mutiny. Mr. George Steel makes a handsome Lieut. Manley; Capt. Manley is played in a quiet yet effective manner by Mr. Cyril Harrison; and Mr. John Davidson makes the most of his opportunities as Major Ingleby. Mr. Villiers Stanley is well placed as Nebu Singh; Mr. Charles Boult's Ra Goonga is an admirable piece of acting; and in the comedy part of Terry O'Brien, Mr. Cecil Morand is quite at ease. Miss F. Melrose Millett as Ghuz-Nah is a great success; Miss Agnes Kingston make a charming Kate Ingelby, and Miss Lillie Grey works hard as Mrs. Ingleby.

GILLINGHAM (Kent).—Hippodrome.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Co.; Manager, Mr. F. R. Griffiths.—This hall re-opened on Monday for the season with every prospect of success. There was a large audience, and they seemed to greatly enjoy the feast of animated pictures, which were served up for their delectation. Chief among the films shown were "The great jewel robbery," "The Rajah's Casket," and "The terrible kids." A little variety in the programme was introduced in the shape of ballads, sung by Miss Elsie Lawreen, who has a powerful soprano voice, and was highly successful. A word of praise is due to the efficient orchestra, which is again under the able leadership of Mr. Harold Price.

GLASGOW. — Theatre Royal, Ltd. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphreys. — Mr. Robert Courtneidge's production of The Dairymaids occupies the boards this week. It is the first time the comedy has been here, and judging from the hearty welcome accorded on Monday it is likely to become a frequent visitor. Mr. E. Statham Staples is with the company, and makes a distinct hit with his quaint impersonation of Sam Brudenell; the rôle of Dr. O'Bryne is taken by Mr. Clarence Blakiston, who imparts considerable character to the genial Irish officer; in the part of Joe Mivens, A.B., Mr. Harry Dent is very good, carrying through the funny business with great success; Mr. George Desmond plays Lieut. Frank Brudenell in dashing style, and Mr. J. Edward Fraser makes a gentlemanly Capt. Leverton; Miss Edith Blanche impersonates Lady Brudenell with sufficient dignity; two bright and lively dairymaids are seen in the Peggy of Miss Violet Lloyd and the Winifred of Miss Rhoda Gordon; Miss Beryl Vaudrey sings sweetly and acts with grace as Helene; a decided touch of character is given to the part of Eliza by Miss Rose Musgrove, and Miss Madge Avery fills the rôle of Penelope Pyechase very well. The chorus and orchestra are a special feature of the production, and are under the direction of Mr. Albert Bartlett.

King's, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—Under the auspices of Mr. George Dance we are renewing acquaintance with that enjoyable personage, The Duchess of Dantzic. In the title-rôle Miss Kitty Gordon acts with excellent effect, and despite a cold, sang with much brilliance the florid music of the part; Mr. Albert Chapman makes a handsome Lefebvre, and his vocal contributions are given with taste and distinction; Mr. Frederick Moyes, so long associated with the part of Napoleon in another play, gives a dramatic rendering of the character; Miss Lily Edmunds makes a brisk and animated Lizette; Mr. T. C. Maxwell acts with distinction as the elderly Vicomte de Bethune in the first act, and later as the youthful Vicomte; Mr. H. C. Barry's humour as Papillon proves most enjoyable; Miss Lillian Best is a charming Renée, acting and singing with grace and naïvete; Miss Nancy Hearne as the Empress Josephine and Misses Josephine McCarthy and Doris Greville as Napoleon's sisters lend able support. The chorus is large, attractive, and tuneful, and the play is mounted in first-rate style.

Royalty, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—After a lapse of ten years Messrs. Howard and Wyndham are again affording Glasgow playgoers an opportunity of witnessing their fine production of The Lady of the Lake. Scott's beautiful poem lends itself to any degree of lavishness in scenic treatment, and on this score alone the present revival is a noteworthy one. The scenery, by Messrs. William Glover, T. F. Dunn, and assistants, is a triumph in the reproduction of the grandeur of the Highland scenes in which the action is laid, the panorama of the Trossachs, Ben Venue, Ellen's Isle, &c., being the most notable achievement, while the scenes representing Loch Katrine by Sunset, the Pass of Lochard, Coilantogle Ford, and Stirling Castle from the King's Park are all striking examples of scenic art. For the present revival Mr. Wyndham has secured a first-rate company. Mr. Leo Stormont as Roderick Dhu is particularly well suited. He embodies the gloomy chieftain to the life and speaks Scott's lines with commendable regard to their poetic flow. In this respect Mr. Ernest E. Norris as King James is also worthy of praise, and their example might well be followed by some of the other members. Mr. Norris makes a picturesque Knight of Snowdoun, and his acting is romantic and dignified; the combat scene between Roderick and King James is well managed; Mr. George Barran makes a manly figure of Douglas, while Ellen (the Lady of the Lake) is charmingly acted by Miss Ada Homer; Mr. Frederick Harker is a duly impulsive Malcolm Græme; Miss Dorothy Chard gives a pathetic impersonation of the Ophelia-like part of Blanche of Devan; Mr. Ernest Lodge as the weird monk Brian, and Mr. Chris Walker as the minstrel, Allan Bane, are effectively placed; Mr. H. Hunter as Red Murdoch and Mr. Forrest Niven as Malise ably play these two Benchmen of Roderick; Mr. Tom Walker, Mr. Ian Lloyd Mackenzie, Miss Evelyn Pascel, and Miss Marie Forbes give able support in their respective parts. The revival was warmly received on its production on Tuesday, and will probably hold the boards here for some weeks.

Grand, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Mascard.—The Blue Moon entered on its second week here on Monday, and continues to secure nightly an enthusiastic reception.

Royal Princess's.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—The attraction here is Under Two Flags, the military drama founded on Ouida's novel. As on its last visit, the play is most popular, and the acting of Mr. Mark Blow as the soldier hero is one of the principal reasons; Miss Mary Thorne is well placed as the vivandière, Cigarette, and her acting in the more striking scenes is specially happy; as the Princess Carona Miss Mabel Ormonde is good, and another well-played part is the Countess Olga of Miss Joan Stern; Mr. Charles Brooke acts ably as Lord Royellien. In the humorous part of Rake Mr. Harry Benson supplies some clever comedy.

Metropole, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—The World's Verdict has been revived here for one week by a capable company, under Mr. W. Reuben Payne. Mr. Cecil R. Thompson is a fine old Squire; Mr. Eric C. Hudson as his nephew plays admirably; the rightful heir, George Ashford, is finely portrayed by Mr. Alfred Deane; Mr. W. S. Wesley's Sammy is a delightful bit of acting; Mr. W. Reuben Payne as the Land Agent bears himself well; the maniac of Mr. W. Bradford Crosby is intensely thrilling; Miss Lily Roselle as Cora looks and acts the adventuress to the life; Miss May Axon and Miss Beatrice Fitzhugh as Florence and Nellie respectively give sympathetic readings of good rôles, and there is the right note of brightness in all Miss Marie Barrett does as Sally.

Lyceum.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Mr. Ed. Marris's No. 1 company in Somebody's Sweetheart is here this week. As Martin Blabbs Mr. W. H. Kirby gets through an onerous part with excellent success, his original patter, smart acting and dancing being vociferously applauded. Mr. E. H. Bertram as Stanton Ashleigh appears in a part exactly suited to him, and his acting and singing with Miss U. C. Hackett, who portrays the title-rôle in a dainty and praisworthy manner, leaves little to be desired; Mr. D. B. Watson and Mr. J. Templar Ellis as Stephen Leverton and Lem Lee respectively in the unpopular parts receive an antagonistic reception, which is proof positive of their ability; Old Joe is capitally played by Mr. Reg. Hugh Hamber; Miss Cordella Knight's endeavours in the part of Zora are highly gratifying, as are likewise those of Miss Nora Melton, who takes the part of Mrs. Ainslie; Miss Millie Gordon is exceptionally good as Freddie Ashleigh, and her neat and graceful dancing is laudable in itself; the dancing also of Miss Rosie Chandler and Miss Dolly Payne as the barmaids is most commendable.

New Gaiety.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. M. Armstrong.—The domestic drama, Tricked by a Woman is the attraction here. Mr. Horace Booth undertakes the character of George Fielding, in which he is eminently successful, and he and Miss Laurie A. Pardy as Mary Melrose ably sustain the leading parts; other notable members include Mr. T. E. Conover, Mr. Alfred D. Adams, Mr. Wilton Reed, and Misses Mattie Crawford, and Marie De Roos, who one and all creditably fill their respective parts.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Mussett.—A strong programme is submitted this week, headed by Mark Sheridan. This clever comedian's success in all his songs is very marked, and his reception most enthusiastic; Mabel Bardine and company present a dramatic episode, taken from Oliver Twist. The company met with great success. The Musical Johnstons' clever xylophone playing is applauded; Florence Esdaile sings with much spirit and acceptance; the Picquays display some clever acrobatism; Burnetti provides some good musical impersonations; Marba and Verity are a couple of smart acrobatic dancers; the Mariano Sisters give a thrilling trapeze act; and the Sidney Bros. are a talented cycling combination.

Zoo-Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The Ten Loonies in Dotty meet with a good reception; Beatrice Bonnie is a captivating and clever comedienne; the Sisters Morgan delight in dainty dances, and are capable singers to boot; Stylo is seen in a wonderful series of hoop manipulations; Barrett and Knowles maintain their reputation as singers and dancers; The Navvy's Rest shows the Marsumas to be clever and amusing cyclists; Will Cornish has credit for his unique performance on the silver bells; protean dances are well illustrated by Leonard Gorney, and the Bioscope is as popular as ever; a smart entertainment is that given by Wilson and Waring, entitled A Bit of Nonsense.

Pavilion, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—Alec. Hurley and company are presenting here the humorous scena entitled The Coster's Beano, which gives this well-known comedian ample scope for displaying the characteristics of costerdom. The Five Whiteleys are a clever combination of acrobatic wire-walkers, and also possess considerable musical talent; Mountford and Walsh, society entertainers, are a clever musical pair; Elton and Edwin give a capital performance as banjoists; Clive and Clark, black and white comedy artists; Fred Land, comedian, and Minnie D'Aubyn, complete a strong programme.

Palace.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—Miss Ghita Corri, soprano vocalist, is the principal attraction here; Leo Dryden, vocalist, has had a splendid reception; other notable contributors include Lena Brunton, comedienne and mimic; Johnny Dwyer, comedian and dancer; Andie Burn, comedian; the Violas in a wonderful second-sight act; Cardo, slight-of-hand expert; Baltus troupe of acrobats; Henry Hallam and Josephine Stanton, vocalists, and Bert Byrne, light comedian.

Coliseum.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—The leading attraction here is John Tiller's musical sketch company in Doon the Watter. The Miles Stavordale Quintette, expert instrumentalists,; Fielding and Hall in a vocal medley; Percy Hannan, vocalist; R. H. Douglass, the clever monologue artist; the Bisera Troupe, instrumentalists; Clito Clifford, sand dancer, and the American Bioscope are also in the bill.

Queen's.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. M. Armstrong; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—Marie Kendall tops the bill here; a clever turn is submitted by Devere and Kenwick, with burlesque pictures on popular songs; Steve McCarthy remains a great favourite; and other members of the company include Tom Shenton, comedian; Chas. Baldwin's company in the amusing sketch The Bank Clerks; Lade Henderson, vocalist; and the Two Arundels, in their funy act, The New Office Boy.

GLOSSOP.—Theatre Royal. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Mr. Ernest R. Abbott and company are here in A Wife's Triumph. Mr. Abbott as Frank Wilton is a manly hero; Mr. W. B. Gabbois as Ellis Jordan and Mr. Weedon Ross as Julius Hartman give good delineations of their respective rôles; Mr. Douglas C. Phelps as Robert Dewhurst makes a typical Yorkshire squire, and also wins approbation as William W. Williamson, an American bookmaker; Mr. D. Pentland as Charles E. Ryland, and Mr. W. H. Davis Brown as Stubbs give capital readings; Mr. Edwin Keene as Ben Bradford is funny, and brings down the house with excellently-rendered songs; Miss Marjorie Tennant as Marjory Cribb is a pert and mirth-provoking servant; Miss Kathleen Steuart is pleasing as Alice Wilton; and Miss Hetty Jones as little Frank shows histrionic ability; Miss Ada Abbott as Bessie Dewhurst delights her audience by her clever assumption of the character. During the week Sapho and Trilby have also been presented.

GLOUCESTER.—Palace (late Theatre Royal).—Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. Rea.—Despite the counter attraction of the popular Barton Fair, the Palace continues to hold its own, the management having secured the Six Brothers Luck in The Demon of the Cellar, which is capitally received. Leo Selwyn, the handcuff king, gives a performance that mystifies his audience; Les Uniques give a smart act on ladders; Little Don is a mirthful midget; Henderson, the blind musician, wins applause for a clever performance; the Saletos, head and hand balancers, win favour; the Charnleys, duettists and dancers, do well; Gus Granville has a good reception; the Two Neros introduce a tumbling act with excellent results; Miss Myra Love, comedienne, appears in some good songs; and the Bioscope completes the entertainment.

GOOLE.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John E. Tomlinson.—A most enjoyable attraction is presented here this week in a welcome return visit of Charley's Aunt, played by Mr. George Robertson's company. Mr. Edmund Baker is to be highly complimented on his success as Lord Fancourt Babberley; Mr. Frank Tyrell gives a dashing portrayal of Col. Sir Francis Chesney; Mr. Sidney Lynn as Jack Chesney and Mr. Basil Lynn as Charles Wykeham also score in their respective rôles; Mr. William Allison is an excellent Stephen Spettigue, and Mr. Fred Morland is amusing as Brassett; Miss Mary Mallaline is charming and graceful as Ela Delhay; Miss Margaret Moreau is a delightful Kitty; Miss Eva Boyne is a pleasing Amy Spettigue; and Miss Katherine Vereker is deserving of praise for her capital portrayal of Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—Royal Aquarium.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Musical comedy has been succeeded by drama, and Sherlock Holmes, excellently played by Mr. Charles Frohman's company, has formed the week's programme. Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart gives a vivid and realistic interpretation of the title-rôle; Mr. Stanley Logan is admirable as Dr. Watson; James Larrabee finds an able exponent in Mr. Ernest Gray; and Mr. W. F. Sterling gives a clever character study as Professor Moriarty. Madge Larrabee is presented with power and feeling by Miss Lindsay Fincham; Alice Faulkner is effectively represented by Miss Constance Leigh; and Therese, Mrs. Smeedly, and Mrs. Faulkner are capably depicted by Miss Rosalie Notrelle, Miss Alice Howard, and Miss Dot Selby.

GREENOCK. — Alexandra Theatre. — Proprietors, The Greenock Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Mr. George Dance's company opened here on Monday with The Duchess of Dantzic, in which Miss Blanche Lynd in the title-rôle gives a delightful performance, her acting calling for high praise; Miss Hetty Ludlow as Lisette is a great success; Renee de Saint Mezard is ably represented by Miss Mona Grey; the Empress Josephine is admirably portrayed by Miss Daisy Brent; Miss F. Smith and Miss S. Albutt also deserve mention; Mr. Alfred Ibberson presents an excellent study of Napoleon; Mr. Warwick Wellington as Duke of Dantzic is much applauded for his capable acting and fine singing, and Mr. Arthur Ferriss as Pappillon is very amusing.

Empire Theatre of Varieties. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—"Casey's Court" is the chief attraction here this week, in which 30 midget mimes appear; the Villions, acrobatic cyclists, give a good exhibition, and Barney Cox, ventriloquial entertainer, is excellent. Other acceptable turns are Ted Curtis and his piccaninnies; Brothers Montes, in their novelty act, The Scotchman and the Driver; Reed and Wright, vocalists and expert dancers; and Jack Crawley, American comedian.

Pavilion Theatre, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. S. Lloyd.—This week's attractions include Karr and Kooney, songsters and patterers, who are well received; Zavan is a wonderful contortionist; Steely and Dowton, in a burlesque interlude, entitled Olla Podrida, come in for a good deal of applause; Helen Charles is a graceful mimic, and Gus Hindell, comedian, has had a fine reception. The Sisters Bartholomew, duettists and dancers, are smart, and Jack Neil contributes some comic songs; the Pavoscope is also a special feature of a good all-round entertainment.

GRIMSBY.—Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Chairman of Directors, Mr. H. J. Curry; Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry.—The drama, Her Luck in London, has attained considerable popularity on its first visit here. Miss Mary Neil in the part of Nellie Harborne gives evidence of considerable power as an emotional actress; Mr. Chas. A. Leicester invests the part of the Hon. Fitzgerald O'Connor with natural geniality; Mr. Tyrone Power is good as Stephen Harborne; Mr. G. Langdon displays effectively the vicious temperament of Richard Lenowen, and Mr. Douglas Tremayne is a popular figure as the Reverend Lionel Strong. Miss Ada Roscoe as Madame Gabrielle and Miss Francis Bruce as Lillian Harborne also aid the success. The comedy is well looked after by Miss Florrie Groves as Maud Gladys Shovepenny and Mr. J. Telly Dillson as Jerry Gotobed.

Curry's Tivoli.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—After a somewhat lengthy absence the Craggs have met with a big welcome in their sketch Billy; Horace White is a ventriloquist of original ideas; Curtis Leo is smart in his modern magic, and Lozelle performs novel feats upon ingeniously-designed gymnastic appliances. Amusing knockabout comedy is contributed by O'Malley and Brown, and others appearing are Donald Keir and Mabel Kempton, talented vocalists; Guy Rider, whistler; and Billie Burford, comedian.

The Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. A. Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. W. Moyes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. V. Ailton.—Peggy Pryde has thoroughly delighted the audiences with her latest repertoire of songs and business, and has fully sustained her popularity; the Seven Zerbinis are responsible for a capital musical speciality; the Two Hartfords submit a clever acrobatic display whilst mounted on bicycles; the globe-walking of the Ettenas is smart; Harry Levaine's eccentricities are productive of fun; Ben Harris's Nippers are well trained, and others contributing are L. B. Athol, character actor, and Lily Hayes, coon singer.

HALIFAX.—Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—Enormous business is being done here this week by Mr. Geo. Danco's principal company, in A Country Girl, which is on its fourth visit. As Challoner, Mr. John M. Hay both acts and sings well, and is altogther a commanding naval officer; Mr. F. J. Booney enhances his reputation as the Rajah of Bhong; Mr. Chas. Stafford as Douglas Verity, and Mr. H. W. Hewlett as Lord Anchester, are good; while Mr. Coningsby Brierley keeps the pace going as Barry, the quaint little naval cadet. In the feminine rôles, Miss Cissie Sephton must rank first for her vivacious interpretation of Madame Sophie, her dancing and singing being distinctly successful; Miss Ellaline Thorne gives a refreshing assumption of Nan; while Miss Barbara Babington acts wells as Marjory, singing in faultless style; an amiable Princess is found in Miss Ernestine Desborough; and a word of praise is due to Miss Muriel Johnson for her study of Lady St. Quinton.

Theat

Miss Enid Edoni's portrayal of Inez Alvarez appeals strongly to the sympathy of the audience; Miss Ethel Whiteley as Mother Maria Teresa looks and plays the part to the life.

HUDDERSFIELD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—Mr. Chas. Macdona's company is here in the musical play Three Little Maids, who are daintily presented by Miss Cora Lingard, Miss Daisy Sylverton, and Miss Eva Weigh. As Gretchen Miss Laura Wright's clever dancing and effervescent merriment contribute to a huge success; Miss Alice Rene looks sufficiently stately as Lady St. Mallory; Mr. Victor Kerr as Lord Cheyne is "simply rippin'," his hilarity being infectious; Mr. Guy Williams is a satisfactory Bryan; Mr. Charles Caffrey an amusing Cupid; and Mr. Eric Barrington a refined and vocally successful De l'Orme.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—Misses Vesta and Minnie Pine, in their musical sketch, Maggie's Day Out, are interesting audiences here; Martinett and Wallace are favourite musical duettists; Espinosa and Neilson submit a clever dancing act; F. H. France and Miss Marie Stewart are seen to advantage in their bustling sketch, The 100 to 1 Chance; and Mlle. Lucretia, top-boot dancer; Miss Lillie Le Breton, on the trapeze; Bob and Jennie Leonard, in their medley speciality; Miss Eva Kelland, vocal actress; and pictures on the biograph are other attractions.

HULL.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—On Monday Miss Julia Neilson and Mr. Fred Terry made their appearance here in Dorothy o' the Hall. Miss Neilson's Dorothy met with ready acceptance. Mr. Fred Terry played the hero with charm and spirit. Mary and Elizabeth were entrusted to those capable artists, Miss Lillias Waldegrave and Miss Miriam Lewes. Mr. Horace Hodge's Perkins was a fine piece of acting, and Mr. J. Carter Edwards did good work as Sir George Vernon.

Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—Miss Queenie Leighton does much to make The Girl on the Stage acceptable, and deserves every praise; her style is bright and vivacious, and her singing pleasing. Mr. John Humphries is a comedian of resource, who keeps the house in excellent humour. Mr. Lennox Pawle exerts himself to make the part of the Earl effective. Mr. Colin Coop adds to the amusement of the audience by his Alderman. Valuable contribution is made by that talented lady, Miss Fanny Dango; she and Miss Valli Valli are pleasing representatives of the Earl's daughters.

Alexandra Theatre.—Mortons, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. George Morton.—The Ugliest Woman on Earth is here. Miss Beatrice Horner as the veiled woman shows great originality, and does some admirable acting. As the hero, Mr. Philip Dorien has a rôle which he fills with conspicuous success; and Mr. Edlin is a comedian who also renders valuable aid.

The Hippodrome.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—Marie Santoi and her merry little Japs, and King and Benson, talented vocalists, are doing well here; Gus Garrick, a clever droll, makes himself very popular; Cissie Curlette, the farmyard mimic, makes a welcome reappearance; and other artists include Mike Gray and Daisy Davenport.

The Empire.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—This hall was reopened on Monday under favourable auspices, an excellent company being provided. Blanche and Deacoff appear in a sensational tea-cup bicycle act; and other artists include Alf. Bishop, Paulo Bros., La Tosca in some classical poses, Nellie Vann, A. H. Lynn, Rena and Rex, Aldro Lukos, and Babs Lloyd.

The Palace.—Appearing here are Carl Hertz, the Mezzetis, Rio Bros., Sanford and Lyons; the Anartos, Gertrude Bradshaw, Irene Rose, Frank Darwin, and the Two Tees.

HYDE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—This week Messrs. Mathew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's The Still Alarm company is attracting large audiences. Mr. M. A. Glenville looks every inch the gallant Jack Manley he impersonates; Mr. George Arthur makes John Bird a sufficiently despicable and unprincipled individual; Mr. Lewis Gordon renders good service as Franklyn Fordham; Miss Maud Warburton is a charming and sympathetic Elinor Fordham; and Miss Mabel Veriton is excellent as Mrs. Manley. The comedy element is in the capable hands of Mr. Fred Osborne as Doc Wilber, Mr. Tom Beasley as Willie Manley, and Miss Hettie Zillwood as Carie Wilbert, and the latter is also successful in song and dance.

ILKESTON.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—The company of Messrs. Fred J. Webb and Wilson Benge is here, with The Two Hussars, in which Mr. Benge himself successfully plays Harry Alford; and Miss Sadie Smith is seen to advantage firstly as Ellen Maythorne; and secondly as Will Gunstock; Mr. J. Stuart as Colonel Manners, and Mr. G. Paradise as Sergeant McFinne, are acquisitions to the cast; and as Marie, Miss Danvers Smith is very successful; Mr. Louis Nanton being laughable as Robert Runn. Miss Lallah Price is amusing also as Molly Cutts.

INVERNESS.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. Cameron Burgess.—Mr. R. A. P. Williams's company opened here on Monday a four nights' engagement with Les Cloches de Corneville which was an entire success. Miss Kathleen Emmett gained new laurels by her extremely sympathetic rendering of Germaine, whilst her vocalisation was of a very high order; Miss Adela Harvey made a bright Serpolette; Mr. Michael Kemble as Gaspard gave a fine and impressive performance; the audience were kept in good humour by the Baillie and Gobe, excellently rendered by Mr. G. Edward Hall and Mr. Richard Martin respectively; Mr. Piercy Watson made a dashing Marquis.

IPSWICH.—Lyceum Theatre.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Leonard Grey.—Mr. Charles Macdona's White Chrysanthemum company has appeared here this week, and been well received by appreciative audiences. Miss Muriel George in the part of O San gave a dainty impersonation, her singing being especially good; Miss Emily Taylor was a vivacious Billy Kenyon; while Miss Nellie Groves was well suited in the part of the American heiress. Mr. H. Langdon Bruce played the hero, Lieutenant Armitage, in capital style, his acting and singing being equally good; Mr. H. E. Garden gave an artistic study of Lieutenant Chippendale Belmont; while Messrs. Charles Schmidt, Richard Talford, Jamie Dallas, and Walter Grigg each rendered able assistance. The orchestra, augmented for the occasion, was well directed by Harry Richardson.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—An Irish vocalist, Michael Nolan, headed the programme, and rendered some Hibernian songs in good style; the Bensons contributed some clever singing and dancing; and the Three Panamas furnished an artistic and refined acrobatic act. Kate Gourlie as a Scotch lassie sang and danced in such a manner as to evoke general applause; and Tom Lloyd gave a novel sketch as an eccentric gravedigger. Other turns included Agnes Hazel, comedienne; Rastus and Bank, coloured comedians; and Tennyson and Wallis, a pair of drolls, whose patter caused much merriment. The Hippodrome Bioscope display included a realistic film, called "The Burglar's Slide for Life."

KETTERING.—Avenue Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Payne.—The attraction this week is Mr. James Willard's company, in A Woman's Pluck. Miss Grace Lester gives a talented rendering of the part of Grace Daremont; Miss Violet Carr is an acceptable Jessie; Mr. Austin Mortimer as Dick Darrell brings out in admirable style the evil nature of the character; and is well supported by Mr. Fred Norburn as Jim Daremont. Some excellent comedy is provided by Mr. Dicky Bird as Roger Pippin.

KILMARNOCK.—King's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Major Ward.—For the first half of this week Mr. Chas. Majilton and company presented The Trippers. The fun was fast and furious. Mr. Chas. Majilton filled the part of The Mystery very well; Mr. Jim Bond's typical rendering of McChuckle was highly appreciated; Mr. Herbert Ashmore and Mr. Randle Wilson were both funny as Quibble and Algie; Mr. Ben Story looked the part of Bill Bloggins to the life; Miss Nancy Clifford's singing was much enjoyed; Miss Carrie Foy looked sweet as Maud. Rob Roy was the special attraction for the latter half of the week.

KING'S LYNN.—New Royal Theatre.—Lessees, J. Bannister Howard, Ltd.; Business-Manager, Herr B. Pareezer.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's Earl and the Girl company is here this week. As Jim Cheese, Mr. C. D. Cleveland keeps the fun going well, and is ably supported in his efforts by Miss Adèle Roze as 'Liza Shoddam. Mr. Frank Wilson works hard, and achieves a striking success as Dick Wargrave; the Hon. Crewe Boodle is well played by Mr. E. Fitzgibbon; Mr. Alec Godfrey is smart as Downham; and the part of Mr. Talk is in the capable hands of Mr. Burgess Barrett. Mr. E. Melville makes a good host of the Fallowfield Arms; and Mr. H. Cotter looks sufficiently muscular and bellicose as A. Bunker Bliss. Miss Aline Nixon is a charming Elphin Haye; and Miss F. Brandon makes a dainty Daisy Fallowfield. Miss M. Maude is an imposing figure as Mrs. Shimmering Black; and Miss Carmen Cecil gracefully takes the rôle of Miss Virgina Bliss.

KIRKCALDY.—King's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Burton.—This week Mr. Geo. Stephenson's company is paying a return visit with Kitty Grey. Mr. Lauri Lisle as the King of Illyria was as funny as ever; Mr. Leslie Steward made an intensely amusing Lord Plantagenet; and Mr. Stephenson repeated his fine portrayal of Sir John Binfield. The title-rôle was in the capable hands of Miss Hilda Guiver, an artist of considerable talent; a finished piece of work was the Lady Binfield of Miss Marie West; Miss Elsie Skillings did all that was required of her as Sadie; and Miss Nellie Laurine was a humorous Mrs. Bright.

LANCASTER.—Athenæum.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hook.—On Monday a crowded audience greeted Mr. Gilbert Payne and company, who are occupying the boards here with the musical absurdity, The Honeymoon. Mr. Gilbert Payne is allotted the part of Nathaniel Noodle, and right well does he play it. Mr. Leslie Erle scores as Jack Armstrong; Mr. John Harnes makes the most of Col. Vandyke Brown; and as Archie, Mr. Harry Farrow is very amusing. Miss Rene Walton as Emeretta Noodle is acceptable; Miss Pattie Fairley sings nicely as Madge Armstrong; and Miss Nellie Dyson is a pleasing Stella Le Brunn. The Florentia troupe of lady dancers add much to the success of the piece.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Porter and Fergusson.—An attractive programme is headed by the Lukushima Family in a clever Oriental act; Russell Wallett, the Lady in Black, has a great ovation; and Messrs. Burg, Hand, and Wise are well received in their acrobatic act in "Ye Olde Brown Cow Inn." Happy Tom Parker, clog dancer, is especially good; and Emilie Warren is a pleasing vocalist; Miss Raie Walters, comedienne; Les Trois Pirmans, in a pantomime act, Dans Le Jardin; Harry Barclay, comedian; and Walter Payne's pictures complete the bill.

Palace.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. and C. Fell; Manager, Mr. John Fell.—This place of amusement opened on Monday evening for the season, under the management of Mr. John Fell. The two houses nightly system will be continued, with a matinée on Saturdays. The opening programme drew fairly large audiences. Darwin's missing link, "Lady Julia," described as the ape with a human brain, heads the bill. Morimura, Jap illusionist, baffles his audience; Grant and Allen are amusing comedians; and La Famille Pichell, acrobats, have a flattering reception. Miss Barbara McArdle, serio; Miss Joan Deering, violinist; Tom Taylor, Wigan singing collier; and Edison-Swan animated pictures meet with approval.

LEAMINGTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. Harry Hunter.—Mr. Weedon Grossmith's farcical comedy The Night of the Party is this week being welcomed here. Mr. Sebastian Smith scores a great success as Crosbie; Mr. F. H. Denton plays the part of Frank Frayne in an easy, natural style; Miss Stanley Ronalds is a vivacious Gipsy; Mr. Douglas Munro a satisfactory Mr. Flambert; Mr. Edmond T. Sayers a droll Alderman Haryen; and Miss Maud Linden as the frivolous sweetheart of Crosbie is also good.

LEEDS.—Grand Theatre.—Managing Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—Musical comedy is again the vogue here; this time it is the popular Vaudeville success The Belle of Mayfair which is filling the house to its utmost capacity nightly. Messrs. Gatti and Frohman have sent an excellent company. Miss Alice Kusson in the part of Julia Chaldicott is charming; Mr. Charles McNaughton is humorous and entertaining as Papa Chaldicott, whose fire-eating associate, Mount Highgate, is equally well played by Mr. Percy Yorke. Mr. Vernon Davidson acts and sings ably as the peer's son in love; the Comte de Perrier is a clever effort by Mr. Robert Whyte, jun.; whilst Mr. Wensley Russell as a lively and irresponsible bachelor has a hand in many entertaining interludes. Miss Maude Aston invests the part of lady's maid with an agreeable vivacity; Miss Barbara Huntley and Miss Rosa Snell grace the respective characters of Lady Chaldicott and the Countess of Highgate; Miss Joan Keddie is a charming representative of the Princess Carl; and other parts are well portrayed by Miss Blanche Massey and Miss Dorothy Hanbury.

Theatre Royal. — Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—Another thrilling melodrama, A Beautiful Fiend, presented by Messrs. Beaudyn and Livesey's company, is attracting good houses here twice nightly. The name-part is an impressive performance by Miss V. St. Lawrence, her emotional acting being of a high order. Mr. Montagu Beaudyn makes an effective foil as the Chief of Police, Ivan Paulovitch; Mr. Tom Robertson is strong and impressive as a captain in the Guards; Miss Irene Munro is a pleasing and acceptable heroine, whose maid Patty is faithfully portrayed by Miss Blanche Hill. The comedy element is largely in the hands of Mr. Harry Oates, who as Christopher Crackles knows how to make the most of his opportunities.

Queen's Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; General-Manager, Mr. C. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—That perennial attraction The Silver King is once again on the road, and that this week's visit of Polini and Melford's company to the Queen's is a popular one is shown by the good patronage which has been bestowed. The character of Wilfred Denver is on this occasion well and carefully played by Mr. Fred D. Daviss; a charming and attractive study of the heroine Nellie Denver is to be attributed to Miss Daisy Scudamore; and Mr. Edward J. George does excellent work as Jaikes. The villainous Spider is portrayed with telling effect by Mr. St. George Lowther; Corket is personated in good style by Mr. A. H. Warburton; little Flossie Hale Daviss shows great promise in a neat portrayal of Denver's daughter; whilst Mr. Arthur Wright, Mr. Alexander Grant, and Miss Dorothy Radford are each effective in their respective rôles.

Empire Palace.—Moss Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—Unbounded interest is centred in the appearance here of the French giant Henri Cot, and his diminutive confrère Prince Colibri, their simultaneous presence on the stage being hailed with expressions of wonderment. That clever and entertaining comedian Mark Melford brings his company in a smart comedy episode, which is vastly enjoyed; a humorous acrobatic performance by Burley and Burley arouses considerable applause; the Haytors also combine humour and acrobatics in clever and pleasing style; Frank Sylvo is better than the average of comic jugglers; and the lavish applause which greets the cornet selections of Joly is well merited. Hanid Alexander is an accomplished entertainer at the piano; Maxwell and Francis are a popular vocal comedy pair; whilst Ernest Ball, vocalist, and Alf Gibson, quaint comedian, also add materially to the evening's enjoyment.

Hippodrome. — Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Claude Shayler and Mr. Chas. Weldon. — Karno's company with the Dandy Thieves is the top line here, and in the hands of George Hestor and his fellow comedians the piece is again provocative of uproarious merriment. Grant and Grant, a real coon pair, find a ready acceptance of their clever entertainment; whilst another phase of Western life is depicted by the Deer Family of Indians. An amusing sketch by Fred Fuller and company goes with great gusto; Cribb and Cribb are to the fore with a smart comedy speciality; amongst the comedians Tom Yorke and George Ripon are specially successful; and entertaining turns are also submitted by Nash and Noel, eccentrics, and Baroux and Bion, eccentric acrobats.

City Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred W Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—This week's programme is full of good things, notably Ella Shields, a popular vocalist who easily maintains a big local reputation. Those accomplished duettists, Austin and Cowan, are again warbling with their usual success; Gus Harris is a smart comedian; Terry and Bentley are successful in the presentation of a comedy episode; whilst a smart speciality in the same line makes a big name for Bell and Pearl. The Bros. Harrison do comedy business; Satsuma presents his mystifying illusionary act; and Chas. Jerome, coon specialist, completes the programme.

LEICESTER.—Royal Opera House.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General and Business-Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—Seen for the first time in Leicester, the Japanese musical play, The White Chrysanthemum, as presented by Mr. Frank Curzon's principal company, has created a highly favourable impression. The mounting and dressing are of a lavish nature, and the chorus and orchestra are under the direction of Mr. Leonard Hornsey. Miss Nora Guy charms everyone by her delightful portrayal of the title-rôle, and Miss Daisy Le Hay as Betty Kenyon and Miss Katie Vesey as Cornelia Vanderdecken are both conspicuously successful with admirable embodiments. Mr. Horace Mills merits high praise for his cleverness as Lieutenant Chippendale Belmont, the same remarks applying to Mr. W. H. Rawlins as the Admiral. Mr. O. E. Lennon as Sing Chon, and Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., as Private Perks, are both mirth-provoking. Mr. F. Pope-Stamper is excellent as Lieutenant Reginald Armitage.

Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—The attraction is provided here this week by Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Elliott's company in the drama, A City of Sin. Mr. Henry W. Hatchman, as Mortain, displays high histrionic talents, and Mr. Conrad Heywood is good as Paul Torraine; Miss Edith Wallis creates an excellent impression as Alice Bertrand; Mr. W. H. Burton as Bertrand and Mr. Wilfred Grahame as Zip Barzon are both successful; Miss Jenny Weston is capital as Ilma. In the comedy parts Mr. Val. W. Gully, Mr. C. H. Spencer, Miss Polly Denville, and Miss Elvira Stuart leave nothing to be desired.

Palace Theatre, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bertram G. Iles.—The great attraction in this week's excellent bill of fare is Mr. John Lawson, who is presenting Humanity and The Monkey's Paw, the latter for the first time in Leicester. Humanity was played on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings, and created a profound sensation. The Sutcliffe Family of Scottish pipers, dancers, and acrobats are scoring with a really smart turn; Jack Lorimer, a versatile and clever Scotch comedian, creates the greatest merriment; the De Breans are Japanese jugglers and sciographists of the first rank; the Mayvilles are popular with their well-worked Liliputian entertainment; Max York's dogs are put through a very good show; Griff, as "the Clown in Apartments," displays his usual smartness; E. J. Sheldon, comedian, is entertaining; a special feature is the Bioscope, which, among other films, is giving the match, South Africans v. Midland Counties, played at Leicester on Saturday.

Pavilion Theatre.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapworth.—The premier attraction here is James Willard and company, who are presenting the exciting comedy sketch, Did He Deserve It? in which Mr. James Willard, Mr. Willie Atom, Miss Daisy Tueske, and Miss Queenie Elliott appear with much success. A feature is the introduction of the champion mastiff, Tiger. The Davenports are good as lightning magicians and illusionists; Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope is still one of the principal attractions; the Almos give a smart and sensational display as equilibrists and tumblers; Mac and Hill are amusing patter comedians; Gladys Williams is a capital comedienne; Harry Walker, eccentric singer, and Bert and Dora, comedy artists, are also in the bill.

LEITH.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—The dramatic fare provided this week is of a highly sensational kind, Mr. John Douglas's popular play, No Man's Land, being staged with great effect by Miss Ida Millais' company, under the direction of Mr. Henry Herne. In the rôles of Harry Oaklands and Mary Bathurst, the hero and heroine of the play, Mr. Herne and Miss Millais do excellent work; and Mr. Frank Denis, as the evil genius, Silas Moore, comes in for hearty recognition of his ability; Mat Marsden finds a sturdy exponent in Mr. A. G. Lytton; Mr. and Mrs. W. Mallalieu are eminently successful as Dr. Buxton and Mrs. Poodle, whose son Thompson and daughter Bessie receive adequate treatment at the hands of Mr. V. L. Thomas and Miss Nancy Mitchell; Mr. Alfred Byron skilfully doubles the parts of the two brothers, Gilbert and Norman Bathurst; and Mr. Gerald Vivian, who plays Mr. Cross in lively fashion, creates quite a furore by his interpolated songs. Mr. John Weston, Mr. Charles Young, Mr. Vaughan, and Mr. Edward Adams all do well in less prominent rôles; and a river of real water and a great storm of real rain play an important part in "whetting," but in no wise damping, the enthusiasm of pit and gallery.

LIMERICK.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. Robert Fogerty.—The Elster-Grime Grand Opera Company opened a week's engagement here on Monday with Maritana. Mr. Payne-Clarke was excellent as Don Cæsar, and as Don José Mr. Frank Land did well. Mr. Gilbert King was capital as the King of Spain, and Messrs. Wheatley, Cooke, and Partridge were good in the rôles of Captain, Alcade, and the Marquis. Miss Marie Elster was powerful as Maritana, and as the Marchioness Miss Kathleen McCahe was very effective. We could desire no better Lazarillo than Miss Madge Quilliam. On Tuesday The Lily of Killarney was produced, and as Eily and O'Connor Miss McCahe was at her best. Miss Elsie Lynham, a rich soprano, was excellent as Anne Chute, and Miss Quilliam was clever as Mrs. Cregan. Mr. Payne-Clarke was the good old Myles, Mr. Kewley the Hardress Cregan, and Mr. Frank Land was delightful as Danny Mann.

LINCOLN.—Royal.—Sole Owner, Mr. Frank King.—The Girl from Kay's, introduced by Mr. George Dance, made her initial bow to a Lincoln audience on Monday, and met with an exceedingly hearty reception. Miss Jessie Fraser as Winnie scored greatly; Miss Marie Greenhouse was a charming representative of the bride; Miss Irene Vere won high encomiums as the maid; and Miss Grace Murray sang extremely well as Mrs. Chalmers. Mr. S. Ravenscroft was good as Gordon; Mr. H. Jennings made an amusing figure of Fitzthistle; and Mr. H. Dore was smart as Pepper. Mr. J. W. Hooper's Hoggenheimer was decidedly funny, and nothing could have been better than the way in which Mr. Claude Dampier hit off the hall porter. Two amusing portrayals also came from Mr. L. Edmonds as Chalmers and Mr. E. Forde as Uncle Theodore. Mr. Harry March conducted a strong orchestra and chorus.

Palace.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. Sydney Arthur.—This week's bill is headed by Cabaret's Dogs, an animal turn a long way above the average. A hearty welcome greeted Lennie and Hast in The Sea Nymph; and Harry Brown, coon vocalist; Elton and Elma, on the horizontal bars; Maude Vera, comedienne; the Ringling Trio, in an amusing act; Ted Saunders, comedian; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux complete the attractive programme.

LIVERPOOL.—Royal Court Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—Conan Doyle's Brigadier Gerard made its first appearance in Liverpool this week, and has been greatly enjoyed by crowded audiences, for Mr. Lewis Waller and Miss Evelyn Millard are exceedingly popular visitors to the Mersey city. It was generally conceded that the part of the brave swashbuckler fitted Mr. Waller like a glove, and at the close of each act he was recalled again and again, Miss Millard also coming in for a goodly share of the compliments. Mr. A. E. George succeeded well as Napoleon, giving a lifelike impersonation; a figure which stood out with prominence was the capital Talleyrand of Mr. Edward O'Neill; Mr. Sheil Barry and Mr. R. C. Smith were admirable in the rôles of D'Albert and Pierre; Mr. Herbert Vyvyan made a satisfactory Papilette; Mr. Eric Scott got everything possible out of Colonel Guerin; and the remainder of the able company afforded such support as was necessary to complete a fine all-round production. The staging and costumes were, of course, especially good. Mr. Waller, as a curtain-raiser, gave Fortune's Fool, a trifle which held the audience spellbound. The closest attention was shown during the twenty minutes the distinguished player occupied the stage.

Shakespeare Theatre, Ltd.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—The merry Catch of the Season has proved a big draw at this theatre during the week. Miss Zena Dare, who, as the lively Angela, played, danced, and sang with taste, had a most flattering reception from admirers, who recollected her sweet presence in pantomime here a few seasons back. Master Grata was Bucket, whose precociousness materially helped in keeping the ball rolling. The audience did not overlook him when distributing applause. Mr. Frank Lincoln was an admirable Duke of St. Jermyns; Mr. E. H. Kelly did justice to Lord Dundreary; Mr. A. R. Boielle made the most of Higham Montague; Miss Gwynneth Galton submitted an approved Duchess of St. Jermyn; Miss Ida Mann afforded every satisfaction as Lady Crystal; her daughters found worthy exponents in Miss Margaret Savill and Miss Jane Eyre; and Miss Belle Napier was the Lady Caterham. Mr. George Dance, whose company it was, staged the comedy in excellent style.

Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The box-office here this week has done well through Mr. Douglas Bruce's presentation of The Girl Who Lost Her Character. Mr. Edwin J. Collins showed much discretion as the Rev. Robert Everton; Miss Evelyn Clyde gave satisfaction as Molly Vernon; Mr. C. W. Standing worked with credit in the double part of Jack England and Private Johnson; Mr. Geo. H. Asquin caused a deal of merriment with his Dick Punch; Miss Ethel Bracewell as Rose Seymour acted with tact; Captain Caversham was well portrayed by Mr. Frank Adair; Miss Lydia Mannington deserved praise for her Marian Franklyn; and the rest of the cast were efficient.

Lyric Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—Joe Elvin and his clever company are always a draw here, and this week has been no exception to the rule; nightly the house has been packed to witness their decidedly amusing acting in the sketch Touched. Joe Elvin keeps the house in roars of laughter with his facial expressions and original humour. Barton and Ashley are old favourites, and their popularity is not on the wane; another favourite from the early days of this theatre's opening is Morny Cash, who is delighting his old friends with his songs and laughable patter; Ada Grey is good, as is A. E. Clifford; Dandy George and his dog are loudly applauded; and Ada Parker is well received.

Star Theatre. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Paumier and Howard's company with The Midnight Wedding is here this week, doing good business. Miss Annie Saker made herself very popular by reason of her capital assumption of the rôles of Lieut. Heisberg and Princess Strelsburg; Mr. Alfred Paumier was a dignified Paul Valmar, thoroughly estimating the possibilities of the part; Mr. Fred W. Freeman proved an admirable Crown Prince; Mr. Ulick Burke as Lieut. Strelsburg showed much power; Mr. Clinton Baddeley deserved credit for his Captain Scarsbruck; and the three rivals in love, Sergeant Max, Corporal Otto, and Private Bobo, were efficiently undertaken by Messrs. James E. Page, Percy Compton, and Algie Spalding. The scenic effects were excellent.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Lingford Carson; Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—A return visit of Mr. Frank Lindo and his company, including Miss Marion Wakeford, with Home, Sweet Home, has been a source of great pleasure to the frequenters of this popular theatre. Mr. Lindo as Stephen Armitage played with dramatic power, for which he was awarded loud applause; Miss Wakeford was a sweet Joan, and won the hearts of her audience; a delightful Dora came from Miss Daisy Rochefort; Mr. D. Lawrence Doyle made an impressive David Armitage; Mr. Helsby Wright acquitted himself most creditably as Gaffer; the rôle of the Duke of Ancaster was well placed with Captain Gerald Gambier; Mr. Ernest E. Owens proved eminently amusing as the always tired Lord Silvermore; and Mr. George Overs did well as the fisher lad, Redmayne.

Royal Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—The big line here this week is Sam Mayo, whose capital songs keep his audience in a merry mood; a particularly attractive turn is provided by the Kentucky Four, including Topsy, whose plantation ditties and dances are loudly applauded; Collinson's company is responsible for much laughter with the Topsy-Turvey School; Carl Howard, as the crazy conjurer, is both clever and funny; a gratifying reception is accorded to Willie Gardiner for his expert skate dancing; the Columbia Comedy Trio have a diverting operatic and humorous absurdity; the Valdos cause endless laughter as the eccentric motor-'bus men; and others in the attractive list are Harry Zetter, comedian and eccentric dancer; J. W. Hall, comedian; and Cyril Carle, actor-vocalist.

New Parthenon. — Proprietor, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—The popular Barney Stuart is at the head of the bill this week, pleasing everybody with not only some of the old favourite songs, but with his latest scena The Miser; Percy Galino, a refined musical comedian, has a good turn; Grace Langley sings and dances in excellent style; some smart patter and taking songs come from Frank Dunlop; and Marie Courtney and Charles Coll afford satisfaction with their vocal efforts.

Royal Palace of Varieties. — Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—Success continues to attend the dramatic stock season here. This week the company is playing True to the Core, a piece full of telling situations. Mr. Percy Boucher makes a funny Private Twist; Mr. Harry Tresham is a manly Captain Meadows; Mr. Sydney Grant as the rascally Stephen Dudley plays with strong effect; a capital Old Neptune comes from the able Mr. Ravenswood; Mr. Robert Wilton does excellently as Joe Lamb; Mr. E. D. Allen handles the rôle of Mat Blacklock with care; and Mr. Leo Montgomery is Constable Buggins. Among the ladies, Miss Florence Palmer presents a pleasing Mabel Gratton, and Miss Beryl Ravenswood acquits herself creditably as Mrs. Gratton and Old Sal.

Park Palace, Ltd. — Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Mr. Horace Wheatley, who has been a prime favourite in Liverpool for a generation, proves as pleasing as ever, and has had a capital reception for his songs and dances; Mlle. Zelda submits a charming entertainment as a performer on musical novelties; Happy Attwood is very funny; Leo Trainor has a number of taking comic songs; and Tom Jackson, the novelty match-box manipulator, and Rose Harvey, vocalist, also appear.

Westminster.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—Walter Munroe is in big type here this week, with the result that exceptionally good business has been done. His songs, especially the latest, "I'm coming back to Dublin," were received with much delight; Chas. Santon, a male soprano, rendered several ballads in good style; Molly Doon showed herself to be a dainty comedienne and dancer; Hans and Lux proved humorous as the argumentative college chums; some remarkable juggling for a boy was performed by Massona; Newco and Sullo were smart comedians, patterers, and dancers; and the illustrated songs provided by S. B. Geoghegan and Downs proved enjoyable.

Olympia, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Young.—The uproariously funny Harum-Scarum, Hengler's spectacular comedy sketch, remains a second week; the Four Indian Fakirs completely mystify their audience with remarkable conjuring tricks; Ted and May Hopkins present a neat trifle, Cambrian Courtship; Frank Lynne is a particularly funny comedian; Pierce and Maizee have an attractive and pleasing vaudeville act; Beatrice Boanas, possessed of a rich soprano voice, renders several delightful ballads; the Canary pantomime company have an act brimming with humour; and others in the programme are Eric, a clever ventriloquist, and Carrie Laurie's Kindergarten.

Paddington Palace.—Lessee, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The "Royal" stock dramatic company is presenting this week The Lottery of Life, the principal artists being Mr. Vincent A. Briscoe (Sir George Brierley), Mr. Albert Sember (Arnold Brierley), Mr. Frank S. Strickland (Captain Martin Dalton), Mr. H. G. Brandon (Leary Jim), Miss Lilian Burns (Mabel), Miss Lina Nazeby (Jess), Miss Florence Barnes, and Miss Alice Hinton.

Empire. — Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.—A strong bill is offered here this week. The big attraction is the "Globe of Life," inside of which two performers ride on motor cycles while the structure revolves; the refined and popular G. H. Elliott has a flattering reception for his coon songs; Buddha's Blackboard, as an illusion, proves a source of bewilderment; the smart little Lupino Lane is warmly applauded for his singing and dancing; the favourite J. H. Milburn has some taking songs; Binns and Binns, "the musical vagabonds," are both funny and clever; Fox and Melville present pleasing illustrated songs; the animal impersonations by the Lupino Brothers are exceptionally good; and Harry Carsdale, mimic, also appears.

Roscommon.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Foremost here this week are King's College Boys, with their delightful harmonised songs; the Jeffries arouse great laughter with the comedy sketch Checkmated; a popular turn is provided by Bert Gordon, male soprano and piper; the Dagodets have a high-class comedy; J. S. James shows much ability as a banjoist and juggling bone soloist; and the humorous monologue, The Village Concert, by Arthur Aiston, proves acceptable.

LLANDUDNO.—Prince's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. R. Chaplin.—Miss Dorothy Oswald's company appeared here on Monday and Tuesday in that thrilling drama entitled Life. Mr. Herbert Barr as Jack Lockhart was good; Mr. Ronald Grahame as Sir Horace Lester was well placed; Mr. A. B. Lyons as Joe Pippit and Miss Mandie Vincent as Jess were excellent, their duets being loudly applauded. On Wednesday and Thursday East Lynne was presented by the same company.

LLANELLY.—Royalty Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting Manageress, Miss Alice Rocheforte.—Mr. Tom Owen and his clever pierrot troupe opened here on Monday evening. For the rest of the week, A Chinese Honeymoon was presented by Mr. Chas. Macdona's company, Miss Florence Wilton being a most charming Mrs. Pineapple; Miss Kitty Clayton as the droll Fi-Fi proved very clever; Miss Alma Bolton as Mrs. Brown was good; and the part of Mr. Pineapple was in the capable hands of Mr. Lindsay Harman.

LONDONDERRY.—Opera House.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. W. Payne Seddon.—Mr. Hoggan-Armadale is paying a return visit here this week, staging The Bells, Vicar of Wakefield, and Lady of Lyons. As Mathias in the first-named Mr. Hoggan-Armadale gives a most dramatic rendering of the part; Mr. Cotton Holmes is an admirable Mons. Bossey; and Mr. F. Wilberforce plays Christian well. Miss Violet Macaree is a fine Madame Mathias, and as Annette Miss Marion Spencer is very good.

LOWESTOFT.—Marina.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. A. Smith.—A popular attraction this week is Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company in The Silver King. Mr. Horace E. Herbert presents a striking rendering of the part of Wilfred Denver, and he is ably seconded by Miss B. Doyle's s song illustrators, give an enjoyable turn; Chester and Lees' marionettes meet with approval; the Spring Trio of lady barrel jumpers are decidedly clever; Magna scores in a number of classic poses; Geo. Russell is a smart comedian; the Two Roses are charming dancers; Mr. Tom Johnson is a clever actor-vocalist; Mr. Billy Beevor, comedian and dancer; and Harrop and Vinroy, in a pleasing sketch, complete the bill

MIDDLESBROUGH. — Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—The military play, Death or Glory Boys, is the attraction here this week, and presented by Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company. Mr. Benhote Wilson is responsible for the leading character Jack Malden, and introduces into the rôle that manly vigour so necessary for the soldier part. Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson as Captain Ferrers gives a capital study of the villain; and Mr. Lancelot Usher as Lieut. Duff portrays the character very ably. Miss Violet Carlyle is charming as Nina Fergerson, and Mr. Gerald Ord exceedingly good as Colonel Fergerson. As Nat Wilks, Mr. J. Russel Boyne is amusing, as is also Miss Hetie Senior as the maid. Miss Amy Ellam plays the difficult part of Edith Malden in a way which leaves nothing to be desired. Mr. Harold Wagner's study of Old George was exceedingly good, and Bryan is admirably played by Mr. Edward Jeffs; as the prisoners, Mr. John Wemyess, Mr. Alf. Reid, and Mr. Jas. Ferguson add in no small measure to the evening's enjoyment. The drama is handsomely staged.

Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. W. K. Chatto.—Mr. Johnson Marsh's company is here this week in the romantic play, The King's Signet. The character of Mick Milligan receives full justice in the able hands of Mr. Chas. Collette. Miss Marie De Campi as Claire Cloville has a lot of work to do, which she gets through with commendable exactness. Mr. Alfred Woods gives a carefully-studied rendering of the part of Maurice D'Alroy, and Mr. E. W. Maule Cale acquits himself well as Comte Dettmer. Miss Maud Williamson is an artist of undoubted ability, her acting as Lyle De Vriesac being altogether artistic and smart. Miss Jennie Dawson as Jeanne; Mrs. Dawson as Mother Gorlet, and Miss Dorothy Sydney as Suzanne are exceedingly good. As the officers of the army, Mr. F. E. Crane, Mr. George Dagleish, Mr. W. Hamilton, and Mr. Arthur Esmonds all play with marked ability.

Empire Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Chas. B. Rembges.—Harry Roxburg and company head the bill here in the musical sketch, The Prince of Monte Carlo, and are as amusing as ever, Mr. Roxburg as P.c. Longfellow creating roars of laughter. A clever and funny acrobatic turn is given by Conway and Leland; the Merry Monapedes (Frank and Alice Surin), comedians, do well; Sybill St. Elmo is a charming vocalist; and Dusty Rhodes, comedian, pleases; Gracie Taylor and Barnard's Mannikins also contribute to the programme.

Oxford Palace.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Alf. Graham.—The highly popular and talented singing comedians, Verno and Voyce, head the attractions here with a turn which is received with much enthusiasm. Florence Hilton, male impersonator, scores with catchy songs, and the Smart Set provide some excellent singing; Smiler Lee, with comic ditties, and Sill and Silcott, comedians, also please. Other turns include La Belle Nello, contortionist, Jessie Burnett, and the Palascope.

MORECAMBE. — Royalty Theatre and Opera House. — Sole Lessee, Lieut. Julian Malvern; General-Manager, Mr. Chas. M. Julian.—The Days of Cromwell has proved a powerful draw at this theatre, and Mr. Henry Belding has been seen to great advantage as Ironhand, the Avenger. Mr. Robertson Foulis and Mr. Howard Hardy have proved veritable villains, and Mr. Jack C. Grey has been a gallant hero. There is plenty of comedy in the piece, which is cleverly worked up by Messrs. John Melton, T. W. Stead, T. R. White, Harry C. Momber, Misses Judith Shadwell and Annie Clunn, all of whom have suitable parts. Miss Gertrude Gilman is successful as the heroine, Ruby Avondale; Mr. Geo. P. Lester appears as the Protector, and Mr. Edward Carter is effective as Sir Wilfred Avondale in the first act.

MOTHERWELL. — New Century Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company opened here on Monday for three nights with A Country Girl. Mr. Martin D. Pitts is an admirable Geoffrey Chaloner, and Mr. Bernard Vaughan attains the height of complacency as the Rajah of Bhong. Mr. W. O. Billington does well as Sir Joseph Verity; and Mr. George Stone contributes a capital sketch as Grandfather Mummery. Barry, the irrepressible, is in the capable hands of Mr. Frank Weir, whose witty sayings keep the house in continual laughter. Miss Violet Leslie jumped at once into favour as Marjory Joy, her singing of "Coo" being repeatedly encored. Princess Michelanah has a charming exponent in Miss Rita Narcelli, and Miss Madge Campbell is a bright and vivacious Madame Sophie. Miss Blanche Courtney is a big favourite as Nan, her singing and dancing being much admired. Minor parts are all creditably sustained, and justice is done to the concerted numbers by the well-trained orchestra under the bâton of Mr. Edmund Paterson.

NELSON.—New Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. T. Greenwood Croft; Business-Manager, Mr. George E. Mudd.—Mr. Walter Melville's powerful combination and moral play, A Girl's Cross Roads, is being presented here this week. Miss Beaumont Collins does some remarkably clever work as Barbara Wade; Mr. Wilson Gunning gives a fine representation of Jack Livingstone; Mr. Charles Franmore's success as John Meadows cannot be disputed; Mr. Fred Ingram makes a typical Toby Turvey, and Miss Lena Delphine is excellent as Tilly Vane; Miss Nannie Meade makes an ideal Nellie Meadows; Mr. Fred Castleman ably sustains the part of Dr. Weston; Mr. David Borone as Joe Coyle does good work; other members of the company that are well worthy of mention are Mr. George Wilson as Fred Hickley, Mr. Harold Vernón as Harry Butler, Miss Emily Crossley as Jane Thomas, Miss Nellie Butts as Georgie Watts, Miss Kate Walton as Jessie Wilson, Miss Jessica Black as Constance Cornell, Mr. Gerald Jordan as Cuthbert Lumley, Mr. Fred Withers as Luke Ramsden, Miss Gibbons as Fay Dudley, and Miss Nellie Noble as Gertie Dudley.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—Not often does Mr. Arthur Bourchier visit the provinces, and Newcastle playgoers, who had previously had but one opportunity of seeing him with his company in a local theatre, naturally looked forward with much interest to his appearance with Miss Violet Vanbrugh and the Garrick Theatre company at the Theatre Royal on Monday night. Though no novelty was presented to Novocastrians in Mr. Alfred Sutro's four-act play, The Walls of Jericho, this powerful and witty work and scathing indictment of "the Smart Set" having twice previously delighted audiences in the Theatre Royal, there was a splendid house. As Jack Frobisher Mr. Bourchier was admirable, and in the great scene of the third act, where he delivers a spirited denunciation of the shams and vices of the circle into which he enters after his marriage, he evoked a storm of applause. Miss Vanbrugh played the part of the charming, tantalising Lady Alethea with a grace and ease that met with frequent and prolonged recognition. Mr. Charles Goodhart was excellent as Hankey Bannister, and Miss Pamela Gaythorne very good as the spirited and wilful Lady Lucy; while as Dallas Mr. H. Nye Chart was capital. The other members of the company lent able support. For Thursday and Friday evenings Brother Officers, preceded by Monsieur de Paris, was announced.

Tyne Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. F. C. Sutcliffe.—Mr. William Greet's company is this week occupying the boards here with The Shulamite. Deborah Krillet is successfully played by Miss Evelyn D'Alroy, much power and feeling being shown in her rendering; whilst Mr. Charles Weir as Simeon Krillet, the Boer farmer, illustrates the stern Puritanism of his race to perfection. Mr. W. T. Lovell is eloquent and passionate as the English lover, Robert Waring. Miss Mary Griffiths plays with great dramatic skill the part of Anna Vanderberg; Miss Marcella Hudson as the Kaffir girl, Memke, is remarkably clever in her impersonation; Mr. Reynolds Denniston is a good-natured Jan Vanderberg. An excellent curtain-raiser precedes the chief piece, The Widow Woos, a delightful comedy, in which the characters are impersonated by Mr. Reynolds Denniston, Mr. Henry De Solla, Miss Mary Griffiths, and Miss Hudson.

Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. E. B. Clarke.—Mr. Fred Melville's company with the drama The Beast and the Beauty is paying a successful visit to this popular house. The Beast (Jack Barrymore) is forcibly interpretated by Mr. W. S. Hartford, while nothing can be more engaging or sincere than Miss Alice Bowes as "the Beauty" (Violet). The part of Delilah Vane is portrayed with admirable discretion by Miss Daisy Gwynne; Mr. W. E. Passmore is forcible as the Earl of Foman; Henry Denver is excellently impersonated by Mr. Bernard Mervyn; Mr. Will Costa and Mr. Ben Howard as the two bantam weights, Billy Scorchers and Sid Crooke, give an exhibition of the fistic art which is popularly received and accorded well-merited applause.

Grand Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—Well-filled houses are the order here this week, Mr. Vivian Grantham's company in Held in Bondage proving a popular attraction. Mr. Grantham as the chief character, Sir John Hawthorn, gives a lifelike impersonation of that part; Mr. Richard Vane as Prince Mazaroff is seen to distinct advantage, and earns a good reception; Miss Florence Tyrrell acts with great skill as Zara; Mr. Charles Stirling shows merit as Ivan Dronski; ample comedy is supplied by Mr. George Scully (Harry Dunn) and Miss Maude Merrick (Lisette), who causes roars of laughter.

Empire Theatre.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Andrews.—Another good bill is this week attracting crowded houses nightly. The premier position is held by Bella and Bijou, who as usual are convulsing their audiences with laughter with their droll, diverting duo; Woodhouse and Wells are a pair of clever comedians and dancers who earn much well-merited success; Spry and Austin are again to the fore in their popular vaudeville turn; Rose Naynon, assisted by Clyde Phillips, with her marvellous troupe of trained tropical birds, is accorded much applause; Martin Iredale, a local boy ballad vocalist, renders his songs in a charming manner; Beatrice Renee, comedienne, scores heavily; as operatic vocalists Rita and Roma contribute some pretty numbers, and do well; Harry Hayton fully sustains his reputation as a first-class comedian; in their comedy sketch Phillip and Terry are amusing; whilst Madge Osmond, male impersonator, and Will Vokes, eccentric dancer, complete a good all-round entertainment.

Pavilion Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—The patrons of this popular hall are this week catered for in most liberal manner. Vesta Victoria, fresh from her triumphal tour in the United States, on Monday sang four songs in her best form, and was cheered to the echo; another favourite turn is that of Regan and Ryan, whose songs and patter earn a royal success, their dancing being a special feature; the Davis and Gledhill Trio supply some interesting and exciting contests on the patent stationary roller tracks; the local competition, promoted by the management, creating much local enthusiasm. In his comical act, "Learning to Acrobat," Recco causes considerable mirth; Violet Morgan, mimic, gives clever impersonations of leading music-hall celebrities; the Three Gilbert Girls are a charming trio of vocalists and dancers; Fred Herbert proves himself a vocalist of great merit; Edna Latonne, chorus vocalist, is very popular; Frank Clough, patter comedian, is as diverting as ever; Bicknelle gives a clever exhibition as a clay modeller; Lillie Lassah, comedienne and dancer, is well applauded. The Barrascope pictures are remarkably clear and steady.

NEWPORT.—Lyceum.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Mr. Cyril Keightley's company is playing a series of pieces here this week that ought to prove attractive. On Monday The School for Scandal was presented to an enthusiastic house. As Charles Surface Mr. Keightley fulfilled expectations as the wild young blood; Miss Haidee Gunn as Lady Teazle played with a natural sweetness that revealed itself particularly in the screen scene; cleverly studied was Mr. Hy. Crocker's Sir Peter; Mr. Edward Harrison made an effective Sir Oliver; and the part of Joseph was ably presented by Mr. Basil Holloway; Mr. B. A. Pittar was an amusing Moses, and Mr. Basil Dean did well as Trip. Included in this week's bill were also Miles Carew, Highwayman, and She Stoops to Conquer.

Empire.—Moss Empires, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. O. Stoll.—Miss Elsworthy and company are delighting good houses here with the playlet, The Orange Girl; Millie Payne is quite a success in her new style of low comedy; Miss Lillie Langtry is as popular as ever; and Bennett and Martell provide plenty of fun. Messrs. G. C. Doughty and company appear in a comedy sketch Captain Cupid; Gwennie Hasto is a smart comedienne and dancer; and others in the bill are Clarice Netta, a versatile vocalist, and Carrie Joy, who is applauded. The Bioscope shows interesting pictures.

NORTHAMPTON.—Opera House. — Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Seddon.—Baron H. Harriss's company, in the American musical comedy, The Prince of Pilsen, is proving a great attraction. Mr. Harry Kilburn as Hans Wagner is at his best, and proves irresistibly amusing; Miss Sophie Harriss scores largely in the part of Mrs. Maddison Crocker; Mr. Frank H. Crimp is thoroughly at home as Carl Otto; Mr. Bernard Russell makes the most of the dude part of the Earl of Shrimpton; Mr. Roy Sydney sings and plays well in the character of Lieut. Tom Wagner; Mr. Ernest Gifford exerts himself successfully as the lively François; Miss Dorothy Grasdorff is charming and piquant as Nellie Wagner; Miss Florence Beech shines as Edith Adams, Vassar Girl; Miss Molly Wynne as Jimmie makes a cheeky little "bell boy"; Miss Connie Leon as Sidonie is a lively and vivacious French maid.

Palace of Varieties.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Representative, Mr. Edwin C. Jazon; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. A. Evans.—McCann's Irish Terriers make a brave show, their high leaping being especially good; Fred Carey is a comedian always welcome here for his highly amusing songs; Annie Laurie, a dainty comedienne and dancer, is also a favourite; Bert Woodward, the original cycling coon, with new feats, is another well-appreciated artist here; the Camerons give a clever comedy duologue; Patti Bella is a spirited comedienne; and the Four Brunells appear in a bustling acrobatic comedy act, On the Links. The Palace Pictures are extra good this week.

NORTH SHIELDS.—Theatre Royal. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Mr. Horace Stanley's company with The 10.30 Down Express is proving an attraction here this week. As Sam Wagstaffe Mr. Horace Stanley makes a hit; Mr. George Beverley acquits himself satisfactorily as Jack O'Malley; Mr. Charles Burdon is a capital James Inderwick; Mr. Edwin Clarke figures successfully as Huntley Mason; Mr. Alaric Burton makes the most of Cuthbert Leigh, and Mr. Tom Rowdon does well as Seth Coombes; Miss Elsie Capell gives a finished rendering of Bessie Leigh; Miss Evelyn M. Walton is funny as Letitia Leigh; Miss Kate Kilpack makes a capital Peggy Potts, and Miss Josephine Lee as Olive Coombes is smart.

Central Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—The bill here is headed by the Cotton Blossom Quartette, vocalists and dancers, who present an enjoyable act; Zaid performs some clever feats, and Messrs Dale and Vale, singers and dancers, are popular; Mr. Arthur Stacey, eccentric comedian and dancer, is loudly applauded, and Miss Sheila McNeil, Scotch comedienne; Mr. George Young, concertina soloist; and the Bio-Photoscope are also successful.

NORWICH.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Wentworth Cooke's excellent company in The Christian is here. Mr. Frank Tennant as the Rev. John Storm is warmly applauded; Mr. Charles Hill is effective as Parson Quayle; and Mr. Edward Ling does well as Father Lampurgh. Mr. Chas. E. Dering deserves praise as Archdeacon Wealthy; Mr. Geo. R. Montford acts capably as Lord Robert Ure; Mr. Jackson Wilcox is a satisfactory Horatio Drake; Miss Grace Chalmers as Glory plays with feeling; Miss Molly Hayden as Mrs. Callander is good; and Miss Vashti Wilborne as Polly Love secures favour.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. F. W. Fitt.—An excellent programme is presented this week. George Bastow makes himself popular in humorous songs; a pleasing sketch by Diana Hope and company, entitled Her Good Name, has a good reception; Mr. A. G. Spry has funny songs and patter; the Crown Trio of vocalists are well appreciated; Max Rubens and Mlle. Doro, in their entertainment, Superba, show some marvellous mechanical scenic changes; Fred Cullaneo is amusing as a society entertainer; Elsie Earle is a pleasing comedienne; the Three Transfields give a clever musical act; and the Hippo Bio shows some amusing scenes.

NOTTINGHAM.—Theatre Royal. — Managing Director, Mr. Robt. Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—Mr. Martin Harvey opened on Monday with Boy O'Carroll, and Hamlet was staged on Tuesday. Mr. Harvey as the Prince was seen to great advantage, and his acting was most impressive; Miss N. de Silva submitted a delicate and sympathetic reading of Ophelia; Mr. Charles Glenny gave the fullest expression to the violent emotions of the King; and Miss Mary Rorke played with intensity and feeling as the Queen; Laertes was capitally sustained by Mr. Leonard Craske, a young actor possessed of an earnestness that made his work convincing; Mr. Fred Wright, sen., presented a sound assumption of Polonius; Mr. Charles J. Cameron displayed power as the First Player; and the Player Queen was well presented by Miss Madge Fabian. The lines of the Frist Gravedigger were humorously rendered by Mr. P. Alexander; Mr. Vincent Sternroyd did full justice to the part of Horatio; and appropriate representations of Rosencrantz and Guildenstern were furnished by Messrs. George Cooke and Alfred Mansfield respectively. The Breed of the Treshams and A Cigarette Maker's Romance were also played during the week.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Charles P. Cooke.—The Private Secretary is on a visit this week after an absence of several years. As Rev. Robert Spalding, Mr. Donald Price-Evans shows his versatility at its best; and Mr. W. Hargreaves drolly realises the peppery old Cattermole; Mr. W. T. Elworthy makes a satisfactory Marsland; Harry Marsland loses nothing in the hands of Mr. James P. E. Hussey; Mr. Randolph Reade presents a good study of Douglas Cattermole; and Mr. Vivian Gilbert is a satisfactory Gibson; Miss Dora Gray is a winning Dora Marsland, whose friend, Eva Webster, is admirably portrayed by Miss Beth Elliott; Mrs. Alfred Davis and Miss Cicely Wade do well as Miss Ashford and Mrs. Stoad. Good for Nothing precedes.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles H. Bowmaker.—The Macnaughtons form a strong attraction for the top of the bill this week. Full of quaint sayings and with an unending fund of drollery they arouse, and maintain, the interest and enthusiasm of large audiences. Mlle. De Dio is an indescribable dancer, and the effects produced during her turn are of the most beautiful and artistic kind; Alice Lloyd, in dainty costumes and with "chic" songs, always gets a hearty welcome; and Jake Friedman proves his ability to amuse by his up-to-date songs and patter; Park's Eton Boys show careful training; and an amusing military sketch, entitled Cuckoo is presented by Mr. Chas. S. Kitts and Miss Rhoda Windrum; Forest and King dance themselves into favour; Roberts, Hayes, and Roberts give a much-appreciated sample of American music-hall methods; and the programme is completed by "The Miner's Daughter," on the Bioscope.

NUNEATON.—Prince of Wales's Theatre and Entertainments Co., Ltd. — Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—Hardie and Von Leer's company is here with Two Little Vagabonds. Mr. Douglas Vigors appears with success as George Thornton, Mr. Edward McLean does well as Captain Darville, Miss Valerie Crispin excites sympathy as Marion Thornton, Miss Lilian Stuart is good as Barbara and Miss Lenna Vernon as Nurse Randall. Mr. Lionel Ellis and Miss Violet Vivian work well together as Biddy and the Gaffer, and Dick and Wally are capably undertaken by Miss Lucy Beaumont and Miss Gladys Vernon.

OLDHAM.—Empire Theatre.—General Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Miss Claudia Lasell and a first-class company are here in the new musical comedy, The Sweet Girl. Miss Lasell in the part of Lola is a decided success. She charms the audience with her singing, and her acting is delightful; Miss Alice Lethbridge is excellent as Fritzi, her dancing being one of the features of the show; Miss Grace Hunter as Countess Lizzi makes the most of the part; Mr. Fred Eastman is the life and soul of the piece as Count Leibenburg, the intemperate temperance advocate; and Mr. G. de Lara infuses much humour into the part of Prosper Plewney; Mr. Leonard Russell is capital as Florian, his singing being excellent; and Mr. Lister Morrah scores as Dick Kenyon; Mr. Algernon Newark is good as Anthony Strauss, as is also Mr. W. H. Page as Wilhelm.

Colosseum.—Manager, Mr. W. Eastwood.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor has a capable company playing the domestic drama, The Female Swindler. In the title-rôle, Lu Valroy, Miss Grace E. Leslie does full justice to the part; Mr. Joseph Millane makes a capital Detective John Coulson; Geoffrey Warden, the villain, is cleverly played by Mr. Wilford Cheetham, and Abraham Mikestein is well portrayed by Mr. John Belton; Harold Travers has a good representative in Mr. Guy P. Ellis, and Miss Florrie Kelsey is a pleasing heroine; Mr. Henry Wright as Billy Binks causes much laughter, and is ably assisted by Miss Mary Dawson as Mary Ann Mee, Miss Edith Gray as Mrs. Poppem, and Mr. A. Kenyon Gray, as the merchant, James Oliver; Mr. J. Lindley is capital as Dr. Fossett.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Howgate.—Florrie Forde is the attraction this week, and she has a good reception. Karl and May Ohm have a capital troupe of well-trained dogs, ponies, bears, and monkeys; David Poole gives an excellent ventriloquial turn; and the Original Celtics are refined vocal comedians. In Haydee's Miniature Vaudeville Theatre a spectacular Chinese scena is introduced with success; the Cumberlands give a really good cycling and acrobatic turn; Mamie Iris is a charming comedienne and dancer; and the Griss Trio are good in their pantomime, On the Tiles. The Royal Dottoscope concludes the entertainment.

Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Nuttall.—Cliff Ryland tops the bill, and he is as good as usual; the Two Bostons have a funny act in The Bullfight; the Sisters Gilbert are a capital pair of dancers and vocalists; Collier and Roberts score in a novel scena, The Lady and the Coalman; Johnny Fuller is excellent as the Cat on the Wire; Master Clifford is a good vocalist and expert dancer; and Myles and May appear as the Merry Huntsmen. The Dottoscope is showing the Mischievous Boys with success.

OXFORD. — New Theatre — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. C. Dorrill.—Mr. E. Graham Falcon's company is here this week with Blue-Bell in Fairyland, which is proving as popular as when it first visited here. Mr. Lawrence Emery puts a lot of good work into the part of Dickie; Mr. Harry Vernon and Mr. Will L. Clement are a most amusing pair of schoolboys, and keep the ball of fun rolling merrily all through; Miss Lily Eyton scores a big success as Blue-Bell, her singing being particularly good; the cat Peter finds an able exponent in Albert Mack; Miss Constance St. Bride is excellent as the Queen; and Miss Vera Vizard does well as Blue-Bell's good fairy; while Miss Haidee Fitch dances very prettily as Will-o'-the Wisp. The chorus do excellent work under the direction of Mr. Herbert Simpson.

PAISLEY.—Paisley Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—A Trip to the Highlands has proved a special attraction here this week. The Right Hon. Viscount Lackington is excellently presented by Mr. Wellesley Smith; as the Hon. Frederick Lackington Mr. Frank Barclay fills the part admirably; Mr. Gus Wheatman presents a vivacious and clever study of Sir Septimus Brown-Windsor; in the part of Timmins Mr. Joseph B. Montagu is inimitably droll and amusing; Mr. Wal Croft gives a funny and characteristic creation of The MacMutchkin; and Mr. Arthur Poole is excellent and versatile as Dexter; Miss Maisie Ellinger is irresistible as Miss Araminta Brown-Windsor; Miss Kitty Clinton as Fanny Flounce sings and dances delightfully; and as Miss Winnie Brown-Windsor Miss Millie Engler is most engaging. Miss Lilian Kevill Davies as Flora MacMutchkin, Miss Nan Dowling as Charley Chatterton, and Miss Kathleen Naughton as Lottie Langley perform their respective parts well. An excellent feature of the performance is the dancing of a clever midget troupe.

Empire.—Lessee, Mr. J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr. Delno Fritz.—Here this week are Horton and Linder, in their original grotesque act, The Eccentric Chinese; Clifford Spencer, patter comedian; the Cosmans, comedy entertainers; J. C. Macmillan, Scotch comedian; Marie Rivers, charming vocalist; M. Henri Sardou, assisted by Mlle. Sardou, marvellous mystifiers; and May Fallowfield, dainty soubrette.

PERTH.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey's company is here this week giving delightful renderings of the well-known Irish plays, Wearin' o' the Green, The Colleen Bawn, and Arrah-na-Pogue. Mr. Chalmers Mackey is a great favourite in the Fair City, his quaint Irish humour receiving the unstinted approbation of a highly amused audience. His Barney O'Hea in Wearin' o' the Green is marked with that striking ability and natural humour which classes him far above the ordinary run of Irish comedians. Mrs. Chalmers Mackey is seen to considerable advantage as Nora McGrath; Mr. Haughton Macauley's Michael Lenny is a vivid sketch of a villainous Irish agent; Mr. Charles Homer sustains the rôle of Shamus McDermott with pleasing effect; Mr. St. John Stuart is also prominent as Gerald Courtenay; Mr. David McFarlane is successfully placed in Connor Martin, as also is Mr. H. Sainsbury in the rôle of Sir George Courtenay; Miss Nana Flensberg's portrayal of Biddy McGinn is beautifully realistic, and she is accorded a special ovation; and Miss Adele Liddon's ability is seen to advantage as Mrs. McDermott.

PETERBOROUGH.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. A. Darville Vernon.—This week's attraction is supplied by Mrs. Alexander Loftus and company in The New Barmaid. In the title-rôle Miss Amy Preston plays and sings with grace and charm; Mr. Charles Adeson and Mr. Alexander Loftus as the Brothers White lead the comedy, and deserve unstinted praise; Mr. Michael Dwyer acquits himself admirably as Captain Lovebury, and Mr. James Grant does well as Colonel Claymore.

PLYMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Langdon Lee.—Mr. Mouillot's company is appearing here in San Toy. Mr. Arthur Cartwright is a singer of first-class ability, and makes the most of the ample opportunities afforded by the part of Bobby; Mr. Bert Edwards creates plenty of merriment in the rôle of Li; Mr. Robert Rivers as Sir Bingo is capital as the hot-headed parent, and Mr. Jordan is a portly Emperor; Miss Bessie Allayne in the title-rôle sings and dances with becoming grace and precision; Miss Lottie D. Sargent as Dudley is distinctly amusing; and Miss Maud Rundell is a dancer of no mean accomplishment.

Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Grant.—Mr. H. G. Brandon's comedy-drama, The Fatal Hour, is being played to very good houses. Mr. Frank Harrison is a dashing young naval officer; Mr. A. Brandon furnishes, as Arthur Henderson, a fine study of an absolutely unscrupulous villain; Miss Ethel Kay has the sympathy of the house as the heroine, Amy Henderson, and Miss Beatrice Whitney is most creditable as the adventuress, Olga Meredith. Mr. Tommy Gough as Bertie Lamb supplies the comic business.

Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—The principal item, that of Eugenie Fougere, is distinctly Parisian; the Bros. Corcoran, the musical shipbuilders, are accomplished cornet players; Ray and Calden have a comedy act genuinely original and humorous in the extreme; the Casino Comedy Four are possessors of fine voices to which full effect is given in some plantation songs; and the Karno Trio extract plenty of fun out of their sketch, The Traveller's Rest. The remaining items, namely, Charles Ashdown (comedian), Sisters Hayden (duettists), and Vernon Pictures, are very acceptable.

PORTH. — The Palace (late Opera House).—General-Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—This week a good all-round programme is submitted here. Heading the bill we have the Novellas in their spectacular act, Europe in India; the Musical Keiths, novelty instrumentalists; the Lannons, high pedestal dancers; the Wallys, expert jugglers; George Martinesgo, solo 'cellist and baritone; Wisper, juggler; Beattie Bloom, comedienne; the Franco Midgets, conjurors; and Nelson and Thomas in the American absurdity, On the Ra Ta. Some fine pictures are shown on the new Bioscope.

PORTSMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J.W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Veronique is attracting large audiences here, Mr. George Dance's excellent all-round company giving capital performances. Miss Ruth Lincoln makes a dainty and vivacious Veronique, singing her various numbers in delightful style. Agatha is well taken by Miss Ethel Negretti, whose vocalisation and acting are most effective; as Emerance Miss Lena Maitland scores well with her "Garden of Love" song; Miss Beatrice Hodson plays Denise with piquancy and dash; Florestan is admirably presented by Mr. Roland Bottomley, who, with Miss Ruth Lincoln, is heard to great advantage in the two vocal gems, "The Swing Song" and "Dear Little Donkey." Coquenard, in the hands of Mr. Leslie Holland, is a most amusing personage; the part of the eccentric Soustol is ably filled by Mr. Fred Syne; and Seraphin finds a decidedly good exponent in Mr. Courtney Comber. The chorus and augmented orchestra are under the able direction of Mr. Victor Champion.

Prince's Theatre.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Mr. Arthur Carlton's company, with The Span of Life, is here this week, and is well received by large and enthusiastic audiences. Mr. Kyburn-Deller makes a manly hero of Richard Blunt; Dunstan Leech finds an able exponent in Mr. Sanderson Moffatt; Mr. Walter Dale as Nutty Brown is excellent; and the Almo Trio are responsible for the Human Bridge. Miss Ella Willmer portrays the heroine Kate Heathcott with marked ability; and Miss M. Douglas, in the dual parts of Cecil Jelf and Cecil Blunt, and Miss Kitty Russell as Shrove Tuesday, are worthy of mention.

Empire Palace.—Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—Mr. Tom Leamore, versatile comedian, has a quaint style which keeps the house in high good humour; Crissie Cross is dainty and smart in song and dance; Spry and Monti, in their new scena The Bandy Guardsman, makes an amusing turn; Harry Bancroft, actor-vocalist, submits some catchy songs; the Great Northern Troupe of international dancers have a flattering reception; Emmie Ames, comedienne, sings pretty numbers in good style; the Three Sherrys, in comedy acrobatic art, are smart; and the Three Floradora Girls, acrobatic dancers; Wake and Dean, the argumentative artists; and Payne's Bio-photoscope complete the bill.

PRESTON. — Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—This week Mr. Frank Bertram's company is appearing here in the romantic drama, The Breed of the Treshams, which has met with an enthusiastic reception. Mr. Tripp Edgar gives a brilliant rendering of the difficult and arduous character of Rat Beresby; and the part of Batty is skilfully played by Miss Celestine Bertram. Mr. Oswald Lingard makes a typical Viscount Dorsington; and Mr. Richard A. Greene as his son, the Hon. Clement Hungerford, fills the rôle in a very clever manner. Mr. Cecil C. Klein is good as the Hon. Francis Tresham; and Miss Florence Tressilian admirably impersonates the Hon. Margaret Hungerford. Mr. G. Traill is popular as Sir Henry Curwen.

Prince's Theatre. — Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Mr. Fred Benton's company is here this week in the highly successful drama, The French Spy. Mr. George Sherraton as Petross Romanoff displays exceptional ability. Miss Gertrude Evans is seen to great advantage in the rôle of the Countess Andre. Mr. Fred Benton gives a popular impersonation of Fritz; and Miss A. Harrison-Tate deserves much praise for her excellent portrayal of Olga. Some pleasing comedy is provided by Mr. Chas. Digby as Viscount Alexis, and Mr. Seymour Perry as Knipps. Mr. Richard Fulton ably sustains the part of Capt. Sommers.

Royal Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H Broadhead and Sons; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. E. J. Linsdell.—At the head of the bill here this week is Harry Tate's funny sketch, Motoring, which is received with continuous laughter. The Land Grabbers, another genuinely amusing sketch, presented by Messrs. Ward and Andrews' company, also creates great merriment. May Lillian Levey is a popular and artistic comedienne; Laura Lorne and Nell Rene submit a pleasing Lancashire singing sketch; and other good turns are given by Juan and McQue, comedians and dancers; Oakdene, ventriloquist; H. J. Kisby, the "call boy"; J. H. McCann, roller skate dancer; and Monty Walker, laughing and mimetic comedian. Bioscope pictures complete the enjoyable programme.

RADCLIFFE. — Grand Opera House. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr. James Boothman.—Miss Grace Warner and company are paying a return visit in East Lynne. As Lady Isabel Miss Warner is most successful; Miss Kathleen Cranston is a grotesque Cornelia Carlyle; and Joyce has a successful exponent in Miss Annie Corri. The Suzanne of Miss Maud Steeple is also praiseworthy. Mr. George Gordon portrays the villainous Sir Francis Levison with power; Archibald Carlyle is in the safe and experienced hands of Mr. J. Leighton Leigh; Mr. R. Brown infuses fun into the part of Mr. Dill; Mr. T. Vyner is a dignified Lord Mount Severn; and Mr. L. Brien as Detective Perryfoot and Mr. Robert Arnold as Justice Hare also render a good account of themselves. For Friday The Scarlet Clue was announced.

RAMSGATE.—The Amphitheatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman.—Large and interested audiences have assembled here this week to witness performances by the well-known North American Indian actress, Miss Go-Won-Go Mohawk, and her company in the exciting play, Wep-Ton-No-Mah. In this Miss Mohawk plays the central figure, the Indian mail-carrier, in dashing style, and is loudly applauded. Mr. C. W. Charles is good as Col. Stockton; Miss Goepel makes an effective appearance as Nellie; and a fine representative of villainy is Mr. Ed. Leroy as Manuel Lopez.

Royal Victoria Theatre and Pavilion.—Proprietors, the Ramsgate Corporation; Lessee, Mr. J. Richeux.—Sapho has been played with marked success by Miss Annie Bell and company here this week. In the title-part Miss Bell gives a powerful display of histrionic ability and is deservedly applauded. Mr. Frederick Annesley does admirably in the rôle of Jean Gausin; Mr. George Antley is a capital Cesaire; and Mr. H. Langford is excellent as Caoudal. As the child Joseph little Miss Doris F. Graham proves herself a capable child actress. The other parts are skilfully portrayed.

RAWTENSTALL. — Grand Theatre. — Lessee and Manager,

Mouillot's company opened to a packed house. Mr. Victor Wallace as Major Callabone was very good. Mr. Arthur Radcliff as Captain Ormsby was all that could be desired; as Bobbie Scott Mr. Basil Mercer was well suited; Mr. Charles Stephenson as Private Taylor kept the house in a merry mood; Mr. Ainslie Burton was a funny Moolraj; and Miss May Audrey a dainty Millicent, her bright manner and lively singing winning for her unlimited applause. Mlle. M. Naudin made a pretty Chandra, and sang sweetly; Miss M. Glanbrane as Lady Brabasham and Miss D. Morgan as Evelyn Ormsby were also successful.

SEACOMBE.—IRVING THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan.—Mr. Louis Calvert's company is making a big hit here this week with Sunday. Mr. Leonard Payden gives a decidedly clever reading of Colonel Brinthorpe, being powerful yet natural; Mr. G. Wallace Johnston presents a satisfactory Arthur Brinthorpe, and Tom Oxley is excellently played by Mr. Ernest A. Douglas. Towzer, Davy, Lively, and Jackey are all carefully portrayed by Messrs. William Lockhart, Sidney Rennef, T. Norman Walker, and Arthur Vezin respectively, the strong characteristics of each part being carefully sustained. The title-rôle is in the excellent hands of Miss Emelie Polini, who sustains the exacting part with marked success. Miss McAimee Murray gives a good delineation of Mrs. Naresby. A special word of praise is due to the excellent scenery.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. C. Harrison.—Miss Lillian Beszant's company is paying a first visit to Seaham with An Actor's Romance, which had a flattering reception on Monday. Mr. E. Eardley Howard scores in the rôle of Harold Davenport; Robert Livingstone is capably treated by Mr. Cecil Fowler; a successful portrayal of Jack Woodford is contributed by Mr. Harry Agar Lyons; Mr. Harry Wren as Charley Cummins cleverly sustains the humour of the piece; Ikey Isaacs is played in good style by Mr. Percy Warlow; Miss Lillian Beszant as Dotty Dillingham skilfully enacts the part and contributes a pleasing song; the heartless Florence Hastings is ably treated by Miss Florence Nelson; Miss Beatrice Hone's reading of the part of Louise Davenport is a feature of the performance; and Phyllis is delightfully played by Miss Marion Ryder.

SHEERNESS.—THE HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. F. Moul; Manager, Mr. F. Leighton.—A capital programme is presented here this week, amongst the most prominent items being an excellent conjuring entertainment by Carl Rosine. Billie Ross and Co., in the amusing sketch, The Hot Member, is much appreciated; Allen and Hart (Harry and Rose), refined duettists and speciality dancers, meet with popular favour; Lily Flexmore, comedienne, gains hearty applause; and Clive Watts, comedian and patterer, is accorded a favourable reception; Mollie Nolan, comedienne, and Evie Hamilton, soubrette, also score. The programme finishes with the usual display of animated pictures.

THE PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Phil Reymond.—Another good all-round company appears here this week, and business continues fair. Shumann, comedy conjuror and card manipulator, secures hearty applause; Miss Lillie Thomas is a clever little serio comedienne; Elliott and Warne, comedy entertainers, make a big hit with their well-known comedy act, The Traveller and the Lady, which is cleverly played and excellently staged; Mr. Phil Reymond, the evergreen comedian, reappears, his new songs going capitally; Miss Marie Ingram is well received in popular ballads; and Mr. Tom Dalton, the well-known negro comedian and expert dancer, scores greatly with his clever turn. Mr. John Swingler makes a hit with his clever violin playing.

SHEFFIELD.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart: General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—The Drury Lane drama The Prodigal Son, by Hall Caine, was played to a good house on Monday. The original scenery and effects were used, and the fine stage pictures helped considerably in the strong impression produced. Mr. Norman Partridge, an earnest, intellectual, and well-graced actor, did fine work as Oscar, and strengthened the favourable impression created here by his performance of Hamlet some time since; another favourite "hero" of Drury Lane and Adelphi drama appeared in the person of Mr. Henry George, whose fine presence gave distinction to the character of the Governor; and Mr. Herbert Hewitson acted with emotional power in the part of Magnus. In the dual rôle of Oscar's wife and daughter Miss Lily Hall Caine played in a natural manner; Miss Cecil Cromwell was a pretty and alluring Helga; and the other artists did good work.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—As Good as Gold is being played here to well-pleased audiences.—Mr. H. H. Barrington acts in a forcible manner as Mark; Mr. Richard Ferris cleverly realises in appearance and bearing the character of Sir Richard Wharncliffe; and Mr. William Heilbron makes a dashing Jack Stanton. The clever low-comedy business of Mr. Norman Hall as Spanker, Mr. Fred May as Simpson, Mr. F. T. Tracy as Timothy, and Miss Ella Seaton as Madge causes roars of laughter. Miss Marie McAuley acts cleverly as Kate D'Arville; the part of Nora is gracefully represented by Miss Gertrude Bonser; and Miss Irene Ross is good as "the Kipper."

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—The visits of Mr. C. Watson Mill and Miss Rosalind Tate are always welcome here, and in A Warning to Women Miss Tate, looking handsome in beautiful confections, acts with charm, intelligence, and skill as Moira Kennion. Mr. H. P. Kennedy evokes laughter as the merry-hearted Mike McQuade; Mr. Palliser Acock submits a good sketch as Dr. Joules; Miss Emmie Barton is pleasing and graceful as Miss Kennion; and other characters are well played.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—A generous programme was presented to crowded audiences on Monday, the "star turn" being Mr. Wilkie Bard, who fully deserved the enthusiastic applause bestowed upon him. Another diverting comedy merchant is Mr. Walter Curtis, cordially received in his burlesque of a concert room vocalist; the Vivian company, dressed in the costume of 1820, sing, play, and burlesque in a clever and finished manner; Vernando is an original ventriloquist; Miss Nelly Stratton, a charming serio; Jean Sene is successful in his feats of magic; the graceful Sisters Finney, in a tank performance, are much admired; Alburtus and Bartram do a smart club juggling act; the Monte-Myro troupe appear in a comic ballet d'action; and the Bioscope brings a pleasing entertainment to a finish.

GRAND PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Richard Ralli.—Appearing to large audiences here are Miss Carlotta De Tonsen and company, in The Kingdom of Hate; Mr. George Leonard, vocalist; the Nettas, duettists; Johnson and Pelham; Wirson, head balancer; Mr. Harry Thurston, comedian; and Mr. Llewellyn, vocalist. In addition there are Pallister's popular animated pictures of topical and comic incidents.

SHREWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Business Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—Mr. Allan Wilkie's talented répertoire company is paying a welcome return visit here this week, with Hamlet, The Merchant of Venice, Othello, Romeo and Juliet, David Garrick, The Bells, and The Ticket-of-Leave Man. Mr. Allan Wilkie played the Prince of Denmark with much ability; Mr. Alexander Marsh was a fine Laertes; Mr. Aubrey Mather acted with conscientious care and success the part of the King; Mr. George Munro was a very good Polonius; Mr. Wilton Ross acted creditably as Horatio; and other male parts were satisfactorily filled. Miss Cameron as Ophelia showed considerable talent; Miss Elly O'Dempsey merited praise as the Queen, and Miss Ruth Nightingale as the player Queen acquitted herself well.

SMETHWICK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—Mr. Auguste van Biene makes a welcome appearance with The Broken Melody, which is now approaching its 5000th presentation. Mr. Van Biene receives a warm welcome in the part of Paul Borinski. The solos which he performs in the second act are a delightful item in themselves. Mr. Henry Ludlow makes a hard and unbending General Ivanoff; Mr. Faulkner Cox is a typical exponent of a certain kind of theatrical agent; Mr. Lawrence Grove is well-placed as Beaujoir. Miss Rosemary Rees has an unthankful part as the Duchess de Verviers, but her representation it would be difficult to better; Miss Lena Burleigh as the somewhat fickle wife of Borinski, is correct in her treatment of the part. Mr. Charles A. Morgan (Dickson) and Miss Rosie Lewis (Mrs. Dickson) infuse a welcome touch of humour into an admirable performance.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison are providing this week's attraction with A Country Mouse. Mr. Tempier Powell is a noteworthy character as the Hon. Archibald Vyse; Mr. Charles Bedells submits a clever study of John Bowlby; Mr. Thomas Sidney is capital as the Duke of St. Kitts; Mr. Ernest H. G. Cox is well suited as Lord Robert Wykeham; and Mr. Frank Hill is good as Jephcot. Miss Dorothy Casey wins favour by her portrayal of Lady Sylvia; Miss Margaret Marshall is decidedly good as Violet Aynsley; and Miss Hilda Honiss gives a pleasing characterisation of Angela Muir. On the Love Path is to be played to-night, and Why Women Weep has preceded each evening.

THE KURSAAL.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. P. T. J. Bacon.—The excellent programme submitted here by Miss Eileen McCarthy's Vaudeville company is entirely satisfying to the management here. The Merry Carpenters, in musical comedy, prove as popular as ever; Miss Eileen McCarthy sings tastefully; Mr. Wal Burt, too, is heard to advantage in his selections; and Miss Alfreda is delightful with her butterfly dancing. Mr. Harry Read conducts the orchestra with ability.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. E. Angless; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley E. Angless.—Mr. Ballard Brown is fulfilling a successful engagement here. Miss Pattie McCarthy and Messrs. Finlay Dunn, Will Edwards, Arthur Edwards, J. W. Bince, and Arthur Thomas also contribute popular items.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietors, The Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary, Mr. R. Singleton.—A visit from Mr. Edward Terry is looked forward to by the local habitués of the theatre with more than usual interest, and a hearty reception was accorded the famous comedian, who appeared on Monday in the rôle of William Todman in Mr. R. C. Carton's play, Liberty Hall. Mr. Terry's conception of the part was excellent in every way, alike in the sympathetic and humorous traits of the character, which were brilliantly depicted. Mr. Allan Pollock was an admirable and clever exponent of Mr. Owen; Gerald Harringay was capitally portrayed by Mr. Frank Cellier, jun.; Miss Fyfe Alexander artistically impersonated Blanche Chilworth; Miss F. Glossop Harris submitted an earnest representation of Amy Chilworth, and Miss Eugénie Vernie did some good work as Crafer, the remaining parts being successfully played. During the week The Magistrate and Sweet Lavender were presented.

ALBERT HALL, WINTER GARDENS.—Lessee, Mrs. Charles Parker; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Mertz.—Prominent amongst the capital variety combination engaged here this week are the Haxell team in their original act, entitled A Day on Hampstead Heath, which created roars of merriment; another good turn was contributed by Will Godwin, the popular character-vocalist; the programme includes Barton and Franklin, the Scottish Princes of Music; Gilbert Girard, the phenomenal mimic; Herr Addison's troupe of performing fox terriers; Counsell and Mills, in their burlesque playlet, On the Stage; Annie Casey, vocalist; Ruby Bijou, dancer, in an artistic barefoot dance; Charles Chard, comedian; and the Bioscope, with the latest films.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. J. and F. Coulson.—The boards here are occupied by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company in The Freedom of Suzanne. Charles Trevor is portrayed in a natural and easy style by Mr. Percy Hutchison. Miss Mabel Love had a flattering reception, delighting everyone by her charming and vivacious acting as Suzanne. Lord Datchett, Captain Harry Cecil, and Tommy Keston are capitally hit off by Mr. J. Hastings Batson, Mr. Townsend Whitling, and Mr. Richard Neville; Mr. F. G. Thurstans as Fitzroy Harding, and Mr. Patrick Quill as Sir Horace Hatton are both good; Miss Annie Stallman cleverly enacts the overbearing dame; while Lady Isabel, Miss Fanny Minching, and Mrs. Tustail are excellently interpreted by Miss Violet Ley, Miss Charlotte Mead, and Miss Dorothy Lart.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. George F. Thompson.—The Boissetts again head the bill with their amusing sketch, The Evening Party, which keeps the house in roars of laughter. Ella Retford is well received; Leo Tell is successful in his mimicry of musical instruments and animals; the Wedburns are quaint comedians; Lillian Lowe, ballad vocalist, has had a good reception; a capital musical scena is contributed by Hillman and Russell; some clever dancing is given by Edgar Budden, bone soloist; and the Bioscope completes the bill.

TIVOLI. — Proprietors and Managers, Councillor J. K. Hall and Mr. Jos. Sweeney.—Roars of laughter greeted Charles R. Whittle, whose songs were quaintly rendered; an amusing sketch, Turning the Tables, was contributed by Brady and Johnson's Sketch Co.; the manipulation of billiard balls and cues and other juggling is cleverly shown by Halma, who is retained another week; Frank Newbury, a good whistler; Alexander Gay, with box illusions; Billy Burns, singing pit lad; Landor Brothers, enjoyable comedy acrobats; and Walter Payne's Bio-Photoscope all make up an excellent programme.

STAFFORD. — LYCEUM THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Elphinstone.—Mr. John Power and company were here for the first three nights of the week with Man's Enemy. Mr. Francis Everard as Harry Stanton gave a fine performance, and met with a flattering reception; as Tom Drake, Mr. John Power presented a masterly and highly dramatic impersonation; as Sir Arthur Stanton and Bill Saunders, Mr. T. Arthur Ellis worked hard and effectively. Miss Clara Reid gave a happily-conceived comedy study of Polly Harris, and Mrs. Saunders was ably impersonated by Miss Edith Leslie. The remaining three nights of the week Mr. Charles Macdona's company appeared in Three Little Maids. Mr. Elphinstone deserves to be complimented on the great improvements he has effected at this theatre, which has been redecorated in tasteful style and reseated in a most luxurious manner. Increasing popularity is the result.

STALYBRIDGE.—GRAND THEATRE.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Louis Ellison; General Manager, Mr. Eugene E. Hardie; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Dunford Oswald.—A good company is appearing here. Mr. Sidney George is a capital ventriloquial humorist; Miss Ada Whitton is an effective male impersonator; Mlle. Victoria Dagmar, with her comedy assistant, is given the star turn, and shows her ability on the horizontal bar; a new dramatic sketch, A Woman's Honour, is depicted in six scenes; and Miss Flo Banks, serio-comedienne; Mr. Marcus Boyle, comedian; and the Bioscope complete the programme.

ST. HELENS.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, The St. Helens Theatre, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader.—The stirring military drama entitled The Trumpet Call is here this week. Mr. Charles F. Cooke's company is a particularly good one. Mr. Joe Bracewell is seen to advantage as Professor Ginnifer, causing uproarious laughter; Mr. Leonard Yorke plays with power and conviction as Cuthbertson; Mr. C. F. Cooke makes a dashing Sergeant-Major; Flasherstone has in every way an excellent representative in Mr. John Dennys; Mr. Fred Bentley is smart as Dutton; Miss Doris Gilham cleverly sustains the arduous rôle of Astrea; Miss Elsie Evelyn Hill acts sympathetically and with effect as Constance; Miss Phyllis B. French is an attractive Lavinia; Miss Helena Rigby is a good Mrs. Wicklow; and Mr. W. G. Blunt is well placed as Redrush.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Will, Sley, and F. Wilmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—The star turn here is Clown Barker, who, assisted by Miss Rozsika, gives a refined comedy animal show; Ike, Scott, and Son, comedians, on a return visit, are repeating their former successes; others appearing include Mr. J. H. Wakefield, the ideal coon; the Brothers Lillian in a speciality wire act; Carr and Ross, the humorous singing duo; Julian Mack, patter comedian; Frank Caffrey, Irish comedian; Mr. Lawrence Barclay, character comedian; and the Bioscope.

STOCKPORT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—Mr. Norman Macowan and company in Monsieur Beaucaire have attracted large audiences here. The acting of the title-rôle by Mr. Norman Macowan was most interesting; and Miss Violet Sterne gave a charming impersonation of Lady Mary Carlisle; Mr. Murray Hathorn was effective in the part of the Duke of Winterset; and Major Molyneux was satisfactorily acted by Mr. J. C. Taylor.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Black.—Lockhart's admirably trained elephants comprise the chief item here this week and provide a pleasing entertainment. Bob Hamilton is a versatile Scotch comedian; the Custances, in their duologue, A Game for Two, are much appreciated; Gillin, ventriloquist, is amusing; Harry Carmen, comedian, tells some humorous stories; Keene and Adams are pleasing duettists and dancers; the Cecilias give a clever musical act; and Daisy Lane, comedienne, sings with success.

STOURBRIDGE.—ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—For the first three nights Mr. Horace Moseley and company appeared in a musical drama, entitled The Betrayer. Mr. S. Lester Howard in the title-rôle made a capital impression; Mr. Norman Martin as Bryan Feathersby was a capable exponent; and the Jack Reynolds of Mr. J. W. Wallbank was very good. Mr. Horace Moseley as Martin Doyle and Miss Frances Vibrant as Peggy Maloney provided plenty of fun. For the last three nights The Orchid was announced.

SUNDERLAND. — AVENUE THEATRE.—Director and Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Machin.—The lovers of opera in and around the Wearside town have responded handsomely to the attractions afforded by the visit of the Moody-Manners Opera Company here, crowded houses having been the rule throughout the week. Monday night was devoted to Gounod's Faust, with Mr. Joseph O'Mara in the title-rôle. Mr. Charles Manners' Mephistopheles at this period of the day is too well known for criticism; Mr. Lewys James submits an admirable rendition of Valentine; Madame de Vere's interpretation of the difficult rôle of Marguerita calls for the highest commendation; Mr. Rowe excelled in the somewhat less important part of Wagner; Miss Mildred Bryan's Siebel was also a pleasing performance; and Miss Maude Baker left little to be desired as Martha. The chorus is large and well-balanced. The baton was in the able hands of Herr Richard Eckhold. Cavalleria Rusticana and Pagliacci were given on Tuesday, under the conductorship of Signor Romnaldo Sapio; Wednesday The Lily of Killarney occupied the boards, with Mr. John Child as Myles-na-Coppaleen and Madame Fanny Moody as Eily O'Connor. Tannhäuser, Maritana, and the ever-welcome Bohemian Girl were the other operas submitted during the week.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr. Josh Hemingway.—Mr. George Testo Sante's company, in The Life of a Showman, is paying a return visit here. An excellent variety show is given in Act II. Mr. Loyan Darra plays fairly strongly as Hendrick Marais; Mr. Ed. Warren is seen to advantage as the Rev. Cyril Arliss; Master Harry Warden is precocious as Dickie Marais; Mr. George Testo Sante as Brian Leader is afforded an opportunity of introducing his athletic feats as a "strong man"; Miss Amy McNeil is efficient as Agatha Winter. In the prologue Mr. J. G. Sante as Laurie Grey plays the violin with more than the usual ability.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Acting-Managers, Messrs. Browne and S. B. Stringer.—The redoubtable Hackenschmidt heads the bill this week. Other turns are furnished by Hess and Lisbon, who score in a roller-skating act; Maidie Berka, society entertainer; Lachie Thompson's "Top-weights"; Dan Conroy, comedian; Jeannette Hall, a lady contralto with a voice of wide range, and who sings with culture; Will Letters, comedian; the Sisters Geretti, trapeze artists; and the bioscope pictures.

SUTTON-IN-ASHFIELD. — Proprietor, Mr. Edward Gray. — Mr. Lingford Carson's company opened on Monday with The Heart of a Hero. Mr. Charles Draycott as Jim Resdale and Mr. J. Dobson Clyde as Mark Marl both play up in capital style, and the Wilfred Marl of Mr. Ernest J. Fare is a fine performance. Other characters worthy of mention are the Detective, played by Mr. Mordy Carroll; the Miser, which is in the capable hands of Mr. Harry Scatchard, and Timothy Heigho, played by Mr. Arthur Byron; Miss Muriel Thompson as Nell Resdale and Miss Marie Robson as May Ryder each gives an excellent performance.

SWINDON.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Responsible Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners; Musical Director, Mr. Fred Lucas.—The new romantic drama, A Destroyer of Men, capitally presented by Mr. James Hare and his well-selected company, is proving a strong attraction here this week. In the part of Karl Mischla, Mr. James Hare is exceptionally fine, and Mr. Charles Bickell is successful and prominent as Michael. Mr. Harold B. Lewis is seen to considerable advantage as Count Starevitch; Miss Irene Clifford undertakes, with commendable judgment, the part of the wretched Olga Mischla, and Miss Gladys Lloyd is pleasing as Vida Ravel. Miss Alice Buckland, as Nina, and Mr. Ross Warren, as Coco, are safely entrusted with the fun of the piece. A strong and interesting feature of the drama is the introduction into one of the scenes of Volcano, the herculean athlete, with his marvellous feats of strength, and Mr. Harry Wright, with his clever rhyming song.

TODMORDEN.—TOWN HALL.—Proprietors, Todmorden Corporation.—Miss Rose Faith's No. 1 London Company opened here on Monday with the romantic Georgian costume-play, No Cross, No Crown. Miss Gwen Stewart played exceedingly well in the dual parts of Lady Margaret Luttrell and Mistress Gray; and Miss Rose Faith as Lady Clare scored a distinct success. Miss Rita Rosslyn as Dame Priscilla Barclay looked the part to the life, and Miss Corona L'Estrange made an efficient Annabel Sylvester; Little Ruby was a winsome Doris Luttrell, and Miss Ada Clawson as Plato, Dame Priscilla's coloured page-boy, did exceedingly well. Mr. W. Carriden made a handsome Sir Francis Luttrell, and Mr. Harrison Chapman as Professor Nebb was distinctly good; as Austin Blake, the villain of the piece, Mr. Herbert De Ville had a difficult part to play, but his efforts are worthy of high praise; whilst Mr. Fred Gresham as Dr. Ashby, a fussy military surgeon, was amusing. In the minor parts of Sergeant Arnold and Lettie Crayle, Mr. A. Bower and Miss Olive Webb were successful; whilst Rawson Haines, military servant to Sir Francis, was ably impersonated by Mr. C. George.

TORQUAY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—Mr. George Dance's own company presented The Cingalee for the first time in Torquay on Monday. As Nanoya Miss Edith Harmer sang sweetly; Miss Bertha Frey made a dignified Lady Patricia, singing her numbers successfully; the Peggy Sabine of Miss Minnie Muir was delightful, her duets with Mr. Tom Payne as Chambhuddy being among the great successes of the evening; Mr. Payne was extremely funny; Mr. J. C. Fagan made a capital Harry Vereker, Mr. Frank Sutton a dignified Kandy Noble, Mr. William Austin a pleasing Bobby Warren, and Mr. Coope Edmonds an excellent High Commissioner; Miss Florrie Treseder danced prettily.

TREHERBERT.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Poole; Manager, Mr. James Gunn.—Messrs. E. A'Dell and F. Chabat's company appeared here on Monday in The Romany's Revenge. The part of John Hope is impersonated with marked skill by Mr. Evelyn A'Dell; Mr. Fred Green as Archibald Heath is well placed; Mr. Frank Jefferson gives an excellent rendering of David Renard; Mr. Harry Rose as Bobbie Bloom is humorous and is ably assisted in the fun-making by Miss Ada Stelling as Polly Pluck; Cleb Kral is well sustained by Mr. F. Henson; whilst Messrs. Alf Kitson, Frank Stockwell, Wilson Verner, and Sidney Leighton leave nothing to be desired in the remaining male characters. Miss Ethel Ashleigh in the part of Zamet plays in a manner that stamps her to be an actress of the first rank; Miss Lil Francis is successful as Archie; Miss K. Eckart as Lilian Hope and Elspie is deserving of mention for her portrayal of both parts.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—THE OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Carey; Manager, Mr. L. J. Gunnell.—Mr. Bannister Howard's company in Florodora has been well received this week. Mr. Gus Danby has proved as amusing as ever as Tweedlepunch, while Mr. Colin Johnston gives a powerful study of Cyrus Gilfain, and Mr. Howard Crofton is successful as Frank Abercoed. Miss Patsy Lake is charming as Dolores; Miss L. Arnold is the lady typist; and Miss Dorothy Dance is the maid.

TYNEMOUTH.—PALACE-BY-THE-SEA AND WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietor, Mr. J. H. Graham; Manager, Mr. Lindon Travers.—For this, the last week of the season, the bill includes the Deane Tribune Co., in their amusing absurdities, "The Cheerful Idiot," and "Applicants"; the Leotard Brothers, grotesque balancing and hat-throwers, who prove a popular turn; Van Denoff, lightning picture painter; Eva Linden and Frank Leedam, in light comedy sketches and duets; and the Bioscope pictures.

WAKEFIELD.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr. Herbert Ralland's company is here this week in La Poupée. Mr Harry Braynes gives an excellent rendering of Hilarius, and keeps the house in continuous laughter with his smartness; Mr. Arthur Cozens displays fine vocal powers and acts well as Lancelot; Mr. Walter Balfour is good as Father Maxime; Mr. Fuller Allen is seen to advantage as Baron Chanterelle, being ably supported by Mr. Arthur Dennis as Loremois; Miss Mysie Devine is bright and piquant as Alesia, and sings charmingly, and Miss Edith Hunter is admirable as Madame Hilarius. The play has proved very popular here on its first visit.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Henry Lucas.—The Musical Savonas with their beautiful electrical scena, The Palace of Orpheus, are paying a return visit, and meet with a cordial reception; the Reays are a couple of smart athletic equilibrists; Mabelle May, comedienne, dances well; Tom Collins, comedian, sings in good style, and the Six Cycling Elliotts contribute some exceedingly clever feats.

WALTHAMSTOW. — PALACE. — Managing Director, Mr. G. Adney Payne; Manager, Mr. A. J. Barclay; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Slatter.—Miss Marie Lloyd heads the list of attractions in Mr. Barclay's liberal programme this week, and sings with all her old charm, her two contributions on Monday evening being "She is so strictly proper" and "The custom of the country." The popular comedienne is nightly enjoying the warm reception to which she is accustomed, and to which her talents entitle her. Miss Blanche Holt, in a Dutch costume, is successful in an Anglo-Dutch ditty, and is a clever dancer; Penley and English appear in an amusing duologue, and score heavily; Mr. T. E. Finglas sings a good coon song, and is loudly applauded for a particularly neat dance. The heartiest laughter of the evening falls to the Brown and Kelly Combination for their clever acting in The Butler Knows, a smartly-written and very laughable little farce. Mr. Papa Brown is simply splendid as the Butler. Mr. Jack Foster rattles volubly through the part of Mr. Lovebird, and Miss Blanche Holt is a charming wife. Mr. George Bendon, the white coon, is the possessor of a fine sonorous voice, which he employs advantageously in two capital songs; Mr. Chas. Freeman and Miss Florence Tench appear in a new act entitled Dramatic Gems, in which they display their well-known talents in selections from Moths, The Ticket-of-Leave Man, and Drink. Miss Tench is charming as Vera in the first-named, while Mr. Freeman boldly seizes his opportunities as Bob Brierley and Coupeau. The novel turn is well received, the success of the two artistes being thoroughly deserved. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope presents the usual interesting pictures.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL COURT.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred J. Reece.—Messrs. Armadale and Warren's company are re-appearing here this week in the stirring play, The Face at the Window.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Another capital entertainment is provided for the habitués of this house. Jack and Evelyn in their sketch, Come into the Office, again score well, and the Three Seabournes are accomplished equilibrists; Wenona and Capt. King are clever with the rifle, and J. G. Aitkén, a smart comedian; the Three Sisters Jonghmans have excellent voices, which blend well in a choice selection of harmonised trios. The Five Casino Girls play on various instruments with success, and the Royal Bioscope pictures are all good.

WEDNESBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Battersby.—A special engagement of Messrs. Granville and Thorne's company in the historic drama Napoleon the Great is drawing capital houses here this week. Mr. Hugh Montgomery is admirably suited in the rôle of Napoleon, and Colonel Lavarennes is well played by Mr. Henry Earlsmere; Mr. Phil Harper scores in the part of Colonel Jules Meuron; and as Paul Laczinska Mr. Bartlett Garth is well worthy of special mention. Marie Walewska is charmingly acted by Miss Elsie Warner; Miss Maud Russell secures hearty applause for her able embodiment of Mlle. Leonie Marboeuf; Mère Dumont is ably depicted by Miss Florence Thorne; and as Lisette, the maid, Miss Adelaide Cromer proves herself a talented artist.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. P. Moore.—Mr. T. Morton Powell is here this week paying a return visit with his drama, Honour Thy Father. Mr Walter H. Cameron plays the rôle of Gabriel Garth in a masterly manner; Mr. W. R. Winning does full justice to his part as Duncan Bly; Miss Kate Newton interprets the character of Gertrude Garth with much feeling; Jack Halyard is capitally portrayed by Mr. Bertram Ross; Mr. W. H. Melrose makes an able and smart Ned Pennycomquick, and in conjunction with Mr. Fred Rolls as Mike Copplestone keeps the house in continual roars; a smart piece of character acting is presented by Mr. Claude Merton as George Bloggs; Miss Mabel Coleman is all that could be desired as Lillian Garth; Miss Winnie Donovan well sustains the character of Mercy Merry; Miss Lizzie Morley gives a nice rendering of Poppy Cornleigh.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Managing Director, Mr. T. M. Sylvester; Manager, Mr. H. W. Player.—Mr. Harry Champion heads the programme here, and is in his best form and much appreciated. Miss Eva Hope, in association with Mr. Jack Wayho, gives a clever performance in original duologues; a good turn is submitted by Beattie Foster; Wallace Whitney comes in for great applause for his comic rendering of his soldier song; some smart impersonations are submitted by Harry Bent; the clever little comedienne, Venie Clements, gives a good show; the Hippodrome pictures also add to the amusement of the evening.

WEST HARTLEPOOL. — GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. J. A. Lewis. — The Marriage of Kitty is being presented here. Miss Aida Jenoure is included in Mr. Howard Cochran's company, and this talented lady has a very true conception of the character of Kitty, which she interprets in a breezy and vivacious style; Miss Betty Castle makes the rôle of the Peruvian widow most attractive, whilst Mr. Howard Cochran finds ample scope for his ability in the character of Sir Reginald Belsize; Miss Helen Kay Robertson makes an excellent French maid, and Mr. Cecil Wilford sustains the part of the solicitor admirably; Hampton, his clerk, is well represented by Mr. Colet Dare.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson. — Mr. Frank Macnaghten is again presenting a good bill of fare here. Dutch Daly receives quite an ovation each night; Will Musgrave is greeted as an old friend; the gymnastic pot-pourri act of the Arleys is distinctly good, the dogs introduced greatly enhancing the charm of the turn; Frank and Free are two bright and fresh comedy artists; the Bros. Curran cause amusement with their boxing act; Brown and Robinson (duettists) are enjoying popularity; and Rita Resden proves herself an accomplished male impersonator. Raymond's Bio-tableaux are always good.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Mr. F. R. Benson's North Shakespearean company is paying a most welcome return visit here. The Taming of the Shrew was staged on Monday. As Petruchio Mr. Henry Herbert's elocution was excellent; a sound piece of acting was the Baptista of Mr. Reginald Davis; Mr. Gerald Ame's Lucentio was a meritorious performance, as was the Gremio of Mr. Lionel Bevans; Mr. Henry Morrell was decidedly good as Hortensio; Mr. Ross Shore proved himself a capable comedian as Grumio; Mr. E. Spencer Geach did well as Tranio, and Biondello was facetiously portrayed by Mr. Charles Francis; Mr. Philip Merivale was an able exponent of Vincentio; Miss Dorothy Green looked remarkably handsome, and showed rare histrionic ability as Katharina, and Miss Louise Graeme gave a delightful delineation of Bianca. Romeo and Juliet, Twelfth Night, Macbeth, As You Like It, Hamlet, and The Merchant of Venice, are also in the répertoire.

WEST STANLEY.—VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Raws; Responsible-Manager, Mr. John Cassidy.—Messrs. E. Hill-Mitchelson and Harris Finberg's company in The Traitor proved an attraction here on Monday. Mr. E. E. Clive gave an imposing portrayal of Prince Rudolph; Mr. Stephen E. Scanlan was responsible for powerful acting as the Chief of the Police; Captain Ross, R.N., was presented in a bluff, hearty manner by Mr. T. W. Hurst, who was ably seconded by Mr. F. Sutherland; Cen Cen was a typical Japanese girl in the hands of Miss Maud Stewart; the rôle of Elsie Dupres was well sustained by Miss Kath Vere; Miss Ruth Shepherd as Zulu won applause; the mysterious Countess Zicka was cleverly portrayed by Miss Gwynne Warren; Miss Isabel Hunt won unstinted applause by her presentation of Lieut. Nicholas; Mr. Arthur McCulloch made a capital Gen. Hertz; and Mr. Edward Duff a fine Gen. Franz.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Stanley Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon.—Miss Winifred Chalmers and company are presenting The Master Criminal here. The title-rôle is in the capable hands of Mr. Henry L. Osmand; Mr. Alexander Haviland scores as Philip Manners; Mr. Dunlop Stewart makes a typical Ben Beaudy; the rôle of Gentleman Jim is effectively handled by Mr. J. W. Callaghor; and Tommy Dale (Mr. Harry Cooke) and Peggie Perks (Miss Mabel Tremere) are general favourites. Mr. H. P. Warburton gives an imposing portrayal of Mr. Manners; and Mabel Manners is played in a sweet and winning style by Miss Katie Blair. Miss Winifred Chalmers was responsible for some powerful and emotional acting as Cecile.

WHITEHAVEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Clark; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Clark.—A return visit was paid here on Monday by Mr. Chas. Carte's company in A Noble Brother. Mr. Carte repeated his remarkable performance of Jerry, being well supported

BERLIN, Thursday, Sept. 27. — Herr Reuling made for himself a name some years ago with a successful play, but he has hardly lived up to his reputation. None of his succeeding pieces—and he is a prolific writer—have ever obtained or merited the success accorded to Der Mann im Schatten, which was produced at the Deutsches Theatre under Dr. Brahm's management, and, at the time, fully detailed in your columns. The reception the work under present discussion met with at the Lustspielhaus was a mixed one, many of the audience applauding heartily, and some, at the close, hissing. The farce is neither better nor worse than many that have enjoyed a lengthy run, and it is difficult in this case to prognosticate. It is exaggerated to the verge of caricature, the plot being—here, at least—a very well-worn one; but some of the dialogue and the scenes are genuinely amusing. Two Berlin men, Dr. Brandes and his friend Krüger—both artists, unmarried and well-to-do—are weary of the eternal routine of town and society life. They long for the restful quiet of the country, for Nature and the simple life. So Dr. Brandes buys a villa in the Mark, in the Spree Forest neighbourhood, and his sister is to keep house for all three. They turn their backs upon the metropolis, bidding a cheerful adieu to dinner-parties, clubs, automobiles, and all that makes for the tumult of the city. The experience the novices meet with in their rural village is such as could only be met with in a farce. In the first place, Brandes has paid double as much for the house as it is worth. This is followed up by a systematic cheating and plundering of the smart city men by the cunning peasants. Fräulein Brandes' poultry is stolen and sold to her again, only to be re-stolen; the fields are mowed, and the hay carted off by night; and every day some new swindle takes place. Ultimately a false alarm of fire is sounded, whereupon the peasants, in a body—under the pretence of rendering assistance—carry out and carry off the doctor's furniture. This is the last straw, and all three long-suffering dupes shake off the dust of "Gottes freier Natur," and hasten back—cured for ever of grumbling—to their beloved Berlin. The acting was exceptionally bright, Fräulein Cerigioli—as a village beauty, dishonest as the rest—being capital. Herren Marx, Härting, Beckmann, and Impekoven gave very good accounts of their respective parts, and Frau Mallinger is deserving of a special word of praise for her convincing rendering of Annie Brandes.

Kottsieper ..... Herr Bornstedt
Hönninghaus ..... Herr Helmerding
Schaumann ..... Herr Schwaiger
Hasselluss ..... Herr Schmidtaesler
Hellmuth ..... Herr Christians
Rebecca ..... Fraulein Riechers
Isolde ..... Fraulein Clemens
Minna ..... Fraulein Boccay

BERLIN.—Thursday, Oct. 4.—An unusually cordial reception was accorded to this new play—the creditable work of a young Dresden author. Herr Bloem was called before the curtain at the close of each act and warmly applauded. Were the over-long religious and moral discussions curtailed the piece would gain in value, and there is quite sufficient without these to fill out the evening. Two clergymen make most of the conversation—Ellmenreich and Kottsieper. The former is a friend of genuine art in every form; his first wife had been a concert singer, and his charming young daughter Isolde longs to tread the same path. The present Frau Ellmenreich is a narrow-minded bigot and a prude, and her brother, Pastor Kottsieper, is little better. A fountain—on the occasion of a jubilee—has been erected in the town; it is a beautiful work of art, and the sculptor is a man of note. Frau Ellmenreich, however, and her brother look upon the nymphs which form part of the fountain with horror, and Kottsieper makes long harangues to set the people against what he terms a sinful and blasphemous work. Now the sculptor turns out to be Pastor Ellmenreich's nephew, whom he adopted as a child. Hellmuth's father, Ellmenreich's much-loved brother, had been an unsuccessful artist, and when the boy developed a love of art his uncle considered it his painful duty to chastise him. The high-spirited lad ran away, became a famous sculptor under another name, and when he comes for the unveiling of his jubilee fountain is recognised by his uncle. Pastor Ellmenreich is the only one in the town who stands up for the beautiful work of art, and receives his long-lost nephew affectionately into his family. So well has Kottsieper succeeded in arousing the indignation of the people that a band of rowdies storm the fountain and demolish it. Hellmuth has promptly fallen in love with his cousin Isolde, who is only too glad to go forth with him into the beckoning world of art. The old man is left despairing, for Hellmuth's ideas of love are the reverse of orthodox, and Isolde was the pastor's one ewe-lamb. It is evident that the author is writing with one chief aim—the defence of real art—and much that he says is excellent. There is a pathetic little incident of a cobbler who has worked all his life in an underground shop, seeing nothing but his boots and shoes, oblivious to all but the grey routine of his days. The beauties of the marble fountain strike him like a revelation, and he asks how it is possible that life can be a vale of tears when there is so much loveliness. As to the interpretation of the piece, it could not well have been better, Herr Christians, Fräuleins Riechers and Clemens, and Herr Stange being especially good.

The long-anticipated revival of Hamlet at the Royal Schauspielhaus took place on Saturday evening, resulting in another triumph for Herr Matkowsky, who gave the title-rôle for the first time. This famous actor's reading of the part was exceedingly interesting; it was a rendering as powerful and convincing as we expected—and that is saying much. He makes the Prince of Denmark less youthful than most actors do; his conception is altogether more matured than those we are accustomed to; it is as though grief had made his Hamlet prematurely old. A crowded house applauded with unbounded enthusiasm, particularly during and at the close of the third act. Fräulein Wachner's Ophelia was not satisfactory, being somewhat cold and conventional; but most of the other artists—notably Herr Staegemann (Laertes), Herr Pohl (King), Herr Vollmer (Polonius), and Herr Geisendörfer (Horatio)—gave excellent impersonations. Director Barnay excelled himself in the good taste of the mounting.

SPARROWS IN OPERA.

Addison, in an essay in the fifth issue of the Spectator, says:—

"An opera may be allowed to be extravagantly lavish in its decorations, as its only design is to gratify the senses, and keep up an indolent attention in the audience. Common sense, however, requires that there should be nothing in the scenes and machines which may appear childish and absurd. How would the wits of King Charles's time have laughed to see Nicolini exposed to a tempest in robes of ermine, and sailing in an open boat upon a sea of pasteboard! What a field of raillery would they have been led into had they been entertained with painted dragons spitting wildfire, enchanted chariots drawn by Flanders mares, and real cascades in artificial landscapes? A little skill in criticism would inform us that shadows and realities ought not to be mixed together in the same piece; and that the scenes which are designed as the representations of nature should be filled with resemblances, and not with the things themselves. If one would represent a wide champaign country filled with herds and flocks, it would be ridiculous to draw the country only upon the scenes, and to crowd several parts of the stage with sheep and oxen. This is joining together inconsistencies, and making the decorations partly real, and partly imaginary. I would recommend what I have here said to the directors, as well as the admirers, of our modern opera.

"As I was walking in the street about a fortnight ago, I saw an ordinary fellow carrying a cage full of little birds upon his shoulder; and as I was wondering with myself what use he would put them to he was met very luckily by an acquaintance, who had the same curiosity. Upon my asking him what he had upon his shoulder, he told me that he had been buying sparrows for the opera. 'Sparrows for the opera! What! are they to be roasted?' 'No, no,' says the other; 'they are to enter towards the end of the first act, and to fly about the stage.'

"This strange dialogue awakened my curiosity so far that I immediately bought the opera, by which means I perceived the sparrows were to act the part of singing-birds in a delightful grove; though, upon a nearer inquiry, I found the sparrows put the same trick upon the audience that Sir Martin Mar-all practised upon his mistress; for though they flew in sight, the music proceeded from a concert of flageolets and bird calls, which were planted behind the scenes. At the same time I made this discovery: I found, by the discourse of the actors, that there were great designs on foot for the improvement of the opera; that it had been proposed to break down a part of the wall, and to surprise the audience with a party of a hundred horse, and that there was actually a project of bringing the New River into the house, to be employed in jets d'eau and water-works. This project, as I have since heard, is postponed till the summer season; when it is thought that the coolness which proceeds from the fountains and cascades will be more acceptable and refreshing to people of quality. . . .

"But to return to the sparrows: there have been so many flights of them let loose in the opera that it is feared the house will never get rid of them; and that in other plays they make their entrance in very wrong and improper scenes, so as to be seen flying in a lady's bedchamber, or perching upon a king's throne. I am credibly informed that there was once a design of casting into an opera the story of Whittington and his cat; and that in order to do it there had been got together a great quantity of mice; but Mr. Rich, the proprietor of the playhouse, very prudently considered that it would be impossible for the cat to kill them all, and that consequently the princes of the stage might be as much infested with mice as the prince of the island was before the cat's arrival upon it, for which reason he would not permit it to be acted in his house. . . .

"Before I dismiss this paper, I must inform my reader that there is a treaty on foot between London and Wise (who will be appointed gardeners of the playhouse) to furnish the opera of Rinaldo and Armida with an orange-grove; and that the next time it is acted the singing birds will be personated by tom-tits, the undertakers being resolved to spare neither pains nor money for the gratification of the audience."

At the Operetta House, Clacton-on-Sea, last Saturday, Mr. Geo. Grossmith gave his drawing-room entertainment. He had the able assistance of Miss Dorothy Scott, raconteuse, Miss Dorothy d'Egville, vocalist, and Miss Dorothy Forster, pianiste

"The Old Cabin Home; or, Carolina," a drama in four acts by Grattan Donelly, was produced for copyright purposes by Mr. Robert Perris's company at the Theatre Royal, Darwen, on Saturday afternoon.

PROLOGUES.

The prologue is an old-established institution, and with its friend the epilogue or "tag" has died hard out of theatrical custom. The field at the disposal of the student of prologues is so ample that the only method that can be adopted is the falconer's way "to fly at all we see." Indeed, there is "much matter" in prologues. Marlowe's allusion in that prefixed to Tamburlaine the Great to "jigging veins of rhyming mother wits. And such conceits as clownage keeps in pay" is made the more interesting by the fact stated in the "Address to the Reader" of the same piece which showed that Marlowe—advised maybe by contemporary critics—had deliberately abandoned what is now called "comic relief"—"fond and frivolous gestures," said the dramatist digressing, "and, in my opinion, far unmeet for the matter, which I thought might seem more tedious unto the wise than any way else to be regarded, though haply they have been of some vain-conceited fondlings greatly gaped at." The prologue to The Jew of Malta is oddly spoken by Machiavel, who tells the audience that he is come on a pleasure trip from France now that the Duc de Guise is dead. But for Ben Jonson's prologue to Volpone, we might have been ignorant of the time taken in writing the play, and of the view adopted of rapid composition. Jonson distinctly complains of critics who

"When his plays come forth, think they can flout them,
With saying he was a year about them.
To this there needs no lie, but this his creature,
Which was two months since no feature.
And though he dares give them five lives to mend it
'Tis known, five weeks fully penned it;
From his own hand, without a coadjutor,
Novice, journeyman, or tutor."

Like Marlowe, Jonson introduces into his prologues spiteful side-hits at some of his rivals. He distinctly boasts that he does not "Hale in a gull old ends reciting, To stop gaps in his loose writing." Nor does he, he says, "Make his play from jests stolen from each table, But makes his jests to fit his fable; And so presents quick comedy refined, As best critics have designed; The laws of time, place, persons he observeth, From no needful rule he swerveth." There is nothing like a little self-praise; and doubtless Volpone went none e worse for Ben's little braggadocio. The prologue to The Silent Woman is not in the least out of date, though it was written in the seventeenth century. The author remarks:—

"Truth says, of old the art of making plays
Was to content the people; and their praise
Was to the poet money, wine, and bays.

But, in this age, a sect of writers are,
That only for particular likings care,
And will taste nothing that is popular.

With such we mingle neither brains nor breasts
Our wishes, like to those make public feasts,
Are not to please the cook's taste, but the guests."

Ben seems to have felt somewhat as a modern serious dramatist might towards the authors of musical plays; for in his prologue to The Alchemist he tells the reader "Thou wert never more fair in the way to be cozened than in this age, especially in plays; wherein now the concupiscence of dances and antics so reigneth, and is the only point of art that tickles the spectators." But the Restoration drama was the period for prefaces and prologues. How curious is the prose introduction to The Relapse, in which Vanbrugh says of the piece in question:—"I believe with steady faith there is not one woman of real reputation in town, but, when she has read it impartially over in her closet, will find it so innocent, she will think it no affront to her Prayer-book to lay it upon the same shelf." The actual prologue to the same play, spoken by Miss Cross, alludes amusingly to the airs and graces of the beaux who, according to the custom of the day, witnessed the play from the stage. It runs:—

"How have I shook, and trembling stood with awe
When here, behind the scenes, I've seen 'em draw
A comb, that dead-doing weapon to the heart,
And turn each powder'd hair into a dart."

In the prologue to The Provoked Wife, which Mrs. Bracegirdle delivered, there is a satirical allusion to the brutal severity of the London critics of the day as compared with the tender and encouraging appreciation of those on the Continent. "So much of the old serpent's sting you have," said the author; "you love to damn as Heaven delights to save." For the sake of a change, apparently, the prologue to The Confederacy was spoken by an actor attired as a shabby poet, wearing a crown of laurel. A pretty touch of playfulness was introduced into the prologue to Congreve's Old Bachelor, when Mrs. Bracegirdle pretended to forget her lines, and said, speaking of the young author whose first-born play was about to be put upon its trial—

"He prays—O, bless me, what shall I do now?
Hang me, if I know what he prays or how!
And 'twas the prettiest prologue as he wrote it.
Well, the deuce take me if I han't forgot it!"

The prologue of The Double Dealer commended the piece to the tumultuous mercy of the pit; and cried:—

"Critics, avaunt, for you are fish of prey,

NEW ENGLISH AND FOREIGN PLAYS.

In order to assist managers and others in the selection of pieces for production and adaptation, we are publishing from time to time synopses of likely English and Continental plays, so that dramatic speculators may judge for themselves of the suitability of the plots for their purpose. Authors wishing for this publicity should forward synopses to "Playwrights," care of The Era, from whom further particulars can be obtained.

"PLAYTHINGS OF THE GODS,"
Drama, in Four Acts, by Maurice MacDonald.

Before the play begins, a young man named Arthur Henington has been murdered in Hyde Park. A member of his club, Captain Rickard, with whom the deceased man had been heard to quarrel, is charged with the crime. When the play opens he is under remand. The opening scene is in the study of Charles Pembrook, the Bow-street magistrate, before whom Captain Rickard is to be brought up for the second time on the following day. Pembrook asks his private secretary, Taborn, if he has heard anything new about the case. Taborn hands him a piece of a letter found in Rickard's rooms. It contains only a few words—part of the name of some well-known Bond-street tea-rooms, and an appointment for the following afternoon. Pembrook recognises the handwriting of his wife, who is about twenty-five years younger than himself. Stifling an exclamation, he advises Taborn not to talk about the discovery of the scrap of paper. Taborn replies that the police, who are anxious to get a remand, will certainly not mention it, as it tends to confirm the Captain's defence.

The Captain states that he was supping with a lady at the time of the murder, but refuses to give any details. Left alone, Pembrook, after comparing the writing on the scrap of paper with his wife's letters, throws the whole bundle, including her photograph, into the fire, saying, just before the curtain falls, "Guilty or not guilty, Captain Rickard, you shall hang for this."

The second scene takes place in the Glendower Tea Rooms, Bond-street, on the following day. Robert Caro, a rich moneylender, and Henry Synes, a Stock Exchange speculator, are talking. Caro is in love with Synes's sister, who had been engaged to the murdered man. Caro has already lent Synes considerable sums of money, and the latter wants more. Caro gives him a cheque, but says he will not give any more before he marries Alice Synes, when he undertakes to pay off all her brother's debts, and give him a fresh start in life. Synes promises to do his best to help his friend's cause. Shortly after, Mrs. Pembrook enters. As she never reads the newspapers, and takes no interest in her husband's profession, she has not heard of the arrest of Captain Rickard, with whom she has been carrying on a mild flirtation under an assumed name. Instead of seeing Rickard, as she expected, her husband comes in. He taxes her with infidelity, which she indignantly denies. He confronts her with the piece of the letter, and she confesses to have acted foolishly in flirting with the Captain, who, she says, did not know she was married. Pembrook does not believe his wife, and, as he wishes to avoid a scandal, and prevent her appearing as a witness, he tells her they must separate, she going to her sister-in-law's in Scotland. She agrees, but just before the curtain falls, newsboys are heard calling, "Special edition. Hyde Park murder. Captain Rickard sent for trial." Mrs. Pembrook faints, and her husband calls for assistance.

About two months elapse between the first act and the second, which is entirely taken up with the trial. After examination of witnesses, counsel's speeches, cross-examination of accused, who persists in his uncorroborated alibi, and judge's summing-up, Captain Rickard is found guilty of manslaughter only, and is sentenced to seven years' penal servitude. The Court has just risen, and nearly all the spectators have left, when Mrs. Pembrook tries to force her way in. As she is somewhat incoherent, she is stopped by a policeman, who tells her it is all over. She sees her husband coming out, and begins to speak to him, saying that he knows the truth. To prevent awkward revelations, Pembrook tells the bystanders that his wife is insane, and, putting her into a cab, drives off.

The third act opens in Synes's house. Synes, with the assistance of his valet, Hett, has murdered Arthur Henington, to prevent him from marrying his sister. Hett tries to extort money, but only succeeds in getting a sovereign. Hett then leaves, saying he will go to Australia the day he receives £1,000. Synes tries to persuade his sister to marry Caro, but she refuses, having sworn never to marry anybody until the murderer of her late lover has been discovered. She gives the same answer to Caro, who promises to help her to discover the perpetrator of the crime. The first thing is to find out the name of the private asylum where Mrs. Pembrook has been sent by her husband. Caro tells her this will be an easy matter. Synes speculates on the danger of keeping Hett, and endeavours to conceive some means of getting rid of him. He takes down a book on poisons as the curtain falls.

In the second scene Pembrook receives a visit from John Paddon, his father-in-law, a prosperous retired farmer, who has come to town to see his daughter. After making some excuses, Pembrook tells him that his wife is lying seriously ill in a nursing home. He also persuades Paddon that the doctors have given orders that no one is to see her. The old man is about to go away in despair, when a servant brings in a card, bearing the name of Alice Synes, whom he does not know. He says he cannot receive her, but that if she wants advice she must see him at the Court. The servant goes, but returns with a message that Miss Synes insists on seeing him, as she has something to say about Mrs. Pembrook. On hearing this, Paddon declares he will see Miss Synes himself, and, thinking this may be dangerous, Pembrook agrees to receive the girl. She asks Pembrook's permission to go to the asylum where his wife is confined and speak to her. On hearing this, Paddon accuses his son-in-law of deceiving him. Pembrook tries to explain that he concealed the truth "for the best," but Paddon does not believe him, and announces his intention of visiting his daughter in company with Miss Synes. Pembrook thereupon telephones to Dr. Legrand, owner of a private asylum in Croydon, and instructs him not to allow anybody to see Mrs. Pembrook, but, if possible, to send her away to another institution.

The fourth act begins in the private room of Dr. Legrand's asylum. Pembrook is there, and agrees to pay him another £500 if he gets Mrs. Pembrook safely away. Legrand instructs one of his men to give her a sleeping-draught, and take her away immediately on a motor-car to a colleague's at Haywards Heath. The arrival of Mrs. Pembrook's father, a young lady, and two men, is announced. Pembrook goes into a side room, and Legrand locks the door. Enter John Paddon, Alice Synes, and two detectives, one of whom says he has a warrant to arrest Legrand for illegal detention, and to search the place. Legrand replies that Mrs. Pembrook is no longer there, but just at this moment she rushes in, having managed to free herself from the attendants. Legrand now sees that the game is up, but pleads that he had Pembrook's authority for what he did. The latter, hearing this, shoots himself. He is carried out, and only lives a minute or two. Before dying, he asks his wife to forgive him, as he has forgiven her, and tells her, if she marries again, to marry a man she loves. Some six months pass, during which time Rickard has been liberated and has married Mrs. Pembrook, and the last scene takes place in Synes's house. He again urges his sister to marry Caro, who is expected to dinner. He points out that even if the guilty man has not been found, the innocent one has been set free, and that she ought not to let her idea of vengeance stand in the way of her happiness. She meditates on the swiftness with which happiness can be destroyed, and comes to the conclusion that men are the "playthings of the gods." Caro comes in and pleads his cause, and she gives h'm her hand as a sign of assent. A servant announces Captain and Mrs. Rickard, who have come to thank Alice Synes and say good-bye, as they are leaving for South Africa.

Alice goes out with them, leaving Caro and Synes together. Caro returns Synes all his I.O.U.'s and a considerable sum in addition. Synes says it is the happiest day of his life, and that nothing could upset him now. A servant announces two men, who wish to speak to Mr. Synes in private. He replies that he has no secrets from his future brother-in-law, and asks them what they want. They reply that they have a warrant to arrest him on the charge of murdering Arthur Henington. He denies it, but they tell him that his servant Hett had let slip a few words when drunk, and had now turned King's evidence. The shock is too much for Synes, who goes mad. Caro gives the men some money, and asks them to take care of the unhappy man. Caro wonders how he can break the news to Alice, but reflects that a lunatic cannot be tried, and that she need never know the whole truth. He determines to leave the country as soon as possible, and when on Alice's return he asks her if she will go abroad, she is only too glad to leave a country where her recollections are so painful.

DRURY LANE MEETING.

The ninth annual general meeting of the Theatre Royal, Drury-lane, Limited, was held at the theatre on the 28th ult., when Mr. T. H. Birch (chairman of the company) presided. After having alluded to the great improvement secured by the installation of the new warming and ventilating apparatus, the chairman said that in common with many other theatrical companies throughout the United Kingdom they had felt the unfortunate theatrical depression which had existed during the past twelve months. In addition, owing to the unexpected and lamented death of Sir Henry Irving, they had had to close the theatre during the whole of the spring and summer, because they were unable to carry out the arrangements which had been made with him, and because it was too late to make new arrangements. That, of course, had resulted in a considerable increase of unproductive expenses, but notwithstanding they had been enabled once more to bring the theatre into the list of dividend-paying enterprises. The improvement of the neighbourhood all round the theatre, and the increased means of access to it by tubes, motor omnibuses, and electric trams must, he thought, surely tend to the prosperity of the company. The touring of their pantomime in America had during the last two years been unprofitable, and the board had, therefore, decided to discontinue that portion of their enterprise for the time being. They had arranged for the production of last year's successful pantomime, Cinderella, in Paris, and they believed it would prove a source of additional revenue to the company. The Prodigal Son was touring in the provinces with fairly satisfactory results.

Mr. Arthur Collins, the managing-director, who on rising to second the motion for the adoption of the report was received with enthusiasm, said that his prophecy of last year had been realised, and their directors had managed to steer the ship out of troubled waters into the calm harbour of a dividend-paying port. A great blow, he continued, had befallen them, as well as the whole of the theatrical world, by the death of Sir Henry Irving. They had looked forward to Sir Henry appearing at that theatre every spring, and making it his permanent London home, and had actually made arrangements for him to appear there during the spring that has just passed. Unhappily, his death destroyed all hopes in that respect, and it was then too late to make any other arrangements for the spring, and so the theatre had to remain empty. He was sure, however, that he was only echoing the voice of all in saying that, whilst they deplored a personal loss in so good a friend and eminent an actor as Sir Henry Irving, they recognised there had been a much greater loss to the whole theatrical world—indeed, he might say, to the world at large. Referring to The Bondman, Mr. Collins alluded to his experiences at Vesuvius and in the Sicily sulphur mines in search of realism, and announced that it was intended to produce the play in America. The next pantomime would be based on the story of "Sinbad the Sailor." He would do his utmost to keep up the same high standard as last year, and to make the production, if possible, more attractive, more refined, and more amusing. The cast would include Miss Queenie Leighton, Miss De Sousa, and Messrs. Harry Randall, Harry Fragson, and Walter Passmore, together with several newcomers.

In reply to a shareholder, the chairman said the remuneration of the directors was £900, they having voluntarily given up a considerable amount to which they were entitled under the articles of association, and they received no additional remuneration whatever until after the shareholders had been paid a dividend of 10 per cent., and then they received considerably less than the amount to which they were entitled under the original articles of association.

The report was eventually adopted, and a 5 per cent. dividend was declared, free of income-tax, on the paid-up capital.

Lord George Loftus was re-elected a director of the company.

BROADWAY THEATRE.
On Monday, Oct. 1,
the Musical Pantomime Comedy, entitled
"THE SWISS EXPRESS."

Messrs. C. and F. Renad are appearing here this week in their screamingly funny comedy, which is capitally interpreted by their excellent company, which includes the Edene quartette of vocalists and dancers. The Renad Brothers are a host in themselves, and as Dr. Gull's eccentric servants keep the audience in a continual state of uproarious merriment. Mr. Johnny McElroy is exceedingly funny as Dr. Gull; Mr. George Martin is excellent as Rob Rollingstone; Mr. Alec Wylie is very good as Dudley Green. Mr. C. Grey is successful as Septimus Squeeze; Mr. Harwood Cooper scores as Jack Gadabout and Admiral Bombshell. Other parts are well played by Messrs. Cecil Barrett, F. H. Strachan, Gilbert N. Oakes, Oliver Russell, A. Johnson, E. Cooke, G. Mason, and Leloire. Miss Dora Moorhouse is capital as Mrs. Septimus Squeeze; and Miss Ida Ernest is a charming Virginia.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

A large audience in the Brighton West Pier Theatre gave a very hearty reception to this comedy on Monday evening, when it was performed for the first time on any stage by Mr. Norman V. Norman and company. The play is an episode in the life of the "Old Pretender," suggested by Thackeray's "Esmond." The incidents of the story are ably presented by the author, whose dialogue, particularly in the last act, reaches a high standard of literary merit, and the striking dramatic situations are admirably conceived. The central figure is the Chevalier de St. George, who, by his amorous escapades, discounts all the efforts made by his supporters to secure him the crown of England on the death of the last monarch of the Stuart line of Sovereigns. The first scene of the play is laid in Lady Castlewood's town house in Kensington, where preparations are being made by the Dowager Lady Castlewood, Francis Lord Castlewood, Colonel Harry Esmond, and his cousin Beatrix Esmond for the reception of the Old Pretender. The "King," as his friends term him, arrives, and it is soon evident that he is smitten by the personal charms of Beatrix, who, however, is engaged to be married to Colonel Harry Esmond. A repast is prepared for the royal visitor, and the Old Pretender, who insists on Beatrix sitting next to him at the table, partakes too freely of brandy, and, after dozing in his chair, wakes up to find he is alone in the room. Fidela, a French servant, appears upon the scene; the Chevalier flirts with her and kisses her. They are interrupted by Fidela's husband, Lockwood (Esmond's servant), and the amorous Chevalier explains the situation by describing his efforts to take a green fly out of Fidela's eye. In honour of their guest, who is known to the servants as Master Harry, the company indulge in a dance and blind-man's-buff; but the Chevalier's conduct, it is clear, has excited the jealousy of Harry Esmond and Lockwood.

In the second act, in a room in Lady Castlewood's house, the Chevalier again angers Lockwood by his attentions to Fidela, and at the same time he pleads with Lady Castlewood that he may be permitted to bid farewell to Beatrix, whom the Dowager Lady is sending away from home to escape the Chevalier's amorous advances. In a spirited scene the Chevalier, on Beatrix entering the room, boldly declares his love for that young lady. Beatrix, however, feels insulted when her admirer kisses her, and she throws to the ground a red rose the Chevalier had asked her to wear if she favoured his suit. On the retirement of the Chevalier, Beatrix is confronted by her lover, Harry Esmond, and she realises that all her friends condemn her for her conduct. She returns Harry her engaged ring, and is about to start for Castlewood, in Kent, when the Bishop of Rochester appears upon the scene and enquires for the Old Pretender, feeling that the latter must leave in furtherance of his claim to the crown, as Queen Anne is sinking. The act closes with Beatrix still at variance with her lover, and leaving the room once more wearing the Chevalier's red rose.

In the third act, in a room at Castlewood, in Kent, we see Fidela and Beatrix, and find that both have realised the wayward character of the amorous Chevalier. Beatrix tramples the red rose under her foot. The Chevalier arrives at Castlewood, and vainly pleads with Beatrix to favour his suit. Some exciting incidents follow. Fidela, in an impassioned scene, shows plainly she considers she has been insulted by the Chevalier. Harry Esmond and the Chevalier cross swords, and the former is worsted; but ultimately Harry is convinced by the Chevalier that Beatrix is innocent of all charges laid against her, and the young lovers become reconciled.

The High Sheriff of Kent arrives, and announces that George of Hanover has been proclaimed King, and has pardoned all the conspirators against the throne with the exception of the Old Pretender. The Chevalier leaves the room disguised as a priest, but shortly returns and throws off his disguise, but ultimately escapes being shot by the armed intervention of his supporters, who keep the Sheriff's soldiers at bay while the Old Pretender gladly rushes from the scene.

Mr. Norman V. Norman may be warmly and deservedly congratulated upon his masterly enactment of the Chevalier de St. George. He gave his lines with distinct elocutionary skill and emphasis, and displayed vigorous and convincing acting, marked by artistic restraint. In his lighter moods, when flirting with Fidela, his comedy was excellent; but he fairly excelled himself in the last act during the stirring scene with Beatrix. Miss Beatrice Wilson gave a charming portrayal of Beatrix Esmond. Her acting was graceful and refined, and she was especially impressive in her scenes with the jealous Harry Esmond and in the trying interview with the irrepressible Chevalier in the last act. Mr. Dennis Cleugh as Colonel Harry Esmond was somewhat hesitating in the first act, but as the play proceeded he showed great skill in his representation of the difficult character. Mr. Norman Leslie made a dignified and courtly Francis Lord Castlewood; Mr. Brember Wills was well suited as the suspicious and vengeful Lockwood; while Miss Sybil Ruskin submitted fine contrasts of light comedy and dramatic force in her impersonation of Fidela. Miss Hilda Gregory was well suited as the Dowager Lady Castlewood; Mr. Kenneth Bruce acquitted himself admirably as Bishop Atterbury; Mr. Sam Wilkinson made the most of his opportunities as the High Sheriff of Kent; Miss Betty Stannard was well placed as Mrs. Ridgway; while Mr. S. Greenley as the Sub-Sheriff, Mr. W. Roberts Marshall as Capt. Jacks, Mr. Howard Brenan as Lord Norwood, and Mr. Philip Pimpernal as Lord Dalton rendered satisfactory support.

ON Wednesday, the 3rd, Mr. J. D. Hunter took his twenty-seventh annual benefit at the Hastings Pier Pavilion, under the patronage of Mr. Harvey Du Crow, M.P., the Mayor, and many of the aristocratic residents. On this occasion the programme was augmented by Miss Marie Dainton, comedienne; Max Darewski, the boy composer; Mr. Thornley Dodge, society entertainer; and the Trial scene from "Pickwick" by members of Mr. Hunter's company.

LITTLE DOT MOSS became such a favourite last week at the Theatre Royal, Leeds, that the manager, Mr. R. E. Leston, awarded her a benefit on Friday night, Sept. 28, when a crowded house proved the popularity of this talented and versatile little artist, who was presented with a large basket of roses from Mr. Liston, with good wishes, also boxes of chocolates from other admirers.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS LILLIAN MURRAY.

Miss Lillian Murray (Mrs. T. B. Brabazon) commenced her professional career under the guidance of the late "Daddy" Bruce, who was so long associated with the Royal Court Theatre, Liverpool. She played her first part (Barbara Hare in East Lynne) at the Theatre Royal, Bath, under the management of the late Mr. Fred Neebe. She then went to Exeter with Mr. Neebe, where she fulfilled a pantomime engagement. Her next move was to town, where, under Messrs. Hollingshead and Shine, she was engaged to understudy a part in the burlesque opera Dick Whittington at the Globe Theatre. A tour with Mr. Willie Edouin followed. She played a small part—combined with understudy—in his burlesque The Babes, or, Whines from the Wood. At the end of this tour Miss Murray returned to Messrs. Hollingshead and Shine's management, small part and understudy; but by this time she began to feel tired of waiting for prominent parts, so accepted an offer to play Dora in Fun on the Bristol on tour. She was four months with this piece, then she again joined Mr. Hollingshead for his Christmas pantomime at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester, but, to her dismay, she found her part consisted of two lines, which were spoken from a jar (the pantomime was The Forty Thieves). An engagement with Messrs. Howard and Wyndham followed. With these gentlemen she played the French officer (De Bracy) in the burlesque of Ivanhoe.

Since then Miss Murray has appeared in several character parts in touring pantomimes, but her engagements have been principally in comedy and drama. Her favourite parts are old women, although in stock Miss Murray has done everything from "My Lord, the carriage waits," to lead. She has had several stock seasons, amongst them being Newcastle (Messrs. Howard and Wyndham), Stockton-on-Tees (Mr. Lloyd Clarance), Leith (Mr. Julian Malvern), Glasgow (Messrs. Morell and Mouillot), &c.; also three tours playing Clarissa Champneys in Our Boys with Mr. Charles Harrington; two tours with the Cowper-Calvert Repertoire Company, playing old women. Her favourite part in the repertoire was Actea in Ingomar.

During the past six years Miss Murray has been eight months each year with Mr. Rushbury's companies, playing the following parts:—Biddy Maloney, Alone in London; Cornelia Carlyle, East Lynne; Peggy Mahoney, The Driver's Luck; Biddy Roonan, The Shadows of a Great City; Betty Black, The Drama of Life; Bet Hundle, Her One Great Sin; Mrs. Buzzard, In the Ranks; &c. On two occasions, during the summer months, Mr. Rushbury organised a répertoire company to visit the Hebrides, on these trips combining business with pleasure, and the members of the company enjoying themselves immensely. Miss Murray has also had two summer tours with Messrs. Marris and Bickford, playing Miss Ainslie in Somebody's Sweetheart. She has recently appeared as Sal Perkins in The Village Blacksmith.

MR. WILLIAM LUGG.

Mr. William Lugg's first appearance on the stage was at the Savoy Theatre, in Gilbert and Sullivan opera, in January, 1884. He played Synthius in Princess Ida and the Usher in the revival of Trial by Jury, but having contracted a complication of throat disorders had to give up singing, and it was only through the great skill and patience of Dr. A. W. Orwin, under whose treatment he remained for many years, that his voice recovered. He went straight from the Savoy to the old Court Theatre, under the management of John Clayton and Arthur Cecil, in March, 1885, and played in a series of comedies by A. W. Pinero, in company with such artists as Mrs. John Wood, Miss Marion Terry, William Macintosh, Fred Kerr, Albert Chevalier, Edmond Maurice, John Clayton, and Arthur Cecil. He appeared as Sergeant Lugg in The Magistrate; the Fireman in The Schoolmistress; and the Groom in Dandy Dick.

The old Court being pulled down, Dandy Dick was transferred to Toole's Theatre in August, 1887. About this time he also played a number of parts with the dramatic students—Croaker in The Good-natured Man; Costard, Love's Labour's Lost; Tom Sutherland, The Favourite of Fortune; Father Oliver, The Housekeeper; &c. In March, 1888, he opened a season with Mr. Yorke Stephens at the Olympic Theatre, and played Harry in Good For Nothing, Tosser in The Area Belle, and the Waiter in Christina. In the following June he was at the Strand with Mr. Willie Edouin, and appeared as Sir Geoffrey in Run Wild, the Butcher in Kleptomania, and also took part in the burlesque Aladdin.

From the Strand Mr. Lugg went to the New Court, under the management of Messrs. John Wood and Arthur Chudleigh, and played Bouncer in the operetta Cox and Box, which ran for five months. In May, 1889, he opened an engagement with the Messrs. Gatti, at the Grand, Islington, representing Uncle Bob in The Silver Falls. After appearing at the halls for a time with H. D. Burton in a sketch, The Burglar, he went, in the August of the same year, to the Comedy Theatre, and played the Major in Æsop's Fables; Sir Percy Wagstaff, Pink Dominos; the Irish innkeeper, Queen's Counsel; Colonel Capstick, The Clockmaker's Hat; the father in One Summer's Night; the Soldier in the operetta Penelope, by Edward Solomon; the Steward in the operetta Domestic Economy, also by Edward Solomon. He was at the Strand again in 1890 with Mr. Willie Edouin, appearing principally in one-act plays, and acting also as understudy to Mr. Edouin, in which capacity he played for a fortnight Mr. Edouin's famous part of Nathaniel Glover in Our Flat, and Captain Medway in Turned Up. He also played Sir Giles Wapshot in Boys Will Be Boys; Sir George Grantley, Daggers Drawn; Bedford Roe, Back in Five Minutes; and the Detective in Private Inquiry. In the autumn of 1891 Mr. Lugg was engaged for the season at Drury Lane, where he appeared as Captain Vernon in A Sailor's Knot.

After several scattered engagements, Mr. Lugg went to America in August, 1894, with Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, and remained with them three years. Amongst other parts he played the Colonel in The Queen's Shilling; Sir John Ingram, A Scrap of Paper; the Duke, Clancarty; and Bechelin, The Ironmaster. Then, engaged by Mr. Oscar Barrett, he represented the Baron in the pantomime of Cinderella. Under the same management he, in 1898, appeared in Mr. Fred Bowyer's musical comedy The White Blackbird. Next he went to the Lyceum with Mr. Forbes-Robertson to play Duncan in Macbeth and Polonius in Hamlet.

In the spring of 1899 he accompanied Miss Kate Phillips on tour in the name part of His Excellency the Governor. The following autumn Mr. Lugg joined Sir Henry Irving, as a member of whose company he played many parts. When Sir Henry was commanded to appear before His Majesty at Sandringham in November, 1902, Mr. Lugg had the honour, as the great actor's understudy, to play Shylock with the company in Belfast. Last spring he returned to musical comedy with Mr. Seymour Hicks, at his new theatre, the Aldwych.

Mr. Lugg's record also includes appearances in pantomimes at the Crystal Palace, the Lyceum, and the Garrick, and a season with the German Reeds in a piece entitled Dan'l's Delight.

Scrivener. She soon, however, gave this up for the stage. Miss Ellen Terry, who heard her recite, strongly advised her to take this step. Miss Rind was fortunate enough to be under Miss Rosina Filippi for some time. Her first appearance was in a small part of Miss Filippi's adaptation from Pride and Prejudice entitled The Bennetts, produced at a matinée at the Court Theatre about four years ago. Soon after this she was engaged by Miss Lilian Herries for her repertory tour of modern plays. With her Miss Rind enacted Louise (Frou-Frou), Mildred (A Fool's Paradise), Lucy (Dream Faces), Nanine (Camille), Irene (The Profligate), &c. This was followed by a stock season at Lowestoft, run by Mr. Walter Maxwell and Mr. Herbert Greville. Here Miss Rind played the title-rôle in Sweet Lavender, Lucy in The Streets of London, and Sam in The Ticket-of-Leave Man.

Miss Rind has but recently left Mr. Norman V. Norman, whom she was with two years. She played with him, among other parts Lady Ernstone (Miss Eva Moore's part) in My Lady Virtue, by H. V. Esmond, Anne in A Lady of Quality, the juvenile in Nell Gwyn, Mme. de Cocheforêt in Under the Red Robe, Louise in A Scrap of Paper, Mrs. Mildmay in Still Waters, Juliet in the balcony scene, which was put up as a curtain raiser to David Garrick, Lazarillo in Don Cæsar de Bazan, and several other parts. On May 29, 1905, Miss Rind enacted Beatrice in the play of that name produced at a special matinée at the Court by Miss Rosina Filippi. The play was written round the story of Dante and Beatrice, as told in the "Vita Nuova." Mr. Lewis Casson was the Dante. Miss Rind's favourite parts are Lady Ernstone in My Lady Virtue and Anne in A Lady of Quality, both being of an emotional order. The photograph represents Miss Rind as Mme. de Cocheforêt in Under the Red Robe.

MR. ORLANDO BARNETT.

Mr. Orlando Barnett began his theatrical career under the auspices of Mr. Beerbohm Tree by "walking on" in A Man's Shadow when it was first produced at the Haymarket in Sept., 1889. The following year he went on tour with the piece under Mr. Horace Lingard's management, playing the part of Jean Ricordot. This was followed by two tours as Olivier Deschamps in Esther Sandraz, and three tours with Mr. Hermann Vezin, playing Gratiano, Roderigo, Osric, &c. After this Mr. Barnett played several special engagements as De Haas in On 'Change, with Miss Emilie Grattan; and Bobby Buttons in The New Wing and Jimmy in Nita's First under the management of Mr. St. John Denton.

Mr. Barnett had several very interesting engagements with the old Independent Theatre under Mr. Grein, making a distinct success as Cyril Vane, the art critic, in Dr. Todhunter's remarkable play The Black Cat. As Knut Brovik in The Jerry Builder, a clever skit on Ibsen's Master Builder, by Mrs. Hugh (now Lady) Bell, he had the honour of being associated with Miss Violet Vanbrugh and Mr. James Welch. He also had the privilege of playing Ragnar Brovik in the real Master Builder and George Tesman in Hedda Gabler with Miss Elizabeth Robins.

For the production of Arms and the Man at the Avenue, the first of Mr. Bernard Shaw's plays to achieve a London run, Mr. Barnett considered himself very lucky so early in his career to be selected by Miss Florence Farr to create the part of Nicola, the Bulgarian servant, which he played so satisfactorily as to lead to several other excellent engagements, including the offer to support Miss Robins in Hedda Gabler. Under Miss Farr's management he also played in The Land of Heart's Desire, by W. B. Yeats, at the Avenue, and in The Shadowy Waters, by the same author, more recently at the Court Theatre, where, too, he appeared in Messrs. Barker and Housman's delightful musical phantasy, Prunella, or, Love in a Dutch Garden, produced at Christmas, 1904.

His accumulated experience in the more everyday plays includes such widely different parts as Talbot Champneys, Eccles, and Benjamin Goldfinch, in all of which he was particularly successful. Mr. Barnett has recently added to his long list of Shakespearean parts by playing Benedick for Mr. Poel, of the Elizabethan Stage Society, and in Miss Bessie's open-air company. During several occasions, he has played at different times Clown, Orsino, Toby, Aguecheek, and Sebastian in Twelfth Night; Antipholus of Syracuse and Duke of Ephesus in A Comedy of Errors; and Orlando and Touchstone in As You Like It. In the production of The Conqueror at the Scala Theatre on Sept. 23, 1905, Mr. Barnett did exceedingly well in the small part of Cuthbert.

MISS SYLVIA MORRIS.

Miss Sylvia Morris began at the age of four years to recite; in fact, she used to recite before she was able to read. She made her first public appearance when she was six, and from that time until she was nine was constantly reciting at various charity concerts. It was while she was appearing at one of these concerts that a lady heard her, and advised her mother to let her take it up professionally. Mrs. Walter Abrahams, for that was the lady's name, got Miss Morris her first engagement at the People's Palace, London. After that she used to appear at four or five concerts a week; sometimes she was engaged to give the entire entertainment, and then she used to do scenes from Romeo and Juliet, Macbeth, Hamlet, The School for Scandal, and other plays, besides her recitations. She also introduced pieces with music, to which she generally played her own accompaniments; but on one occasion she was so taken up with the lines that she forgot all about the quets best, and was always very curious to know what was going on, for, of course, the artists were not allowed in the room during the toasts.

When Miss Morris was twelve she was placed under Mrs. John Billington, with whom she studied for some time. She played scenes with Mrs. Billington several times in public—a fact of which she is still very proud. The one she liked best was the comedy scene from Romeo and Juliet. She studied many parts with Mrs. Billington, music. She used to like the Freemasons' ban-Shakespearean and modern, and when sixteen she got her first theatrical engagement. She stayed for two years under one management, playing many parts, from chambermaid to juvenile lead. Then Mr. Henry Dundas engaged her for Mary Vine in The Price of Peace, and she also played the ingénue part in his production of Shadowed Lives. Then followed Ismalia Meleda in Secrets, Lucy McCullum in Our Flat, Lady Teazle in The School for Scandal, Laura in The Blind Witness, juvenile lead in a farce with Miss Ada Blanche, the Fairy Godmother in Mr. Robert Courtneidge's Cinderella pantomime, and Mabel Borinski in M. Auguste Van Biene's Broken Melody company. Miss Morris has a preference for emotional parts, and confesses that her one great ambition is to play Juliet.

GENESIUS,

AND THE GENESIUS CLUB.

The Genesius Club, which was founded by Messrs. Harry Nicholls, W. J. Holloway, W. Lestocq, A. E. Bishop, the late F. H. Macklin, and Howard Reynolds, opened its session at Wycombe Hall, Hammersmith-road, on the 30th ult. The meeting was for the purpose of electing the executive for the ensuing year. There were present Messrs. W. Lestocq, Harry Nicholls, W. H. Marler, H. G. Levy, J. Powell, Richard Green, C. T. Coggin, Courtenay Peach, Louis Schnieder, G. A. Keen, N. T. Ridille, E. C. Cartwright, E. Halford, M. Whittenburg, T. W. Potter, W. S. Lyon, G. A. Lansdown, J. Bavin, T. W. Rumble, H. Walker, Gerald Maxwell, J. W. Wynn, J. M. Trytel, A. H. Snow, H. Chenery, W. G. Danby, H. T. Town, and W. G. Harvey. Mr. James W. Matthews was unanimously elected preceptor, Mr. Wolfe S. Lyon, deputy preceptor. Mr. Harry Nicholls, retiring treasurer, and Mr. William H. Marler, retiring secretary, were again re-elected to the positions which they have occupied in the club for many years past. Messrs. W. Lestocq, A. H. P. Snow, and Clarence T. Coggin, were re-elected to the committee. It may prove of interest to the majority of our readers to know something about the origin of the club, and of St. Genesius, the patron saint of the drama, after whom the club is named.

At the time of the foundation of this club for Masonic instruction the question of the name by which it was to be known was much discussed, and eventually it was decided by the founders that, as it was founded by actors principally to meet the exigencies of their professional avocation, it should have some distinctive name in connection with the actor's art.

St. Genesius, it was known, was a comedian and a martyr, therefore it was decided that for such a club as was intended to be founded, the name of this comedian and Christian martyr should be used as its title. In view of this it has been thought well for the information of the brethren becoming members of the club that the story of his martyrdom should be told as a preface in the book of bye-laws.

Down the ages for 1300 years has rolled the name of Genesius, the patron saint of the drama. The actor can boast, if boasting were necessary, that he is a descendant of Genesius, a noble defender of the Christian faith. In the year A.D. 285 the Emperor Diocletian was coming to Rome, and he was to be received with great rejoicing and festivities. Many entertainments of various kinds were arranged in his honour and for his amusement, but the crowning entertainment of all was prepared for him in a comedy to be enacted in his presence, and before his Court, and all the principal men of rank and position in Rome, by the favourite players of the time. This play, it was arranged, should represent the ceremonies of Christian baptism after conversion, and to be rendered so as to pander to popular feeling at the time, and should not fail to divert the assembly who held this religion in the utmost contempt and derision. For the part of the man who was to represent the convert to Christianity, and to go through the form of baptism in public, and then afterwards under examination to renounce the faith, and thereby bring it into ridicule, the favourite actor or mummer of the time—one Genesius—was selected to perform the principal part.

Genesius, the better to perform his part and to amuse the assembly, made himself acquainted with many things concerning the Christian faith and rites; and, therefore, to announce his conversion, stepped forward on to the stage and addressed the Emperor and assembled multitude thus:—"I am resolved to die in the Christian faith, that God may receive me on the day of my death as one who seeks his salvation by flying from idolatry and superstition." Then a priest and exorcist was called to him, and said, "Well, my child, why did you send for me?" Genesius replied most seriously, "Because I desire to receive the peace of Jesus Christ and to be born again, that I may be delivered from my sins."

Then the players proceeded to go through the whole ceremony of Christian baptism with him, and he most earnestly and seriously answered all the interrogatories put to him; then, finally being baptised, as was the custom, he was clothed in a white garment. After this, other players, habited like soldiers, to carry on the jest seized him, and rudely thrust him before the Emperor to be examined as the martyrs were wont to be. Of course, Genesius was expected to break down in the examination, and to renounce his faith, when, suddenly, to the amazement and consternation of all, standing upon the stage, he openly and seriously declared himself in these words: "Hear, O Emperor, and all ye who are here present, officers of the army, philosophers, senators, and people, what I am going to say. I never yet so much as heard the name of Christian but I was struck with horror, and I detested my very relations because they professed that religion. I informed myself exactly concerning its rites and mysteries only that I might the more heartily despise it, and inspire you with the utmost contempt for it also. But whilst I was being washed with the water and examined, I had no sooner answered sincerely that I believed than I saw a company of bright angels over my head, who recited out of a book all the sins I had committed from my childhood, and, having afterwards plunged the book into the water which had been poured over me in your presence, they showed me the book whiter than snow. Wherefore, I advise you, O Great and Mighty Emperor, and all ye people here present, who have ridiculed these mysteries, to believe with me that Jesus Christ is the true Lord, and that he is the Light and Truth, and that it is only through Him you can obtain forgiveness for your sins."

The Emperor Diocletian was so enraged at these words that he ordered him immediately to be beaten with clubs, and then handed over to Plautian, the Prefect of the Prætorium, that he might compel Genesius to recant and sacrifice his faith. He was then put on the rack, his flesh torn with iron hooks, and also burnt with torches. He endured these torments with constancy, and cried out during his agony, "There is no other Lord of the Universe whom I adore; Him will I serve. There is no King but Christ, for whom I will be killed a thousand times: for as you cannot take Him out of my mouth, neither can you tear Him from my heart," and so continued proclaiming his faith, till at length his head was struck off.

A well-known historian has written that "The baptism which Genesius received on the stage was no more than a representation of that sacrament for want of serious intention in performing the Christian rites, but Genesius was baptised in desire with true contrition, and also in his own blood."

He suffered his martyrdom on Aug. 26, A.D. 285, and a church at Rome was dedicated to his honour, which was afterwards restored and beautified by Pope Gregory III. in A.D. 741.

The Romans who came to laugh at the comedy which was to be enacted at the expense of the hated Christian religion, left the theatre with the recollection of the ghastly sight of that battered, bleeding, and headless body of their favourite actor, who had exchanged the "cap and bells" for the immortal martyr's crown.

MR. EDITOR,—Sir,—Your correspondent for Sheffield reported me last week in his notice of the Central Palace. I was playing at the Theatre Royal, York, at the time.—Yours truly, THE ORIGINAL KYOTO.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

the Play, by Sir A. Conan Doyle, entitled
"BRIGADIER GERARD."

Brigadier Gerard, with its military flavour and exciting incidents, was greeted with much fervour by a capital house on Monday, and throughout the week the attendances have been decidedly good. The management is to be congratulated on the effective staging of the piece and the excellent company formed by Mr. Waller, including Mr. Loring Fernie and Miss Maud Hoffman, who work hard and make the very most of the material at their disposal. The central figure is Mr. Fernie, whose Gerard is exceptionally fine. He grasps each point with dramatic skill, and at the conclusion receives quite an ovation, which must be very gratifying to him. The Comtesse of Miss Maud Hoffman cannot be over-praised, and although she only undertook the part for the first time on Monday, it may at once be recorded that her success was complete. Mr. George Mallett made a capital Talleyrand, his elocutionary powers being of much service in the part. Mr. Cecil Wynne handles the rôle of General de Caulaincourt with ability; and Messrs. J. Henry Twyford and Edwin Bennett are well placed as Major Brow and Major Olivier. Mr. Frank Powell is all that can be desired as Col. Guerin; and Mr. Penn Hamilton (M. D'Albert), Mr. James Crowe (M. Bassompierre), and Mr. Reginald Mason (Pierre) deserve commendation for their excellent assumptions. Mr. Arthur Somers presents a capital portrait of the man of iron will, the Emperor Napoleon, although he is seen to greater advantage in the part of Timothy Filby in the curtain-raiser referred to below. Miss Gertrude Beattie is an admirable Agnes. Mr. Arthur Bowyer, in addition to successfully undertaking the part of Papilette, makes a notable feature of the stage-management, and is to be congratulated on his work. Brigadier Gerard is preceded by a charming one-act play, entitled The Borrowed Uncle, in which Messrs. Arthur Somers, A. Claremont, Humphrey Warden, and Miss Gertrude Beattie successfully take part. The proprietors of the Marlborough have a thoughtful and painstaking business-manager in Mr. Murray Heriot, who was the recipient of a presentation from Mr. and Mrs. Kendal last week on the termination of their engagement. Good service is also rendered by the Marlborough orchestra under the direction of Mr. Chas. Elcock.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Oct. 1,
the Comedy, with music by Paul Rubens, entitled
"MR. POPPLE (OF IPPLETON)."

Excellent fun is furnished by Mr. Rubens in his latest comedy, and the vast audience at the King's on Monday night were regaled to their hearts' content by the many good things provided by Mr. Popple and his friends. The fact that Mr. Charles Macdona's company included two such clever artists as Mr. G. P. Huntley and Miss Millie Legarde was sufficient guarantee to satisfy the most fastidious playgoer, and the comedy was received with continuous and genuine laughter. Mr. G. P. Huntley as Mr. Popple was in splendid form, and everything he said and did caused roars of laughter. His delightfully innocent and bucolic manner was highly effective, and the whole performance proved Mr. Huntley well worthy of the reputation he has achieved. As Norman Popple, Mr. Basil S. Foster was exceedingly good as both actor and singer. The George Hennay and Henry Goring of Messrs. Sidney Young and James Stevenson were very droll portraitures, and Mr. Arthur Grover as Jacques Kenyon displayed talent. Lord Downe and Pat Fenton were capitally played by Mr. Sydney Courtney and Mr. R. B. Hunter. The servant, Platt, found an able representative in Mr. Charles M. Daly. It goes without saying that Miss Millie Legarde made an instantaneous success as La Bolero—style, acting, and singing were alike admirable. Miss Eva Kelly was a general favourite as Violet Brinton, and Louise, the maid, was represented by Miss Nellie Hodson with much charm, the song and chorus with the District Messenger boys deserving and receiving much praise. Miss Kate Forster and Miss Ella Daincourt played Mrs. Doring and Mrs. Hennay very effectively. The chorus was a really live one, and the orchestra ably responded to the bâton of Mr. Julius Butt. Messrs. Harker and Hicks were responsible for the artistic scenery provided.

CORONET THEATRE.

"THE GIRL BEHIND THE COUNTER."

The enterprise of Mr. Frank Curzon in sending the whole of the company from Wyndham's Theatre on tour with this successful musical comedy seems likely to meet with its due measure of success. On Monday night The Girl Behind the Counter welcomed kind friends in front, and there was such a rush of customers, as might be expected at a rummage sale, or some such special event in shop-keeping annals, resulting in a bumper house. The piece is exquisitely mounted and dressed, and a bevy of beauty sets off the lovely dresses to perfection. Miss Isabel Jay sings charmingly the little ballad, "Life is what you make it," and her whole rendition of the part of Winnie Willoughby is replete with grace, refinement, and melody. Mr. J. F. McArdle is a host in himself, and his droll rendering of the "Sir Walter Raleigh" skit, and the song that follows, is worth travelling miles to hear. Throughout the piece the part of General Sir Wilkie Willoughby, quite safe in his hands, dominates the scene. Another fine bit of character acting is Mr. George Barrett's waiter at the Baron's Court Exhibition, played on intensely diverting low comedy lines. Mr. Hayden Coffin proves that he has lost none of his skill as a singer and actor in such parts as that of Charles Chetwynd, though, despite his protestation to the contrary, he looks much more at home in the Court costume of the second act than as the gold-digger in the first act. Mr. G. Davy Burnaby causes considerable amusement by his clever assumption of invertebrate aristocracy, yclept Viscount Gushington; and Mr. Lionel Victor distinctly scores as the office-boy, Adolphus Dudd. Miss Kathleen Courtney is pretty and engaging as Susie, cashier at the Maison Duval, and her "Kate Greenaway" song and dance with Mr. Victor is very pretty and effective. Miss Helen Rose is a smart and winsome Ninette, head of the millinery department. Miss Violet Englefield looks very handsome as Erica Mostyn, manageress of the Maison Duval, and her capital song, "The Vicar's eldest daughter," is well received. Others deserving of mention in a long cast are Mr. A. E. E. Edwardes, who does yeoman's service in the "Sir Walter Raleigh" song; Miss Violet Crossley as Lady Willoughby; Mr. Fred Allandale, excellent as the proprietor of the Maison Duval; and Mr. Ernest W. Laceby as Rudolf, the commissionaire. Mr. J. Herbert Jay is general-manager, with Mr. E. F. Bradley as acting-manager, and Mr. Tom Mowbray as stage ditto.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Oct. 1,
the Comic Opera, entitled
"THE GEISHA."

Although at this time of day there can be few among the theatre-loving public who have not seen The Geisha at least a couple of times, it has again been abundantly proved by Mr. Mouillot's chief company that, adequately mounted and capably handled, this favourite comic opera has lost none of its power of drawing good audiences and of entertaining them to the full. The place of honour must unhesitatingly be given to Miss Louie Collier, whose clever acting and, above all, her delightful singing, place her at once in the front rank of the talented artists who have at various times played O Mimosa San. When it is stated that Miss Collier is the fortunate possessor of a soprano voice of unusual power and sweetness, and that she is perfectly skilled in the management of it, it will be readily understood that the hearty encores with which such old favourites as "The Jewel of Asia" were received were fully warranted. Miss Florrie Saunders made a charmingly dainty Molly Seymour, singing nicely and dancing very gracefully. A spirited interpretation of the French mousmé came from Miss Violet Kenyon, who threw herself wholeheartedly into her work, and was soon a favourite. Miss Aubrey Ashton made a stately Lady Constance, and spoke her lines with distinction; Mr. Cyril Thompson was responsible for a sterling impersonation of Reginald Fairfax, his fine, resonant voice being heard to good effect in several well-known numbers; Mr. Lionel Braham was an excellent Marquis Imari, his clumsy movements and elephantine methods of love-making being very amusing; Mr. S. Lockeridge distinguished himself as Dick Cunningham; and Mr. J. Mansell Stringer sang well as Captain Katana. Last, but by no means least, must be mentioned the exceedingly clever Wun Hi of Mr. Edward Carlton.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 1,
the Farce, in Three Acts, adapted from the German, entitled
"ARE YOU A MASON?"

A flourishing state of affairs exists at the Crystal Palace Theatre, now that Mr. J. Bannister Howard has taken over the reins of management, and a well-filled house on Monday gave evidence that residents in the neighbourhood are persevering in their determination to support the plucky enterprise. A succession of excellent attractions has been included in the season's bookings, and this week Mr. Charles Macdona's chief company is appearing in Are You a Mason?—the farce which had such a brilliant career at the Shaftesbury, where it was produced just five years ago. The piece retains all its pungent flavour, and its funny dialogue and situations appealed freshly to a Crystal Palace audience, who laughed and applauded throughout the evening, the more spicy features of the piece securing their best applause. The members of the company are earnest and talented, and each one speaks with commendable distinctness. Mr. Ernest Cossart has a large share in the laughter which is aroused, his appearance in petticoats as the pretended Fanchon being very realistic, while his affectation of feminine airs and graces is replete with many ingenious touches. The embarrassments of his friend, Frank Perry, are effectively borne by Mr. Howard L. Tracy, and, though he is inclined to be over-emphatic, he quite realises the spirit of a difficult part, and maintains it cleverly to the end. Mrs. Perry, Frank's trusting wife, has a prepossessing representative in Miss Mabel Younge, who has a voice of musical intonation, and exhibits a charming petulance which well befits the situation. Miss Adelaide Grace is a veritable "dragon" as the strong-minded Mrs. Caroline Bloodgood, every word and action being instinct with severity and exaggerated self-esteem. Her daughter Lulu is played in engaging manner by Miss Babs Stuart, who is a winsome exponent of the part, speaking her lines ingenuously. A dainty impersonation of her sister Lulu is also given by Miss Madge Merrique, a young actress whose light comedy gifts are evident even in so comparatively small a part. An opportunity for the exercise of her ability to charm comes in her love scene with the pseudo Fanchon, and Miss Merrique avails herself of it to the utmost, quite captivating the house by her delicacy and grace. The reprobate Amos Bloodgood is amusingly represented by Mr. E. H. Patterson, who makes the utmost out of the many droll situations which arise; and Mr. Edwin Millins as John Halton is extremely funny without opening his lips as the would-be Mason who is willing to make any sacrifice to prove his fitness to become a member of the craft. Mr. Frederick Jaques puts the finished art of a long experience into his impersonation of the bibulous actor, Hamilton Travers. Make-up and expression are alike excellent, and roars of laughter greet every utterance, to which his mellow voice gives added effect. A smart Ernest Morrison is found in Mr. Dare Austin, who acts naturally and with elocutionary skill; Miss Dora Frank Harvey displays charm of style and finished expression as Mrs. Halton; and the vagaries of the Irish servant, Lottie, well played by Miss Minnie Rayner, provoke constant laughter. The one scene is effectively set, and the play goes throughout with a merry swing.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Oct. 1,
the Opera, by Goldfaden, entitled
"THE SON OF THE STAR."

For the opening night of the Yiddish holiday week the management selected Goldfaden's opera of The Son of the Star, which has been played here occasionally during the engagement of the Jewish Operatic and Dramatic Company. The story is concise and clear, but there is little originality in the music, many numbers being taken bodily from other sources, such as Handel's Messiah, &c., although, under the skilful bâton of Professor F. Staub the band and chorus did excellent service. The piece contains a small cast, and is admirably represented, being staged and mounted with the usual care always found at this popular theatre. Mr. M. Gusofsky was in fine voice, and quite in the picture as Bar Cochba (the Son of the Star), rendering all his songs acceptably, and being at the same time most earnest and impressive. Mr. Isaacowitch made a commanding Cezar, and acted with intensity and power. Mr. Joseph Fineberg, well made up, presented a decidedly clever sketch of Papus; and Mr. Goldsmith played with care as Eliezer. Mme. R. Waxman displayed undoubted artistic skill as Dinah, her expression of varied emotion during the progress of the opera being very fine. Mme. Goldstein is deserving of praise for her exposition of Seraphina. Admirable representations have been given during the week of The Jewish Priest, The Jewess, Money or the Tramp, Othello, Solomon Charlatan, The Viceroy, The Hero of Jerusalem, and Thirty Years Under the Earth.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Oct. 1,
The Drama, in Five Acts, by Henry Arthur Jones, entitled
"THE SILVER KING."

The attraction here this week is G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's company in The Silver King, a drama which, notwithstanding the years it has been before the public, has by no means lost its power of appealing strongly to the sympathies of a popular audience. An excellent company has been engaged, and the interpretation of the piece is in every way successful. The acting all round is worthy of the warmest praise, but chief honours must be accorded Mr. Herbert Ford, who quickly wins favour by a manly and powerful impersonation of Wilfred Denver. Miss Victoria Addison acts with feeling and delicate pathos in the part of Nellie Denver; and a notable performance is that of Mr. Tom Paulton, who, in the character of Jaikes, gives an admirable delineation of the faithful butler. Captain Skinner finds an excellent representative in Mr. Charles Skinner, who acts with marked ability. Some excellent work is put in by Mr. Henry Osman, who contributes a sound character study of the old marine-store dealer, Eliah Coombe; and Mr. Claud Vernon as Henry Corket and Mr. Charles Fenton as Cripps also render valuable assistance. Mr. Allen Jeayes creditably sustains the rôle of Geoffrey Ware; and Mr. Arthur H. Rooke, who is also stage-manager, makes excellent use of his limited opportunities as Samuel Baxter. Miss Viola Holland as Olive Skinner acts with zest and sincerity; and Miss Jessie Apted creates a good impression as Cissie Denver. Among those giving good support mention may be made of Miss Amy Wood as Tabitha Durden, Miss Margaret Rooke as Susie, and Miss Mabel Gardener as Mrs. Gamage. Mr. S. Burton is business-manager for Messrs. Polini and Melford, and Mr. E. de Hague Body acting-manager for Messrs. Bennett and Bennett.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

the Musical Comedy, by Seymour Hicks and Ivan Caryll, entitled
"THE EARL AND THE GIRL."

The great hold which Seymour Hicks and Ivan Caryll's rollicking musical comedy The Earl and the Girl has upon metropolitan playgoers was amply demonstrated at Kennington Theatre, when a crowded house assembled to accord the piece a hearty welcome on its return visit on Monday. The production is in the hands of Mr. William Greet's principal company, and the artists do their utmost to make the show go with a swing throughout, their efforts being crowned with complete success. The comedy is magnificently mounted, the second act, The Conservatory at Stole Hall, being quite a triumph of staging. The chorus is powerful and the orchestration good, and all the well-known lyrics are admirably rendered. The principal character, Jim Cheese, could not be in better hands than those of Mr. William Stephens, who is a comedian of great ability, and creates endless amusement. He is worthily supported by Miss Jennie Richards as Liza Shoddam, that lady interpreting the part with life-like fidelity. Mr. Arthur Harrold makes himself a warm favourite as Dick Wargrave, singing with striking effect the "Cosy Corner Girl." Another good actor is Mr. Tom Redmond, who appears as Hazell, host of the Fallowfield Arms. Mr. Percy Wright wins high encomiums as Hon. Crewe Boodle, the supposed heir; and Mr. H. Curtin as Bunker Bliss, Mr. Will Hindson as Downham, an American solicitor, and Mr. Greene Taylor as Talk, an English solicitor, all do well. The ladies of the company are uncommonly attractive, and the principals are accomplished actresses. Miss Frances Earle deserves high praise for her charming representation of Elphin Haye, an American heiress; Miss Gertrude Melville as Daisy Fallowfield makes a decided hit with her song "Sammy"; and Miss Mary Morison is exceedingly clever as Miss Virginia Bliss. Miss Beatrice Anderson deserves mention as Mrs. Shimmering Black. The Entente Cordiale dance is gracefully performed by Misses Beatrice Ford, Enid Beverley, Lily Doran, Blanchette Grand, Natalie Grant, and Geraldine Scott. Mr. Evelyn Baker conducts the augmented orchestra.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

the Musical Comedy, by Owen Hall and 'Liza Lehmann, entitled
"SERGEANT BRUE."

Sergeant Brue is on his beat this week in the Peckham district, and on his return visit has made himself very popular. Messrs. Lockwood and Crossman's company presents the piece excellently. Mr. Arthur Reynolds plays with much humour in the title-rôle, and gets a deservedly cordial reception. Mr. Charles McLagan scores a success as the incorrigible Crookie Scrubbs, his genuine comedy causing roars of laughter. Mr. E. Percy Rogers plays pleasantly and sings well as Michael Brue. Miss Mary Hay looks fascinating as Aurora Brue, dancing and singing charmingly. Miss Hebe Bliss is arch and engaging as Lady Birkenhall, rendering her songs with much point. Miss Marion Hargrave contributes a good character-sketch as the quaint maid-of-all-work, Daisy; and Miss Mabel Keith is excellent as Mabel Widget. Mr. Crank, the magistrate, is well played by Mr. Charles Sims; and Mr. Cecil Hood is an appropriately grim and severe Inspector Gorringe. Mr. Ernest Moyar makes the most of Gerald Treherne. Mr. Norman Latham is the skilful director of the orchestra. The chorus is numerous and efficient, and the scenery and effects are beyond reproach. Mr. G. R. Burch is manager for the company, and Mr. E. Percy Rogers is the stage-manager.

THE LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Oct. 1,
the Drama, by Charles Darrell, entitled
"WHEN LONDON SLEEPS."

The above well-known drama is meeting with its usual success at the Lyric this week, Mr. Lester Collingwood's company being responsible for the production. Mr. C. P. Wentworth is certainly a very prince of villains in his part of Captain Hayes, and gives a capital study of that despicable person. An excellent hero is found in Mr. Louis Norman, who, as David Englehardt, receives much applause. Queenie Carruthers is played with much pathos by Miss Mabel Scudamore; Miss Maude York in the rôle of Hilda Carrode does extremely well; and roars of laughter are caused by the merry sayings of Mr. D'Arcy Kelway as Sammy Blyth, Mr. Frank Howard as Bertie Broomhead, and Miss Daisy Clifford as Maud. Mr. Charles E. Sutton does good work as Mr. Furnaby Fuller, a solicitor; Mr. F. E. Thomas as Bob Jones, and Miss Bessie Frank as Carrie Jones, are in no small way helpful to the success achieved; and others who deserve special praise are Mr. Harry Barham as Mark Blackwood, Mr. Fred Barnardo as P.C. Stone, Miss Edith Colona as Signorina Jonesio, and Miss Josephine Goldsmid as Leila.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, Oct. 1,
the Play, in Five Acts, by Fred Melville, entitled
"HER FORBIDDEN MARRIAGE."

This week Fulham has been indulging in melodrama in the shape of a good company in Melville's "whirlwind drama of surprises," which appears to be mightily to the taste of pit and gallery. The play deals mainly with the heinous sin of unduly interfering with the course of true love, and is full of vigour and sensation. The artists, one and all, throw themselves into their work with energy. The hero, George Madison, is played in a manly and straightforward fashion by Mr. Henry Lonsdale; and Mr. Louis Hector as the scheming Devereux is an excellent contrast. Mr. Kenneth Black takes the attractive part of Sir George Lancaster, and his acting is full of quiet strength and pathos. Mr. Rawdon Vivian as the Rev. Mr. Dean accomplishes the difficult task of representing a clergyman performing his sacred duty on the stage, and it is to his credit that he succeeds in doing it with a certain quiet dignity that merits great praise. Mr. Fred De Vere supplies the comic element as Timothy Tuttutt, and appears to great advantage therein, never failing to raise a hearty laugh. In this he is ably seconded by Miss Denny Fitzherbert as Patty Lovejoy. Mr. Philip Renouf also contributes an amusing sketch of an ancient rustic. Miss Nellie Bonser makes a good representative of the heroine Lucy, and plays with charm and sincerity. As the second Lady Lancaster Miss Octavia Noel shows a woman of a different and less agreeable type, and acts with plenty of power and spirit. Miss Barbara Gott as the Mother Superior has a difficult part to play, and acquits herself remarkably well. The other members of a numerous cast are well up to their work, and help to make the performance a success.

NEW PRINCE'S THEATRE, POPLAR.

the Musical Comedy, in Two Acts, by Owen Hall and Leslie Stuart, entitled
"FLORODORA."

Florodora is being presented here by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's No. 1—an excellent all-round company—which drew a crowded, demonstrative, and appreciative house on Monday. The droll efforts of Mr. Dudley Cooper as Anthony Tweedlepunch were highly successful. This gifted artist is a veritable fun-producer, and his sly hits and topical local allusions were received with shouts of laughter. The highest pitch of hilarity was reached in the burlesque opera scene in Act II., where the actor's success was much helped by Miss Violet Grazia. Mr. Joseph R. Tate as Cyrus Gilfain looked a typical millionaire, and acted the part as though he thoroughly enjoyed it. His well-known song in the second act was well received. As Frank Abercoed Mr. R. Courtier Dutton was highly successful, and sang "The Shade of the Palm" with much expression. His duets with Dolores were also greatly appreciated. Mr. Harold Perry as Capt. Arthur Donegal made an ideal lover, and was heard to advantage in the favourite number, "The Military Man"; and Mr. Edwin Oxlee as Leandro was a satisfactory Overseer. Miss Edith Housley must be highly commended for her playing of Lady Holyrood. With much of the charm and vivacity of Ada Reeve, she has followed an excellent model. Her rendering of "When I leave town" and "Tact" left nothing to be desired. The Dolores of Miss Violet Gracia was a capital bit of acting, and this graceful actress gave the requisite dramatic touch in her handling of the part. Her capital voice was heard to much advantage in "Silver star of love" and other songs. Miss Nellie Bowman played the part of Angela Gilfain in a most engaging manner, investing the character with much charm. All her songs were well received, especially "The Starlight Queen," which earned rapturous applause. Gilfain's clerks and the lady visitors, who had admirable representatives, gave the ever popular "Pretty Maiden" double sextet in the usual satisfactory manner, winning enthusiastic encores. The chorus had been well drilled by the able musical director Mr. Bert Paterson; and the company is under the management of Mr. Andrew W. Spens, the front of the house being well looked after by Mr. Harry Lyons.

ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Oct. 1,
the Play, in Four Acts, entitled
"THE BELLS OF HASLEMERE."

A great attraction here this week is the famous Adelphi success, The Bells of Haslemere. The play is capitally rendered by the members of the talented stock company, and large audiences have been the rule. Mr. Albert Ward is seen to advantage in the part of the young hero, Frank Beresford, Squire of Haslemere. Mr. Ward thoroughly realises the character, and adds another to his list of successes here. The villainy of John Silkstone is capitally realised by Mr. Harry Crane, some of his lines being rendered quite inaudible by the groans and hisses of excited sympathisers with stage virtue. Mr. Horace Hunter plays Captain Vere, an adventurer, in his easy, polished style, which always lends distinction to the parts he undertakes. Mr. W. Felton portrays Matthew Brookfield with much earnestness and skill; Reuben Armstrong is quite safe in the hands of Mr. Teddy Colman, who, with Miss Agnes Paulton as Dorothy Tremble, is responsible for the fun of the evening. Mr. Colman and Miss Paulton are immense favourites here. Mr. Brian Daly is effective as Joseph Thorndyke; Mr. Godfrey is successful as Patrick Desmond; Mr. Teversham gives a capital rendering of Captain Salem; Toby is realistically portrayed by Mr. Alfred Holles; Miss Kathleen Russell plays Evelyn Brookfield, the squire's betrothed, with much feeling and charm; Miss Daisy Murch gives a capital representation of Mary Northcote; and Nora Desmond is carefully played by Miss Eva Sunbury. Much care is noticeable in the staging and mounting of the piece.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

the Domestic Play, in Four Acts, by Chas. Klein, entitled
"THE LION AND THE MOUSE."

An attractive programme is presented this week at the Brixton with a visit of Mr. Walter Maxwell's excellent company in The Lion and the Mouse. Mr. Leslie Carter gives a powerful reading of John Burkett Ryder, making the financial magnate sufficiently domineering as fits the character, but showing an entirely different trait of his disposition in the love for his son Jefferson, which eventually conquers him. Too much praise cannot be given to Miss Christine Silver as Shirley Rossmore, her acting being pleasing and good, noticeably in Act 3, where she defies Ryder. This is a fine scene, and the emotional outburst is delivered with telling effect, compelling her to appear several times before the curtain. Mr. Stephen Wentworth plays exceedingly well the part of Jefferson Ryder, His love for Shirley is uppermost, and his winning manner appeals to the audience. Mr. J. W. Mackie acts with aristocratic manner, as befits the scion of a noble family, the part of the Hon. Fitzroy Bayley, and is the cause of much laughter. Mr. George Lyttleton plays the financially ruined James Rossmore very earnestly; Mr. Richard Norton gives excellent support as Mr. Stott, the lawyer; Mr. John Wheatman does exceedingly well as I. Whitmore Roberts, M.P.,; and a clever study of the butler, Joskins, is given by Mr. A. B. Murray. The timorous wife of Ryder is presented in a refined manner by Miss Elspeth Dudgeon; Mrs. Rossmore is sympathetically and artistically played by Miss Maude Townsend. Kate Roberts is well impersonated by Miss Dorrie Roberts, her business with the books causing amusement. The smaller characters of the servants Mary and Jane are in the capable hands of Miss Ethel Gordon and Miss Marjorie Murray.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Monday, Oct. 1,
the Comedy, in Three Acts, by Arthur Law, entitled
"A COUNTRY MOUSE."

A particularly attractive bill is provided for the patrons of the Alexandra by Mr. Dudley Bennett during the present week. Miss Annie Hughes is appearing in two of her most successful charters, namely, Saucers, in Mrs. Oscar Beringer's play, A Bit of Old Chelsea, and Angela Muir, in Mr. Arthur Law's comedy, A Country Mouse, supported by the members of Miss Emma Hutchison's company. In both of these plays Miss Hughes has been previously seen at this theatre, and a very hearty welcome was accorded to her on her reappearance on Monday night. Her Alexandra Victoria Belchamber, the flower-girl, has lost nothing of its artistic qualities by frequent repetition, and the comedy and pathos of the character are presented with equal skill. In direct contrast to the lowly but straightforward Saucers is the scheming and artful little "heroine" of Mr. Law's comedy, and in her presentation of this character Miss Hughes is no less successful. Especially good is she in the scene which concludes the second act, in which the seemingly artless "girl from the country" scores off the worldly wise Lady Bowlby, a character filled with complete success by Miss Moyra Creegan. A clever and unexaggerated sketch of the conventional stage charwoman comes from Miss Ida Laurie; and Miss Francis Davie is a pleasing and agreeable Violet Aynsley. Mr. Evelyn Vernon, as the old roué, the Duke of St. Kitts, plays the part with a full appreciation of all its possibilities. As the young men of the play, Archibald Vyse and Lord Robert Wickham, Messrs. Charles Esdale and Thomas A. Brandon both do well. A sound and convincing performance of John Bowlby is given by Mr. William Calvert, and the part of Jephcot, the butler, although a small one, gains prominence by the excellent treatment it receives at the hands of Mr. John E. Watson.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 1,
the Musical Comedy, entitled
"LADY MADCAP."

Mr. Charles Dance's company is presenting this week at the Dalston Theatre the musical comedy, Lady Madcap, and the performances are proving in every way attractive. The book is by Paul Rubens and Newnham Davis, and Mr. Rubens's lyrics and music just suit the tastes of all parts of the house. The additional lyrics by Percy Greenbank are taking, and the acting is all that can be desired. Mr. J. Knox-Orde as the Count de St. Hubert sings with effect, acts with becoming dignity, and dances with a degree of animation which is almost infectious. In the matter of vivacity, Miss Isabelle Dillon is well to the fore as Lady Betty Claridge, the "madcap," who provides the chief element of excitement in the piece. Miss Dillon, it should be added, sings well and dances gracefully. Mr. Bay Russell's Bill Stratford is a decidedly humorous performance, his love scenes with the leading lady being most successful. Mr. James Graydon as Posh Jenkins, Stratford's confederate, frequently evokes laughter; and another couple who keep the fun of the play going are Mr. John Ossie as a professional butler and Mr. Harold Parkes, who enters the contest as an amateur caretaker of the silver. Mr. Emlyn Davis and Miss Gabrille Leighton as Col. and Mrs. Layton respectively are favourites; and others in the cast include Miss Maude Davis, Miss Ethel Beech, and Messrs. E. Cresfan, S. Clunes, F. Hilton, Oswald Marshall, G. Whillis, and E. B. Davies. Mr. Leonard Leslie directs the orchestra.

GRAND THEATRE, ISLINGTON.

the Drama, in Five Acts, by G. Carlton Wallace, entitled
"THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH."

This drama is paying a return visit to the Grand, and, as on the previous occasion, business is quite excellent. Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesay, who control the company, have secured one that is efficient in every respect. Mr. Sam Livesey himself plays John Strong, the blacksmith, and submits a clever and virile impersonation, and one that commands the fullest recognition. Mr. Joseph Carter as Capt. Leo portrays the heavy rôle in an emphatic and conventional manner, and is successful. Mr. Edwin Maydew as Marlow is good; Mr. Thomas E. Marshall as Parkins presents a well-conceived character-sketch; Mr. George V. Campbell as Twigg is responsible for the humorous interludes in the drama, in which he has valuable assistance from Miss Edith Gliddens as Martha Mopps; Mr. A. Walker deserves notice for his sketch of a mule; and Mr. Halstead is commendable as the Landlord. Mr. George Wilton as St. John Harmar is also worthy of praise. As for the ladies, Mrs. T. C. Livesey gives an excellent study as Sal Parkins; Miss Cassie Le Grande as Ruth Parkins is particularly good; and a sympathetic performance is that given by Miss Maggie Edwards as Kate Strong. Mr. Newman Maurice, the popular acting-manager here, is, as usual, courtesy itself in the front of the house.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

the Play, in Three Acts, by Robert Neilson Stephens and E. Lyall Swete, entitled
"MISS ELIZABETH'S PRISONER."

In response to the wishes of numerous patrons of the theatre, Mr. Peter Davey, the managing-director, arranged for a return visit of this charming play, which was so well received on former visits to the riverside, and there was a numerous and appreciative audience at the theatre on Monday evening, when the first of three performances was given by Mr. Lewis Waller's company, in connection with the tenth anniversary of its opening, of which a notice appears in another column. The company was a particularly strong one, and the mounting of the play was all that could be desired. Chief honours were earned and liberally awarded to Miss Lilian Hallows, who played Miss Elizabeth. Her fine acting was the leading feature of the production. She was ably supported by Mr. L. Race Dunrobin, who appeared as Captain Peyton, and gave a breezy picture of the dashing young cavalry officer. The part of Mr. Valentine was well placed in the hands of Mr. Fred Dark; and Franklin Graham gave a good account of himself as the unheroic Major Colden. Miss Leonora Braham submitted a pleasant impersonation of the aged Mistress Sarah Williams; and a pretty and engaging picture of the serving-maid, Molly Edwards, was given by Miss Phyllis Back. Mr. F. G. Martindill as Black Sam and Mr. J. Thomas as Cuff also rendered valuable assistance. The School for Scandal filled the bill for the rest of the week.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Oct. 1,
the Musical Play, entitled
"THE BELLE OF NEW YORK."

Previous visits to Stratford have endeared "The Belle" to the hearts of local playgoers, and consequently excellent audiences are being attracted to the Borough Theatre, where J. Bannister Howard presents George Musgrove's company, under the direction of Mr. Charles Thorburn, in this, by far the most successful of American musical plays. In the title-rôle Miss Empsie Bowman looks the part of the demure Salvation lassie to perfection, and sings delightfully. Mr. Frank Lawton's ripe performance as Blinky Bill is of incalculable value, and his whistling and bones solos are immensely popular. Mr. Paddy Dupres plays the elder Bronson with much unctuous humour; and Mr. John Doran acts and sings in manly and pleasing style as Harry Bronson. Mr. Max Copeland appears to revel in the somewhat exacting part of the Polite Lunatic, whose ludicrous efforts to kill Mr. Bronson are so funny, and he makes it quite an artistic characterisation. Mr. Alfred Sandoe is decidedly good as Doc Smifkins; and Kenneth Mugg has a capital exponent in Mr. Walter Uridge. The inseparable Portuguese Twins are impersonated with a keen sense of humour by Mr. Lionel Yeoman and Mr. R. L. Cody; Mr. A. Linforth plays Twiddles very appropriately; Mr. C. W. Anson does well as Fricot; and Mr. Owen O'Brien makes an alert newspaper reporter. Miss Lily Maxwell, if not very French as Fifi Fricot, plays the part very coquettishly, and Fifi's songs are admirably rendered; and Miss Winnie Browne makes a handsome and engaging Cora Angelique. A pleasing performance is the Mamie Clancy of Miss Florence Hersée, who plays the little Pell-street girl with rare sparkle and vivacity. Mr. Ernée Woodville conducts with his customary skill, and the stage-management is in the safe hands of Mr. Arthur Linforth, very popular in Stratford, where he has stage-managed four consecutive Borough pantomimes.

One of the events of the autumn theatrical season is the production of a new play at the Standard Theatre. To the skilful and experienced pen of Mr. Walter Melville we are again indebted for the autumn novelty, and he has not failed to furnish the patrons of the popular house in Shoreditch with dramatic fare well suited in every respect to their tastes. Mr. Melville has, too, again displayed his ingenuity in the invention of a striking title for his play. Indeed, the latest Standard production is a worthy successor to quite a long list of dramatic successes, and a prosperous career may with confidence be predicted for The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning.

The new production is described as "an original play of the people we meet every day." Fortunately it is not within the experience of all of us to encounter in our daily life such utterly wicked people as some of the leading characters in Mr. Melville's new play. But it must be remembered that is the very essence of melodrama to have the extremes of virtue and vice sharply defined. The employment of neutral tints is not encouraging in its results. Therefore we find that James Harcourt, tersely described as "an undiscovered criminal," is a villain of the deepest dye, and equally vicious and unscrupulous is James's female ally, Vesta Le Clere. They carry on in the Tottenham Court-road a private gambling club, the resort of fast old and young men, and when the story opens this precious couple are on the look-out for a new lure in the form of a pretty girl. They discover what they are in search of while on a visit to Newmarket. Sophie Coventry is a young girl living in a charming country cottage with her married sister Lucy. She is utterly discontented with her lot in life; and when Vesta Le Clere suggests that she shall accompany her to London she gladly accepts the offer. Lucy is the wife of Jack Fenton, who has been cast off by his wealthy father for marrying against his wishes, and has been compelled to accept a job as stableman at some racing stables at Newmarket. Here also is employed Bill Slater, who is in the power of James Harcourt, inasmuch as that individual is aware that Slater has, under another name, served a sentence of five years for forgery. Jack Fenton stands in the relation of cousin to James Harcourt, who has his own reasons for wishing to blacken Jack's character in his father's eyes. Principally by means of threats Harcourt compels Slater to place notes to the value of £50 in a work-basket belonging to Jack's wife. He then accuses Fenton of theft; but the plot miscarries, Johnny Walker, a comic character, having annexed the notes.

In the second act Willie Mason, a sailor, returns home. He has asked Sophie to marry him, and turns up burdened with a large sack presumably consisting of presents and a parrot in a cage. When he learns from his friend Jack Fenton the truth concerning the girl he loves he is overwhelmed with despair. He goes to London and discovers Sophie's whereabouts, but his pathetic appeals only excite her scorn and derision. The new life suits her—so she declares—and the young sailor leaves the house like a stricken man. Slater exposes the villainy of Harcourt and Vesta Le Clere. Jack is accused of the murder of his father, and ere the end is reached there are many more sensational scenes. Mr. Melville, of course, brings about a happy ending, in justification thereof quoting O'Connell's charmingly expressed lines:—

Did spring last ever, 'twould lose its sweetness;
If flowers bloomed always, we'd cast them by;
'Tis change that makes the world's completeness—
The sweetest laughter succeeds the sigh.

The play may be said to contain two heroes. Mr. Wingold Lawrence played with sincerity and earnestness as Jack Fenton, showing real feeling, but never once over-acting the part. Mr. Roy Redgrave was as smart and handsome a sailor lad as ever walked the main deck, and won the sympathy of the house early in the evening by his affecting portrayal of grief and despair when he discovers that his sweetheart has proved false to him. Such a manly Jack Tar was received with acclamation, and Mr. Redgrave, well known in North-East London, carried all before him. Mr. Frank Lister as Bill Slater, the "man with a past," presented one of those careful, clever character studies which have already in similar productions gained him a high reputation. Mr. Jack Denton deserves to be complimented on his crisp, clear-cut portrait of James Harcourt; he looked and acted the villain of the piece admirably. Excellent, too, was the Vesta Le Clere of Miss Olga Audre, an actress well versed in depicting the unscrupulous adventuress of melodrama. Her latest character will add another to her triumphs in this special line of business. Miss Jessie Winter was a graceful, winsome exponent of the part of Lucy Fenton, and was successful throughout. Miss Frances Ruttledge had a less easy task in realising the more complex character of Sophie Coventry, "the girl who took the wrong turning," but she also succeeded in presenting with life-like fidelity first the discontented girl and then the gay human butterfly that so soon loses her beauty and her purity in the unhealthy atmosphere of London. Mr. Willie Reid cut a comic figure as the racing man of the suggestive name of Johnny Walker, and when he marries Poppy Slater he finds that there is only one in command, and it is not he. Poppy becomes a music-hall artist, and when she departs for the Alhambra poor Johnny is left at home with strict injunctions to wash the baby. His summary method of performing this purely domestic task caused shrieks of laughter in all parts of the house. Miss Eva Dare was a sprightly, dashing Poppy, who gave the audience a taste of her quality as a music-hall star by singing a comic song in the third act. Mr. Jack Denton was an excellent representative of Richard Mason, Jack's obstinate, unreasonable father. Mr. George Villiers as a good-hearted policeman made the most of his opportunities; and Mr. Leslie Jacks scored as Hoppit, a pickpocket. Able assistance was afforded by Messrs. John Wilson and G. Brackley as stablemen; Mr. Jack Clare did well as a "gay old gentleman," other minor rôles being entrusted to Messrs. T. Edwards, Geo. Wright, G. Lacey, C. Carter, and Miss Alice Benton.

The mounting of the new drama leaves nothing to be desired, the sets painted by Messrs. H. K. Brown, E. P. Mullen, and Richard Douglass being admirable specimens of their artistic skill. The incidental music has been supplied by Mr. Edward Reeves.

THE DRAMA IN ROTTERDAM.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ROTTERDAM, SEPT. 25, 1906.—The regular season of the Grand Theatre was opened on the 18th inst. with Trippelbeen. This is the Dutch equivalent of the new French farcical comedy, Triplepatte. It initiated the regular season auspiciously. Mrs. Van Eysden as the Baronne Pepin had a part entirely in her line, and was as vivacious and animated as could be desired. A clever piece of character acting was Mrs. Van Kerckhoven's Mme. de Crevecœur.

We are again having a series of performances by the Meiningen Company. Its leading man is Kurt Grösser, whilst the impresarios for the Dutch tour are the popular Amsterdam managers, Messrs. Van Lier. The programme of the Meiningers last week consisted of Renaissance, by Schönthan and Koppel-Ellfeld. The performance took place on an "off night" at the Grand Theatre, and was genuinely enjoyable. Praise should be given to Martha Grösser-Spier as the youthful Vittorino. She looked well in boy's costume, and acted with fervour, tact, and jaunty grace. Kurt Grösser was a fine, stalwart Silvio da Feltre, and did not lose sight of the vein of delicate feeling that runs through the part. Mirra was characteristically interpreted by Jenny Nachbauer; and Max Spiess was telling as the Benedictine monk, Bentivoglio.

LAST Saturday evening, at the Grand, a special performance was given of Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme, with Coquelin Aîné and Jean Coquelin, supported by able artists of the Gaîté. The capable and energetic French impresario Henry Hertz is managing the tour, and, judging from the success of the performances at Amsterdam and in this city it will be a triumphal one. M. Coquelin Aîné's Mr. Jourdain was delightful in its unaffected simplicity and truthfulness to nature. Jean Coquelin played the Master of Philosophy and the valet Covielle, and was excellent in both parts. Other members of the cast were Messrs. Volny and Chabert, and Mesdames Devoyod, Delia, and Beylat.

LOUIS BOUWMEESTER is on his way back from his tour through the Dutch East Indies, and preparations are being made by his admirers in Amsterdam to give him a welcome.

DON'T CAUSE A TRAGEDY.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, and this truism was fully exemplified at the hearing of a case which came before Mr. Horace Smith recently, at Westminster Police Court, when a lady tailoress appeared to answer a summons taken out by the London County Council for keeping a quantity of petroleum otherwise than in pursuance of licence, &c. For the County Council it was stated that the defendant purchased a two-gallon tin of petrol for the purpose of cleaning skirts and a carpet. She performed the operations in a kitchen, and on applying a light to the gas a serious explosion and fire resulted. The defendant herself was unfortunately rather badly injured. This case was not proceeded with to obtain a heavy penalty, but with a view to illustrating the extreme danger of using this petrol spirit for cleaning purposes. The Council had good reason to believe that it was very largely used by those engaged in dressmaking businesses, and the risk of keeping any considerable quantity, unless with proper precaution, could not be too widely known. Mr. Horace Smith thought that some further responsibility should be placed on the sellers. Mr. Williams, for the defendant, said she did not procure the spirit for the purposes of her trade, but solely for the purpose of cleaning a carpet, having read in the fashion papers that it could be employed in this way. Mr. Horace Smith said he was sorry for the serious consequences, but the difficulty was to make people take reasonable precautions. The penalty for the offence was £20; that must not be forgotten. In the present case he would impose a fine of 10s. and 25s. costs.

The moral of the above is that it is an extremely risky thing to attempt to clean materials with highly inflammable spirit. Take no risks. It is so much wiser and quite as cheap for managers to send their theatrical cleaning to those experts, the Chemical Cleaning Company, of Argyll-street, Regent-street, W., whose ubiquitous chief, Mr. Thomas Harris, will promptly answer any 'phone, wire, or letter.

THE THESPIDS C.C.

A most successful season was spent by the Thespids C.C., and a very meritorious list of "averages" has been returned. Out of a total of twenty-four matches, 11 were won, 7 drawn, and 6 lost.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors—The late SIR HENRY IRVING.

Mr. Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News.

Should be found very useful.—Pelican.

Should prove perfectly invaluable.—Weekly Sun.

Contains in a handy compass and in a clear style the law relating to theatres and music halls. The book is well up to date.—Law Times.

Furnishes useful information.—Daily News.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its pages they may avoid much misapprehension and trouble.—Star.

Mr. A. A. Strong has compiled an exceedingly useful volume dealing carefully, intelligently, and fully with the law bearing upon things theatrical. As a book of reference this excellent digest will be found invaluable.—The Era.

EDWARD TERRY ON TOUR.

A PHENOMENAL SUCCESS.

Mr. Terry's annual autumn tour this year is proving a phenomenal success both artistically and financially. His receipts at the various towns visited have been far in excess of previous years. The latest addition to his extensive répertoire is the clever four-act play by R. C. Carton, Liberty Hall.

Mr. Terry, in the character of William Todman, has added another stage portrait to the long list of his inimitable character studies, and his assumption of the rôle has proved a veritable triumph, both Press and public being unanimous in their laudatory verdict. The Dickens-loving, kindly, old secondhand bookseller in the hands of this clever actor becomes life-like and real. He can touch chords in the human heart that may have dried up and almost withered, and he wins from his audience a ready laughter that is near akin to tears. It is enough to say of his performance that it is as beautiful as art can make it, and it will readily take a prominent place amongst the marvellous creations he has already presented to enthusiastic audiences during his travels all over the globe.

It is unnecessary to describe the many homely incidents, the sentiments of love and affection, the humour, and the pathos with which the story abounds.

Although the play is not actually new, it comes with all the freshness and charm of a new production by reason of Mr. Terry's masterly conception of the innate possibilities of the part.

as William Todman in Liberty Hall.

Edward Terry is always worth seeing, for there is no comedian on the English stage of to-day who can invest a part with so much character—character which burns itself into the mind—as he. But the pen is inclined to run riot, so appreciative are one's feelings of his art. Mr. Terry concludes his present tour on Dec. 8 at Oxford.

"DUTTON'S DILEMMA."

A Farcical Sketch, by Leonard Mortimer,
Produced at the Grand Theatre, Rawtenstall, on Friday, Sept. 28.

Mr. Dutton .....MR. EDMUND O'GRADY
Mrs. Dutton .....MISS CLARA O'GRADY
Mary Ellen .....MISS KITTY THOMAS
Reggie Augustus ....MR. GEORGE M. MONTANINI

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

This bright and amusing little piece was put on at the Grand, Rawtenstall, as a curtain-raiser to The Mill Girl. The book is racy, and the plot presents some very comical features. Mr. Dutton, who, it appears, is rather fond of the fair sex, has brought home a box which he has found and which he thinks contains something of interest to him as an antiquarian. Mary Ellen, while dusting the breakfast-room, finds this box, and wonders whether it is a present for one of her master's lady loves. She also scrutinises the letters, and proceeds to pity her poor mistress, who enters at this point, and shows her some letters which she concludes have come from Mr. Dutton's lady friends. Whilst reading the newspaper, waiting breakfast, Mr. Dutton is horrified to find that the box he has found is an infernal machine charged with dynamite, and fixed to explode in about twenty minutes' time. He is much perturbed, and imagines all kinds of methods to get rid of the box; but Mrs. Dutton suddenly appears, denounces him as a faithless husband, and wishes to know what is in the box. Dutton rushes to his room, after telling his wife the truth. A disturbance is heard in the garden, and Reggie enters, saying he has arrived by balloon. He is followed by his sister, Mrs. Dutton, who informs him that her husband has gone mad, and asks his help. A series of misunderstandings ensue, until eventually Reggie is apprehended as an Anarchist, and the curtain descends on Dutton rushing from his bedroom with the box to the balloon, and rising in mid-air just as the machine explodes. The acting was all that could be wished. Mr. Edmund O'Grady being exceptionally good as Dutton. The piece was well received.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Oct. 1, the Drama, in Five Acts, by Frank Bateman and John Douglas, entitled
"NO WEDDING BELLS FOR HER."

The story of No Wedding Bells for Her is always interesting, and possesses plenty of thrilling situations and comedy interludes—ingredients which successfully appeal to popular audiences. The scheming and vengeful Lola Delaspierre is the central figure of the piece, and the part suits Miss Lizzie Montague admirably. Lola's catspaw, Abney Stone, is very convincingly portrayed by Mr. Conrad Franklyn; Mr. Stuart Lomath, as the outspoken muscular young parson, Frank Hatherleigh, contributes a praiseworthy performance; and Harold Trevelyan's lines are well delivered by Mr. E. Holland Day. Mr. Frank Bateman as the ubiquitous Dick Delver shows much versatility and resource, and the detective's doings are always followed with interest. Mr. Louis Garton is well placed as Montague Blair; Mr. Will Skelton makes an amusing Simkins; Mr. Harry Belford brings plenty of experience to bear upon the part of Horatio Fane; Mr. Frank Davies is responsible for a graphic sketch of Osric Guildenstein; and Herbert J. Walton is happily cast as the manager of the Imperial Theatre. Miss Louie Adair plays with tact and sympathy as Doris Vane; and Miss Vera Bateman renders an excellent account of Peggy. Minor parts in a long cast are all capitally played.

MARTIN HARVEY AT NEWCASTLE.

Mr. Martin Harvey was the guest of the Newcastle Pen and Palette Club at a supper on the 28th ult. His health was proposed by Mr. J. B. Radcliffe, who prophesied that further conquests were before the popular actor.

Mr. Harvey, in response, said: Mr. Radcliffe, and, if I may say so, brother artists of the Pen and Palette Club, my presence here to-night forms a further link in many associations which I am privileged in possessing with this Royal city of Newcastle. I cannot claim to be a Novocastrian myself; I have not yet acquired that wiry but charming habit of mendacity which persuaded an eminent member of my profession, on public occasions, to claim as his birthplace every city he visited; but it is a fact that my mother first saw the light in Newcastle, and it so happens that both my wife and I made our first provincial appearance in your city. That occasion, in my case, was destined to become a melancholy remembrance. I suppose my youthful ideas of the spending capacity of fifty shillings per week—which was my salary in those days—was, to say the least of it, exaggerated. Fresh from home, and unused to the modest habit of expenditure essential to the young and struggling actor, my first idea was to put up at the best hotel in the city. The week had not passed before it was put to me delicately by the manager of the company that I was perhaps living beyond my income. This, as you may imagine, was easily proved to be the case, and the repayment of the heavy advance which I was obliged to arrange with the treasurer to liquidate my liability to the Station Hotel was a serious encumbrance during the remainder of my stay with that company. My remembrance of that early appearance scarcely ends there. We were performing at the Theatre Royal the old Criterion farce of Becky, and the late William Hill—familarly known as "Wull Hill," and described in the play bills of the day, I think, as "Newcastle's favourite comedian," was a member of the company. He was, poor fellow, as I daresay many of you will recall, the most preposterously comic figure I think I have ever seen. To say that he was portly was to put it very mildly indeed. His form reminded one mostly of a large and ripe inverted pear, and the spectacle of Wull Hill driven, as was customary, in a very small wagonette, which he almost capsized, drawn with some difficulty by a very small pony, was a picture to which any Rowlandson or Gilroy could have done justice. His mere appearance upon the stage was generally quite sufficient to convulse the audience with laughter; and, inexperienced as I then was, the astonishing comicality of that man would, at certain moments of the play, drive every word of my part from my head. I remember at one point I had to state certain objections I entertained to the lady he proposed should be my wife. I had to say, "But, father! she is forty-two years of age, has a pug nose, and weighs fourteen stone." Now, when Wull Hill looked at you it was with a pair of eyes expressive of the reproach of a hooked cod, and, meeting this gaze from over his pendulous chops, the best words I could think of were, "My father, she's fourteen years of age, has a pug stone, and weighs forty-two noses."

Nor can I forget either, gentlemen, that the first audience after leaving London to which we submitted The Only Way was the audience of the Tyne-side. The encouragement you gave us then was to bear fruit later, when we submitted to you for the first time The Breed of the Treshams, and again last year our latest—shall I call it relaxation?—Boy O'Carroll. May I say, gentlemen, that I think such "relaxations" are healthful, provided that, however light and trifling a subject may be, the handling "dignifies" it. I recall that I am speaking to men of the Palette and the Pen when I remind you of what old Crome said to his son: "Paint what you see, my boy; and, if it be only a pig-sty, dignify it." To every artist, I take it, relaxation and variety in his work must be wholesome and beneficial. Perhaps one may say that the greatest artists are those who in their artistic selection can cover the widest ground. Shakespeare himself turned with ease, and no loss of dignity to his art, from Lear to Christopher Sly. Garrick was wont to conclude his evening's work, after performing Macbeth, with Abel Dragger, the half-witted apothecary's assistant. Scott, Thackeray, Dickens could pass easily from grave to gay, thus reflecting that sense of proportion without which a work of art can never be true to human nature. And we, following humbly in the footsteps of these great masters, find development of our powers, such as they are, in attacking the lighter as well as the graver themes of life. Who is it who has so wisely said that "A tear trembles on the lip of every laugh"? And when the humorous and the pathetic approach each other to the speaking point that thrill of truth instantly radiates through us all which is indeed the touch of nature making the whole world kin.

That advice of old Crome's to his son "that he should dignify every subject he illustrated" seems to me capable of a very wide application. "The presence or absence of that sense of dignity of worthiness" in all artistic expression would seem to be no bad criterion to apply when one's approbation or disapproval of a work of art is in question in whatever medium it is presented, and of course I include dramatic entertainment. If the proper study of mankind is man, there would seem to be no side of man which does not come within the province of the artist; but whatever side of human nature is depicted, we must "dignify" it. If that quality is present, let us welcome a work of art in whatever medium it is presented to us; and if that quality is absent, let us absolutely abhor and abominate it. I think we may say that wholesome fun need never lack that spirit of worthiness. When it does, let us give a free voice to the denunciator, for mere frivolity and vulgarity is belittling, is useless, is degrading to the character and to the soul. But art must not be confined—I have seen art, and exquisite art, in a Japanese lollipop—such creations in sweetmeat are comparable only to the butterfly which flutters his marvellous little life for an hour and is no more. Such creations give us a momentary glimpse of beauty, and the creator takes rank among the glorious company of art workers.

Gentlemen, I am now thoroughly in the saddle, becoming didactic and liable to bore you heavily, so I think I had better dismount; but the companionship of men of the Pen and Palette to which you have admitted me turns one's thoughts into these channels. For your welcome here Mr. Radcliffe and gentlemen, I am without adequate words of thanks and appreciation. I count it no small honour to be your guest here to-night. I feel that around me are those choice spirits who have given us from time to time during our visits here such a "splendid spur" in our work, the work we love, which it is our privilege and undeserved reward to put before teeming numbers of Novocastrians, who have always urged us on to our best, and, what is more, who have supported us with their presence and their critical interest.

MR. JOHN MURRAY will publish very shortly a volume by Mr. Sidney Lee, entitled "Shakespeare and the Modern Stage, with Other Essays." The book mainly consists of articles on various aspects of Shakespearean drama which bear on current affairs, and includes articles on "Shakespeare and the Elizabethan Playgoer," "Mr. Benson and Shakespearean Drama," and "The Commemoration of Shakespeare in London."

ADDITIONAL facilities are offered by the Great Eastern Railway Company for reaching Newmarket during the Second October and Houghton Meetings, by the issue of reduced first-class day return tickets at a cost of 15s., and first-class four-day periodical tickets at £2. Restaurant car accommodation is provided on some of the principal trains.

PRESENTATION.—Mr. Charles Majilton, the popular comedian, has been presented by his friend, Mr. William Glover, with a beautiful water-colour drawing (a sunset), executed in the talented artist's best style.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree has been telling a Dublin interviewer how he baffled the inquiries of the New York reporters on a certain occasion. "I went out," said Mr. Tree, "on the same steamer as Mr. Richard Croker, of Tammany fame. He and I became very friendly on the steamer, and the New York reporters, hearing this, attacked me in pursuit of copy. 'I understand, Mr. Tree,' they said, 'you talked a good deal with Mr. Croker on the voyage?' 'Yes,' I replied. 'I should like to tell you how much I like America——' 'But what did Mr. Croker say?' 'Oh, Mr. Croker—well, what Mr. Croker said was his business, wasn't it?' 'Pardon us,' they cried in chorus; 'we guess it's ours.' 'Well,' I said, 'if you insist on my revealing a private conversation, I must tell you that Mr. Croker talked exclusively about horse-racing and the immortality of the soul.' Mr. Croker was much pleased. He said that what he liked about actors was their discretion."

Mr. Bram Stoker, in the lecture which he delivered at the Westbourne Park Chapel on Tuesday evening, told an anecdote to the effect that when the committee on the revision of the Bible had finished their labours they went one night to the Lyceum Theatre. The chairman of the committee sent for Mr. Stoker and said, "I want you to bear in mind that we wish to put it on record that we, who have just revised the Bible, have come here, and we not only see nothing to object to, but we think this theatre is altogether a place for good." Mr. Stoker proposes to repeat the lecture, which is full of interesting matter, in other places.

The will of Mrs. Pearl Mary Teresa Craigie, better known under the nom de plume of "John Oliver Hobbes," who died on Aug. 13 last, has been proved at £24,502, with net personalty of £995. By her will of June 1, 1906, she directs that her son, John Churchill Craigie, after leaving Eton, is to continue his education at Oxford, but shall be unfettered in the choice of his religion or profession, and she gives him, with a few exceptions, all her personal articles, jewels, books, furniture, and horses and carriages, at her residence in the Isle of Wight and her rooms in The Albany, Piccadilly. So much of the proceeds of her works, royalties on plays and books as will amount to £3000 Mrs. Craigie gives to the Right Rev. Monsignor Brown, of St. Anne's, Vauxhall.

It is not often that the sufferings of the aspiring playwright are dramatised, but Mr. Herbert Darnley, in his well-written dramatic episode in one act, The Last Hour, which preceded The 'Varsity Belle at the St. James's Theatre, Manchester, on Monday last, has for his hero a struggling dramatic author, who takes poison in despair just before he receives news of the acceptance of one of his plays by an important manager. The cast includes also the suicide's landlord, landlady, and sweetheart, who add some humorous and sentimental interest to the theme; and the piece was very well played by Mr. R. Harley West, as the author, Mr. James Danvers, Miss Nellie Parker Dent, and Miss Beatrice Egerton.

The meeting convened by the Actors' Association to consider the question of the proposed Irving Memorial was held in the saloon at Drury Lane on Monday morning. Sir Squire Bancroft presided, and other members of the theatrical profession present were Sir Charles Wyndham, Miss Ellen Terry, Mr. Lionel Brough, Mr. Cecil Raleigh, Mr. F. Arlton (the late Mr. Toole's constant companion), and Mr. Charles Cruikshanks, secretary of the association. The Press were not admitted, but it was stated that the matter had been referred back to the council of the association for further consideration.

Mr. Forbes Robertson, Miss Gertrude Elliott, and the members of their company sailed on Wednesday for New York, where they are due to appear at the New Amsterdam Theatre on the 22nd, opening in Berinard Shaw's play, Cæsar and Cleopatra. Mr. Robertson returns to England in April.

An important première will take place at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, on Monday, when the dramatisation by George Warren of Mr. Edgar Wallace's enthralling story, "The Four Just Men," will be produced at Mr. Mulholland's handsome house. The leading part will be sustained by Mr. H. A. Saintsbury, and amongst other members of a full cast are Mr. Gordon Bailey, Mr. Legai Robinson, Miss Alys Rees, and Miss Dorothea Desmond. The play will be produced by Mr. Saintsbury, who has been in close touch with the authors, both of the book and the play, while the company is controlled by Mr. J. Bannister Howard. Every person visiting the theatre on Monday night, when the curtain will rise promptly at eight o'clock, will be presented with a handsomely bound volume, published at 3s. 6d., of Mr. Wallace's book. In addition to the evening performances, Mr. Mulholland announces a matinée at 2.30 on Thursday.

Mr. Wallace's clever story, it may be remembered, ends with a problem as to the way in which a Parliamentary Minister, who refuses to accede to the commands of the invincible "Four," meets his death. In the play a most dramatically thrilling solution is arrived at. One of the wires connected with the Minister's telephone is affixed to a dynamo, so that, at a given time, the full current of electricity is passed through him as he sits with the receiver to his ear. Four mysterious-looking individuals, dressed in cloaks, sombrero hats, and masks, have been seen careering around the West End in a motor-car during the past few days. On inquiry it has been discovered that they are effectively advertising the new play.

It is not often that an actor realises one of the most familiar "motives" of fiction—the attempt of the rightful heir to enter into his estate; and therefore great interest attaches to the claim of Mr. William Ernest Block to the Revett-Warner estates in Suffolk. Mr. W. E. Block is known in the theatrical world as W. E. Bentley, and until recently was advance manager to Charles Macdona, Ltd., having previously served under H. J. Leslie, Van Biene, and Augustus Harris. He is forming a syndicate for the purpose of providing funds for the necessary litigation in his claim, with a bond capital of £15,000, and offices at 53, Victoria-street, Westminster.

Mr. Block is the son of a boot manufacturer. Fifteen years ago his father attempted to obtain possession of the property, which is in the hands of trustees, but died before he had completed his researches. The families of John Revett, of Brandeston, and the Edmund and Thomas Warner, of Parham and Framlingham, were united by marriage. Mr. Block is a direct descendant and the sole representative of the family, and is determined to prove this to the satisfaction of the Courts.

The Revett property became intestate in 1830, and the revenues of the whole of the estates have accumulated to over £2,000,000. The Glevering Hall estate contains about 3460 acres, and shows a rent-roll of over £3000 per annum. It is richly timbered, and in close proximity to Easton Park. Mr. Block, should he be successful, will give £5000 to any theatrical charity or charities which shall be named by the Editor of The Era, so the whole profession is interested in his success.

Mr. and Mrs. Forbes Robertson have again contributed to swell the resources of a beneficent institution. This week they have sent a further sum of £1 7s. 11d. to the secretary of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, collected by means of their autographs.

Mr. H. B. Irving achieved a success instantaneous and complete on his first appearance in America. A large and enthusiastic audience welcomed him at the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York, on Monday, when he appeared as Malatesta in Paolo and Francesca. The striking resemblance of the young actor to his distinguished father was noted at his first entry, which was the signal for a loud ovation. At the end of the last act, after being recalled again and again, Mr. Irving made a short speech, in which he attributed the warmth of his reception "as much to the tender memories of my father, cherished by many American playgoers, as to any poor efforts of my own."

Miss Ellis Jeffreys and Mr. William H. Crane will shortly appear together in New York in a revival of She Stoops to Conquer, and Miss Jeffreys will be seen as Kate Hardcastle, a part which she has played a number of times in London. The cast will be as follows: Hardcastle, Mr. William H. Crane; Young Marlow, Mr. Walter Hale; Hastings, Mr. Herbert Sleath; Mrs. Hardcastle, Mrs. Fanny Addison Pitt; Miss Neville, Miss Margaret Dale; the Diggory will be Mr. Fred Thorne. The tour will include many of the larger cities of the West and South, and the New York engagement will begin in January. It is twenty-three years since Mr. Crane appeared as Hardcastle, with the late Stuart Robson.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier had a conspicuous success in Coster Joe in its compressed form during an excellent week at Leeds. On Friday the popular actor, who opened to splendid business this week at Newcastle with The Walls of Jericho, paid a return flying visit to Leeds to open the Gilbert and Sullivan Fête in aid of the Leeds Lifeboat Fund. Mr. W. S. Gilbert, who is at Wiesbaden, sent the following telegram through Mr. Bourchier to the Corporation, to be read at the lunch at the Town Hall:—"I send hearty good wishes for the success of fête. Greatly regret I cannot be present."

Mr. Bourchier has sent round a circular letter to the London Press referring to his recent request for delay in noticing The Morals of Marcus at the Garrick. In this letter Mr. Bourchier states that, on consideration, he admits that his request did not carry with it the meaning he meant to convey. "Believe me," writes Mr. Bourchier, "I had no wish to offend. I value criticism, and I wanted to solicit it when a play was free from first-night nervousness. It would have been better had I requested an interview to hear your side of the question before making so definite a move. I apologise for the mistake."

Mr. Lewis Waller, who, in conjunction with Mr. Tom B. Davis, will produce Robin Hood at the Lyric on Wednesday, the 17th inst., will be well supported in his assumption of the bold outlaw. The cast will include Messrs. Philip Cuningham, William Devereux, S. B. Brereton, H. J. Carvill, Herbert Jarman, A. E. George, Owen Roughwood, and Cecil Cameron, and Misses Helen Leyton, Dorothy Minto, Georgie Esmond, and May Chenery, with Miss Evelyn Millard as Maid Marian. Sherwood Forest, the battlements of Nottingham Castle, and Much's Mill on the Trent are all to figure among a varied assortment of scenic display.

At the Theatre Royal, Worthing, Wednesday was set aside for the second annual benefit of the popular manager, Herr Adolf Seebold, when Mr. Junius Booth's company played to packed houses both afternoon and evening. It must be gratifying to Herr Seebold to see that his untiring energy in catering for the public at this healthful South Coast resort is appreciated in such a tangible manner.

Mr. Bannister Howard will present at the Crystal Palace Theatre, on Monday, The Private Secretary. The following week the newly-decorated theatre will resound to the melodious strains of The Belle of New York, played by Mr. George Musgrove's company.

At St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, at 2.30 on Tuesday, the Bishop of London will celebrate the marriage of the Rev. Harold Davidson, Rector of Stiffkey, and chaplain of the Trafalgar-square section of the Actors' Church Union, and Miss Moyra Saurin, of County Meath, Ireland. Mr. Reginald Kennedy-Cox, the playwright, will act as best man.

Mr. George Dance's chief company, with Lady Madcap, will visit the Kennington Theatre next week. Miss Vera Vere will be the Madcap, and those who remember her in A Chinese Honeymoon will need no further inducement to see her in her latest impersonation. Mr. H. V. Surrey will be Trooper Smith, and the rest of the characters are in the hands of an excellent company.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell and Mr. Lewis Waller are announced to recite at a concert which will be given in the afternoon of Tuesday, Nov 6, at 35, Grosvenor-square, in aid of the funds of the Royal Ear Hospital, Dean-street, Soho. The programme will also include Mme. Kirkby Lunn, Mrs. Henry J. Wood, Mons. Oumiroff, Miss Edith Kirkwood, and Miss Norah Drewett. Princess Christian and many members of the nobility have promised their patronage and support.

The Sherlock Holmes company is meeting with gratifying success on its autumn tour. Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart has been congratulated by the local management of every town he has visited on the excellence of the production.

The management of the Metropole Theatre, Devonport, have secured the able services of Mr. George S. King as general-manager, in the place of Mr. Mitchell, who has left the town. Mr. King is intimately acquainted with the needs of a theatre like the Metropole, having been formerly connected with the Grand, Stalybridge, and the Carlton, Birmingham. He is also at the present time lessee and manager of the Metropole, Hoyland, but will be enabled to give his undivided attention to his new protégé.

Mr. Wentworth Croke's belief in the drawing powers of Miss Minnie Palmer in a new version of My Sweetheart has been fully confirmed by the many No. 1 theatre proprietors who have promptly booked this attraction. The tour will begin at the Grand Theatre, Middlesbrough, on the 29th inst. The piece will be sent out in first-class style, Mr. Ernest Howard having painted two new and very beautiful sets, while Messrs. Stafford and Co. have put in stock a very fine plant of printing. Mr. Richard Elliott will be the business-manager.

Mr. Wentworth Croke has been elected to serve on the committee of the Touring Managers' Association and as a director of the Managers' Club, now so firmly and successfully established in Savoy Mansions.

Mrs. Langtry opened in New York on Monday night in Mr. Graham Hill's powerful little drama Between the Night and the Light, and made an instantaneous success. The performance went splendidly, and was enthusiastically applauded.

Mr. Fred Terry will be seen in a new impersonation on Thursday, when he and Miss Julia Neilson will produce, at the Theatre Royal, Newcastle-on-Tyne, the new romantic play Matt of Merrymount, by B. M. Dix and E. C. Sutherland. Miss Neilson does not figure in the cast, which will otherwise comprise Messrs. Malcolm Cherry, Carter Edwards, Alfred Kendrick, C. R. Gibbon, Walter Edwin, D. J. Williams, W. A. Haines, Frederick Groves, and Jerrold Robertshaw, and Misses Claire Pauncefort, Kathleen Doyle, Miriam Lewes, and Lilias Waldegrave.

The beautiful representation of Shakespeare's Winter's Tale at His Majesty's Theatre will last only till the end of the month, as Mr. Tree then returns from his successful provincial tour. The last opportunity of seeing Miss Ellen Terry as Hermione must therefore be on the evening of Oct. 27, and playgoers who are anxious to witness the production would be well advised to secure seats at once. On the following Monday, Oct. 29, Mr. Tree will himself appear in Mr. Michael Morton's play Colonel Newcome, with which he concluded his summer season, and which has recently been received with enthusiasm in Edinburgh, Glasgow, Dublin, and the North of England. Mr. Tree has been fortunate in securing practically the original cast, including Mrs. Tree, Miss Lilian Braithwaite, and Mr. Norman Forbes. Extra matinées of A Winter's Tale are announced for Saturday next and the following Saturday, Oct. 20.

Miss Phyllis Dare will take up the title-rôle of The Belle of Mayfair at the Vaudeville Theatre this evening, when there will be presented a second edition of the popular play, the attractiveness of which will be embellished by new dresses and appointments. Mr. Leslie Stuart has composed a new number for the young actress bearing the title of "I'll wait for you, little girlie."

The Theatre Metropole, Birkenhead, was offered for sale by auction last week, but, no bid resulting, the property was withdrawn. It is understood that it will be disposed of by private treaty for conversion into shops.

Another link with the past is about to be put under the auctioneer's hammer in the shape of the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Liverpool, which on Tuesday next will again seek a purchaser. The old place, wherein Toole, Terry, and all the famous comedians of the last fifty years attracted packed houses, has been closed several years. The general opinion in Liverpool is that the building will be acquired for business purposes, for which it is eminently suited, standing as it does in the heart of the shop-keeping locality.

We regret to learn that Mr. Robert Fogerty, manager of the Theatre Royal, Limerick, is seriously ill.

The full cast of The Amateur Socialist, the comedy by W. Kingsley Tarpey, which will be produced on Saturday at the Criterion, will consist of Messrs. Eric Lewis, Louis Goodrich, R. Clayton Greene, F. Percival Stevens, E. Dagnall, E. Y. Rae, Percy H. Jackson, and Rawson Buckley, and Misses Carlotta Addison, Margaret Bussé, Ethel Matthews, and Lilian Braithwaite. The Lemonade Boy, the one-act play by Gladys Unger, which will precede, will engage the services of Messrs. O. P. Heggie, Percy H. Jackson, E. Y. Rae, and Misses Nella Powys and Minnie Terry.

The part of Bridget in The Fatal Wedding is closely identified with the name of that clever actress, Miss Julie Temple. At twenty-four hours' notice Miss Temple resumed the rôle on Monday with Mr. Bert Coote's company at Crewe, and repeated her artistic success.

Phenyl Brickwell, son of Mr. H. T. Brickwell, is on board the Xema in quest of the hidden treasure. Fortune proverbially favours the brave, and it is to be hoped that success will attend him in his plucky venture in search of the sequestered millions.

Mr. Auguste Van Biene introduced into the second act of The Broken Melody at the Theatre Royal, Plymouth, last week, a new solo, entitled "Vespers," composed by his son Edward Van Biene. Mr. Van Biene, jun., has also originated a novel scheme for advertising his work. It consists of a picture postcard bearing a reduced facsimile of the title-page of the publication, and has been executed by Moody Bros., the theatrical printers, in their usual excellent style. The publishers of the solo, Reeder and Walsh, report excellent sales, and the famous 'cellist predicts an enormous success for the piece, which he describes as "charming."

Mr. Maurice E. Bandmann's comedy and dramatic company leaves to-day for India by the s.s. Sardinia for a tour of about twelve months, with a répertoire including His House in Order, Raffles, All-of-a-Sudden Peggy, Leah Kleschna, and many of the latest West End successes. The company consists of Misses Florence Hamer, Violet Vorley, Helen Grenville, Russell Spiers, Dorcas Corsbie, and Lily Lloyd, and Messrs. Claude King, Philip Sanders, Sydney T. Pease, Clifford Bown, Sinclair Cotter, and W. S. Butt. Mr. Kelson Trueman, who is Mr. Maurice E. Bandmann's sole representative in England, will be at Tilbury to see the company on board.

Mr. Napoleon Bird, a pianist, of Stockport, has just succeeded in accomplishing a record in playing the piano with both hands continuously for forty-eight hours. The feat took place at the Armoury, Stockport, commencing at 10 p.m. on Tuesday and finishing at 10 p.m. on Thursday. In the course of his performance Mr. Bird, who is fifty-one years of age, played nearly fifteen hundred selections of a varied character.

Mr. Allan Wilkie is paying a return visit to the Theatre Royal, Shrewsbury, and is doing especially good business, the house being packed nightly. Mr. Wilkie's performances of Hamlet, Shylock, Othello, &c., were received with the greatest enthusiasm. Messrs. David Allen and Sons are now at work on a special plant of pictorial printing for Mr. Wilkie, which, when complete, will be found to contain something quite new.

Messrs. Vedrenne and Barker will revive Man and Superman at the Court on the 29th inst., with Mr. Granville Barker, who has not appeared since last March, again playing the part of John Tanner. Miss Lillah McCarthy will again be Ann Whitefield, and the rest of the cast will be the same as before with the exception of Roebuck Ramsden, which will be played by Mr. James Hearn; while Miss Grace Lane will play the part of Violet Robinson. The production of Mr. St. John Hankin's new comedy, The Charity that Began at Home, is fixed for Oct. 23.

Mr. Norman V. Norman has played to remarkably fine houses at Brighton this week with the Rev. Frederick Langbridge's piece The Chevalier de St. George. A little conversation between two ladies who had just come out of the theatre the other night was overheard. Both were interested spectators of the pictorial posters of the play, and one remarked to the other, "Do you know what this new play next Monday is about?" Her companion replied, "Oh, quite a well-known thing. It is about Esmond's 'Thackeray,' you know." It must have been the same two ladies who applied at the box-office for seats on the occasion of a former visit of Mr. Norman to Brighton, and asked what the play was. Upon being told it was Nell Gwynn they remarked that they were great lovers of Shakespeare, but had never seen that particular play of his!

Mr. Charles Carey opens his second Scotch tour with After the Ball at Perth next week. This piece is meeting with phenomenal success in the North, and at Darlington this week "House Full" has nightly been the announcement. The play goes with a merry swing, and the chorus—a big one—is far smarter than is usual on this side of the Atlantic. When, we may ask, is Mr. Carey going to give Londoners an opportunity of putting their ball-mark on it?

The usual weekly meeting of the council of the Actors' Association was held on Tuesday, when there were present Mr. C. Aubrey Smith (chairman), Mr. A. E. Drinkwater (deputy chairman), Mr. Henry W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Miss Kate Phillips, and Messrs. Cecil Barth, Acton Bond, Burton Cooke, C. Hayden Coffin, Lawrence Grant, Fewlass Llewellyn, Quinton McPherson, M. R. Morand, Spencer Trevor, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary).

The hon. solicitors reported that they had advised several members on points submitted. A case of alleged insanitation at a provincial theatre was under discussion, and the secretary received instructions to communicate with the management upon the question. Chas. T. Doe, Beatrice Fitzgerald, Gerald Clifton Boyne, Nellie Beryl, and Alexandra Carlisle were nominated for election. A former member was reinstated. The secretary received instructions to deal with the list of unpaid subscriptions. The hon. solicitors were requested to advise two members upon the validity of claims made by them. The report of the Finance and General Purposes Committee was received, and the secretary was directed to call a meeting of the special committee next Tuesday at noon. The council directed the secretary to express their thanks to Mr. Norman Wrighton for his gift of a framed engraving of Shakespeare in his study.

The Finance and General Purposes Committee of the A.A. held a meeting on Tuesday last, when there were present Mr. Acton Bond (chairman) and Messrs. A. E. Drinkwater, Lawrence Grant, C. Aubrey Smith, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). The secretary received instructions to obtain certain information in order that the committee might be in a position to place a scheme before the council.

Mr. J. Burgiss Brown, who, during a career extending over thirty years, has given upwards of 8000 performances as an entrepreneur in various parts of the country, will be accorded a complimentary concert at Bechstein Hall on Tuesday afternoon next. Mr. Brown is a musical man, with a musical family, and his popularity with the profession at large is evidenced by the list of eminent artists who have volunteered their services. Among those who have promised support are Mme. Helen Trust, Mme. Bertha Moore, Mr. Herbert Grover, Mr. Barton McGuckin, Mr. Courtice Pounds, Mr. Farren Soutar, Mr. Watkin Mills, Mr. George Grossmith, Mr. George Grossmith, jun., Mr. Arthur Roberts, Mr. Charles Collette, Miss Hilda Trevellyan, Mr. Charles Bertram, and Mr. Rutland Barrington.

Mr. George Edwardes was again among the winners on Wednesday, when his three-year-old Marie Blanche romped home with two lengths to spare in the Houndean Selling Plate at Lewes. The filly, who made the running very early in the race, was sold for 105 guineas.

A great deal of useful work has been unostentatiously done by the association formed some eighteen months ago by the managers of suburban theatres, but by far the most important step has been the formation of a defence fund, amounting to nearly £4000. This fund, which is duly vested in trustees, is now available, not only to protect the interests generally of owners and lessees, but more particularly to constitute a war chest to be drawn upon in the event of attack on any individual manager, upon whom the whole expenses of defending his rights might otherwise fall too heavily.

Some such effective insurance against aggression has become more than ever necessary since the Lord Chamberlain delegated his powers—which to all intents and purposes he did a few years ago—to the London County Council, whose requirements are ever-varying and ever-increasing. The theatres of Greater London—as apart from music halls, with which this association is not concerned—represent an invested capital of nearly a million sterling, and the members of the association are the actual responsible men in connection with these theatres, being, in many instances, the owners. The hon. secretary of the association is Mr. J. B. Mulholland, who, times out of number, has given proofs of his determination to hold his own against the attacks of London's governing body.

Mrs. D'Oyly Carte's opera company, back from a prosperous South African tour, began on Monday a two weeks' visit to the Camden Theatre, opening with the utmost success in The Mikado. The programme for next week will consist of The Gondoliers, Mikado, H.M.S. Pinafore, Trial by Jury, Patience, Iolanthe, Princess Ida, and Yeomen of the Guard.

Miss Mona K. Oram, with her terrier Springer, which accompanies her on all her tours, left Euston last Sunday morning for Glasgow, where she will appear as Imogen in the forthcoming production of Cymbeline at the Grand. Miss Oram is looking forward with much interest to playing this part, and it is one of the few Shakespearean leads which she has not hitherto attempted.

The testimonial to Mr. R. W. Allum, the acting-manager of the Brixton Theatre, will take the shape of a benefit, which will be given at the Brixton Hall, Acre-lane, on Tuesday, Oct. 16, when a long and varied entertainment will be presented. Tickets may be had of the hon. secretary and treasurer, Mr. Henry Dann, 457, Brixton-road, with whom artists who desire to support Mr. Allum are asked to communicate.

Mr. Herbert Leonard, who has resigned the business management of the Prince's Theatre, Poplar, is now collaborating with Mr. Walter Slaughter in writing a new musical comedy, in addition to personally organising the new Conquest and Leonard tours in conjunction with Mr. H. Cartwright. The Girl of My Heart is to be sent out on its tenth touring year, starting next Christmas at the Theatre Royal, Sunderland, with an excellent cast and new scenery, uniforms, and equipment. Serving the Queen, On Active Service, and a new musical comedy will be added to the répertoire next autumn.

Mr. Edward Michael has decided that for the future he will only operate the Répertoire Theatre Company at the Theatre Royal, Margate. As his tenancy of the Theatre Royal, Canterbury, has expired, that house has now reverted to Mr. E. Graham Falcon.

Miss Edna Loftus, now appearing in The New Aladdin at the Gaiety Theatre, created a decided impression last spring at the Folies-Marigny, Paris, as leader of the British Gibson Girls. Miss Loftus was offered a part at the Saint-Martin, in the French version of the Drury Lane pantomime Cinderella, recently successfully produced, but, not feeling quite sure of her French, declined.

The directors of the Pavilion, Kingstown, Dublin, have made an undoubtedly successful inauguration of their dramatic season this week, during which Mr. Russell Rosse's Repertory company have been appearing in the well-known comedies A Pair of Spectacles, Our Boys, and Caste. The engagement will continue for another week, and the directors have been so pleased with the results of their initial venture that they have offered Mr. Rosse, through their resident-manager, Mr. C. Irvine Bacon, a three weeks' engagement in the height of the Kingstown season next year. Mr. David James has, in the leading rôles, undoubtedly "caught on," and a well-balanced cast helps to make the pieces most acceptable.

Closely following the recent visit of Mrs. Kendal to the Marlborough Theatre comes an interesting event in the appearance at the popular North London house next week of that fine actress's talented daughter in the emotional rôle of Lady Isabel in the ever-popular East Lynne. Miss Grimston has already made her name in London as a rising young actress, and will be remembered as achieving a marked success recently at the Garrick Theatre. East Lynne will be something of a novelty at the Marlborough. It is a play usually relegated to sultry "summer dates," and the experiment of producing it in the middle of the autumn dramatic season with a carefully selected West End company and mounted in a handsome and lavish manner should prove a highly successful one. Following it come The Prince Chap, Mr. and Mrs. Benson, The Blue Moon, Mr. Fred Terry and Miss Julia Neilson, The Dairymaids, the Carl Rosa Opera Company, and the D'Oyly Carte Company, &c. Elaborate preparations are being made for the Christmas production of Cinderella.

The Promenade Concerts at the Crystal Palace began successfully on Wednesday, when the vocalists were Miss Edith Evans and Mr. Julien Henry. Amongst other artists engaged for these concerts are Miss Violet Ludlow, Mr. Reginald Brophy, and Mr. Charles Pond, who will give his clever and original entertainment.

"Mrs. Temple's Telegram" was withdrawn from the Waldorf on Saturday, after a meritorious endeavour to attract the public. The theatre is now closed, and when it is reopened in about six weeks time the attraction will, it is said, be musical comedy.

Last Sunday being the birthday of Mr. James Sinclair, the popular acting-manager of the West London Theatre, he was the gratified recipient of many kindly mementos from his several friends. The gifts, however, were all overshadowed, when on the same evening his wife presented him with a bonny son and heir. Mother and child, we are glad to hear, are doing well, and we beg to offer our heartiest congratulations to Mr. Sinclair and his talented wife (Miss Alice Sinclair).

Four Australian stars will scintillate in this year's pantomime at the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin, which is to be Sindbad the Sailor. The principal boy will be embodied by Miss May Beatty, the second girl will be Miss Nina Osborne, and Mr. Edward Lauri and Mr. G. H. Snazelle will also take part in the production.

"The Illustrious O'Hagan," a new play by Justin Huntly McCarthy, founded on a novel of the same title, which is to be published shortly, was copyrighted this week. The action passes in Paris and Germany, towards the end of the seventeenth century, and more than one of the principal characters, as may be inferred from the title, claim Ireland as the land of their birth.

"The Virgin Goddess" is to be the next novelty at the Adelphi, and will witness the reappearance of Miss Geneviève Ward, whose absence from the London stage has extended over several years. The play, which is written in blank verse, is by Rudolf Bessier, a journalist, who thus receives his first introduction as a dramatist. It is modelled on the lines of old Greek drama, the action taking place in Artis, an imaginary city of ancient Greece. Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton will have important parts in the new piece, the production of which is fixed for Tuesday, the 23rd inst.

"Colonel Newcome" is going gaily on its travels. News of its prosperity comes from various parts of the United Kingdom, and a cabled message gives tidings of its success at Montreal, where the clever play was produced by Mr. E. S. Willard on Monday. The famous actor is said to give a striking impersonation of the rôle, which will add considerably to his laurels.

The George Musgrove Prince of Pilsen company, the autumn tour of which has proved a veritable triumphal progress, is appearing in Cork this week. After the performance to-night the members of the company leave by a special midnight train, provided by the Great Southern Railway Company to convey them to Kingstown in time for the Sunday morning mail boat to Holyhead.

Miss Dorothy Grassdorff, who is winning golden opinions for her performance of Nellie Wagner in Baron Harris's Prince of Pilsen company, is the youngest daughter of the late Portuguese Vice-Consul, and received her early education at a convent in Brussels. After a course of study under Signor Giovanninni in Milan for voice production, followed by a period of tuition at the Paris Conservatore, Miss Grassdorff found herself playing Will o' the Wisp at the age of fifteen in the pantomime of Aladdin at the Shakespeare Theatre the season before last.

At the Schiller O., Berlin, Donna Diana, a three act comedy from the Spanish of Moreto, has met with a good share of success. This old Spanish play is thoroughly well written and amusing, and many a modern farce-maker might learn from it with advantage. "Talking of Spanish authors," (writes our Berlin correspondent), "there is to be a 'Spanish play cycle' at the Neues. The first of the series was on Sunday afternoon. It consisted of a three-act comedy by Miguel Echegaray, entitled Magdalena. Being brightly acted, the old-fashioned style of the piece was not so boring as it would otherwise have been, and the audience—which was not a very large one—applauded with cordiality.

Messrs. Sotheby, Wilkinson, and Hodge recently sold, by private treaty, to an American collector a copy of the 1612 edition of Shakespeare's poem "The Passionate Pilgrime" for £2000. The only other copy was at one time in the collection of Edmond Malone, and is now in the Bodleian Library.

Mr. Charles Frohman's production of Brigadier Gerard at his Illinois Theatre, Chicago, on Monday, was received with much enthusiasm. Mr. Kyrle Bellew, who played the Brigadier, was greatly praised.

"The Dandy Duke," a new burlesque opera, the book and music by Vere Smith, will be produced at the Theatre Royal, Brighton, on Monday, December 17. The proceeds of the performance will be given to the much-needed Sussex County Hospital funds. The Green Room Club and the Brighton Operatic Society will be concerned in the production.

Miss Braddon (Mrs. Maxwell), who on Thursday received many congratulations on the completion of her seventieth year, had during her teens some experience as an actress, and this in a measure may account for the dramatic quality of her novels, most of which have been adapted from time to time without adding anything appreciable to her income. Several versions of "Lady Audley's Secret" have been presented, the character of Robert Audley being played in the days of his youth by Sir Henry Irving. She is the author also of several plays. The Loves of Arcadia was produced in 1860, Griselda in 1873, Genevieve in 1874, and For Better, For Worse in 1891.

The famous novelist has been for many years a resident at Lichfield House, Richmond, once an episcopal palace, and believed by the late George Augustus Sala to have been built by Sir Christopher Wren. The relics of Lichfield House include a small table on which Wellington wrote the despatch recounting the victory of Waterloo.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

"Mr. George Edwardes," says a writer in the Birmingham Daily Post, "is stated to be convinced that Saturday night's 'booing' at the Gaiety Theatre, when the curtain fell on the production of The New Aladdin, was 'stage-managed by enemies.' This is interesting as a proof of the strange survival in the managerial mind of the idea that first-night disapprobation is never spontaneous or genuine. Over a quarter of a century ago Messrs. James and Thorne, when fortune for a time failed them at the Vaudeville, set it all down to 'an organised opposition,' the existence of which was never proved. I have been for twenty years a regular attendant at London first nights, and have closely watched the popular demonstrations, both for and against certain plays; and I have never seen a trace of the 'organised opposition,' which is only mentioned when a piece has not gone well, and injudicious friends of the management have, by forced enthusiasm, provoked reprisals. But what has been growing of late years in certain London theatres has been the practice of 'papering' the pit and gallery on a first night, with the result of disturbances on the part of those who have paid for admission, roused to anger by the untimely cheering bestowed upon a weak production. Mr. Edwardes, of course, is far too shrewd, as well as popular, a manager to fall in with that custom."

In the case of musical play productions, the occasional dissatisfaction of a section of the first-nighters is easily accounted for. They do not represent the regular paying patrons even of that part of the house, still less those of the stalls and boxes. The real lovers of musical plays are accustomed to the peculiar manner in which these entertainments are constructed, and do not demand that the plot shall be constantly pursued all through the second act. Again, Mr. Edwardes's first nights are never final; and before a week has passed the piece is quite a different thing from what is was at the première. So that, by the time the real paying public have arrived, they have every reason to be satisfied. It is astonishing what a change can be made in an entertainment by simply cutting out everything that does not "go" and replacing the gaps thus created by "taking" items.

Our readers may be interested in the remarks of a Berlin journal upon Mr. Bernard Shaw and his play You Never Can Tell, a German version of which was recently seen in Berlin. The writer says: "This dramatist makes us giddy with the astonishing variety of things he shows us at the theatre in a single evening. He talks psychology to us, amuses us, introduces social reforms, fights prejudices, and is, at times, frivolous as a schoolgirl. To do all this in one evening takes a Molière—or the self-confidence of a Shaw. The Berlin public over-estimated Shaw merely because they like to pose as discoverers of talent. They do not overrate Mr. Shaw, however, as much as he over-estimates himself. He has evidently mistaken himself for a first-water genius, and he is so vain that he will not even observe the laws of common politeness and social conventionality. He interrupts himself continually, swallowing the ends of his own anecdotes, because he has not patience to finish one before beginning the next. In the middle of a scene beginning with pure comedy he breaks off abruptly, dashing into psychology, sociology, or any other 'ology' that catches his fancy at the moment. His plays run in a zig-zag that makes one reel."

It is not often that an actress turns her attention to medical subjects; and when, as Miss Olga Nethersole did at the Dublin Mansion House the other day, she makes a long and eloquent speech on the treatment of tuberculosis, one marvels at her versatility. As she told her hearers, Miss Nethersole has all her life been interested in medical study; and, had she not been an actress, she would have tried to be a lady doctor. Miss Nethersole's proposition was that a Women's International Tuberculosis League should be formed, the duty of its members being to report to the Board of Health or other health authority in each city the name of any shop, factory, place of amusement or worship, where precautions against the dissemination of tuberculosis are not severely observed. Miss Nethersole has received the Queen's assurance of her interest in the proposed League.

Some writers' ideas of good-nature are peculiar; but it is the triumph of dramatic authorship to reconcile the public to the extraordinary. An American correspondent writes that a Miss Eva Tanquay is appearing at the Alvin Theatre, Pittsburg, in a new piece called A Good Fellow. The lady represents the heroine, the "good fellow" of the play. She helps a man who is wanted for gambling to escape the arm of the law at the expense of her newly-married husband, who is dragged off to jail instead. "But," says our representative, "the funny situations arising therefrom gain her the forgiveness of the audience."

Another successful production at Pittsburg is a piece by a Mr. Blaney called The Girl Raffles. It is a "hot and strong" melodrama, made into what is practically an opera by the addition of musical numbers and choruses. The arrangement is ingenious, as it combines the advantages of the musical play and the melodrama—the two strongest attractions in the English provinces.

Miss Susan Strong, the American vocalist, has started a laundry in Baker-street, and hopes to make it pay better than singing in public. She attends to the accounts, while her maid Pauline overlooks the washers and ironers. Another professional who has long retired from the boards to business is Mr. George Bigwood, the veteran stage-manager of the Britannia, who has for years past been doing remarkably well at his cosy cigar shop on the front at Southend-on-Sea.

Miss Emily Soldene has given some amusing reminiscences to the Daily Chronicle apropos of her coming benefit matinée. Referring to Geneviève de Brabant, she said: "I shall sing my original song, 'Lady, look down below.' I wonder how many of the people there will remember it. At San Francisco not long ago—before the earthquake, of course—I met an old gentleman on crutches who repeated to me the 'Pie' song from Geneviève de Brabant word for word, though he had not heard it for thirty years." Miss Soldene has noted certain changes in public taste. "As to the general run of girls upon the musical stage," she said, "they are, of course, a different type altogether from the old crowd. The old style of beauty was plump. 'Physique' was the great thing. Now they like them slender and petite and mincing and chirpy. Socially, too, they belong to a much higher class."

"As regards the social position of the old actors generally," says Mrs. Clement Parsons in her amusing book "Garrick and His Circle," "evidence is conflicting. The London patentees and Foote were expected to go to Court, and would on no account have missed a birthday. On the other hand, Arthur Murphy was denied admittance as a barrister by both the Middle and Inner Temple because he had been an actor; and the son of an architect of the Mansion House changed his name when he went on the stage from Dance to Love, in order not to imperil the reputation of his relations. The brothers of this James Love, Nathaniel Dance, afterwards Sir Nathaniel Dance-Holland, and George Dance, R.A., are now remembered for having painted portraits of Garrick and his associates!"

There is a foundation for a triumphant "entertainment of the stage" in the new piece which was produced at the Gaiety last Saturday; and there can be little doubt that, by the application of his usual methods, Mr. George Edwardes will soon have built up The New Aladdin into a complete success. The construction of the second act is sufficiently elastic to allow of "any amount" of interpolation, in addition to the excellent items already supplied; and Mr. Edwardes's clever lyricists and composers are quite equal to the task of providing effective additions.

The chief difference between The New Aladdin and the ordinary musical play is that the spring of action in the Gaiety piece is fantastic and supernatural. The story is commenced in Bond-street, in the shop of one Ebenezer, a dealer in "curios," the uncle of Lally, a young man about town, who has fallen romantically in love with a Princess, the unknown original of a miniature which has come into his possession. The curio-dealer, coming home unexpectedly, finds Lally and a party of his friends revelling on the premises, and turns his nephew out of doors. With him the young man takes a comic page-boy named Tippin, who, before his departure, drops on the ground a valuable vase containing a scroll and a ring—the latter being the Magic Ring of the old Aladdin story. By its aid Lally, Tippin, and Ebenezer are conveyed to the famous palace in Far Cathay, where Lally meets the original of the portrait, and gains possession of the celebrated Lamp, which has lain concealed in the cellar.

Having obtained the all-powerful talisman, the question comes, What is he to do with it? The happy thought occurs to Lally to create an "ideal" London, with the Gaiety Theatre close to the Houses of Parliament, Romano's Restaurant opposite the Burlington Arcade, and picturesque barges sailing over the now azure waters of the Thames. Ebenezer, a Cadi, and a Russian General named Ratz, follow Lally to England, and endeavour to get possession of the Lamp; but they are baulked by the cleverness of the Princess, who secures the talisman, leaving with Lally only a worthless duplicate. Some fun is extracted from the attempts of the curio-dealer, the Cadi, and the General to purchase the lamp from Tippin, and their chagrin when, by some adroit manœuvres, he extracts thousands of pounds from them for the "imitation"; and there is a comical scene when Tippin, unaware that he only holds the duplicate of the real lamp, offers to allow himself to be shot at by a section of General Ratz's soldiers, relying on the magic power of the Genie to secure him from injury.

The old favourites of the Gaiety all work their hardest to make the piece a success. Miss Connie Ediss as the Spirit of the Ring—a personage reminding one a little of the Fairy Queen in Iolanthe—gives full expression to the longing of the solid sylph for mortality and the love of man. Miss Ediss is particularly successful in a song in the second act, in which the Spirit describes her aspirations to fame and renown. The personal and topical hits in this ditty are keenly appreciated, and Miss Ediss reveals dancing powers unimagined by many of her admirers. Mr. George Grossmith, jun., is solemnly quaint as the Genie of the Lamp in the first act, when the Spirit, after the manner of pantomime demons, is hardly to be prevented from expressing himself entirely in rhymed verse. In the second act, Mr. Grossmith "lets himself go," greatly to the delight of the audience. He has a very amusing song, in the treatment of which he is assisted by the chorus, ridiculing the "No-hat" brigade and the hygienic young ladies who are so eager in their abandonment of attire that, as the refrain says, "We wonder what they'll leave off next!" After each verse of a song in the first act, "Rub the lamp," he does a very neat dance, which is admired and applauded. Another item, a song satirising the Smart Set, is illustrated by bits of comedy. Mr. Grossmith appears as the spouse of a card-sharper, and a young married couple are "fleeced" at bridge in the most audacious and absurd manner. Mr. Grossmith works very hard, and must be credited with keeping the ball rolling briskly by his assiduous efforts. Mr. Henry Grattan gives a weird and pallid representation of the relentless Ebenezer, quite dramatic in its icy intensity. Mr. Edmund Payne has another of those plebeian parts in which he excels, and his success is only limited by the opportunities at present afforded to him—opportunities which, we may be certain, will soon be increased. As it is, he makes an excellent impression as the page, and is delightfully droll as the card-sharper already alluded to, and as a weak and inane amateur recitress in another of the illustrations to the "Smart Set" song. Miss Adrienne Augarde's dainty grace and winsome archness are employed with effect in the part of the Princess, and she does some bits of neat and clever comedy acting in the Princess scenes with Lally, besides dancing very prettily and singing the songs allotted to her with sweet expressiveness. Miss Lily Elsie plays the romantic Lally with all the impulsive earnestness required, and with a dash and animation that are inspiriting. She is an agreeable vocalist, and her dancing is a commendable feature of her performance. Miss Olive May, who represents the Cadi's daughter Laolah, is also an accomplished danseuse, as she proves by her pas seul in the first act. Miss Gaby Deslys, a newcomer to the Gaiety "crowd," has a warm welcome, which she wins by her prepossessing appearance, her bright and lively style, and the smart way in which she sings her two songs, the second—"Sur le plage"—which she delivers in bathing attire, being perhaps the more successful, though her first, in which she gives her impressions of London, is crisp and neat. Mlle. Deslys is a valuable acquisition to the feminine attraction of the Gaiety company. Mr. Arthur Hatherton gives an odd, eccentric, and diverting impersonation of the Cadi; and Mr. Robert Nainby, with an extraordinary uniform and a burlesque clicking together of his military heels, is extravagantly funny as the Imperial Aide-de-Camp, General Ratz. A cleverly unconscious and very genuine bit of comedy is contributed by Mr. Alfred Lester, as a Constable who is supposed to be utterly bewildered by the alterations in the topography of London made by the Genie. Mr. Charles Brown does good and careful work as the Ideal Man; and Mr. J. W. Birtley is efficient as a Tax Collector, Miss Jean Aiwyn making a bold, handsome, and alert appearance as Fossette. The New Aladdin is mounted with the exquisite taste to which we are accustomed under the Edwardesian rule, Messrs. Joseph and Phil Harker's "Palace in Far Cathay" being a very beautiful and artistic set, and Mr. Hawes Craven's "Ideal London" scene being both ingenious and effective. Mr. Wilhelm has designed the costumes with his usual skill; and the orchestra, under Mr. Ivan Caryll's direction, does full justice to the compositions of that gentleman and to those of Mr. Lionel Monckton. The music in The New Aladdin is uniformly pretty, and quite suitable to the neat verses of the lyric-writers; the dances arranged by Mr. Harry Grattan do him credit; and Mr. Herbert Cathcart's excellent stage-management has resulted in a smooth and complete entertainment, which only requires "working up" to hold its place on the Gaiety stage for many months to come.

SAVOYARDS IN THE SUBURBS.

On Monday, Oct. 1,
at the Camden Theatre, the Comic Opera,
by W. S. Gilbert and Arthur Sullivan, entitled
"THE MIKADO."

"When the Savoy Theatre closed its doors to comic opera," said Mr. Arthur Poyser in a recent article, "London lost one of its charms. Do we not all of us remember those days of our youth, or younger manhood, when we looked forward to the visit to town—a visit always sure to include an evening of delight in the temple of Gilbert and Sullivan on the Embankment? What first nights those used to be!—we might even see Sullivan himself in the conductor's chair, and, perchance, succeed in bringing Gilbert before the curtain at the end. We heard an entrancing medley of wit, and grace, and sweetest music, and came away feeling that there was at least one theatre in London where a delectable evening could be spent." Silence now broods over the house that once echoed to the laughter and applause evoked by an alliance in art that set the world wondering. We had hitherto taken our lighter music from Paris, and our stage had been deluged with wretched hack adaptations of Offenbach, Hervé, Lecocq, and others who ministered to Parisian gaiety, when Gilbert and Sullivan loomed on the theatrical horizon, and gave us incomparable libretti and the magic of melody in such admirable union that Savoy opera stands unique in its classification. It is not our intention here to write a homily on the degeneration of the public taste, or to deplore the popularity of musical comedy. It is more to the purpose to chronicle the fact of the reappearance within the London cab radius of a company charged—every man and woman of them—with the Savoy traditions, and concerned in representations of Gilbert and Sullivan opera that are giving profound enjoyment to extremely large and enthusiastic audiences at the Camden Theatre. It is a répertoire company that was sent out to South Africa by Mrs. D'Oyly Carte, under the business-management of Mr. H. E. Bellamy, and its return to the suburbs on Monday was celebrated by a packed house, which surrendered itself completely to the delights of the sprightly music and fantastic fun of The Mikado. Mr. François Cellier was in his old place as conductor, and a performance so completely realising the intentions of author and composer, and so perfect in its ensemble, has rarely been heard. Mr. C. H. Workman, who takes up what are known as the Grossmith parts in the répertoire, has not allowed familiarity with his lines to blunt his sense of fun as Ko-Ko, and the odd suggestions in song of the erstwhile "cheap tailor" were, in his keeping, as palpably funny as ever. The famous "Tit-willow" song and the courting scene with Katisha may be singled out as among his many triumphs. Mr. Fred Billington, in imperturbable fashion, brought into droll prominence the comic incongruities of the position of Pooh-Bah, Lord-High Everything Else, and scored a hit in "Let the punishment fit the crime." In the wonderful trio, with its clever versification, that comes towards the end of the opera, Mr. Billington and his coadjutors, Mr. Workman and Mr. Albert Kavanagh (an imposing and mellow-voiced Mikado), showed that they had mastered the art of perfect enunciation, which, judging by the representations at some of our theatres, is not a sine qud non of musical performances. Mr. Pacie Ripple as Nanki-Poo sang the pretty tenor solo, "A wandering minstrel I, a thing of shreds and patches," with suavity and sweetness; and the advent of Yum-Yum (Miss Hope Hastings), Pitti-Sing (Miss Lulu Evans), and Peep-Bo (Miss Mabel Burnege), once more resulted in the singing of the pretty trio, "Three little maids from school are we," which was of course enthusiastically encored. Each of these young ladies acted brightly and fascinatingly. Two of them shared the success of the lovely madrigal with Mr. Pacie Ripple and Mr. Fred Drawater, the last-mentioned being an excellent basso. Miss Theresa Rassam as Katisha, possessing an excellent voice, has also an acute sense of fun, and the high-falutin' of the love-lorn, unattractive maid was quite in the true vein of parody, the music of the part also obtaining complete justice from this experienced and talented artist. Mr. Leicester Tunks acquitted himself ably in the small part of Pish-Tush. The scenery had the atmosphere of the Land of the Chrysanthemum, and the dresses were tasteful. Mr. Robert Arthur, and his popular lieutenant, Mr. Wilfred Stanford, are entitled to the heartiest congratulations on an engagement that so exactly coincides with the wishes of their artistic patrons from Highgate and Hampstead. The much-travelled and courteous Mr. H. E. Bellamy is the business-manager for Mrs. D'Oyly Carte, and the stage-manager Mr. Fred Leon.

THE WEST LONDON.

the Drama, in Five Acts, by George R. Sims and Arthur Shirley, entitled
"TWO LITTLE VAGABONDS."

This fascinating play is always a big attraction in Marylebone, but this week it has broken all records, Mr. Bailey's commodious theatre being packed from floor to ceiling nightly. A vigorous, energetic portrayal of George Thornton is proffered by Mr. William Fazan, who is well received; Mr. Henry Watson distinguishes himself as Captain Darville; Mr. Edmund Cuthbert is well suited as John Scarth; Mr. John F. Traynor as Bill Mullins, alias "The Gaffer," makes the most of his part, and profits accordingly; whilst Mr. Ernest K. Nelson and Mr. Fred Archer deserve favourable mention for Dido Bunce and the Cough-Drop respectively. Miss Laura Hansen acts Marion Thornton with womanly tenderness and sympathetic expression; Miss Mildred Hodson gives a delightful rendering of Barbara Scarth; Miss Muriel Clay does well as Sister Randall, and Miss Marie Pritchard is responsible for a broad and vigorous delineation of Biddy Mullins. The two little vagabonds, Dick and Wally, are sustained in well-nigh faultless style, the Dick of Miss May Hart calling for more than ordinary attention, by reason of its life-like and telling rendering by this experienced actress, who nevertheless is run very closely by Miss Margaret Nybloc, as the unfortunate Wally. The piece is well mounted and staged, Mr. Leo St. Clair being the acting-manager for Hardie and Von Leer

ACTORS DAY.

FIRST CELEBRATION ON OCT. 18.
(By our own commissioner.)

We believe we are right in saying that never before in the history of the stage have actors and actresses combined to the extent numerically, and to the extent enthusiastically, as they have done in the scheme for the establishment of what, we doubt not, will become one of the most powerful and wealthy provident funds that have been established in the United Kingdom. Several thousand persons of both sexes—proprietors, acting and resident managers, and performers—have already notified their intention—not by the legally valueless word of mouth, but by sign manual—of supporting in a practical manner the institution of Actors' Day, by giving up to the fund in connection therewith their salary for one night in each year. It might indeed be said that the degree of approval with which the plan has been welcomed has far exceeded the expectations of the gentlemen in whose minds it originated, and to whose strenuous efforts its present highly satisfactory progression is due. For more than six months the organising committee of the Fund have almost unremittingly devoted their time and attention to the preliminary arrangements necessary for the placing of the affairs of the Fund on a sound basis. That this has been a labour of no small magnitude will be readily understood, and, it is to be hoped, appreciated by all who will, in one way or another, come within the scope of the scheme. Thousands of circulars and other literature dealing with Actors' Day have been sent out to every part of these Isles, hundreds of letters have been written, and scores of discussions and interviews have taken place. The work, as we have already mentioned, has not been light, and the burden of it, borne, as it has been, by the five gentlemen comprising the organising committee, must have at times—taking into consideration that it was of a purely honorary character, and that their ordinary professional occupations could scarcely be wholly neglected—pressed very heavily upon their shoulders, and taxed their mental and physical resources to the utmost.

And the outcome of it all is one for congratulation to the theatrical profession. Actors and actresses are not to wait until next year until they have at command the nucleus of a provident fund for which a superlatively useful and beneficent future is confidently predicted. Great things are expected as the result of Actors' Day, and, indubitably, great things will be accomplished by Actors' Day, provided that the members of the profession will rally to its aid every third Thursday in October of each year. On Oct. 18—that is, the Thursday in the week after next—Actors' Day is to receive that material recognition by members of the profession which will make it, de facto if not de jure, an actually existent and operative institution. We understand that every company on the road playing at the time will be represented at the initiatory performance on behalf of the Actors' Day Fund. It need hardly be assumed by this that every actor and actress, and every touring and resident manager, has intimated his or her agreement to relinquish the individual night's salary, but we are assured that the majority of them have done so. It was not found possible, for reasons which the circumstances and conditions of the professional life will be of themselves adequately explanatory, to enter into negotiations upon the subject with every single member of all the companies. However, there is not the slightest cause for misgiving on this point, because it is felt by those who have the scheme in hand that many persons will fall into line on or before the day set apart for the great general benefit performance, and even those who fail, by any means, to render assistance this year, will most likely do so next year. At the same time, it is most desirable, not merely for the success of the Fund itself, but for the possible personal emergencies that may arise in a calling which, we are told, is associated with variable fortunes, that everybody who is at all cognizant that there is such an institution as Actors' Day should not wait to "see how it pans out," but enter with zeal and promptitude into the work of placing the organisation of Actors' Day upon so firm a basis as to ensure its permanence.

And the benefits which it will be possible to mete out to temporarily distressed members of the profession under this plan of providence, or insurance—for it certainly partakes not of the nature of charity—will be of no exiguous order. It is estimated—and the estimate is by no means a far-fetched one—that the revenue available will be more than sufficient, not only to meet—and meet generously—all emergency claims from actors and actresses and managers who are in immediate want, but to provide pensions for those who have had their names regularly registered in the books of the Fund. It may also be taken for granted that the existing theatrical funds will not be left out of the reckoning, as, according to their respective requirements, these institutions, which have done such good work in the past, will receive favourable treatment under the new scheme.

Most of our readers are acquainted with the principle of Actors' Day, so far as the getting of the money is concerned. Therein the scheme is simplicity itself. You give up your salary for one night. You give it up for your own benefit, if need be, for, having tendered your services in the manner indicated, you can claim as your right, and not as charity, in the event of some slight misfortune overtaking you, a share of what you have yourself helped to accumulate. There will be no question as to the amount of your salary becoming known to anyone connected with the Fund, for only the total receipts of the night's performance will be sent to the London offices, the sum total of all contributions being alone made public. The sums of money sent from each theatre will be known to the trustees only, and no details of individual salaries will be furnished. It may be that you are not playing on Actors' Day. That circumstance, however, would not invalidate your membership of the Fund, or any claim you might feel compelled to make upon it, so long as you have already agreed to the conditions—that of handing over the night's salary in the event of your playing on the evening in question, or, if not, of forwarding, only if you are in a position to do so, a contribution to the Fund.

Many acting-managers, both touring and resident, have signified their intention of giving up their one night's salary each year, in the same manner as the actors will do, and they will greatly assist the Fund by collecting the different amounts from the company and sending the total sum to the trustees. The forms which will be forwarded to London will not state the amount from each member of the company, but will only give the aggregate.

The Actors' Day Fund should be welcomed for another reason, apart from those already submitted. It will do away with the pest of stage-door begging. The solicitant would be asked, "Are you on the register of the Actors' Day list?" If he be on the register, whether he be working on Actors' Day or not, he would be eligible for monetary assistance. Considering the sums of money that are expended by actors and actresses in this casual manner, this point is surely of some significance.

The trustees are responsible gentlemen, who can be said to represent several branches of the profession—actors and managers by Sir Squire Bancroft, authors by Mr. George R. Sims, and the legal aspect of affairs by Sir George Lewis. The organising committee are Mr. Cecil Raleigh, Mr. Norman McKinnel, Mr. Brandon Thomas, Mr. A. E. Drinkwater, and Mr. Acton Bond. Money collected should be sent to the Trustees of the Actors' Day, 10, King-street, Covent Garden, and all other communications to the Organising Committee.

A NATION'S EXPERIMENT.

If we are to accept the old comedy of the eighteenth century and the modern musical and satirical play forming the double-barrelled bill at Terry's Theatre on Saturday evening last as the deliberate choice of Mr. W. H. C. Nation, then his courage. The entertainment commenced with a representation of Thomas Holcrft's old comedy, He's Much to Blame, now compressed into two acts and presented by the following cast:—

Don Von Gosterman .....Mr. Charles Groves
Lord Vibrate .....Mr. W. R. Staveley
Sir George Versatile .....Mr. A. B. Imeson
Mr. Delaval .....Mr. Norman Wrighton
Thompson .....Mr. Campbell Bishop
Boniface .....Mr. Terry Hurst
Jenkins .....Mr. Reginald Grey
Williams .....Mr. Henry Armstrong
Harry .....Miss Iredale Hope
Maria .....Miss Maie Ash
Lady Vibrate .....Miss Alice Barth
Lady Jane .....Miss Elise Cooke
Lucy .....Miss Gladys Archbutt
Maid to Lady Jane ..Miss Eleanor Harwood

Holcroft wrote many plays, most of which have been happily forgotten; and the actor-author who loomed on the political horizon in the troublous decade immediately preceding the dawn of the nineteenth century is now only known through the occasional revival of The Road to Ruin, which Mr. John Galt—who wrote concerning Holcroft in his "Lives of the Players"—considers an "extravagance put together with much skill and acumen." We did not, however, discern either of these qualities in He's Much to Blame; but we hasten to add that the shortened form of the comedy, which was originally in five acts, may be responsible for the absence of clever dialogue or interesting character drawing. Lord Vibrate, of whom we hear and see a good deal in the Holcroft comedy, is for ever halting between two opinions. Never was a nobleman cursed with such hesitancy. His daughter, Lady Jane, has two suitors—Sir George Versatile and Mr. Delaval. The former has had some tender love passages with Maria Delaval, the sister of the latter, and is called to account by the justly indignant brother. Sir George repents of his heartless conduct, and takes Maria—who, by the way, has adopted male costume to be near him—to his arms, and Delaval is assigned to Lady Jane, who seems profoundly indifferent in her choice of a husband. This is all we need say of the plot. Mr. Charles Groves, excellent actor that he is, scarcely succeeded in galvanising into life the foreign quack Don Von Gosterman, but worked bravely and kept things going when an awkward stage wait threatened. Mr. W. R. Staveley may be complimented on his efforts as Lord Vibrate; and heartiness and jollity marked the embodiment of Lady Vibrate by Miss Alice Barth, whom we now see so seldom on the stage. Mr. A. B. Imeson's elegance of manner and clearness of diction served him well in the character of Sir George Versatile; and Mr. Campbell Bishop made effective use of limited opportunities in the character of Thompson. When we take into consideration the fact that Miss Maie Ash's experience has been restricted mainly to the representation of musical comedy we may highly commend her Maria. She looked extremely handsome in the gentleman's costume of the period, but scarcely put on the swaggering air of a young gallant of the latter period of the eighteenth century. Miss Elise Cooke did sufficiently well as Lady Jane; Miss Gladys Archbutt was arch and captivating as the maid Lucy; and Miss Iredale Hope showed ability as the page Harry.

Holcroft's comedy was followed by an entirely new and original musical and satirical play, in two acts, by Arthur Sturgess, entitled

"YELLOW FOG ISLAND."

Dysma .....Mr. Campbell Bishop
Sir Precedent Poskins .....Mr. Robson Paige
Simkins .....Mr. A. B. Imeson
Rolls .....Miss Elise Cooke
Princess Lucy .....Miss Maie Ash
Dame Madge .....Miss Alice Barth
Zorah .....Miss Iredale Hope
Dolly .....Miss Gladys Archbutt

The musical attractions of this "satire" consist mostly of songs, by W. H. C. Nation, imitated by that gentleman from those of another "nation"—the French. The story concerns a certain King Dysma, the fifth monarch of Beata, who has come to "Yellow Fog Island"—a clear indication that England is meant—for the purpose of acquiring information regarding our institutions. He is courteously received by the Lord Mayor of Yellow Fog Town, who is desirous of introducing him to various personages celebrated in the Army, the Church, and the Peerage. None of these well-known people turn up; but, nothing daunted, my Lord Mayor employs Simkins—his private secretary and general factotum—to impersonate them. A slight underplot revolves round the love affairs of Rolls, a young baker, and the Princess Lucy, daughter of the enlightened dusky potentate, whose "platitudinous"—we are quoting from the libretto—lectures are somewhat tedious. In this curious concoction Miss Elise Cooke made a favourable impression by her singing; Mr. A. B. Imeson displayed no little ability in the part of the secretary Simkins, his Fregoli-like impersonations being decidedly amusing, though occasionally verging on caricature. The pastoral dance of Miss Gladys Archbutt had much of the vigour and character of the American jig; Miss Maie Ash looked sweet and danced prettily as Princess Lucy; Miss Alice Barth was a droll Dame Madge; and Mr. Robson Paige made comic capital out of the part of the Lord Mayor. The dresses, by Hyman, of Leicester-square, were tasteful, and an excellent sample of Mr. Cecil Hicks's brushwork was found in the country scene illustrating the second act of the musical satire. Mr. Napoleon Lambelet, who conducted, composed the choruses, and was responsible for the arrangement of the music.

The jubilee of the Tonic Sol-Fa festivals at the Crystal Palace will be celebrated next summer, and all taking part in the proceedings will receive a commemoration medal. Mr. J. S. Curwen is preparing a souvenir book, and will be glad to have the reminiscences of those who sang at the first concert in 1857.

Mr. Harry Lyons, who has been Mr. Sounes' general-manager for some time, is also looking after the resident-management of the Prince's Theatre, Poplar, pending the appointment of an acting-manager.

Mme. Suzanne Adams has joined the San Carlo Opera Company for the autumn season at Covent Garden, and makes her first appearance on Monday, as Michaela, in Carmen.

Mr. W. Payne Seddon has purchased the No. 3 and fit-up rights of The Night of the Party, which he will tour at Christmas with The Private Secretary.

Mr. Reuben Morr's concert party has just concluded an eighteen weeks' successful engagement on Hastings Pier.

Miss Edna May will gladden the hearts of her London admirers by her reappearance at Christmas. No definite announcement can be made with regard to the play chosen, but it will be an entirely new musical piece; and the theatre will be one of the playhouses under Mr. Charles Frohman's present control.

(COPYRIGHT.)

In these columns it is proposed to give a strictly alphabetical arrangement of the titles of plays produced during the last fifty years. It will be the most complete list ever published, and should prove invaluable to authors desiring to discover whether a certain title has ever been used, and when. To members of the dramatic profession it will be useful in determining the dates of plays in which they have achieved successes. Our readers are politely requested to advise us of any omission or inaccuracy which they may notice.

This list as soon as complete will be published in cheap book form

MISS DOT STEPHENS' SAD CASE.

Miss Doris Stephens, best known in the professional world as Dot Stephens, a very clever vocalist and dancer, met with a terrible accident late on the Saturday night of June 30. She had fulfilled an engagement at H.M. Theatre of Varieties at Walsall, and left the same night to go to Glasgow, where she was to have appeared the following week. On reaching Wolverhampton she had to wait some time to join the midnight mail on the London and North-Western line, and there met some professional friends. She went to the Hippodrome, Wolverhampton, and was afterwards accompanied to the High Level Station by a gentleman, who secured her a seat in a second-class compartment, and saw that the door on the platform side was properly fastened before the train started. On reaching Fordhouses, about three miles from Wolverhampton, the unfortunate young lady was found lying in the six foot way in an unconscious state, and terribly injured. She was conveyed to the Wolverhampton station, and thence to the General Hospital. She was found to be seriously lacerated about the head and body.

So sad a case has rarely, if ever, been brought before the dramatic and musical profession, whose record abounds in deeds of charity. The name of Miss Stephens is now to be added to the already full scroll of benevolent actions.

Miss Stephens was a clever vocalist, dancer, and actress, and first appeared with Mr. Bannister Howard as the Salvation Army lass in The Belle of New York, remaining with the company three years. She then joined Mr. George Dance for the part of Mrs. Pineapple in A Chinese Honeymoon and afterwards Mr. C. P. Levilly, understudying Miss Stella Gastelle as Alesia in La Poupée, a part she subsequently played, and was to resume in the autumn in Mr Herbert Ralland's company, lately on tour.

It is intended to purchase an annuity for Miss Stephens, whose terrible misfortune has already excited the greatest commiseration.

All subscriptions will be duly acknowledged in these columns. Subscriptions may be sent to Mr. J. Bannister Howard, Hon. Treasurer, 3, Bedford-street, Strand, W.C.; to the "Dot Stephens Fund," at the Capital and Counties Bank, King-street, Covent Garden; or to the Assistant Hon. Treasurer, Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, The Era Office, 5, Tavistock street, W.C.

Miss Ellen Terry sends a subscription, with these womanly and sympathetic words :—"For the poor child Dot Stephens, with loving sympathy from Ellen Terry."

Miss Edna May writes :—"I am more grieved than I can say over this dreadfully sad case. I have sent to all my friends; have also asked for assistance from The Belle of Mayfair company, and hope to be able to send you a good sum by Friday or Saturday. I don't remember ever having heard of anything so sad as this little girl's accident. Please let me know if I can do anything else."

Miss May Lewis encloses a cheque, and writes :—"I cannot tell you how glad I am to see that the poor unfortunate lady's case has been taken up. It has my most sincere sympathy."

Mr. Chas. E. Machin accompanies his cheque with the following note :—"I beg to enclose my little cheque for the Dot Stephens Fund. It is a terrible calamity."

Mr. Martin Harvey.—"I have much pleasure in sending you a cheque for £1 1s. for your admirable fund for the poor little lady."

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

The first annual outing of the staff of the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, under the present management, took place on Sunday, to Brighton. The party, numbering close upon fifty, left New Cross in reserved carriages shortly before nine, arriving at London-by-the-Sea at 10.20. The weather being gloriously fine, trips were made to Shoreham, Bramber Castle, Black Rock, &c., and dinner was partaken of at Chatfield's Hotel, where excellent arrangements had been made. In responding to the toast of "The Firm," which had been drunk with great enthusiasm, Mr. Will T. Taylor stated how Messrs. W. and F. Melville deeply regretted their inability to be present that day, as pressure of work was so heavy. The stage-manager, Mr. Tom Taylor, added, with his customary geniality, a few eloquent remarks, and the health of the popular acting-manager, Mr. Will T. Taylor, upon whom devolved the organisation of the outing, was drunk with acclamation. The party returned home to New Cross by 8.40, having all enjoyed what was really a red-letter day in the history of the theatre.

Mr. Arthur Collins, in describing the production of Cinderella in Paris, said : "The Paris workmen learned their lesson well, and if they had not been mismanaged I am sure that last night's success would have been greater than it was." Here we have expert opinion as to the value of a competent stage staff, under skilled management.

Further on, Mr. Collins expresses his pleasure at the good work done by the scene-shifters, actors, and actresses. It is not often that complimentary references are made to the scene-shifters in the order quoted. They are usually mentioned last, if at all. Mr. John Hinton, the master carpenter at the "Lane," the electrician, and Mr. Bruce Smith, the scenic artist, accompanied Mr. Collins to assist the management in Paris.

Mr. Frank Harrison, who was recently master carpenter of the Sunday company, has been appointed master carpenter at the New Theatre, in succession to Mr. G. Bailey.

It is proposed that the baggage-men attached to music halls be asked to wear the badge of the Variety Artists' Federation in their cap, and if the V.A.F. succeeds in establishing a fair rate of remuneration for this class of employees, the suggestion is certain to be adopted. In many cases the baggage-man receives no wage from the management; in other cases the pay is as low as 2s 6d. per week, being merely sufficient to make the man, in the eye of the law, a servant, and subject to the control of the management as such. It is understood that the recent letter published by Mr. Adney Payne was not intended to refer to those who are engaged in the occupation to which we are now referring. It is, of course, recognised that the baggage-man depends upon the tips of the artists, but why remuneration for such services should be described as a "tip" is one of those things that have no explanation.

On the occasion of the first night at Terry's Theatre a zealous member of the staff was disclosed on the stage among the members of the company as they took their third "call" in Yellow Fog Island. His rush off caused some amusement, and even the Lord Mayor of "Yellow Fog Island" could scarcely forbear to smile. The accident brings to mind the late Sir Henry Irving's humorous reference to these unrehearsed incidents. He said : "The stage-carpenter, you know, does not figure in the public eye—at least, he shouldn't—though the rapid rise of the curtain has sometimes been known to disclose his manly form to the national gaze. I believe that on such rare and memorable occasions he has received the tribute of a hearty cheer." Needless to say, it was not the master carpenter at Terry's who took the "call" with the company; much as he may deserve one, he is far too modest to make such an appearance.

The committee arranging the annual concert in aid of the stage staff societies' benevolent funds are meeting weekly, and they hope to issue an announcement next week, giving particulars of the arrangements made.

PROMENADE CONCERTS.

The chief feature in the programme of the Queen's Hall promenade concert on Wednesday evening was Dvorák's Symphony No. 5 in E minor ("From the New World"). In this remarkable work, in which the chief themes are based on negro melodies, Dvorák endeavoured to found a national school of American music, and Messrs. Percy Pitt and A. Kalisch's analytical notes give a good idea how the composer in the Adagio, Allegro, Largo, and the finale (Allegro Confurco) has succeeded in carrying out his original idea. Full justice was done to this characteristic, even if somewhat lengthy, symphony by Mr. Wood's fine orchestra, and the applause and rapt attention given to the performance by the large audience only shows how seriously the general public are regarding musical matters. The orchestra also gave a brilliant rendering of Berlioz's overture "Le Carnaval Romain," Moszkowski's "Krakowiak" No. 4 (Op. 55), and the "Raymond" overture by A. Thomas, which was conducted by Mr. Henry Verbrugghen. Mr. Frederick Stock, a member of the orchestra, was warmly applauded for his able performance of the solo instrument in Mendelssohn's Concerto in E minor for violin and orchestra; and the Misses Mathilde and Adela Verne were heard to great advantage in Bach's delightful Concerto in C major for two pianofortes and orchestra. The talented sisters also gave the Staccato Study, by Rubinstein, which was arranged for two pianos by Miss Adela Verne. On the vocal side of the programme, Miss Maud Santley sang "In Haven," "Where Corals Lie," and "Sabbath Morn at Sea" (three sea pictures by Edward Elgar), and later in the concert Roeckel's "Angus MacDonald"; and Mr. Percy Rhodes gave Lohengrin's Narration, from Wagner's Lohengrin, with artistic expression. Mr. Fredk. B. Kiddle was the accompanist and organist.

A few years ago M. Affre, the well-known Paris Opéra tenor built a villa in Cabourg to spend the summer. His example was followed by M. Poncet, a police-court magistrate, who presides over the eighth Chamber. In the course of time an interest in local municipal affairs was developed in both, and both decided to become candidates for election to the Municipal Council in that little watering-place. The inhabitants of the place are rather religiously inclined, and it seemed probable that they would prefer the gentleman on the Bench to the gentleman on the Boards. But the election has just taken place, M. Affre polling 172 votes and M. Poncet only 142. The good people of Cabourg, after all, preferred a tenor to a judge.

Mr. John Coates, the famous actor-vocalist, who has distinguished himself in Sir Edward Elgar's new oratorio, The Kingdom, which was the chief feature of the Birmingham Musical Festival, relates a droll experience concerning a company he took into the "smalls." On the first night there was a large audience, which enthusiastically applauded the show, but the town boasted no daily newspaper, so Mr. Coates was unable to read at breakfast the opinion of the local critic. During the morning he looked in at the hall, and found an old man sweeping the floor. "Well, marn," said Mr. Coates, in his broadest Yorkshire, "what did you think of the show last night?" "Didn't see it, maister, for I went to bed." "Have you heard whether the townspeople liked it?" inquired the anxious manager. "I ain't heerd no complaints as yet," replied the old gentleman, tartly.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

W. J. C.—When The Sorrows of Satan was produced at the Shaftesbury, Jan. 9, 1897, the cast included Messrs. Lewis Waller, Yorke Stephens, E. O'Neill, and John Beauchamp; Mrs. Saker; and Misses Granville and B. Sheridan.

Dromio.—Pink Dominos was produced at the Criterion, March 31, 1877, and ran until December, 1878. It was revived there on Oct. 10, 1892, and ran for seven weeks.

G. R. D.—This is a question of fact, and if they can prove that the money is owing they will no doubt recover.

Comique.—Mr. Gus Elen appeared at the Empire, Leicester-square, in 1894. His engagement was for three months.

Nomad.—We can find no record of his death.

T. K.—Miss Lily Hanbury was the original representative of Julia Topliff in Meadowsweet, at the Vaudeville Theatre.

Tony.—My Sweetheart, by William Gill and Fred Maeder, was originally produced in America. Its first London production was at the Grand, Islington, Sept. 17, 1883, when the principal parts were played by T. J. Hawkins, J. G. Wood, Graham Wentworth, Ben Greet, Haldane Crichton, Charles Arnold; and Misses Jane Grey, Helen Carroll, and Minnie Palmer.

H. W.—Yes; at the Princess's Theatre, in 1902.

H. S. M.—They are not obliged to give you the information you require

Edward Brooks.—You are at liberty to adopt any professional name, provided it does not clash with that of any other artist.

Hubert Bartlett.—A Pair of Lunatics, to which our correspondent referred, was evidently being played under another name. It is quite an old duologue. We have known it for at least twenty years. Of course, the root idea of the piece can be treated in different ways.

V. M. Burnaby.—Amateur dramatic performances are given by various clubs at St. George's Hall, Langham-place, the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell, and the Brixton Hall, Acre-lane, at any of which places you might make inquiries; or else consult "Douglas's Directory of Amateur Clubs."

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Annual again makes its welcome appearance. I say welcome because, as a work of theatrical reference, it is always handy to have in the house—or office. In this connection I am glad to note that the lists of play-productions for the past year are given in better type and altogether in a much clearer manner. As of yore, there are sundry stories in prose and verse. The best of these include "Stage Superstitions," by Charles Warner; "Boy Bob at Sea," a poem by Louie Freear; "The Last Muster," a weird tragic military story, by Mr. Joseph Wilson, who has been a soldier himself; and "Nellie Bligh's Notices," a capital theatrical story, by Mr. Frank Desprez.—Referee, Jan. 28, 1906.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,
BY
ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as the "Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters, respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr. J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr. Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise, it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr. A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman.

PLAYREADING IN PARIS.

The recent decision of M. JULES CLARETIE, the manager of the Comédie Française, calls attention to the changes which have taken place in the customs of that body within the last thirty years. M. CLARETIE had received a play called Le Foyer, written by M. OCTAVE MIRBEAU, the author of the original of Business is Business, and a collaborator. Amongst the characters in Le Foyer was an Academician, who was represented as leading a very base and disgraceful life. Out of respect for the Academy, M. CLARETIE refused the piece; whereupon the authors applied for redress to the Minister of Public Instruction, who, in France, is the head of theatrical government. The authors desired to appeal from M. CLARETIE'S decision to the sociétaires of the Française, who thereupon began to hope for a revival of the Reading Committee, which had long been abolished. This hope seems little likely to be realised. Le Foyer has been accepted at the Renaissance Theatre, and the aggrieved authors have been commissioned to write another play for the house of MOLIERE.

The Reading Committee of that theatre was a body unique in its way. The reading of a play to the committee of the Comédie Française in the days of NAPOLEON Premier was an event of importance in the little world of the theatre. The members assembled in a noble apartment hung with pictures of LOUIS QUATORZE, CORNEILLE, RACINE, and REGNARD—heirlooms of the Comédie. In the middle of the room was a table covered with green cloth. Here the members of the committee were entitled to sit; and as the body included such artists as RACHEL, BROHAN, REGNIER, and SAMSON, the jury was a rather formidable one. M. ARSENE HOUSSAYE, who was for some time the manager of the Comédie Française, gives an amusing description of one of these readings:

The proceedings are opened. The author unfolds his manuscript, and attempts to mesmerise his listenters with a look.

"'Gentlemen and ladies,' he says, bowing to them, 'the comedy which I'll have the honour to read to you is entitled La Niaise (The Simpleton).'

"'Who's going to play the part?' asks Mlle. Brohan, looking at everyone.

"'Don't be alarmed,' says M. Mazères, for he happens to be the author on that day; 'this simpleton hides her game, for she's very sharp-witted.'

"'Then it's you, Brohan,' says Anaïs.

"'I?' replies Brohan. 'I hide nothing at all; it's rather Mlle. Denain.'

"'Do you think that I look like a simpleton, madame?'

"'On the contrary, seeing that you hide your game (i.e., conceal your talent).'

"'Hush!' says Provost, taking a pinch of snuff, 'hush, we are not "on" just now.'"

And so the reading goes on. There is a cross-fire of epigram on all sides; the director, who has not a bell, uses his hand instead to demand silence; Mlle. BROHAN offers Mlle. DENAIN some sweetmeats to atone for her witty but spiteful sally; Mlle. JUDITH sniffs at her flowers; BEAUVALLET, who has no part nor lot in M. MAZERES' plays, draws a caricature of the prefect. The latter begins to read in an official tone. He is evidently under the impression of presiding at an agricultural meeting; he emphasises each quasi-epigram; unfortunately he has forgotten to put wit into them. At the third scene, Mlle. ANAIS, who is very sly and clever, and who will not play "The Simpleton," asks whether the piece is in verse. M. MAZERES, who has not the least notion that he is being chaffed, replies that, in order to keep closer to the truth, he has written his piece in prose. The director calls Mlle. ANAIS to order. M. MAZERES continues. He is under the impression that his audience is a very cold one; but he is sure to break the ice, for he has no misgivings about his genius. No more has M. SAMSON, who dozes off in a vague little way.

"Mlle. Rachel looks hopelessly at the portrait of Molière, and says to Geffroy, who sits next to her, 'How bored he seems to be.'

"'I should think so, indeed,' whispers Brohan. 'It's bore in five acts.'

"'And he doesn't get a fee for listening, as we do,' concludes Judith.

"The director frowns. The scenes of the comedy succeed each other amidst a glacial silence. M. Mazères turns to me.

"'I am rather hoarse to-day, and reading very badly, I'm afraid.'

"'Not at all; on the contrary, you are really acting your piece.'

"'And such a twopenny piece,' mutters Beauvallet.

"M. Mazères, who is getting fidgety amidst all these whispers, reaches the end of his first act at last, while all his characters have been falling flat like so many cardboard figures. Regnier has not uttered a syllable; but, more cruel than the others, he wants to time the agony, and now he pulls out his watch.

"'You don't seem to be very much amused,' says Mazères, somewhat tetchily.

"'We'll talk about that at the finish. I was merely looking at my watch to see how long the first act would play.'

"The reply encourages M. Mazères; he attacks the second act without touching his glass of sweetened water.

BROHAN changes her seat, in the faint hope, perhaps, that M. MAZERES will change his tone. SAMSON has waked up for the other act. PROVOST gives him his snuffbox. ANAIS is munching sweetmeats. BEAUVALLET, who has finished his caricature, hands it to GEFFROY, who hides it under his hat. It represents MAZERES as a prefect. They have caught a glimpse of the portrait and are laughing. MAZERES is pleased, for he thinks they are laughing at his piece. The laughter continues, and he himself laughs. During the whole of the second act the laughter is kept up; at the end, the author, pleased with himself and his listeners, sips the glass of water.

"'You have noticed,' he says, 'that the second act explains the first, and lays the foundations for the third.' After which he plunges, as it were, into the third act. The laughter continues. They laugh because there isn't a sentence suggestive of laughter. They whisper to each other that it is the wit of a prefect of the third class. And MAZERES himself laughs also. The laughter is kept up till the end; MAZERES is cocksure of his success.

"The committee votes: five white balls and three black ones. We shall be compelled to play The Simpleton."

PROMENADES AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.

The first of the season of Promenade Concerts was given at the Crystal Palace on Wednesday, when a large audience availed themselves of the opportunity of enjoying a well-selected programme of music. A large portion of the seats in the Centre Transept, where the concert took place, were free, and all these were occupied, while many others walked round the extensive arena, which was made very attractive by the fine floral exhibits of the National Chrysanthemum Society, which held its annual show this week. The instrumental portions of the concert were supplied by the Crystal Palace Military Band, conducted by Mr. Herbert Godfrey, which opened the proceedings with a spirited rendering of the Overture from Mendelssohn's Ruy Blas. The vocalists were Miss Edith Evans and Mr. Julien Henry, the latter of whom sang a ballad, "King Winter," by Florence Aylward, given for the first time. It has a striking melody, and was delivered by Mr. Henry in such manner as to gain him an encore. Mr. Henry's final contribution, the "Border Ballad," also left the audience well pleased, the martial characteristics of Cowen's stirring song being well emphasised. Miss Evans, a mezzo-soprano of great range and power, quite filled the vast auditorium with her singing of "A Song of Thanksgiving," by Frances Allitsen, responding to the enthusiastic encore with "If I built a world for you." Again was Miss Evans heard in a couple of graceful songs by Liddle, "To tell thee how I love" and "In My Garden," which she rendered with exquisite expression and taste. Miss Evans sings with admirable breadth and vigour, and the bell-like qualities of her voice are pleasingly apparent. The ballads were agreeably interspersed by performances by the Crystal Palace Band, who well sustained their reputation. A selection from Gounod's Faust was greatly appreciated, and the rendering of Sullivan's "Thou'rt passing hence" gained great applause, as did also the playing of Viviani's inspiring processional march "The Silver Trumpets," which is so celebrated a feature of St. Peter's at Rome.

COVENT GARDEN BALL.

If other signs were wanting of the arrival of autumn we should be reminded of it by the first fancy dress ball of the season at the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, under the experienced direction of Messrs. Frank Rendle and Neil Forsyth. This took place on the night of the 28th ult., when the large and handsome theatre presented a scene of brilliancy and animation that augured well for another successful series of balls, one of the chief attractions of which are the varied fancy costumes worn by the dancers. Amongst the dresses which attracted special attention was one illustrative of the movements of the King. Of white satin, with mauve chiffon underskirts, it was trimmed with hand-painted panels showing King Edward in Marienbad, Doncaster, and even at Aberdeen. On a cloak of shaded satin was depicted the great banquet at the "Granite City," while a head-dress of the Royal crown, surmounted with the Prince of Wales's feathers, and a Court veil, completed the tout ensemble. Another dress, "Electricity," was very noticeable. It was made in the Princess style in electric-shaded sequins, the underskirt of chiffon bearing devices illustrative of the progress of electricity, on the shoulder a small electric car, while the massive head-dress glowed with electric lights. Mr. Dan Godfrey's admirable orchestra occupied its usual place on the stage; and, as usual, valuable prizes were offered by the management for the best and most original costumes.

Mr. W. Clarkson gained the first prize (second series) for ladies' dresses with "Events in a Sovereign's Life," also the first prize for gentlemen's dresses with "The Scotch Mail." He was awarded other prizes for "Electricity" (4th prize), "Witch," "Souvenirs," "The Last Post," &c., this bringing his record of first prizes to 123, a notable achievement for the popular "Willie."

MR. LENNOX BARRY is to be congratulated upon the successful result of the Coker benefit matinée, which he organised at the Hounslow Hippodrome last week. Despite the very short notice and the limited seating capacity of the house, the receipts amounted to £25, and Mr. Barry desires through these columns to thank all the artists who so kindly gave their services on that occasion.

PARIS, THURSDAY, OCT. 4.—The book of the pantomime of Cinderella has been literally translated from the English text, and no fault can be found with the adaptation. The cast was a strong one. Mlle. Dorgère sang at times a little flat, but she looked so pretty and acted so sprightly that we attached little importance to this detail. She has something of the voice and the intonation of Mme. Jane Hading, and evidently cultivates that lady's style. It was Mlle. Jeanne Petit who impersonated Cinderella. She is an excellent vocalist, and I should not be surprised if we had occasion to applaud her one of these days on one of our lyric stages. M. Mayol is the well-known music-hall star. He was the attraction at the Scala and the Ambassadeurs, and as Dandy scored a huge success. M. Poggi—a sort of French Dan Leno—and M. Morton, both first-class artists, were also intensely droll.

M. Lucien's new piece is in many respects incomplete; the dialogue frequently drags, but the work is nevertheless interesting because it supplies a curious study of that greatest of all mysteries—a woman's heart. The plot is not complicated. Pierre Boissy, a Sub-Prefect in a small provincial town, is the husband of Yvonne, whom he loves and who adores him. Pierre, before his marriage, has been a kind of Don Juan; his intrigues have been numerous, and his liaison with an actress from the Comédie-Française was known to everybody. Yvonne is justly proud of her handsome husband, but, somewhat cold and reticent, she does not always appear as loving as she feels. The Boissys' intimate friends are M. and Mme. Mareil. M. Mareil is a wealthy champagne-grower, and his wife, Marthe, one of Yvonne's school chums. Pierre admires Marthe for her beauty, but is not otherwise attracted towards her. Marthe, on the other hand, has fallen violently in love with Pierre, and in a strong scene—one of the best in the play—frankly declares her passion for him. Pierre is not proof against this declaration, and the two fall into one another's arms. Yvonne's suspicions, however, are awakened. She questions her husband, who, as may be expected, denies everything. When, however, she interrogates Marthe, the latter pluckily, and without any hesitation, confesses the truth. Stunned by this blow, the outraged Yvonne at once leaves her house to apply for a divorce. Marthe and Pierre, therefore, have a clear field, especially as Marthe's husband is absent on business. Fortunately, Pierre has an uncle, old Gazeran, a Cabinet Minister, who does not want his nephew to ruin his career and his social position in a commonplace love adventure. He brings Yvonne back to the house, and she shows herself so fascinating that Pierre, who succumbed through vanity and really loves Yvonne, is only too happy to be pardoned. He does not want to see Marthe again, and he and his wife start for the Pyrenees. This reconciliation between husband and wife falls like a thunderbolt on Marthe. More than ever in love with Pierre, she discovers whither he has gone, and starts off at once. Her interview with Pierre is painful. Pierre, who pities the woman, speaks to her of his affection for her, but there is a false ring in his voice, and Marthe understands that Pierre's love is all for Yvonne. She says farewell to him, and the next thing he hears is that she has committed suicide. The interpretation was capital. There are only two important woman's rôles, those of the women who fight for the possession of Pierre; and they were impersonated by Mlle. Dorziat (a charming Yvonne) and Mme. Mégard (a pathetic and passionate Marthe). MM. Gauthier and Lérand were admirable, the first as the indolent Pierre, the other as the shrewd and mundane old Cabinet Minister.

MM. FELIX LAGRANGE and DAUMERIE, directors of the Théâtre Trianon, have dissolved partnership. M. Daumerie will be most likely engaged at the Odéon, and M. Lagrange retains the sole management of the Trianon.

AT Antoine's they are busy rehearsing Les Gaietés de l'Escadron, the witty piece by M. Courteline, which has scored already such a huge success, and wherein M. Gémier interpreted the rôle of the old General. The first novelty there will be Biribi, by M. Darien, founded on the work of that name, which describes the sufferings of the wretched soldiers in the so-called "régiments de discipline" in Africa. Then follows Chez les Zoacques, by M. Sacha Guitry, the son of the famous actor-manager of the Renaissance. We are also promised Anna Karanine, an adaptation of Tolstoi's well-known novel.

AT Clerkenwell Sessions, on the 28th ult., William Mackenzie Frazer, a mining engineer, pleaded guilty to having obtained credit to the amount of £37 7s. from Alfred Hays, theatrical librarian, Royal Exchange-buildings, without informing him that he was an undischarged bankrupt. Prosecuting counsel said that in 1892 the prisoner was adjudicated bankrupt and again in 1894, and on neither occasion was any dividend paid to the creditors. For the third time he was made a bankrupt in November last, and in the course of the inquiry it was found that he had changed his name from "William Frazer" to "William Mackenzie Frazer." The prisoner was in the habit of getting boxes and stalls for theatres from Mr. Hays, and in May, 1904, he booked at 35 guineas a box at the grand stand, Epsom, for the Derby, but the bill was never met. Other cases in which the accused had obtained credit having been cited, he was sentenced to four months' hard labour.

PARISIAN entrepeneurs have been dilating in a French contemporary on the troubles that beset their path. M. Gailhard, the director of the Opéra, laments the fact that he arrives at his office at one o'clock in the afternoon and does not leave until one o'clock in the morning. M. Carré, of the Opéra Comique, regrets that there are too many composers of talent and not enough openings for them. He considers that a third lyric theatre is necessary. M. Porel finds fault with the facility with which "stars" can betake themselves abroad, while M. Franck writes down actors as great babies. One director there is who is content with his lot, namely, M. Jules Clarétie, of the Comédie-Française, who says: "My artists are all very nice, very amiable, and I like them very much."

"LURED TO LONDON."

A Drama, in Four Acts, by Edward Thane, produced at the New King's Theatre, Hoxton, on Monday, Oct. 1.

Rev. Leslie Carrington ....MR. RONALD ADAIR
Geoffrey Carrington .....MR. MURRAY YORKE
Jake Gamble .....MR. EDWARD THANE
P.C. Christopher Coppard..MR. HORACE BUCKLEY
Abe Sterling .....MR. HARRY BRISTOW
Squire Carrington .....MR. FRED BOUSTEAD
B. G. Stuart .....MR. RALPH ROYAL
Lily Sterling .....MISS LOUISE HAMPTON
Constance Stuart .....MISS LOUIE BRANDON
Rosannah Lovejoy .....MISS NELL INGRAM
Natty.....MISS KATIE NEVILLE

Mr. Edward Thane, who, by the way, is a capable character-actor, has before now given us evidence of his ability as a writer of sensational drama. He is the author of The Mockery of Marriage, The Slave of Sin, and Every Inch a Man, all of which have attained some degree of success on tour. In his latest piece, Lured to London, Mr. Thane tells an interesting story, in which at times we get quite a Dickensonian touch. The Rev. Leslie Carrington, "the people's parson," as he is nicknamed, is in love with Constance Stuart, and Constance, be it known, is in love with him. Leslie is anxious to relinquish his comfortable living in a country village in order to go forth into the slums of London, and there minister to folk who are really in need of all the moral and material assistance they can get. Constance's father, however, objects to Leslie taking his daughter into places where darkness and wickedness prevail, and gives that as a reason for opposing the marriage. However, Leslie carries out his determination, and he accordingly quits the village. And here, it should be mentioned, that Leslie is the heir of his uncle, Squire Carrington, who has practically disowned his blackguard son Geoffrey. At the Squire's death one Jake Gamble, a local wrong 'un who combines the trade of canal boatman with that of the profession of burglar, arranges with Natty, a boy, to steal the will. This, of course, puts matters right for Geoffrey. The latter lures Lily Sterling, the daughter of the local blacksmith, away from home, and contrives to get the blame for the deed fixed upon the parson. To cut the story short, Geoffrey enters into possession of his father's estates, and Leslie is so disgraced as to be compelled to leave his church. Finding that Lily may turn out troublesome, Geoffrey takes her to his accomplice, Jake, in the hope that the latter, who as a rule is a very accommodating person, and will hardly stop at anything, will put the girl out of the way. Jake refuses. Sterling eventually tracks his daughter to the old shanty by the canal, which forms Jake's headquarters. The girl attempts to escape, an effort to murder her is made by Geoffrey, she is rescued by her father—fight between him and Geoffrey—Sterling stunned and thrown into canal—rescued by Leslie, who also has been seeking the girl. Lily Sterling is placed on board a canal boat laden with petroleum, which is set fire to by Geoffrey. In imminent danger again, the girl is saved from the inferno by Leslie. In trying to escape Geoffrey is himself killed by the very means of destruction which he had planned for others. Of course, everything now comes to a happy conclusion.

The play, on the whole, is well presented, and the scenes are adequate for the purposes to which they will be put. So far as the cast is concerned, Mr. Ronald Adair impresses one with his virile impersonation of the Rev. Leslie Carrington, whose sturdy Christianity is a strong contrast to many of the effeminate types of clergymen that have been placed before us on the stage so often. Miss Louie Brandon quite takes one's fancy with her charming portrayal of the heroine, and her enunciation is sweet and clear. Mr. Murray Yorke is sufficiently objectionable as Geoffrey Carrington; and Mr. Edward Thane gives us an admirable sketch of a rough Bill Sikes sort of character in Jake Gamble. Miss Louise Hampton is dainty and engaging as Lily Sterling; and Miss Nell Ingram treats the house to a delightful study of Rosannah Lovejoy. A clever boy impersonator is found in Miss Katie Neville, who creditably acquits herself in the rôle of Natty. Mr. Fred Boustead is distinctly good as Squire Carrington, and the same remark may be said to apply to the blacksmith of Mr. Harry Bristow, the constable of Mr. Horace Buckley, and the heroine's father of Mr. Ralph Royal. Comedy is not lacking in the play, and in this department Messrs. Buckley and Thane and Miss Neville distinguish themselves.

NEW EDINBURGH THEATRE.

The new theatre at the corner of Leven-street and Tarvit-street, Edinburgh, will, it is expected, be opened in December next. The exterior is practically completed. The building has a frontage of 84 feet towards Leven-street, and 170 feet towards Tarvit-street, and presents a handsome appearance, the outer walls being built of red sandstone, taken from the Closeburn Quarry, Dumfriesshire. The principal façade towards Leven-street is symmetrically designed in a free treatment of the Italian Renaissance style. The central feature is the principal entrance, which is flanked by shafts having enriched Ionic capitals, surmounted by a central arch, the key-block of which carries a balcony supporting the central oriel window, two floors in height, and capped with an ornamental domed stone roof. The crowning central pediment is carried by twin engaged columns with elaborately carved Ionic capitals. These columns rest on piers on which are carved the lion rampant on crowned escutcheons. The windows on the second floor are capped with carved pediments, while the main wall-head is finished with a stone balustrade divided by panelled dies, which are supported by carved corbels, sculptured to represent Tragedy and Comedy. The Tarvit-street elevation is finished in a plainer manner, but is quite effective in its treatment, and has a pleasing appearance. It is proposed to erect ornamental verandahs at all the entrances and exits.

The principal entrances are from Leven-street, and a feature is the main central entrance-hall, which is about 33 feet by 20 feet. The decorative plaster work of this part of the building is being completed, and gives an idea of the elaborate and artistic manner in which the interior will be treated. The entrance to the pit floor and the galleries is from Tarvit-street, and a new feature in the planning of the theatre is the provision of narrow passage-ways formed at each of the entrances for the purpose of giving admittance at the early doors. The pit floor is 60 feet in width, and the back wall is about 70 feet distant from the curtain line. The dress circle will have eight rows of chairs, every one giving a direct view of the stage. In the second tier, the family circle, there are seven rows of seats, while the gallery will have fourteen rows. Eighteen boxes are being provided, nine on each side of the stage, arranged in three tiers. In the present condition of the building it is possible to fall in with the architects' view that there is not a seat in the house that has not an undisturbed view of the stage. The auditorium will give comfortable seating accommodation to 2,500 persons, representing one of the largest theatres in the provinces. The stage is 66 feet in width by 50 feet deep, and here, as elsewhere in the building, every possible precaution has been taken to render it fireproof. The stage is being fitted up with every equipment known to modern stagecraft, and the accessories are of the most complete character. The building has been designed and the plans prepared by the joint architects, Messrs. James Davidson, Coatbridge, and J. D. Swanston, Kirkcaldy, under whose personal supervision the work has been carried on.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

The Music Hall Ladies' Guild is progressing apace. Mrs. Karno, an enthusiastic member, has placed her flat in Primrose Mansions at the Guild's service for a year; and Miss Lily Burnand, who is zealously advocating the claims of the young society to the support of the ladies of the profession, is furnishing it. The names of the founders and a list of donations will be published next week.

Mr. Oswald Stoll has returned from his American trip, and we are now waiting to hear the latest plans concerning the future of the Coliseum.

Mr. M. R. Morand, whose work as a comedian in later Savoy operas and in The Earl and the Girl will be well remembered by our readers, will make his appearance at the halls in a sketch known by the curious title of Stopping the Clock on a Foggy Day.

The "barring" business at the Paragon, which has created considerable stir in variety circles during the week, is referred to in an article on page 24. The best friends of the profession must regard it as a regrettable incident. The matter being sub judice precludes comment.

Mr. David Day, after spending a delightful holiday in New York in company with Mrs. Day and Mr. and Mrs. William Francis, has returned to England, and has brought with him some very interesting numbers, which will be duly placed on the British market. Among them may be mentioned "Echo," a delightful song by Edward Montagu and Leo Friedman; "My Irish Rosie," by the writers of "My Irish Molly" (Jerome and Schwartz); and "Alice, where art thou going?" by W. A. Heelan and Albert Gumble.

A correspondent writes:—"The dismal failure with the Thames steamboats should have warned the council of the danger of travelling outside its accepted area. The London County Council has absolute control over the music halls within its own jurisdiction, and the proposal that the council should enter into active competition with these greatly improved places of entertainment would be only ludicrous if it were not fraught with the probability of a needless waste of public money. The prices of admission to music halls, especially in the suburbs, are so low as to bring amusement within the reach of the poorest classes. The L.C.C. should let well alone."

Mr. Spencer Barry, the new stage-director at the Empire, has been very deservedly complimented on the ingenuity of his spectacular display in the new operetta by Mr. Gustave Kerker, Burning to Sing. The central idea of the fun is very humorously accentuated by the completeness of the stage equipment, and the way in which the ceiling is made to crackle and the wallpaper to curl up through the intense heat contributes largely to the success of the production. Mr. Gustave Kerker, who conducted on the first night, has now returned to New York.

A great London daily on Tuesday morning last spoke of the welcome accorded Miss Vesta Tilley the night prior at the Holloway Empire. As a matter of fact, a notice-board outside the house on Monday evening stated that Miss Tilley would be deputised for by Mr. Percy Honri and Messrs. Queen and Le Brun! On the same evening Miss Lil Hawthorne, through indisposition, was absent from the Hackney Empire.

Mr. Reginald W. Allan, the well-known musician, will, on Saturday next, be married to Miss Kathleen Marguerite Riley, and many professional friends will be present at the ceremony, which takes place at Christ Church, Albany-street, Regent's Park, at two o'clock. Mr. Allan, like his lamented and gifted brother Ernest, is renowned for his orchestration, and his services are much sought after by foremost producers of entertainments.

At the Alhambra on Monday, the pursuit, capture, and dissection of two huge whales—one measuring 84ft. and the other 78ft.—will be portrayed by Urbanora films. There will also be shown the setting out from the Tuileries Gardens of the sixteen balloons which took part in last Monday's French Aero Club race, not the least interesting incident of which is the exhibition of his detachable steering apparatus given by M. Santos-Dumont to the Urbanora operator—the very gear, by the way, which brought its plucky inventor to grief.

The next committee meeting of the Music Hall Sick Fund will be held on Wednesday next at two o'clock. Last Wednesday, on the occasion of the wedding of Mr. Pat Carey, the President of the society, the bride and bridegroom received a telegram from the secretary and management committee congratulating them on the happy event, and wishing them every happiness.

Now that song-writers and publishers have the law on their side, magistrates are showing no hesitation in protecting them to the full extent of their authority from what Mr. Paul Taylor described on Monday "as nothing less than trading in stolen property." In each of the prosecutions, which are reported in another column, heavy penalties were inflicted, and as fourteen of the prisoners could not pay, they are expiating their offences in gaol. This field-day will serve to advertise the fact that the new Copyright Act, introduced by Mr. T. P. O'Connor and passed by the Government, is now being rigidly applied, and that all the forces of law and order are being employed to put down a form of "highway" robbery which would never have been permitted to flourish had it not been for the narrow-mindedness of an obstinate Scotchman.

Towards the end of this month a unique exploring party will set out to traverse Africa from the Cape to Cairo. They will be armed with all the necessary impedimenta for taking animated photographs of the great sub-continent. British South Africa, Uganda, part of the Congo State, the country between Victoria Falls and Fashoda, Egypt, and the Nile Valley will all be visited. The leaders of the expedition, which will travel in four sections, are picked men of experience and resource and expert photographers. Two journalists, Mr. L. R. F. Cooke and Mr. B. M. Bellasis, will also accompany the expedition. The moving spirit in this daring enterprise is Mr. Charles Urban.

After their great victory over Kent at Blackheath, on Wednesday, the South African team paid a visit to the New Cross Empire, not so very far away from the scene of their great exploit. Representing the Moss Empires, Mr. Frank Allen personally met and welcomed the Springboks' manager, Mr. Carden, and his thirty stalwarts. Then Mr. Will Collins and Mr. Ernest Bridgen conducted the team to their boxes. The orchestra played "See, the Conquering Hero Comes," and the mighty audience who had assembled to see the Colonials roared out a welcome. After thoroughly enjoying the programme, "Auld Lang Syne" was sung by everyone, and the Springboks gave their deafening warhoop as a kind of parting "Good-night."

Mr. Frank Weir, who, until lately, in conjunction with his pretty and talented wife, Miss Lottie Poole, was delighting music-hall patrons with musical sketches, is now playing in the theatres Mr. Huntley Wright's original part of Barry, in A Country Girl, and is booked up for some time to come.

To Mr. Ernest Bridgen, manager of the New Cross Empire, belongs the honour of being the one man the Woolwich Arsenal officials have permitted to take a bioscope film of how work is done in the great Government arms manufactory. This film will be exclusively shown at the New Cross Empire next week, and is the sole property of Moss Empires, Ltd.

Miss Ethel Stansfield and Miss Decima Troughton, who, like Miss Victoria Monks, are Blackpool girls, have made much headway in the halls with their sketch, The Serio and the Slavey, specially written for them by Mr. T. W. Kay, that they have just been booked for the Moss and Stoll tour, and from now until the end of next April they have not a vacant date. They are known professionally as the Sisters Hope.

The Winter Gardens, Blackpool, on Saturday night, presented an extraordinary appearance for the time of the year. Opera house, ball-room, and pavilion—all were packed. It was, indeed, a magnificent "wind-up" to the Pavilion ballet season. In Sunny Spain has proved as popular as any of its predecessors, and the concluding performance was marked by special honours paid to those concerned in its production. A lovely diamond stud and breast-pin was presented to the musical director, Mr. R. Harwood, by Miss Jessie Templeton, on behalf of the whole of the ballet, and a valuable cabinet of cutlery was also presented to Mr. W. Smith, jun., the popular stage-manager.

When the curtain had been finally "rung down," and the floral fête in the Empress ball-room was over, a huge fraternal gathering of artists and staff, officials, and orchestras, took place in the Victoria Hall, where for the next three hours those who had devoted themselves during the season to the duty of entertaining were themselves royally entertained, in accordance with his usual custom, by the general-manager, Mr. Huddlestone. About 400 persons were present. Mr. Pearson, chairman of the directors, paid a high tribute to the respective heads of departments, and Mr. Huddlestone appropriately responded.

The Mansfield Hippodrome will reopen its doors on Monday. It is under the proprietorship of Messrs. Darnley and Jennings, with Mr. T. Jennings as resident-manager. The whole of the seating accommodation has been rearranged, with the result that room will now be found for close upon 2000 spectators. Miss Marie Loftus, who will top the bill for the opening week, will be supported by a good array of talent. Mr. Keino Johnstone will also make his début on a music-hall stage.

Mr. Alf. Graham, the lessee of the Hull Hippodrome, celebrated his first anniversary there on Monday, when a crowded and enthusiastic audience filled the house, which, under Mr. Graham's direction, has become the "popular" variety hall in the city. On behalf of the staff and friends, a handsome diamond ring was given to Mr. Graham, and Mr. Sheldon, the musical director, presented him with a large framed photo of the orchestra.

Miss Gwennie Hasto, the sensational dancer, had the misfortune to sprain her foot badly in Swansea last week, and, by the doctor's orders, is giving the injured member complete rest.

Messrs. Branland, Bath, and Danton, whose Waterloo Pierrots are one of the great attractions at Bridlington, have secured an extended lease of the Summer Gardens there, which they have occupied for the last two seasons. They intend to add greatly to the comfort and convenience of their patrons.

The Empire, Hull, was reopened on Monday by Mr. Alfred Selwyn, the new lessee, with Mr. Harry Slingsby as manager. The former gentleman was manager of the London Lyceum when that house, rebuilt by Mr. Thos. Barrasford, was reopened with variety on the twice-nightly plan on Dec. 31, 1904. Mr. Selwyn has also had considerable provincial experience. Mr. Slingsby was lately manager of the Palace, Greenock.

At a meeting of the Bangor City Council on Wednesday, the Borough Treasurer was authorised to engage Mr. Will Summerson to provide the entertainments on the pier for next season, conditional upon his personal responsibility for the management. Mr. Summerson has provided these entertainments for several years past, and this last season he carried them on in conjunction with entertainments at the neighbouring town of Menai Bridge, and also at Teignmouth.

The Opera House, Londonderry, will be converted into a Hippodrome for a short season, commencing in November, when the proprietor, Mr. W. Payne Seddon, will run two houses per night up to Christmas, after which the house will revert to drama.

The season at the Happy Valley, Southend, closed on Saturday. An enormous "house" assembled to give Chirgwin's Concert Party a final "send-off," and the presents to the artists—Miss Beatrice Varley, Messrs. Charles Wood, Bert Dansie, Charles Osborne, Harry Rose, and F. S. Harris—were bewildering in their number and variety. Mr. Osborne, the manager, was also presented with a handsome travelling bag by the company. The additional artists included Messrs. Owen Way, Charles Miner, Charles Clark, and Gus Dallan, who shared the ovations that welcomed the "C.C.P." A triumphal season wound up with hearty handshaking all round and musical honours.

A very novel communication has been received by Dalton's Agency from an American turn, which reads as follows:—"Dear Sir,—We are still laid up in port. Our sails are ready to be hoisted to a fair wind and good pilot, so if you will favour us by taking the wheel in hand, we'll be sure of a good long, successful voyage; but, as I said before, we only want a good pilot. We shall meet the pirates later on, but they'll find us armed to the teeth. Our cargo of entertainment is of the best—unequalled and unrivalled; our crew determined and impatient—all with a long telescope in hand on the look-out for land with gold in it.

"P.S.—Methinks I scent the morning mail,
With contracts for our ship to sail;
So hurry up and let us know
Where it is we've got to go."

Miss Katie Butler, who is successfully singing "It's a sad, sad story," has been especially engaged by Mr. Stanley Rogers for a special part in his Sunderland pantomime.

Charles Riley, of no settled abode, appeared before the Mayor at the Wigan Borough Police court, on Friday, the 28th ult., charged with breaking and entering the Wigan Hippodrome. Prisoner had gained admission by smashing one of the windows, which he reached by means of the steel ladder fire escape. He was found sleeping on the bed used in a sketch entitled The Collar Stud, and when taken into custody he remarked, "Hold on, I've lost my collar stud." He was sent to gaol for two months.

Mr. Geo. Saphrini has now secured the Palace, Boston, on a lease for six years. He intends booking the best talent available, and hopes to make it even a bigger success than it is at present. Business continues to improve.

Miss Bessie Butt, who was appearing last week at the Ardwick Empire, was on Saturday last specially sent for to deputise for Lil Hawthorne, the top of the bill at the Manchester Hippodrome. The result was a complete success in every way.

In regard to the offer of Colonel Mapleson to purchase the Lyceum for £120,000, the secretary of the Twentieth Century Theatres (Limited) writes: "The theatre has been let to my company on lease, subject to the sanction of the Court being obtained to such lease, and an application to confirm this lease is now pending before the Master in Chancery."

Miss Winifred Hare had an exciting adventure at Bradford last week. The hotel at which she was staying—the Alexandra—took fire in the middle of the night, and Miss Hare only reached a place of safety by sliding down the fire-escape in her nightdress.

Miss Vesta Tilley, in consequence of a cold, caught at Newcastle-on-Tyne during the latter part of last week, was not able to appear at the Holloway Empire, on Monday.

Mr. George Edwardes contradicts the report that he has resigned his position on the board of the Empire. Some time ago he said he would have to give up some part of his duties, and this statement may have given currency to the rumour.

Miss Ada Reeve, who has for the present finished her London engagements, has just accepted offers to sing at leading variety theatres at Belfast, Glasgow, Liverpool, Manchester, Birmingham, Bristol, Southampton, Brighton, and Newcastle. In some of the towns the vivacious comedienne is assured a certainty of £300 a week; in others 60 per cent. of the gross receipts.

Miss Emily Soldene, the Drogan of that famous production, Geneviève de Brabant, at the Islington Philharmonic in 1871, is to be accorded a complimentary benefit on Tuesday, Nov. 13, at the Palace. At the head of an influential committee is Mme. Melba, while among others included in it are Earl Carrington, Lord Glenesk, Sir Douglas Straight, Mr. Alfred de Rothschild, Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr. R. C. McConnell, K.C., Mr. Henniker Heaton, M.P., Mr. Arthur Collins, Mr. Frederick Harrison, Mr. Charles Hawtrey, Mr. George Edwardes, Mr. Seymour Hicks, Mr. Stefano Gatti, and Mr. Alfred Butt.

Mr. Harry Rickards, who reached Port Said on the 25th ult., reports to us that his passage down the Mediterranean has been glorious. He had, however, a very rough day in the Bay of Biscay, but the rest and change have done him an immense amount of good, and his friends will be glad to hear that he is very much better.

Mr. J. W. Wright, son of Harry Wright and Nellie Gannon, on Monday, Oct. 8, takes over the sole management of the Jubilee Hotel, High-street, Gravesend. Having travelled all over the world, his experience and fund of anecdote should make him an ideal host.

Dr. Walford Bodie is again creating a furore in London. "House full" has been nightly shown, both at the Euston and Empress, Brixton, his reception nightly being unprecedented. His lecture, arranged by Mr. George Adney Payne, entitled "What is a Miracle?" will be given at the Canterbury on Sunday night, Oct. 14, under the patronage of the doctors and clergy of London. The whole of the proceeds will be given to the Waterloo Hospital for Women and Children.

Friends will be wishing bon voyage to the members of Mr. Sydney Hyman's company, leaving Southampton by the Kildonan Castle to-day. Among the artists are Frank Seeley, a favourite comedian, who finds a fund of humour in the domestic happenings of the cockney ménage; Miss Winifred Ward, a young exponent of dainty comedy; Tony Wilson and Heloise, who display grace, beauty, and intrepidity in what is called a Continental trampolin bar act; and the Amoros Sisters, smart and pretty trapeze artists. Also of the company are Sullivan and Pasquelena, who go to Africa from the States, with a high reputation as a comedy duo.

Greetings to Miss May Moore Duprez, the lively Dutch girl; the Maples, a popular comedy couple; Herr Hagedorn, of "grotto" fame; Mr. Dan Paulton, comedian; Miss Rose Sylvester, soubrette; and Phil and Nettie Peters, who land in England to-day with many pleasant recollections of successful engagements in South Africa.

The Brothers Webb (Jojo and Ruté), the well-known musical clowns, who are at the Cirque Ciniselli, St. Petersburg, arrived there on Sept. 26. They received every courtesy from the Custom House officials on the frontier, the journey thence to the Russian capital taking twenty hours. They had every comfort. Director Ciniselli sent a man to meet them, and to interpret, which was very considerate on his part. They opened on the 28th, and the next day their engagement was prolonged for fifteen days longer, making six weeks in all. They have been out each day promenading. Everybody seems to be going about just the same as in any other Continental city, otherwise they would not have accepted the prolongation. The Cirque Ciniselli seats about 4000 persons, and has been full every night.

Mr. Algernon Syms, who was the original juvenile lead in the production at the Surrey, in October, 1882, of For Ever—the piece in which the late Geo. Conquest created the part of the Man Monkey—has been engaged by Mr. Fred Conquest to play in his successful sketch The Freak's Revenge, in which he (Mr. Fred Conquest) realistically impersonates his father's great character.

Mr. Austin Boyd and Miss Trixie Gilfain are just back from a very successful tour in South Africa, where Miss Gilfain made a tremendous hit with the bagpipes, for the inhabitants of the Rand and the colonists dearly love a wee bit skirl o' the pibroch. Miss Gilfain's motto should be, "I needs must pipe that you may sing." The happily associated pair are producing a new act in November.

Mr. Charles Norton, the mimic, in his new entertainment entitled Pro's at the Races, hits off the peculiarities and mannerisms of well-known artists to a nicety, and roars of laughter have followed the well-travestied snatches of song incidental to the morceau. For instance, when Mr. Joe Elvin wants Mr. 'Gene Stratton to back a certain horse, the latter sings, "I may be crazy, but I know you"; and Mr. Elen, when asked to partake of champagne, bursts into praises of his "'Arf a pint of ale." The trifle, which is of Mr. Norton's own writing, is a bit of well-thought-out comedy.

The Terriers' first social of the season will take place on Sunday at the headquarters, the Dover Castle Hotel, Westminster Bridge-road. Terrier Fred W. Millis will be in the chair.

At Bloomsbury County Court, on Wednesday, Miss Eva Erskine, an actress, of Hallam-street, W., sued Mr. Frank Danby, manager, for £3 15s., a fortnight's salary in lieu of notice, and railway fares.

Miss Erskine explained that she had been engaged by Mr. Danby to appear in a sketch called The Chauffeur for five weeks, from June 18. The first week she received 30s., but the second only 25s. The treasurer denied that she had received 30s. the week before, asserting that she had been engaged at 25s. a week. Judgment was given for the plaintiff for the amount claimed and costs.

"Three Thousand Years Ago," prior to its going on tour, will be produced in town at a well-known West-end house. Mr. Machin desires to point out that this sketch and others belonging to him are not governed, or being run, by a syndicate, but simply by himself and his manager, author, and producer, Mr. Charles M. Daly, who holds the legal copyright of every sketch.

Mr. E. W. Lurring, late the acting-manager of the Ealing Hippodrome, has been transferred by Mr. Walter Gibbons to the Grand, Clapham, where he has taken up the position of acting-manager under Mr. H. Ketteman.

Messrs. Cadles, music-hall agents, sued Mr. Richard Arthur Roberts, protean actor, on Tuesday, at the Westminster County Court, for £80, commission on certain contracts, and in the alternative for damages. In 1905 one of the plaintiffs cabled to his brother from America that he had secured a tour for Mr. Roberts, and that the contracts were following by post. When sent to him he had already signed contracts for the same tour, and almost the same dates, with another agent in London. Defendant denied that he authorised plaintiffs to act for him solely in America, although he knew that he was on their books. His Honour Judge Woodfall said the plaintiffs had not shown that they alone were entitled to obtain contracts for the defendant, and there must be judgment for him, with costs.

"Popple from Pippleton," which has been put on for the first time this week at the Hippodrome, Norwich, will be seen at the Middlesex on Monday. Mr. Fred Cullane, who is responsible for the production, has some special scenery with electrical effects.

Chirgwin has just completed a long tour. He announces his intention of not accepting in the future any engagements that would keep him "on the road" for a longer period than three weeks.

Miss Annette Kellerman, who hopes to repeat her Hippodrome triumph at Hengler's, is not only a wonderful swimmer, but a most charming girl. Frank, high-spirited, absolutely fearless, with her twentieth birthday still to come, she is the pride of New South Wales—the home of champion swimmers—and represents the finest class of physical culturists. It is needless to say that Annette is an enthusiast in her own work, but she goes in for other sports with characteristic energy with the exception of cycling, for though certain muscles are strengthened by work on the wheel, others are not used at all, and swimming requires an all-round development. She is past-mistress in the art of trick diving, from what she describes as "the slip into the water as clean as a whip to the great 'splosh.'"

Born in Sydney, she laughingly describes herself as of "German-English-American-Australian descent." She had few opportunities of "paddling about in the water" as a child, having been sent to boarding-school; but at fifteen she quickly got "into the swim," literally and figuratively, and won every race and every medal for which she could compete in the colony. It was a great amusement of hers to rescue other girls from the deep end of the swimming baths, although she confesses that they did not always see the joke, as it was necessary to use some strength and strategy in throwing them into the water before she bravely fished them out again! Miss Kellerman came to Europe about fifteen months ago, making her début as a swimmer in the Seine. She has twice attempted the Channel, and hopes to make a third effort next year. Hitherto her great trouble has been sea-sickness.

Mr. Clifford King has been appointed manager of the new Putney Hippodrome.

An interesting story is that told in the sketch entitled The Drummer of the 76th, written by Mr. Louis Coen, the author of several dramas, which is to be produced at the Palace, Camberwell, on Monday. Mr. Matthew Brodie, who will play Napoleon, possesses features that will lend realism to his impersonation of le petit Caporal. Mr. J. A. Rosier will be Marshal Lannes; and Miss Augusta Tulloch will act a heavy part; and a clever child, Dorothea Vivian, will be seen in the part of the drummer boy.

Mr. Harry Lauder will positively make a welcome reappearance at the Tivoli and the Paragon on Monday, after a protracted and somewhat troublesome illness. We are pleased to say Mr. Lauder is quite convalescent, and feels thoroughly fit for work again.

Some years since Mr. Hubert Bartlett wrote and copyrighted a duologue, The Lady and the Lunatic, which he has since played some 3000 times. It might be thought that the piece was inspired by A Pair of Lunatics, which has been presented under varying titles; but such is not the case. The Lady and the Lunatic is based on an actual experience of the present Earl of Dunraven.

"The New Knights of Olde" has caught on at the Richmond Theatre. The make-up of Harry the Eighth is as good as it is expensive, and there are many merry moments with the merry Monarch.

Mr. Michael Nolan, the well-known and favourite Irish comedian, writes that he and his wife, the popular Miss Agnes Hazel, have been scoring a gratifying success with their Hibernian humour and English comedy in both Norwich and Ipswich—towns to which they had hitherto been strangers professionally speaking, and yet they have appeared in most countries. Miss Hazel's health has much improved.

The second edition of A Toff for Ten Minutes, the bright little monologue enacted by Miss Constance Moxon, is meeting with greater success than ever.

At the Margate Hippodrome, by arrangement with Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece, on Thursday, a new play was produced at a special early morning performance. The production, for copyright purposes only, was a play in four acts, by Mr. Justin Huntly McCarthy, entitled The Illustrious O'Hagan.

Miss Lily Burnand deputised this week for Miss Marie Lloyd at the Paragon, where she received quite an ovation from her numerous East-End admirers.

Mr. Sid Cotterell is so elated with the success of that droll concoction, The Substitute, that he is by way of producing it on the Continent, and is securing companies of French and German artists for that purpose, and is also arranging for an American tour.

It was reported at the 483rd meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.R.A., on Tuesday, that forty-four new members had joined during the week, and that the financial receipts for that period amounted to £45 7s. Mr. Douglas White, the hon. treasurer's statement for the past year showed that 1,000 new members had joined, making 6,075 active members. The total funds are: Reserve fund, £365 7s.; on deposit, £500; current account, £296 6s. 2d.; cash in hand, £20; making a total of £1,181 13s. 2d. The following members were present: Messrs. W. H. Clemart, Arthur Rigby, Fred Neiman, Douglas White (hon. treasurer), Harry Freeman, James Finney, John Alexander, Geo. A. Booker, Geo. Preston, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). Mr. W. H. Clemart (vice-chairman of the committee) presided.

In aid of the fund for the relief of needy survivors of the Light Brigade charge at Balaclava a matinée will be given at the Alhambra on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 27, at which Mrs. Clement Scott will recite Tennyson's "Charge of the Light Brigade," assisted by buglers and drummers of the London Rifle Brigade, and surrounded by the survivors of the charge.

Mr. Charles Lee, after fifteen years' successful tours of the chief theatres and halls, will, with a contingent of his principal performers, including Tom Birchmore, now adopt music halls, where he will present one of the smartest bijou minstrel combinations before the public. Mr. Tom Shaw is his agent.

Messrs. Oliver and Holmes, the well-known variety agents, of Leicester-square, sought in the Westminster County Court on Tuesday to enforce payment of a judgment debt due from Miss Lillian Lowe, ballad vocalist, now engaged on the Stoll tour at South Shields. The plaintiffs said that the claim was for commission, and that the defendant had been receiving a salary of £450 a month for the past nine months. The defendant did not appear. His Honour made an order for payment of £5 a month, subject to committal for fourteen days in default.

Mr. Friel Lyons, of the Lyons troupe of acrobats, who have been performing at the Cardiff Empire, was being driven on Sunday in a motor-car, when apparently something went wrong with the steering-gear, and the car was upset on the embankment adjoining the railway bridge of the Porthcawl line at Pyle. Mr. Lyons was thrown thirty or forty yards, alighting on his shoulder, but he does not appear to have sustained any injury beyond a wrench of the finger. The chauffeur fell near the car, and was rather badly shaken, while the car was smashed. Mr. Lyons owes his escape from serious injury to his agility and smartness as an acrobat.

Colonel Denis Lorraine will present La Vivandière (founded on Ouida's famous novel "Under Two Flags") at the Hackney Empire on Monday next. Miss Derry, who plays the part of Cigarette, commenced her theatrical career in 1901 with Mrs. Lewis Waller in Zaza. Her longest engagement was with Miss Olga Nethersole in Sapho for nearly three years. Says Miss Derry: "I am a daughter of the regiment, army born and bred, my family having been in the Army and Navy for generations. I have eight brothers, you know—seven in the Army and one in the Navy. I was born in Poona, India, and didn't know a word of English till I was seven.

"I have travelled right across the Sahara on a camel, one of the most difficult animals imaginable to ride. The horses I use have been through the South African War, and if ever a horse deserved the V.C., 'Cigar,' as he is called, does. 'Cigar's' master, you must know, had gone back during an engagement to save one of his men. Both men, as they were mounting, got shot again and fell off the horse. 'Cigar' managed to clear his master from his dead comrade by dragging and carrying him back into safety."

Mr. George Scott contradicts the report that a new ballet at the Alhambra is under consideration to supersede L'Amour. Mrs. Hay Ritchie and Charles Wilson's charming work is still in the height of its popularity, large audiences still appreciating to the full the beautiful Assyrian setting and the fine dancing of Signorina Bordin.

Mr. Frank Gerald is naturally very grieved at the loss of his pet steed Wiapera, the faithful creature succumbing on Monday to an attack of congestion of the lungs. He was on the mare's back at Collins's on Saturday in the performance of the title-rôle in Captain Starlight, an adaptation of Rolf Boldrewood's Robbery Under Arms. Mr. Gerald purchased her twelve years ago, when she was four years old. For a time she was used for steeplechasing, and won many valuable prizes in Australia. Then she began her stage career as Black Bess to her master's Dick Turpin. She also figured as the steed which bore the unconscious form of Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner (Mr. Lewis Waller) back to the door of that lady's American mansion at the end of the first act, when that play was produced at the Imperial, April 16, 1904. Mr. Gerald has been elected manager of the V.A.F. by a majority of 21 votes.

Mr. Pat Carey, the popular Irish comedian, was married on Wednesday at St. Margaret's, Westminster, to Mrs. Claughton, of East Molesey. The bride was given away by her friend, Mr. W. J. Bradley, and the best man was Mr. T. C. Callaghan, the life-long friend of the bridegroom. There was also present Mrs. Fred Lane (Miss Issy Howard), Mr. Carey's daughter, and Mrs. Tilley (his sister), Mrs. Bradley, Mr. Fred Lane, and Mr. C. Douglas Stuart. After the ceremony the party, after a visit to the York Hotel, proceeded to Waterloo and travelled down in a specially-reserved saloon to East Molesey, where the wedding reception was held, and the numerous handsome presents were on view. Congratulatory telegrams were received from the committee of the Music Hall Sick Fund, Mrs. Taylor (of Sandgate), May Tilley, F. D. Harris, Geo. Harrington, Judd Green, York Hotel, Millie Denham, Frank Leon, Tom Shaw, C. De Vere, Leonard Barry, Edgar Budden, Tom Brantford, Will Oliver, Pat Rafferty, Douglas White, Geo. Fairburn, Nelson Rutland, and Baugh, F. Marchant, and Hyram Travers, the last-mentioned being as follows: "Congratulations. Have you got Stoll's permission? Ba, ba, black sheep."

The London meeting of the International Artists' Lodge was held on Sunday last at the usual rendezvous. The question of the final drawing of the terms of affiliation between the I.A.L. and V.A.F. was discussed, and Brother 876 agreed to put into correct form the amendments and the original proposals, which had not yet been incorporated. The chairman then read the legal form of the petition to the Board of Agriculture against the present regulations for the quarantine of dogs in England. It was decided to lay this on the table till more proprietors of animal acts were present.

Brothers 1312 and 1396 asked questions concerning the ballot-papers received from the headquarters of the lodge at Berlin. The brothers complained that they had received the same, but had so far no knowledge of the candidates proposed. Brother 876 thought it dangerous to send out so far in advance ballot-papers of the names of the candidates. Brother 115 read, from the report of the meeting in Berlin, that Brother D'Oraetta had asked for the nominations for the election, and had said that it was necessary to abide by the decision of the Executive Committee. The nominations were to be sent to Berlin by outside meetings and the list completed by the Berlin meeting. Brother 115 proposed that nominations should be sent up from this meeting. Brothers 876 and 1312 pointed out that experience showed how necessary it was for the Executive Committee to have more English members, as when there were only four it was so difficult to get them in London all together.

The meeting therefore made the following nominations:—W. Lee, H. Mason, George Gray, W. H. Clemart, A. Schafer, Albert Voyce, Max Sterling, Will Poluski, W. Van Allen, Sam Albertus, Mayville, Orpheus, Hal Forde, Geraldo, J. Barton. Brother 1261 proposed, and it was passed unanimously, that this meeting draw up a letter to be sent to the Executive Committee in Berlin, pointing out the urgent necessity for more English members on the Executive Committee.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

ONE of the greatest successes ever made by the charming and popular Miss Ellaline Terriss is Messrs. Davis and Darewski's new composition, "Au revoir, my little Hyacinth," which Mr. Seymour Hicks and Messrs. B. Feldman and Co., the fortunate publishers, predict will become as big a rage as "The honeysuckle and the bee." Messrs. Feldman have arranged with Mr. Sidney Davis, the author, to write a few special lyrics which Mr. John Neat, the firm's clever pianist, will set. Artists in want of smart songs can meet Mr. Davis at Feldman's and discuss requirements.

THOSE prolific and successful writers, Messrs. Lipton and Murphy, have just published with B. Feldman and Co., their new descriptive ballad, entitled "As I stand by the old church door," of which report speaks highly.

MESSRS. MILLS AND SCOTT have again done the trick, their new number, "By the side of the Zuyder Zee," being proclaimed their masterpiece, and the enterprising Feldman has arranged with Mr. Seymour Hicks to feature the song in his production at the Aldwych, where it is now in active rehearsal.

MESSRS. B. FELDMAN AND CO. are actively preparing their pantomime parcels; and principal boys would be well advised to secure Arthur Reece's success, "When there isn't a girl about," published by that firm.

NEVER in the whole course of his forty years' stage experience, writes Mr. John F. Sheridan, from Sydney, has a song created such a furore as "Bombay" has done in Australia. A party of eighteen booked seats at Palmerston North from a neighbouring town especially to hear "Bombay." A native Maori waited on Mr. Sheridan at the station on the departure of the company entreating for a copy of the words if he could not get the music, it being intended to have the song chanted in "the native Pahs'" Meeting House.

A. J. MILLS and Bennett Scott, the popular songwriters, have this week established a record, "dashing off," among other little things, a musical and vocal mélange entitled "Just before the ball" for Miss Hilda Jacobsen, an up-to-date skit, "Have we lived before?" for Mr. George Mozart, and special numbers for George Lashwood, Tom Costello, J. E. Coyle, Florrie Forde, and Florrie Gallimore.

MISS DORA LYRIC, who is rapidly forging to the front, has scored a sensational hit at the Argyle, Birkenhead, with Castling and Scott's pretty domestic ballad, "All that glitters is not gold" (published by Francis and Day). Miss Lyric returns in two weeks to star at the Argyle, and has also secured six further dates at the same hall at a big increase.

MR. HAMILTON HILL sails on the Majestic for New York on the 17th inst., and will be absent from England a twelvemonth. Among the songs he will specially feature of Messrs. Francis and Day are "The Fireman's Song," "Can't you think of any other name but Baby?" and "Welcome home, boys, welcome home!" the latter a stirring march song by Fred W. Leigh and J. Airlie Dix.

MR. TOM LEO has this week published his second song with Mr. David Day. Of the "Short Stories" class, it is written by Maurice Scott, and is entitled "Pom te O! Pom te A!" There are a baker's dozen of verses.

MISS DAISY DORMER opens on Monday at the Palace, and will be heard in two numbers new to London, one being "You told me to go," by Charles Collins and Charles Ridgewell, and "Maizee, my Malagasy," by George Collins. Both songs have been enthusiastically received at the Dublin Tivoli.

SINCE the establishment in New York of a representative English music publishing firm, it is pleasant to record the success of British authors and composers whose songs have been dropped into Transatlantic musical plays. "Let me sing!" Wilkie Bard's quaint song, by Frank Leo, is causing a furore in Sergeant Brue in the hands of Mr. Frank Daniels; "When love comes knocking at the door" is a hit in The Blue Moon; and "Little Willie Brown," as sung by Mr. James Blakeley, is a special feature in The Little Cherub.

MESSRS. HARRINGTON AND TATE have certainly found two big winners in "Skyland," now being sung with success extraordinary by Charles McNaughton in the No. 1 company of The Belle of Mayfair, and "Rosie is waiting," an effective and melodious chorus-song, which promises to become the favourite pantomime number for principal boys. "Skyland" is a topical number, and Mr. John P. Harrington intends to have up-to-date verses for the Christmas season.

MISS LILIAN DOREEN is fortunate in being the first to exploit "Queen of Old Samara," published by the Monte Carlo Publishing Company, of Berners-street. It is undoubtedly one of the finest melodies of the popular type that have been heard this year, and should prove a veritable gold mine to the author-composer, Mr. J. F. Lambe.

THE packing-rooms of the Monte Carlo Publishing Company are assuming a very busy aspect, and even the members of the firm are now to be seen daily busily packing and despatching parcels of their "Sixpenny Successes." There is little wonder that such gratifying results have been achieved when their catalogue includes such popular numbers as "Bamboo Bungalow," "March of the Men of Harlech," and "Somebody cares for you," the latter song being one of the happiest efforts of those clever writers, A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott.

THE Monte Carlo Publishing Company, of 3, Berners-street, have now got a number in the press which will be a "stormer for pantomime"—at least, that is what one of the foremost pantomime producers remarked when he heard it. The song is founded on a well-known motto, and it is predicted to become the best-known and most whistled melody that has been heard for years.

JAS. W. TATE, the musical editor of the Monte Carlo Publishing Company, has, during the week, received a letter from America stating that the firm's big song, "I've built a bamboo bungalow for you," is a "terrific success" in Mr. Frohman's latest production, The Rich Mr. Hoggenheimer. Mr. Fred Day is to be congratulated on having placed this song to such advantage in the States, where he is the manager for Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, who handle the Monte Carlo Publishing Company's publications in America.

MISS JESSIE PRESTON has scored an instantaneous success in her latest song, "Be admired by your father," at the Oxford, and continues to create hearty laughter in her "reply" to Harry Lauder's "My Scotch Bluebell." Both songs are by J. F. Lambe.

JOCK WHITEFORD is back again at the London Pavilion. He received an ovation on his appearance in "Keep on doing it, Sandy," which is from the pen of J. F. Lambe, who is fortunate enough to have had ten of his songs sung nightly during the week at the principal London music halls.

A GREAT number of applications have been made for the rights of Harry Castling's fine march song, "Boy Blue," and all who have heard it prophesy for it a success equal to "Bluebell."

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE CANTERBURY.

Amongst the turns in the current week's Canterbury bill of fare one of the most noteworthy is that given by the Abdullah Arabs. This troupe is by no means new to the halls, but the performance is one that can be witnessed over and over again without the spectator experiencing a feeling of weariness or boredom. The members of the troupe seem to so heartily enjoy the performance themselves that it gives additional delight to watch them. They work themselves into such a state of wild excitement that it requires the restraining hand of one of their number to prevent his fellows in their tumbling feats exceeding the prescribed limits of the stage, and precipitating themselves over the footlights into that portion of the house reserved for the gentlemen of the orchestra. One of their most marvellous feats is the quick formation of a human pyramid. The strong men, taking it in turn, are able to support in this way from six to a dozen other members of the troupe; it is, indeed, a surprising exhibition of muscular strength that cannot but excite the admiration of the audience. Their tumbling is also of an extraordinary character, and special mention should be made of the little girl called Fatima, who whirls round the stage at an amazingly rapid pace, and then comes up smiling to acknowledge the prolonged applause which proceeds from all parts of the house. The whole performance of these dusky sons and daughters of Arabia is indeed unique, and should on no account be missed.

Mr. Harry Randall, whose studies of Cockney character are always so highly appreciated, appeared on Monday and Tuesday evenings, but was obviously suffering from a severe cold; and on Wednesday the Poluski Brothers deputised for the popular comedian. Sam and Will were happily in their very best form, and while they held possession of the stage the rippling stream of merriment never once ceased to flow. The comedy duo, Clark and Hamilton, are well received. The gentleman's make-up is funny, and his conversation with the lady is still funnier. His pianoforte playing, into which the comic element is freely introduced, is greatly appreciated, and his fair partner not only gives able support in the comedy business, but sings and dances in pleasing style. Happy Fanny Fields, the American-Dutch girl, is as jolly as ever, and cracks her jokes with the same effective assumption of childlike simplicity and innocence. She meets with a flattering reception. So, too, does Miss Florrie Gallimore, a clever comedienne, with a style that commands admiration, and who, in her choice of songs, shows excellent judgment. Mr. T. E. Dunville, in his latest success, "The Channel Swimmers," maintains his popularity as a comic singer; and Miss Bijou Russell, who comes from America, excels as a coon singer and dancer. Mr. Arthur Conquest and company are here in the sketch, entitled The Sioux, which has been played with such marked success in halls in other parts of the great metropolis. The artistic merits of Mr. Conquest's embodiment of Chadi, the ape, we have pointed out in previous notices of the sketch, and Canterbury audiences have fully endorsed the favourable verdict already recorded. Nor is there anything new to be said concerning that favourite old sketch Black Justice, in which appear Big Ben Brown and Little George Le Clerq, supported by a capital company. Favourable mention has also to be made of the respective contributions of Miss Maud Esmond, burlesque artist; Drew and Alders, comedians; and Oakley and James (Bert and Polly). An additional attraction is supplied by Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope pictures; while during the interval a popular selection, "Mr. Popple of Ippleton," is played by the orchestra, under the able direction of Mr. Archie Howells. Mr. Fred Miller's genial presence in front of the house is always welcome.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday,
First Production of an Original Episode,
by Frederick Maxwell, entitled
"A PRODIGAL WIFE."

Andrew Allen ..... MR. FREDERICK MAXWELL
Robert Lavelle ..... MR. CHAS. LEVEY
Wilson ..... MR. GERALD BLAKE
Dr. Gibbs ..... MR. SAM HARCOURT
Baxter ..... MR. WILLIAM CLARE
Ena ..... MISS LOIS DU CANE

A vivid, well-written sketch, presented in artistic form, and admirably acted, A Prodigal Wife met with ready acceptance at the hands of a Standard audience on Monday evening. The leading character, Andrew Allen, has, by his own ability, combined with hard work and perseverance, carved his way to fortune, when he marries a woman who, in a few years, spends his accumulated wealth at such a rate that he figures in the Bankruptcy Court. But an even worse blow awaits him. He has always had the firmest trust in his wife, Ena, but certain rumours which reach his ears at the club arouse his suspicions, and, on the evening when the piece opens, he announces his intention of dining out, but remains concealed in the house. He is thus enabled to be present, though unseen, at an interview between his wife and his supposed friend, Robert Lavelle. The man is an unmitigated villain of whom Ena stands in fear. He pretends to be devotedly attached to her, and suggests that she should accompany him abroad, sharing with him the £7,000, which is all that remains of her husband's fortune, and which has been placed in an iron safe. Ena loves her husband, and has no desire to leave him, but promises to let Lavelle have the money on condition that he hands her certain compromising letters and leaves the country for ever. However, when she opens the door of the safe, she and Lavelle are confronted by her husband, who intimates that he has been a silent witness of all that has happened. He is shot and severely wounded by Lavelle, whose flight is prevented, and he is handed over to the police. He escapes, however, and with the notes in his possession reaches his own house. He is followed by Ena, whom he insults. She, in a moment of uncontrollable passion, fells him to the floor with a club, and quits the house, believing that she has killed him. But Wilson, Allen's private secretary, has a long-standing account to settle with Lavelle, having suffered a term of imprisonment for a crime committed by that gentleman. Finding that the man he hates is not dead, Wilson proceeds to deliberately murder him. Ena makes a full confession to her husband, and then leaves his house; but he subsequently learns from Wilson who really killed Lavelle. Mr. Frederick Maxwell plays the part of Andrew Allen with much feeling combined with dignity of demeanour in the midst of unmerited misfortune. Mr. Charles Levey as Robert Lavelle is a handsome villain, and acts with much intensity and power. Mr. Gerald Blake also embodies the secretary, Wilson, with commendable earnestness. Miss Lois du Cane is excellent as Ena; and minor characters are well sustained by Mr. Sam Harcourt and Mr. William Clare.

Amongst the most important engagements this week is that of Miss Daisy James, the favourite comedienne, who sings "Just the same as me" in a delightfully piquant style. She also introduces her "Gibson Girl" ditty with the most successful results. The Sisters Lytton are youthful duettists, who sing "Love's dream is o'er" and "Il Bacio" with pleasing effect; and another vocalist who meets with success is Miss Alice Blandford. She scores with "Sing me to sleep" and another popular item, "All the world to me." Mr. Frank Cass sings "How long will you be?" in good style, and then gives a capital song called "Vanity Fair." Mr. Frank Seeley is correctly described as an eccentric comedian; and Mr. John E. Coyle soon becomes a favourite with his amusing patter. The Elvio Comedy Trio are responsible for some smart work in the acrobatic absurdity entitled Those Troublesome Slaveys. Other notable turns include Miss Lily Esplin, comedienne; Terris and Bewley, comedians and whistlers; the Sisters Valli, in a musical and dancing act; Mr. Tod Lowen, eccentric comedian; and the Eight Goldflakes, comediennes and dancers. Mr. T. S. Dickie has an energetic assistant-manager in Mr. Maurice Volny.

CAMBERWELL EMPIRE.

Mr. Jesse Sparrow and Mr. Harry Bawn are reaping the reward of their spirited policy here by viewing "twice nightly" crowded audiences. In the current week's bill are Leslie and Anson, who are appearing in a duologue, entitled The Cat's Eye, from the resourceful pen that wrote The Lady and the Parson. In The Cat's Eye, a newly-married husband complains of the monotony of the honeymoon, and his pretty wife overhears him on the telephone expressing his regret to a chum that he cannot join him at the "Leger," and asking him whether the cat's-eye ring (the chum's gift to him) possesses the power of hypnotism. On being assured that it does, he determines to try its powers on his wife, but she is prepared. On his presenting her with the cat's eye, she feigns the hypnotic state, and not only makes things lively, but leads the husband to suppose she has many admirers. He becomes nearly distracted, but when quite contrite and submissive, she reveals to him her ruse. Most of the work falls on the lady's shapely shoulders, and she possesses a fund of humour. The husband also merits warm praise for a finished performance.

Mr. Harry Rogerson and his company of comedians, in the extravaganza, Herne the Hunter, have an amusing admixture of musical comedy and pantomime, which was fully noticed in these columns last week. Miss Lilian Doreen is responsible for a cultured rendering of "The Bonnie Brier Bush," which she supplements by a pretty ballad, "The dear little boy next door," and the excellent march-time ditty, "My Queen of Old Samara." Los Granadas, in a pretty set scene, give a novel, daring, and skilful parallel bar performance, which wins them hearty approval. Mme. Collard demonstrates complete mastery over her massive boarhounds, who, in their "wild animal burlesque," are docile and obedient. Ruby Aston, looking chic in her tasteful costumes, sings two good songs, "The Goose and Gander," and "All through a little bit of lace." Miss Nell Richardson is another comedienne who hits the tastes of the audience, being bewitching in a white wintry costume, in which she gives point and expression to her song, "Snowflakes." Another pretty number is "I know you'll dream of me." The Clarion Trio are good dancers; Fred Harrison is decidedly quaint in his songs, "I didn't get there in time," and "The Chinee Washerman"; and the Empire animated pictures are, as always, interesting. The popular acting-manager is Mr. Percy Ford.

of that place of amusement until a few months ago, was on Saturday last given a benefit concert. The performance, which took place at the City of London Volunteer Drill Hall, Wood-lane, Shepherd's Bush, was organised by a number of prominent local people as a mark of esteem for the bénéficiaire. The function was well attended, there being present many of the most influential residents, including Mr. and Mrs. Stafford Northcote and Mr. and Mrs. Sutton. A capital programme was presented, the artists including Mr. R. Lloyd Morgan, Cedar and Elgar, and Master and Miss D'Elvo, in a sketch, entitled Huntsman and Milkmaid.

THE BEDFORD.

Mr. B. Pearce Lucas's later development of his enterprise at Bristol and on the South Coast seems to have enabled him to add to the attractiveness of the Bedford programmes, which invariably contain names of budding and promising artists. The hall at Camden Town indeed serves as a nursery of talent, and the turns winning their spurs there almost invariably possess ability that gains the suffrages of a larger public. Miss Alice Rossiter, who is termed a vaudeville artist, comes from America, and has all the energy and grace that distinguish the dancers of that country. She sings a most melodious number which we may call "I have no use for you, Mr. W.," and is loudly applauded.

The Maxim Trio justify their engagement by the novelty of their equilibristic performance and their juggling. The chief of them is responsible for a pretty trick, by which he supports a tripod table on the top of three cricket stumps, which in their turn find their base in the hollow of an inverted champagne magnum. The youngster of the three has a capital idea of clowning, and could certainly play a part. He and his more serious partner are also good acrobats. A comic singing turn that is quite in accordance with the tastes of the Bedfordians is contributed by Mr. W. J. Churchill, who states in his principal number that "If it wasn't for the men girls wouldn't be wanted at all." In his second item his remarks intensely amuse the fairer half of the audience.

The chief stars do not shine at the Bedford, but their lustre is reflected in excerpts from their répertoires given by Mr. Sid May in his capital series of imitations, which includes George Robey, Wilkie Bard, Harry Lauder, and Gus Elen—the last a strikingly correct copy. Cyrus Dare, in the early part of the evening, is responsible for some clever imitations of children; Max Duffek, who entertains as a musical contortionist, plays the autoharp with his feet round his neck; Bishop and Vale as humourists combine knockabout business of a fairly vigorous kind with cross-talk, and the mixture is a decidedly happy blend. The Bishop is anything but a solemn personage, and his partner has much too jolly a face to be regarded as a Vale of tears—unless they are those which result from the heartiest laughter.

It is very encouraging to note the hearty reception given by the Camden Town folk to the operatic episode The Romany King, the libretto of which is written by E. C. Matthews and the music composed by Clement Locknane. "His Majesty" in this case boasts no other throne than the gnarled root of an old oak, no palace but that walled by the forest trees, no roof but the canopy of heaven. As an Ishmaelite he scorns the effeminacy of the house-dweller, but he would not be worthy of his Oriental blood did he not yield to the tender passion. He has wooed and won Cynthia, a maiden of his tribe, who, however, is not altogether insensible to the flattering attentions of a certain Count Castilian. This scion of the aristocracy is urging the girl to fly with him in preference to marrying a chicken-stealer, when his highness, the wayside monarch, interrupts the tête-à-tête. A short struggle, in which the Count is disarmed and thrown to the ground, results, and Cynthia intervenes to prevent bloodshed and to assist in the final quartet. Mr. Lemprière Pringle makes an imposing and picturesque figure of "the Romany King," and his fine voice is heard to advantage in the music of his part. Miss Beatrice Edwards makes a delightful Cynthia, and sings with much brio and command of technique a difficult solo. Mr. J. C. Piddock, an excellent actor, is responsible for a good rendering of the Count. The sketch is well mounted. Other turns in the bill are contributed by Fred Clements and the Sisters Lee. Mr. A. F. Lovesey is a popular manager here.

DUCHESS, BALHAM.

A capital and well varied programme is being presented here this week, and the house on the evening of our visit presented a most animated appearance, standing room only being the order throughout. At the top of the bill are Messrs. Herbert Darnley and company in their latest skit, entitled Muscles; or, Muscular Development Personified. Although this is certainly not the most successful sketch that this company has produced, yet as a laughter-maker it attains to what is required from it. It is simply a skit on the latest fad of muscular development. The scene is an up-to-date school of muscular development, and the "dramatis personæ" include a colonel, who wants to "develop," two muscular maidens, an inebriated swell, a giddy parson, an ancient "auntie," and an old-fashioned "kid." The representatives of all these characters work hard for the success of the piece, and the result is about fifteen minutes' hearty laughter from the audience and plenty of applause at the finish. Undoubtedly the success of the evening is Frank Seeley, and, judging by his hearty reception he must be a very great favourite in Balham. He has a couple of capital numbers, both of which he renders quite cleverly. The applause he earns is most hearty. Another pleasing turn is that of Barlee and Smith, who appear in an episode entitled A Rehearsal. The lady sustains the character of an aspirant for the stage, and the gentleman plays a theatrical agent. In a duet they describe various ways of making love. The plaudits they obtain are well deserved. Miss Queenie May, who describes herself as a "juvenile prize packet," does an interesting turn, singing a couple of songs, into the renderings of which she puts plenty of life. Fred Holland, a popular Surrey cricketer, has a flattering reception. His two numbers, "The Fireman" and "The British Flag," are sung with plenty of energy, and he is many times called before the curtain. Clarissa Talbot and Albert Pearce, in their song-scena The Spider and the Fly, appear to much advantage; and John Callan has some amusing patter. Dezmonti and Mora, in a triple bar act, are a couple of gymnasts well above the average. Their style is neat and graceful in the extreme, and they perform the most difficult feats with an ease that is surprising. The Ten Dixie Girls are paying a return visit here, and sing and dance with their usual abandon. A-Ba-Be is also making a return visit with the successful novelty the postcard album, and a pleasant two hours' enjoyment is brought to a conclusion with some capital pictures on the Bioscope. The orchestra, under the bâton of Mr. Charles Longmaid, is heard to advantage in the overture from The Country Girl. Mr. Bertram C. Ross is au fait with his duties in the front of the house, in which he receives valuable assistance from his acting-manager, Mr. A. W. Deer.

RICHMOND THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 1,
Production of a New Sketch, entitled
"A CASE FOR RECISION."

Charles ..... MR. GEORGE ROWLANDS
Lucy ..... MISS ETHEL GRENFELL
Mrs. Skinner ..... MRS. BERNARD PARKER

Mrs. Skinner, a highly-respectable Mrs. Gamp, is expecting her new lady lodger, Lucy, who a moment later appears, and, fatigued with the journey, seeks solace in a sleeping draught. Anon a quarrel ensues between Mrs. Skinner and the new lodger, Lucy, who promptly quits the house. But Mrs. Skinner finds a fresh occupant for the room lately vacated by the lady. This proves to be none other than Charles, Lucy's husband. He confides to the audience that in three days he is to obtain his divorce, though he admits his impetuosity in the matter. Anon there is the usual recrimination, and all ends comme il faut, it being explained that the lady's alleged misconduct was the result of somnambulism, and that the niceties of divorce do not permit parties to resume friendly relations during the time proceedings are pending. A Case for Recision is a fair sample of its type, but needs excision, and will improve with quickening a bit.

Miss Ethel Grenfell did very well as Lucy; Mrs. Bernard Parker was droll as the landlady whose husband was a "virgin" at the local church; Mr. George Rowlands was excellent as Charles.

The programme opens with some cleverly-executed dancing by Freda Gordon, described quite aptly as a dainty dancer, and no one will grudge her the compliment, indeed, the audience seemed to be unanimous on the point, and applauded her efforts quite liberally. Messrs. Cedar and Elgar, who deputised, proved a couple of truculent triflers. Donned in Middle Age costume, they got quite a lot of fun out of a story connected with a noble knight and his horse who seemed to have been involved in no end of trouble. As a couple of wags Messrs Cedar and Elgar may be hard to beat. Ruby Holly won a full measure of applause for her captivating method of handling her song "Jack and Jill," and at once established herself as one of the favourites of the evening. Her other contribution, "Mary," in which she invites one of the audience to "come up and try a waltz" with her, met with a response that amused the house immensely. M. Slippere, a blind pianist, gave a marvellous exhibition of his skill, and managed to extract music from a concert grand in every conceivable position. One of his feats was to sing "Rock'd in the Cradle of the Deep" and to play the accompaniment with his hands behind him. Mr. Niblo, of Palace fame, should rejoice, for here is a gentleman who can do anything in the way not intended by nature, so far, at least, as the piano is concerned. M. Slippere proved himself as able a violinist as a pianist. He is "assisted" by Miss Ramsey. A capital orchestra, under the bâton of Mr. F. R. Kinkee, contributed greatly to the success of the evening, and a piccolo solo was applauded to the echo. Macdonald and Huntingdon harmonise prettily, sing, dance, and give a fair sample of American humour, the gem of their performance being a Yankee coster's love serenade; but Miss Huntingdon's imitation of an American soubrette was distinctly clever, and she deservedly won the favour of the audience. The trouble that arise from a certain old apple tree are naïvely told by Mr. Fred Dunston, who follows up his success with several yarns of varied ages. Those extraordinarily precocious, yet vastly amusing, kiddies, Haley's Juveniles, appear in a quaint mélange, and roused the enthusiasm of the house to that stage when applause is deafening; let it be said that the approbation was well won, for Haley's kiddies are not only clever, but remarkably well trained. They demonstrate this in quite a variety of ways; whether as bare-footed coon maidens, maypole revellers, or dainty vocalists they were refreshingly clever, and prove quite a novel and excellent turn. Vernon's Bioscope continues to attract to a very considerable degree, and, all things considered, Mr. Kay Draco can, metaphorically, shake hands with himself on the all-round attractiveness of this week's bill.

"A LOVELY LIAR."

Farcical Sketch, in One Scene, by Herbert C. Sargent, produced for the first time at the Empress, Brixton, on Monday, Oct. 1.

Harold Pontifex ..... RALPH NAIRN
William Blood ..... STRATTON MILLS
Grace Graham ..... MINNIE BLANCHARD

Droll in conception and treatment, the little piece above-named has met with the success it well merits. The person to whom the distinctive title refers is William, the office-boy of Harold Pontifex, solicitor. William arrives at the office lamenting the fact that unless he pays the two instalments of half a crown due on his bicycle which he has purchased on the "hire system," the machine will be impounded. The boy hits upon the idea of impersonating his master, and thus obtaining the necessary coin. He puts the scheme into practice, but, unhappily, the first visitor is Pontifex himself, who is about to take part in some amateur theatricals, and has donned a lady's frock. William mistakes his master for a client, and after proffering advice, demands his fée, whereupon his irate master pulls off his hat and wig and reveals himself to the boy, who is immediately discharged. William re-enters with the announcement that Miss Graham, his master's fiancée, has arrived, and Pontifex, still in his feminine habiliments, rushes out of the room, not, however, in time to prevent the young lady from catching a view of the retreating skirt. In his desire for revenge for being discharged, William encourages her in the belief that there is another lady in the room, and declares that Pontifex is a scoundrel of the blackest type, and has already a wife and family. Pontifex, on his return, is loaded with reproaches by his sweetheart, but he gives her the reason for his strange attire, and assures her that she has been misled. The solicitor being suddenly called away on urgent business, William puts on the female habiliments, and comes forth as the wife to whom he had alluded. He thus convinces Miss Graham of her lover's perfidy, and seizes his opportunity to borrow the needful five shillings; but Pontifex soon returns, and penetrating his office-boy's disguise, pulls off the skirt, revealing the unmistakable male habiliments beneath. Both comedians of the cast exerted themselves fully to cause merriment, and laughter was incessant throughout. Mr. Ralph Nairn presented an amusing picture of the much-harried solicitor, and spoke his lines with the utmost point. The resourceful William was invested with droll characteristics by Mr. Stratton Mills, who cut a most eccentric figure at the close. Miss Minnie Blanchard acted in a refined and pleasing manner as Grace Graham.

Another new sketch of the extravagantly farcical character was the "pantomimical perpetration, accompanied by the band," by Harry Leighton and George Everard, entitled The Buskers. The scene represents a country inn, the host of which has retired for peace and quietness. So satisfied is he of having secured that comfort that he sings a song in which his rural retreat is favourably contrasted with the "Bustle of London Town." He is soon, however, undeceived, for the next moment strange sounds are heard, and a couple of itinerant vocalists join inharmoniously in a "coon" ballad. A rival soon after appears in a seedy-looking conjurer, while later on a Punch and Judy show contributes to the disturbance. Meanwhile, a brewer's dray has arrived upon the scene, and the carman mounts a barrel and delivers a lecture on intemperance. A "masher" and an inebriated lady who endeavours to sing serve to swell the crowd, till at length the host of the inn, bewildered by all the noise and confusion, rushes out with a keg of gunpowder, with which he blows the Punch and Judy show to atoms. The sketch, which is produced under the personal supervision of Mr. Nelson Francis, the genial manager of the Empress, is riotously funny, and is taken in a properly boisterous fashion by "Keita's kompany of komical komedians."

CAICEDO

AT THE THEATRE ROYAL, HALIFAX.
A REMARKABLE PERFORMANCE.

"THEATRE ROYAL.—A remarkable performance on the slack wire should attract large crowds to the Theatre Royal this week. Don Juan Caicedo, immediately the applause occasioned by his appearance subsides, begins to jump on the wire in a most original fashion. The little Continental artist turns somersaults and double somersaults, then repeats the feat in boots and spurs, and finally goes through the performance again without his balancing pole. He even balances the back legs of a chair on the wire and stands on that."—Halifax Daily Guardian, Sept. 25, 1906.

THE condition of Mr. Fred Locke, the well-known pantomime librettist, shows no improvement. He is, in fact, weaker than ever, and requiring more constant attention. Mr. J. G. Crichton, 9, Bridge-street, Glasgow, acknowledges with thanks the receipt of the following additional subscriptions to the "Fred Locke Fund": Beast and the Beauty Co., per Bernard Mervyn, £1 10s.; Joseph Barker, 2s.

MR. TOM RYLEY, who is producing The Belle of Mayfair in the United States at the end of the current month, has had to injunct Shubert Bros. for using a colourable imitation of Leslie Stuart's admired number "Come to Saint George's."

To the Sixpenny Pops of Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter have been added Mr. Harry Lauder's "We parted on the shore," Mr. Walter Munroe's "I'm coming back to Dublin," and "Come back to Borneo."

MISS FLORRIE FORDE produced at the Royal, Oldham, on the 2nd inst., "Float me, Charlie!" for the first time. The success of this new number by Jerome and Schwartz was instantaneous and complete, the audience had the chorus "in once," and great applause was accorded the lady. It is published by Mr. David Day.

AMONG recent acquisitions which Messrs. Francis and Day are placing on the market may be mentioned "How do, Matilda McGee?" (Mellor, Gifford, and Lawrance), "Because it's the fashion to do so" (Searson and Frampton), and "On the Prom-tiddley-om-pom-pom" (Murphy and Lipton). Mr. George Lashwood will feature the latter.

MR. HAMILTON HILL'S latest song by Charles Hilbury and Fred Murray, with music by Orlando Powell, has been purchased by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter for publication. It is entitled "Baby in Dreamland."

SEASIDE PERFORMERS IN LONDON.

PIERROT MATINEE AT HOLLOWAY EMPIRE.

One has frequently heard complaints from the lesser-known variety artists that they are unable to induce managers to give them a trial show; or, if they do get a trial show, they are not given adequate opportunities of displaying their talents. Had some of the grumblers sat in the Holloway Empire on Monday afternoon and noted the consideration given to the trial acts of the seaside performers by Mr. William Collins, who is Mr. Oswald Stoll's district-manager, they would certainly not have indulged in adverse criticism upon the methods by which artists are selected, but would have been inclined to praise Mr. Collins for his patience and the thorough attention he bestowed upon each item on the programme. From a few minutes after two o'clock, when the entertainment opened, until the curtain had fallen at a quarter past five upon the concluding sketch, Mr. Collins sat in the centre of the circle and carefully watched each performer. Most of them he engaged for a full Moss and Stoll tour. In the case of others, where he was not quite certain as to how they would be received by the public, he took into account the fact that in an almost empty house an artist failed to receive that measure of encouragement which means so much to the artistic temperament, and afforded them opportunities of showing what they could do before a full house by giving a week's trial. Nothing could be more fair-minded than this, and unknown artists who possess ability may rest assured that they have a good friend in Mr. Collins.

The audience on Monday afternoon was a very select and a very limited one. The performances were given by several pierrot teams who have been playing in various seaside towns in England this summer, but who had never before appeared in London. Nearly all gave evidence of considerable talent and suitability for music-hall work, and, judging by what passed before our eyes, two or three of the artists should make a name themselves in the halls of dance and song. Miss Flossie Behrens was the first to face the footlights. She was described as a whistler, soloist, and vocalist. Miss Behrens has the advantage of a good presence, and her whistling and singing, especially in the "Cuckoo" song, was distinctly commendable. Mr. Nelson Hardy, the ventriloquist, came next. He understands the difficult art of vocal deception, and if he were to cut down the conversation between himself and his little figure his turn would be all the more acceptable. As it was, it was praiseworthy, and particularly pleasing was the latter part of his act, in which his dummy is an old farmer, who sings and walks. Miss Nora Hayward had a catchy melody with "The Gay Parisienne," a song she rendered with appropriate spirit and vivacity. She was admired, too, in a tricky Spanish dance. An attractive show was furnished by Mr. Arthur J. Hill's "living marionettes." These figures resemble a certain style of cartoon in which famous men are made to appear with big heads attached to diminutive bodies. One sees Mr. Hill's head on the shoulders of a doll, the contrivance being cleverly worked. He first takes the character of a gay Piccadilly Johnny, and later as an amorous Scotsman, who sings the praises of a lassie from Bonnie Dundee.

Another performer whose efforts received the approval of the spectators was Mr. Fred Frampton, who proved hugely entertaining in a burlesque tragedy in which he enacted four different characters. Mr. Dennis Drew had charge of a troupe of nine boys, the whole party being uniformed in neat white drill suits. Mr. Drew, who is the fortunate owner of a powerful voice, sang with fine effect the song, "Come, my boy, and be a soldier." The verses are of the inspiring order, and, sung as they were to the accompaniment of exercises by the lads, the martial melody was intensified. A capital animal and bird impersonator was found in Mr. Sydney Locklynne, who treated us to characteristic vocal imitations of members of the lower creation, and also reproduced the sounds caused by musical instruments. Then we had from Mr. Fred Daniels an amusing dissertation on faces one sees in the street. The same gentleman was responsible for an able imitation of Mr. R. G. Knowles in his song concerning a boy, an apple, a Bible, and half-a-crown. Cedar and Elgar, in warlike costumes that were a strange mixture of periods contemporary with and antecedent to the time of Queen Elizabeth, made merry with a burlesque duologue about a brave knight and a fair lady. The only people who donned pierrot dress were the Catlin Troupe, whose songs and dances and distinctive "business" formed an extremely agreeable act. A somewhat original turn was that of Versatillo. A gentleman steps forward to the footlights and announces on behalf of the management that an artist is not quite ready to go on. A "Johnnie" in evening dress seated in the stalls jumps up and offers his services. He says he can sing and do a lot of wonderful things; and this is the way in which Versatillo appears. He has a droll manner, and renders a song, "It's a rather serious matter, don't you know," and he is, in addition, an agile individual and a skilful instrumentalist. Others who performed during the afternoon were Mr. Archie Anderson, character vocalist; Mr. Barrie Keay, Scotch comedian; Miss Luna Wickenden, vocalist; Little Daisy, dancer; Mr. Harold Lawrence, 'cellist; Mr. Gurney Russell, comedian; Mr. Paul Florus, xylophone player; and Miss Griffiths, vocalist.

VARIETY THEATRES AND RATES.

In view of the interest which has been created by Sir Albert De Rutzen's recent decision in the cases of the Westminster City Council v. the Lyceum and the same body v. the Coliseum, the following list of music halls and their rateable values is interesting. The particulars are taken from the latest returns issued by the London County Council, published in January, 1904:—

DR. BODIE AT BRIXTON.

The name of Bodie is a power alike in town and country, and the famous "bloodless surgeon's" return to the Metropolis this week has been heartily welcomed at the Empress by houses crowded to the doors. Fresh features of interest are imported into the amusing side of the demonstration which is now presented first. A committee of four is invited to come on the stage from among the audience, in order to test the genuineness of the experiments. Under their observation the Doctor charges himself with an enormous voltage of the current, and by means of the fluid sets light to a cigarette, makes a linen handkerchief burst into flame, and ignites a number of gas-burners with a banana which he holds in his hand. Fun is then made with the members of the committee, whose chairs suddenly become bewitched, while one of them, who is called upon to take part in a fencing bout with the Doctor, is obliged to drop his rapier in terror. Shocks in the auditorium are then administered by means of a long cord to which handles are attached and passed over to any member of the audience who cares to take hold. The fun thus aroused grows fast and furious, the agonised shouts of the venturesome persons who grasp the handles, causing shrieks of laughter.

Before proceeding with the more practical part of his business, in which he endeavours to cure persons afflicted with paralysis, Dr. Bodie said the question was often put to him, "Are the cures lasting?" He replied that he could guarantee a radical cure provided his instructions were followed, otherwise it was no fault of his if the patient relapsed. Before he took a case in hand, he must have the assurance that it had been discharged as incurable from the leading London hospitals. Sixty to seventy per cent. of hopeless cases, the Doctor continued, had been successful under his treatment. In proof of the stability of the cure, several late sufferers from paralysis appeared in person. The first was a girl of nineteen years, who had been paralysed from birth. It was a very bad case, well known in Brixton, and was treated at the Canterbury two years ago. Another was that of a young girl who had been a victim to the dread disease for sixteen years. She had been treated in 1904, and now appeared in the fulness of health to thank the Doctor publicly. She explained that she had been paralysed down the whole of one side, and she had only Dr. Bodie to thank for being able to be present that night. An effective finale was provided in a little child of four, who, previous to the Doctor's treatment, had never stood or walked, but now was able to sing and dance. The Doctor took no credit for having given her a voice, but he did claim to have restored the power of her limbs. In proof of her return to robust health, the little mite executed a "cake-walk," to the great delight of the spectators.

The Doctor's skill in "bloodless surgery" was demonstrated in two instances on the night of our visit. Both were extreme cases, one that of a young woman, living in the locality, who had been paralysed from birth. She was carried on in the stalwart arms of an attendant, and seated in a chair. A powerful magnet was passed over the limb, and the Doctor took hold of the foot which hung limp and helpless; then with a sharp wrench the joints were loosened, the magnetic current applied, and the patient was able to walk off the stage. The other case was that of a youth of fourteen, whose right arm, withered to the bone, swung lifeless at his side. The same process was gone through, and the boy lifted his arm, and, grasping a 7lb. dumb-bell, cast it on to the stage. When the applause had subsided, Dr. Bodie said he would allow any medical man to inspect the patients, and if any evidence of sub-cutaneous hæmorrhage was found, he was prepared to hand over a cheque for £1,000 to any local charity. No acceptance of the challenge was forthcoming, and the Doctor retired amid the usual manifestations of goodwill.

MISS MARIE LOFTUS

AT THE PALACE THEATRE, DERBY.

No less a variety stage celebrity than Marie Loftus is at the Palace Theatre of Varieties this week, and such being the case crowded houses are pretty certain to be the rule. Long as this most popular of London favourites has been before the public, there is no question about her still retaining the greatest public favour, and it was with evident delight that Derby people gathered last night to renew her acquaintance. Marie Loftus is no stranger to local patrons of the music hall, and in Derby as elsewhere she enjoys an enviable reputation. Flattering in the extreme was the reception given her at each of the initial evening's performances, which attracted thronged houses, and ever of generous disposition in responding to the wishes of her admirers she last night graciously complied with encore demands more than once, and at the close repeatedly came forward and acknowledged what was quite an ovation. Marie Loftus is one of the most versatile of comediennes, and in her latest success, "Singers—Past and Present," she has afforded herself full scope for the play of her talents. In her inimitable style she introduces a great variety of characters in this, and though each necessitates a change of attire—really ludicrous are some, especially the old-time crinoline, which is of alarming proportions—she succeeds in presenting one after another, with quick-change-artist-like ability, keeping the audience in a state of the highest glee. In addition to presenting "Singers—Past and Present," last evening, she sang "Imagination" and "How ashamed I was."—The Express.

The programme at the Palace Theatre of Varieties this week is distinctly above the average, and it was thoroughly enjoyed by two crowded houses last night. The star turn is no less a personage than the well-known Marie Loftus, who was accorded a most flattering reception. She has a very extensive répertoire to select from, and her impersonation of singers past and present was very much appreciated, whilst her imitation of the much talked of Gibson Girl was very amusing. She seems to have an endless store of subjects with which to amuse her audience, and she gave a side-splitting imitation of the heavy stage villain and heroine which tickled the audience immensely. Those present showed their appreciation by loudly demanding an encore, to which she responded with an Indian scena, which was also well received.—Daily Telegraph.

CRICKET—THEATRES v. HALLS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Would it be possible to arrange a cricket match for next season—Theatres v. Music Halls? I think it would undoubtedly be a success, and might be of considerable financial assistance to the charities of both the music-hall and the theatrical professions.

I have spoken to several influential music-hall managers on the subject, and they seem to think it an excellent idea. What think the powers of the theatrical world? Perhaps Mr. Aubrey Smith will enter into the spirit of the thing? At all events, if it can be arranged, the music-hall profession are ready and willing to meet the theatrical profession in a friendly contest, and Mr. Fred Raugh (Mr. Macnaghten's general-manager) will be pleased to hear from our theatrical friends on the subject. Communications should be addressed to the Foresters' Music Hall, E.—Yours faithfully,

J. H. BROWNSON.

CHAT WITH MR. FRED MILLER.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

Amid all the tumult of loud-voiced anticipations and prophecies as to the continued, and even increased, prosperity of music-hall companies about which we have heard so much recently, a gentle note of warning is struck by a gentleman whose position and experience entitle his statements to be regarded as significant. The gentleman we refer to is Mr. Fred Miller, the general manager of the Canterbury and Paragon music halls.

Says Mr. Miller, "Our programmes are getting more and more expensive, the salaries paid to artists having reached exceedingly high proportions. This state of things, combined with the ever-increasing rivalry of newly-erected halls, renders the managing-directors' task an Herculean one, to engage that public drawing talent which is yearly getting so difficult to obtain, and as the artists' salaries are ever increasing. I do not at all suggest that music halls are on the decline, or that there is evidence of the withdrawal of public support. On the contrary, what I desire to urge is that the, in many cases, excessive prices paid for 'turns,' the immense outlay necessitated by the County Council's requirements, and the fact of our having so many music halls nowadays, every suburb and every district being more than sufficiently represented by them, that the populations of the various districts are hardly numerous enough to fill every hall nightly, nor rich enough to support them, act as influences against the making of huge dividends by variety concerns."

And now to be a little more personal. Mr. Miller may be able to derive some little pleasure from the fact that he is the manager of the oldest music hall in London. The Canterbury was opened on May 17, 1852. In mediæval times its site was occupied by an inn from which pilgrims started on their way to Canterbury to worship at the shrine of Thomas à Becket. So much for the history of the hall. As to the history of the individual, it may be mentioned that fifteen years ago Mr. Miller was given an appointment on the staff of the Paragon in the capacity of treasurer to Mr. Arthur Tressider, then manager of the Mile End-road house. Subsequently Mr. George Adney Payne and his co-directors entrusted to Mr. Miller the management of the Paragon, Mr. Charles Beecham being called from the South London Palace to act as Mr. Miller's secretary. With Mr. Miller's appointment the Paragon embarked on a new lease of life, and the establishment steadily progressed in the esteem of the public. Good entertainments, discreet supervision of details, the creation of a very fine orchestra, and an ever-watchful personal attention to the promenade steadily operated to the benefit of the house, which in a comparatively short space of time became exceedingly popular.

During his term of office at the Paragon many notable productions were introduced to the footlights, among them being Dennis M'Carthy's Cheer Up! in connection with which, it may be remembered, a couple of bands performed on the stage. It was here, too, that Fred Karno produced his Jail Birds, Joe Elvin was first seen in Toffy's Trotter and A Wrong House, and Paul Martinetti brought out his sketch entitled My Wife; while Mr. A. C. Lilly's now famous dramatic military playlet, Drummed Out, received its first mark of public approval at this hall. Upon Mr. Fred Holden relinquishing the post of manager of the Canterbury Mr. Payne recommended to the directorate the selection of Mr. Miller as general manager of the Canterbury and the Paragon, a selection which was confirmed, and which, we venture to say, has been fully justified during the past six years. Since Mr. Miller took up the reins of government at the Canterbury the prices of admission have been cut down to suit the pockets of the patrons, and there has been a reconstruction of the stage as well as of the whole of the auditorium, which has given the greatest satisfaction all round. Both at the Canterbury and the Paragon Mr. Miller introduced the system of electrical advertisements without which a theatre nowadays is not complete.

Unquestionably the most memorable function associated with the history of Mr. Payne's Lambeth hall was the golden anniversary, which was celebrated in 1902. The late Mr. Charles Morton, who opened the Canterbury fifty-four years ago, was present on the occasion referred to, together with a rare congregation of the leading lights of the music-hall firmament and of famous literary and artistic people. Mr. Miller was for some time on the committee of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, but as he found he could not give that consideration and attention to the working of the Fund which he conscientiously believed was due from him as a committeeman, he resigned his seat on that body. As it is, there is more than sufficient to occupy his time and thoughts in the responsibilities and work involved in the general-managership of two of London's largest music halls.

The subject of this sketch hails from Gloucestershire, and is well known as a lover and a good judge of horses, his advice in this direction being frequently sought.

At the Palace-by-the-Sea, Clacton, on the 28th ult., a complimentary benefit was given to Mr. Henry Ford, the founder and builder, and, in addition to the ordinary bill, the following gave assistance:—Miss Vera Patey, Miss Fanny Emmerton, Miss Florence Munday, and Messrs. Edgar Curtis and Edgar Berte.

Miss Beatrice Kerr, another Australian lady swimmer, who has for some time past been giving daily exhibitions of diving and fancy swimming in the sea at the North Pier, Blackpool, has decided to stay the winter in England, as she is anxious to get used to the cold. Next summer she intends to make an attempt to beat the record for a lady staying in the sea in the Channel.

"THE BUSTLER OF BATH;" or, THE CRASH WITHOUT REASON."

A Folie Musicale, by H. G. Pelissier, Produced by the Follies, at the Tivoli, on Monday, Oct. 1.

The Duke of St. Vitus ..... Seymour Pelissier
Yours St. Cyrly ..... Maudi Mars
— Stick, Esq. ..... Lawrence Everard
A Railway Station Bun ..... Lily Walbrook
The Beauty of Bath ..... Ethaline Allandale
The Gibson Girl ..... Camille Sydney

The danger of burlesquing at a music hall well-known actors and actresses in successful plays lies in the unfamiliarity of variety audiences with the original performers or performances; but from the hearty laughter that punctuated the first representation on Monday by the Follies at the Tivoli of the burlesque The Bustler of Bath; or, The Crash Without Reason, it would seem that Mr. Seymour Hicks—whose methods are parodied by the author, Mr. Pelissier—and his plays are not caviare to the public finding its entertainment in our halls of mirth and melody. From the above title one naturally expects humorous references to both The Catch of the Season and The Beauty of Bath, and when the curtain lifts a staircase rears its head just by a pillar, to remind one of the youngest actor-manager's fondness for staircases in his mounting of musical plays. The first scene of the humorous trifle is nevertheless labelled "a bun shop," which of course it does not in the least resemble. The opening chorus of "Gibson buns" is headed by "Camille Sydney. When someone mispronounces her name, "Lewis" protests, "Don't call me camel; it's Edna May who has got the hump." Soon after Mr. "Seymour Pelissier" enters in a hurry and rushes up and down the stage to such an extent that he is termed a To-and-Fro(h)man. He is the Duke of St. Vitus—with a dance; but his exhibitions of fearsome energy are interrupted by the photographer, who complains that he is sold out of picture post-cards. Then do Mr. Seymour Pelissier and Miss Ethaline Allandale pose for a domestic picture with a doll placed between them. Dainty Miss Ethaline has a couple of topical songs. In the second act, in which the positions of the staircase and pillar are shifted from the p. to the o.p. side of the stage, Miss Maudi Mars, as Yours St. Cyrly, complains that she has to sing her song before the men have come up from the bars, confessing that she would not have had a song at all had not a great friend of hers been financing the play. The number "Make a Noise" promises to be one of the hits of the sketch. Here is a sample of its sarcasm:—

My dear, delightful darlings, though the pace may kill,
If I didn't keep you dancing, and you sat quite still,
The public couldn't start at your expensive underwear,
And then the poor old theatre wouldn't fill, fill, fill.

Mr. Pelissier's avoidupois is necessarily not concealed in his disguise as Mr. Seymour Hicks, but the make-up is decidedly clever nevertheless. Mr. Lewis Sydney as Camille has a decidedly droll conception of the willowy grace of the Dana Gibson female. Mr. Lawrence Everard is fitted with a part (— Stick, Esq.) which recalls his performance of the Baron in the pantomime skit; and Miss Lily Walbrook, to whose name is affixed the letters of the postal district E.C., plays the small part of a Railway Station Bun. As a preliminary to the skit the Follies present their well-known musi-comedy entertainment, which is always sure of a good reception. The best item of these prefatory "notes" is the refrain of the contented and podgy Teuton, who finds that the shekels flow more readily into his pocket on British soil than they do in "The Fatherland." The refrain runs:—

My fatherland, my fatherland,
I never more shall see;
I don't go back to Germany,
This is the place for me.

Mr. Grossmith was responsible some years ago for a similarly constituted song. In the above effusion Mr. Pelissier highly distinguishes himself, and would be certain of an engagement as a single turn if he could always find such amusing numbers wherein to display his talents as a comedian. Mr. Joseph Wilson, the manager, may be congratulated on his special engagement; and the Tivoli is just the house for what we may term "cabinet burlesque."

THE BARRING CLAUSE.

INCIDENT AT THE PARAGON.

The audience at the Paragon on Monday evening received something in the nature of a surprise when Mr. Charles Beecham, the manager, stepped before the footlights and informed them that no fewer than six turns which had been previously announced were prevented from appearing in consequence of an injunction which had been obtained against them by a rival music-hall company. The artists who were thus barred were Miss Marie Lloyd, the Poluskis, Miss Jessie Preston, Miss Maidee Scott, Mr. Ernest Shand, and Orpheus, and it will be readily understood that such names formed a not insignificant portion of the programme. The management, of course, did their best under the extraordinary circumstances, and with the aid of the telephone secured a number of attractive acts from other of the halls in Mr. Payne's syndicate. The substituted items were furnished by Winter and McGinty, ventriloquists; Lily Burnand, comedienne; T. Finglass, coon delineator; Harry Purcell; the Musical Howards; Miss Maud Esmond; Mr. Percy Honri; and the Courtiers, the well-known vaudeville entertainers. These turns proved highly agreeable, so that whilst the audience did not see what they had bargained for, they nevertheless departed in a satisfactory frame of mind.

Both Mr. Beecham and the injuncted artists were for the time being placed in an extremely awkward position, for the legal documents were not served upon them until about a couple of hours before the curtain was raised at the Paragon; and, indeed, some only received their injunctions just when they were starting in their broughams in order to do their first turn. The quarrel, it appears, was really between the London Music Hall, Shoreditch, and the Paragon, and the issuing of the injunctions by the London management was, as will shortly be seen, a case of "a Roland for an Oliver." Last week the management of the Paragon obtained an injunction against Mr. John Lawson preventing his appearance at the Shoreditch establishment, which is about 1½ miles away. In self-defence the London management felt compelled to retaliate, and so Mr. Walter Payne, instructed by Mr. Philip Rutland, made an application to Mr. Justice Bargrave Deane, the Vacation Judge, for an injunction, which his lordship granted, against all those artists on the Paragon bill who were under contract to appear at the London.

The London Music Hall Co., Ltd., and the "R.B." Syndicate, Ltd., applied to Mr. Justice Bargrave Deane on Thursday for the continuation of the interim injunctions granted on Monday against Miss Marie Lloyd, Mr. Ernest Shand, Miss Jessie Preston, The Poluskis, and Orpheus (Mr. Ben Sylvester), to restrain them from appearing at the Paragon. Mr. William H. Burney, managing-director of the London, said that a clause in Miss Lloyd's contract provided that she should not perform at any music hall, theatre, club, concert hall, or institute within a mile and a half of the London prior to the beginning or during the continuance of her engagement at the latter place. She insisted, however, on appearing at the Paragon, and the other artists mentioned also performed there. The summonses were adjourned, and the interim injunction was continued.

COPYRIGHT CONVICTIONS.

The first conviction under the new Musical Copyright Act was made on the 28th ult., when James Munro, newsvendor, of Strutton-ground, Westminster, was charged at Marlborough-street Police-court with selling a copy of, and exposing for sale copies of, pirated music. Prisoner was found selling pirated music on his stall in Great Pulteney-street by E. W. Church and A. Preston, agents of the Music Publishers' Association, of Regent-street. He sold them a copy of the "Trumpeter" song for 4d., and said that the copies, which were pirated, were getting scarce. He offered to let them have any copies of other pirated music that were not on his stall. He said that the new Act came into force in January.

Mr. Kennedy: Ah! that's where he was mistaken, it was Aug. 4.

Prisoner said he did not know it had come into force, or he would not have stood there. He was only minding the barrow for the owner, who had gone to dinner.

Munro was fined 40s. or fourteen days, the magistrate announcing his intention of increasing the fine to £5 in the next case brought before him.

Before Mr. Paul Taylor, at Marylebone, on Monday, William Jackson, 20, of Kensal-road; George Burns, 22, with no home; and William Lovell, 25, of Denmark-road, were charged with having in their possession and offering for sale 165 copies of pirated music.

Agents of the Musical Copyright Association found the prisoners in the High-road, Kilburn, offering for sale copies of well-known musical productions for 2d. or 4d. a copy, the net price of which at a shop would be 2s. or more.

In reply to the magistrate, the agent said this pirated music was supplied by a printer to a wholesale firm who distributed it to such men as the prisoners, who sold it.

The defence set up by the prisoners was that they did not know the recent Act of Parliament had come into force.

Having been told that all the prisoners had been in this class of trade for a long time, Mr. Paul Taylor remarked that he regarded the dealing of the prisoners as nothing less than trading in stolen property. He fined each of them £5, or one month's imprisonment.

Mr. Arthur Preston, an agent of the Music Publishers' Association, attended before Mr. Hopkins, at Lambeth, on Monday, to prosecute several men who had been caught offering pirated music for sale in the streets. There were six defendants in all, and with one exception (in which the prisoner was ordered to pay the mitigated penalty of 20s. in view of the fact that he was only minding the stall for the actual owner) they were each fined 40s. with the alternative of a month's imprisonment.

To one man, apparently of better education than the rest, but who, like the others, pleaded ignorance of the law, Mr. Hopkins remarked, "I guarantee that you know perfectly well that the Act was passed to shut you people up. It will certainly do so. Upon the next conviction you will be liable to imprisonment without a fine."

The copies of music seized from the men were confiscated.

At Greenwich, on Monday, John Harrison, 24, of Bethnal Green, was charged, before Mr. Baggallay, with selling and having in his possession at East Greenwich sixty-six copies of pirated music.

Police-constable Woolner, 45 R R, said the prisoner called at a house and offered music for sale. Asked if he had any pirated music for sale, he said, "Yes, it is all pirated except one copy." He said he was not aware the new Act was in force.

Frank Mabe, agent to the Music Publishers' Association, said sixty-five copies were pirated.

The Prisoner: I would not have bought the music only I didn't know the new Act was in.

Mr. Baggallay: The new Act came in force on Aug. 4.

The Prisoner: I was down in the country.

Mr. Baggallay: You have had a long holiday. I am afraid the law does not recognise such a long holiday. You and other persons who sell this music are liable to a penalty of £5. After that you are liable to two months without a fine, or to a fine. So now you know the law. Just to enforce it, and to remind you of the law, I will fine you 40s., or 21 days.

John Nixon, 30, of St. Luke's, was also charged at Greenwich with the possession of pieces of pirated music, 116 in number. He pleaded ignorance of the law.

Mr. Baggallay: Have you been away, too?

"No," said the prisoner; "I ain't sold any music for a long time. I sell postcards as well."

The prisoner was fined 40s., or 21 days.

Edward Adams was charged, on Tuesday, before Mr. Mead, with selling pirated music.

Henry Cooper, agent for the Music Publishers' Association, said he saw defendant with a stall in High-street, Whitechapel, offering a large quantity of music for sale. Much of it was pirated music, and he gave Adams into custody, under the Copyright Act, 1906. Defendant then said, "Well, Mr. Cooper, you know me. Don't be hard on me. Take my name and address, and let me go." On the stall were 167 pirated copies of different songs.

Defendant said he thought the new Act would not yet be in force, but he meant to discontinue selling pirated music. He hoped the magistrate would deal leniently with him.

Mr. Mead said he certainly would not do so, and rejoiced to see the Act passed, so that the nefarious trade could be stopped. He would be fined £3, or one month's hard labour.

For a similar offence Edward C. Regg, who admitted his copies of music were "duds," was ordered to pay 20s. or ten days.

Thomas Young had to pay 40s., or sixteen days, for a like offence.

"THE SCARECROW."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Re Miss Bessie Butt's letter to you concerning a song anent the above, I would like to say that I wrote a song on this subject, and introduced it into my play Great Temptations as far back as January, 1900. I trust the two songs do not clash.—Yours faithfully,

FOOTBALL.

Bristol X.L.C.R. 2nd A.F.C. v. Shaftesbury Albions A.F.C.

Played on Clifton Downs, Saturday, Sept. 22. During the first half of the game A. Lintern, of Shaftesbury Albions A.F.C., was injured, and had to retire, and E. Bowman (of Harry Hare's Orchestral Band A.F.C.) took his place. The following were the teams:—

Bristol X.L.C.R. 2nd A.F.C.—B. Davies, goal; F. Thorne and B. Moore, backs; F. White, F. Austin, and H. Taylor, half-backs; A. English, E. Poole, A. Cox, E. Belding, and H. Clements, forwards.

Shaftesbury Albions A.F.C.—F. Horner, goal; G. Wills and H. Cummings, backs; A. Lintern, F. Groves, and F. Allen, half-backs; E. Collings, G. Adams, A. Hale, B. Tucker, and A. Edwards, forwards. Referee, L. Clayton; linesmen, W. J. Horton and B. Austin.

Result: Bristol X.L.C.R., 1; Shaftesbury Albions, 3 goals. A. English, A. Hale, and F. Groves (2) scored for their respective sides.

LIL HAWTHORNE.

GREAT SUCCESS IN LIVERPOOL.
OLYMPIA.

I would go far to see and hear an artist of the high abilities of Lil Hawthorne. I would even go farther than that if I couldn't get to listen to her any nearer. When one contrasts the refinement of methods, the high standard of ability, and the refreshing quality of the artist, as exemplified in Lil Hawthorne, with the shuddering, raucous, and "rorty" banalities of the female star of the long, long since, one gets a sharp, clear impression of the advancement in tone and wholesome excellence of the modern palace of varieties.

It is artists of the calibre of

who have made the present-day music hall possible to the million. Who have drawn within its portals the well-living middle class, to whom at one time the music hall was only the resort of those a good deal

LOWER THAN THE ANGELS.

Now, bless us and save us, Darby tucks Joan's arm in his, and toddles off in his thousands to the Palaces and Empires with as much regularity and excellence of character and feeling as he goes to church. And, listening to Lil Hawthorne's delightful vocalism, and eyeing her equally agreeable presence, Darby nudges Joan and offers the opinion with a good-humoured chuckle that "Yon's a bonny 'un, and a pleasure to listen to. I'm glad we come, missus."

Lil submitted to us three songs, all with a singular

AFFINITY TO EACH OTHER.

The first was the affecting love story of a young lady who sang all day under a cactus tree. This, it appears, was her residence, and the only home she had. Draughty, to say the least of it, and one shudders to think of the complication of complaints she was liable to contract in wet weather, to say nothing of the prickly nature of her domicile.

The next ditty was given us as a glorified gipsy young gentleman in velvet and "shorts." This picturesque youth had a whole caravan to lay at the feet of "Rosie," with a canary, mind you, to beguile her waiting moments, what time the young gipsy was robbing the neighbouring hen roosts. Anyhow, the caravan was a decided advance on the castus tree, for Lil assured us that it was

"Snug and cosy for Rosie Posie,"

The next capped both, for the street urchin, in which character the artist next appeared, had absolutely nothing to offer his donah but a doorstep.

There was no walls,
And there was no chairs;
There was no roof,
And there was no stairs.

but only a humble doorstep. Well, to take your bride home and offer her the fascinating allurements of a doorstep as a bridal chamber seems no catch. Yet the advantages of it enshrined in a gush of true love seemed so seductive and engaging as sung by Lil Hawthorne, that, carried away by its sentimental character, the sympathetic audience seemed anxious to rush out into West Derby-road and its by-streets and take forcible possession of all the doorsteps they could seize, and start an ardent billing and cooing there and then.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SYDNEY, AUG. 28.—Mr. Charles Holloway withdrew Bleak House, in which his daughter Beatrice made so firm an impression as Jo, in favour of Shadows of a Great City, on the 25th. In this revival, the chief impersonation is the Biddy Roonan of Mr. J. P. O'Neill. This clever actor, with whom your correspondent was associated in the early seventies, has a rich Hibernian flavour in all his work. His physique lends itself to portraying stout old women, and in this play he scores heavily. Tom Cooper, A.B., gives Mr. Robert Norman a chance at sailor-hero portraiture, and he is at home here. Miss Ethel Apperton as the heroine adds strength to the cast. Miss Beatrice Holloway makes Nellie Standish a sweet, attractive girl, her love scene being particularly good. Mr. Godfrey Cass—always careful—makes Benson sufficiently hard and callous; and Miss Hilda Fraser plays the fiery landlady to the life.

MISS TITTELL BRUNE finishes her Dorothy Vernon season at Her Majesty's on the 31st, and then goes with Mr. J. C. Williamson's dramatic company to New Zealand, returning here for the Christmas production of Parsifal, by the Rev. Hillhouse Taylor, at Her Majesty's. On Sept. 1 Mr. Williamson's Gilbert and Sullivan répertoire company will produce Utopia, Limited, for the first time in Sydney. The season will last for three weeks.

MR. HARRY RICKARDS provides the Tivoleans with such strong bills of fare that it would seem impossible to further strengthen them. Fancy an Antipodean audience getting in one programme Florrie Henderson, with dogs and monkey, Les Cabiacs, Seymour and Dupré, Alexander and Bertie, Kelly and Agnes, Tom Dawson, Vasco, Alf Chester, Nita Leete, Maud Faning, Olive Lenton, Victor Kelly, Baby Watson, George Bentley, Lizette Parkes, Howard Hall, Alice Lane, and Arthur Elliott, and then wanting more! But Mr. Rickards has this week added the greatest of sensations in La Moto Girl. This clever lady astonishes all.

MR. EDMUND HOLLOWAY died on the 18th. He was the oldest actor in Australia, having played such parts as William, in Black-eyed Susan, in the fifties A man of fine physique and stentorian voice, he was known as a conscientious actor, a great favourite with everybody, and at least eighty-five years old. He acted up to the very last in Mr. Alfred Dampier's company, his strongest part being the cannibal felon, Gabbett, in The Term of His Natural Life.

MELBOURNE, AUG. 28.—The Princess's Theatre was crowded on Saturday evening, when Mme. Blanche Arral gave the final operatic recital of the present season. This popular artist was accorded a most enthusiastic reception.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE (Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson; Business-Manager, Mr. Geo. Tallis).—The Little Michus continues to attract large audiences, and on Saturday evening there was not a vacant seat. Miss Alma Barber is exceptionally good, and her singing of "Dearest sister" nightly evokes great applause. The opera is beautifully mounted, and the orchestral work exceptionally good.

OPERA HOUSE (Proprietor, Mr. Harry Rickards; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Aydon).—Little Cliff continues prime favourite, his remarkably clever singing and dancing nightly meeting with genuine approval. Augustin and Hartley have added to their already very clever performance with barrels; Miss Cassie Walmer has introduced some new songs; Blake and Granby fairly bring down the house with their amusing farce, He, She, and It; while Elsie Brown, Nellie Kilburn, Fred Bluett, Tim Howard, and a host of other artists, contribute pleasing turns.

MR. EDWIN H. LIMMER is the new acting-manager of the London Shoreditch, and he has already established himself a firm favourite by means of his energetic efforts in front.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces

Mr. James Chappell, who is now in his seventy-seventh year, has had a most interesting and varied experience, as artist, manager, and managing-director and proprietor. It was at the early age of fourteen that he left home to join a troupe of travelling acrobats, accompanying Nelson Lee at the Standard and Ealing Theatres. After staying with this troupe for some time, he accepted an engagement with Mr. Benjamin Conquest, father of Mr. George Conquest, at the old Garrick Theatre, Whitechapel. When he had fulfilled a pantomime engagement, young Chappell joined a good all-round dramatic stock company at the old Effingham Saloon. Change of management, however, brought about the disbandment of the company, and Mr. Chappell, who was by this time a most accomplished pantomimist, accepted an engagement with Mr. Charles Freer at the Albert Music Hall, Shepherdess-walk, City-road, an establishment that has long disappeared. It was here that Mr. Chappell struck out a new line of business with performing dogs in dramatic pieces. In 1851 he left London to fulfil an engagement with Mr. T. Burton, of the Manchester Casino. About this time there were no fewer than five or six theatres and music halls at which The Dumb Man of Manchester was being played. In this noted piece of its day Mr. Chappell took the part of the hero. Mr. Chappell proved so excellent an exponent of his rôle, in a play founded on a factory story, that he not only played it with distinction at Manchester, but also in Bradford for Mr. Pullen, and in Leeds for Mr. J. Hobson.

During his tours Mr. Chappell appeared in almost every town in England, in theatres, circuses, and music halls. It was in Liverpool, while playing clown with Mr. Copeland at the Royal, that the late Mr. John Douglass, who was paying a visit, engaged him for the New Pavilion Theatre, London, to produce a pantomime and play clown, in 1859-60.

Some little time later Mr. Chappell became lessee of the Pavilion, and there he produced all the best dramas of the day, such as The Dead Heart, with Ben Webster and his company from the Adelphi Theatre, as well as the favourite pantomimes and English operas of the day. He also engaged the original Moore, Ritter, and Crocker Minstrels from the Polytechnique in King William-street, Strand, which afterwards became Toole's Theatre, these minstrels later on bearing the famous name of the Moore and Burgess. His last appearance on any stage was with Pyne and Harrison, at Her Majesty's Theatre. They engaged him as clown, in a pantomime called The Lion and the Unicorn. Subsequently Mr. Chappell became managing-director of the Cambridge Music Hall, London, which had just been built by Mr. Nugent, and he held that appointment for eleven years. Mr. Charles Greville was musical-director, under Mr. Chappell's management, and Mr. W. Knowles filled the chair, a post that he occupied for nearly a quarter of a century. When the Brothers Abrahams sold the Queen's Palace, Poplar, to a company in the spring of the year 1888 Mr. James Chappell became a large shareholder, and eventually was appointed managing-director, a position he relinquished on the purchase of the hall by Messrs. Tom Maltby, Wicks, and Williams.

On his retirement Mr. Chappell was accorded, on March 17, 1897, a complimentary benefit, which was very happily timed by being held on the same day as the fiftieth anniversary of his marriage. Such an auspicious event as the golden wedding of an old servant of the public, we may be quite sure, was not allowed to pass without several handsome and costly gifts from Mr. Chappell's numerous friends, which were presented to him on the stage of the Queen's by Mr. Henri Gros.

Mr. Chappell has for the last thirty years presented the attractive variety entertainments upon Yarmouth beach which are familiarly known as "Chappell's Ring." Their importance has increased in the ratio that Yarmouth has become more attractive to the excursionist and the holiday-maker, and they take rank now with the very best outdoor popular promenade concerts which can be found. During his more leisured years Mr. Chappell has taken the keenest interest in all the professional funds. He has been a most sympathetic supporter of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, and also of the Music Hall Home Fund. When he retired from active business he chose Yarmouth as his home, and has resided there during the past six years. Mr. Chappell has taken an active interest in many of the local undertakings, and joined heartily in the town's sports and social activities.

L.C.C. AS AMUSEMENT CATERERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—On Sept. 22 the Chairman of the Parks Committee writes that my statement that music-hall artists have been approached with a view to singing in the parks and town halls is a narration which leaps from a "super-heated brain." While I accept Mr. Sankey's disavowal, so far as his knowledge goes, I am bound to say that my information comes to me from such a reliable source that I cannot entirely discard it. But whether that be so or not, the fact remains that the Council are about to seek Parliamentary powers to give indoor concerts and to add vocal entertainments to the bands in the parks, to unfairly compete with their constituents, ratepayers, and those whom they license. It is on that subject that I desire to awaken public opinion.

Mr. Sankey further states that I violently abused the Council. I scarcely think, Sir, that I would venture to send a letter to the Press which contained violent abuse. I have written strongly on behalf of those whose interests I represent in this case, but withal courteously, and with justification, I hope.

My nationality is further discussed by the Chairman of the Parks Committee, though I think this is scarcely interesting to the public. If it is a crime to be a Frenchman, I plead guilty to being the son of a very excellent and good Frenchman, and thus I am of French extraction; but it does not follow, as Mr. Sankey has it, that all Frenchmen are imaginative. I know several Frenchmen who are cool, practical, and collected, and I also know some Englishmen who are imaginative, and even some of my friends at Spring Gardens are "purely" imaginative, especially when they approach the public entertainment question. To reassure Mr. Sankey, I have personally arrived at that time of life when imagination has long since receded in the background, to make room for the stern reality of solid facts.

It may be unwise of the members of the London Entertainments Protection Association to have paid me the compliment of electing me as their president six years in succession, but then my members are not County Councillors, and consequently they are not infallible; and now that Mr. Sankey has pointed out their grievous mistake they no doubt will see the error of their ways, and not offend in future in this direction.

—Yours faithfully,
HENRI GROS,
President of the London Entertainments Protection Association,
1, Durham House-street, Strand,
Sept. 23.

THE Three Gilbert Girls, charming vocalists and dancers, have an excellent number in "Would you like to flirt with us?" which is enthusiastically received.

NEW EMPIRE, SUNDERLAND.

Great enthusiasm was displayed in Sunderland on the afternoon of the 29th ult., when Miss Vesta Tilley journeyed to the thriving coal town for the purpose of laying the foundation-stone of Mr. Richard Thornton's New Empire Theatre, which is being erected on the old Bishopwearmouth Rectory site. The ceremony was attended by a large gathering, including the Mayor (Councillor Foster), Alderman Rudland, Alderman Smith, Councillors David Bell, Baxter, Hope, Shields, Rev. F. A. E. Leake, Mr. R. Thornton, Mr. Sidney Stone, Mr. Thos. Gillespie, Mr. C. E. Machin, Messrs. W. and T. R. Milburn (architects), Mr. J. W. White (builder), Mrs. Thornton, and Mr. Walter de Frece (husband of Miss Vesta Tilley).

The stone, which was placed in the tower at the south-east corner of the site, was inscribed:—"This stone was placed by Miss Vesta Tilley, Sept. 29, 1906." In a cavity under the stone was deposited a copy of the Sunderland Echo, the local newspaper, a copy of The Era as the representative newspaper devoted to the interests of the amusement professions, and coins of the realm Having seen that the stone was properly placed, Miss Tilley tapped each of the four corners with the mallet, saying, "I declare this stone to be well and truly laid, and I wish every success may attend the building of which it is part."

An adjournment was then made to the refreshment room, where Mr. W. Wilburn, on behalf of himself, his brother, and the builder, presented Miss Tilley with a beautifully designed jewel-casket and jewel-tray, the former being inscribed—"Presented to Miss Vesta Tilley on the occasion of her placing the foundation-stone of Mr. Richard Thornton's new Empire Theatre, Sept 29, 1906. W. and T. R. Milburn, F.R.I.B.A., architects, Mr. J. W. White, builder." Mr. Milburn said the ornamental portion of the building, so far as the exterior was concerned, would be the tower where the foundation-stone had been placed. The remainder would be plain, as far as the exterior went. The building would be practically isolated. It would have streets on each side, and would be arranged for the two-houses-a-night principle. When completed and properly equipped it would be absolutely up to date and behind nothing, either in the provinces or in London. These were the instructions of Mr. Thornton. It would be larger than any theatre in the immediate district. The auditorium would be 80ft. wide and 82ft. long, which was 7ft. or 8ft. larger than anything in Newcastle, and the seating accommodation would be for 3,500 persons.

The Mayor said it gave him great pleasure to propose a vote of thanks to Miss Tilley, and to ask the company to drink her health. Miss Tilley had that day laid the foundation stone of what would be a very handsome building, and an ornament to the town of Sunderland. The townspeople should feel proud that Mr. Thornton had thought it worth his while to place that building in their midst. For many years he had endeavoured to provide pure and good entertainment, and they knew how successful he had been in that respect. He wished the venture every success, and now would ask the gathering to accord a vote of thanks and drink the health of the gracious lady who had performed the ceremony that day. She had endeared herself to everybody, and the stone which she had placed in position bore on it a name that would always be loved—Miss Vesta Tilley. He asked them to thank her and drink her health, and he was glad to be able to announce that, when the building was ready, she would appear on the opening night.

The toast was drunk with musical honours, after which Miss Tilley modestly replied: "I thank you very much, and I feel very highly honoured." Subsequently Miss Tilley inspected the plans of the building, and wrote her autograph for a number of people, after which she drove away in her motor-car to Newcastle, followed by the hearty cheers of the people.

The theatre will be a three-tier house, the sightlines being arranged so that every seat will have a good view of the stage. The space usually occupied by side boxes is taken up by a continuation of the seating of the circle, the boxes being placed at the back thereof. The proscenium opening is particularly large, and will be protected by an asbestos fire-proof curtain. There will be two performances a night, and distinct entrances and exits, with convenient waiting-halls, being provided for each portion of the house. The whole of the building is to be fireproof, the floors of each tier, the flies to stage, and even the roof of the auditorium, staircases, &c., being all constructed of expanded metal and concrete. The main approaches and grand staircase to circle will have tiled dadoes and terrazzo floors and steps, the circle entrance tower being treated in ornamental tiles. The comfort of artists will be secured by good dressing-rooms, well lighted, ventilated, and heated, and the theatre itself will be heated by hot-water apparatus, an effective means of ventilation being obtained by the use of electric fans and sun burners.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, SEPT. 12.—"THE LITTLE CHERUB" has scored a substantial success at the Criterion Theatre. The piece was produced here during the month of August, several weeks before the public usually begins to think of theatre-going. During the hot weather it has to be tempted with no ordinary attraction before it can be made to turn its thoughts in that direction. That Messrs. Owen Hall and Ivan Caryll's musical comedy fulfilled this requirement was evident at the opening performance, and it has been evident on many a subsequent night when the temperature was such as to make sitting in a plush-covered chair for three hours at a stretch something unendurable under ordinary circumstances. Miss Hattie Williams appears as Molly Montrose. The Little Cherub was the vehicle chosen for her début as a star, and the choice was a happy one, for she has never been seen to better advantage. Her song, "Experience," the original version of which was sung by Yvette Guilbert, makes a great hit. Mr. Thomas Wise, as the Earl of Sanctobury, is as droll as he can be, and Mr. James Blakeley, as Algernon Southdown, is an indefatigable fun-maker. Mr. Will West, Mr. Andrew Higginson, Miss Winona Winter, and Miss Mabel Hollins are all very good in their respective parts, Miss Winter's imitation of Harry Lauder, the Scottish comedian, and of Vernon, the ventriloquist, surprising the audience and winning hearty applause.

NEW YORK, SEPT. 19.—Miss Grace George has begun what promises to be a prosperous engagement at the Manhattan Theatre, the play in which she is appearing having met with a very favourable reception. Its title is Clothes, and the authors are Channing Pollock and Avery Hopwood. Mr. Pollock is prominently associated with the Shuberts; Mr. Hopwood is a Cleveland journalist. The piece is a comedy-drama in four acts, and is a satire on the so-called "Smart Set" and its extravagance in dress. Woven into the fabric are two love stories—one homely and humorous, the other dainty and delightful. The scenes are laid at a country house within motoring distance of New York. Horace Watling, a wealthy publisher, formerly owner of a small newspaper in Omaha, is lonely in his luxury, for his wife is a fashionable butterfly whose one thought is the pursuit of pleasure. One of her friends, Mrs. Cathcart, is the aunt of Olivia Sherwood, an orphan, whose supposedly wealthy father has bequeathed to her some mining stock from which she derives her income. This stock is in the hands of Arnold West, a lawyer. West is a married man whose wife has gone to the bad, and he loves Olivia. For years he has paid her sums of money as dividends from the mining stock, but the money has been paid out of his own pocket, the stock being worthless. Olivia, who lives with her aunt, finds herself deeply in debt through her extravagance in dress, and begins to realise that there are other things in life besides clothes. Mrs. Cathcart tells her that she must marry a rich man, and suggests Richard Burbank, a wealthy young broker, who has paid her no little attention. In fact, the aunt tells her niece that if she lets Burbank "slip through her fingers" she must find a home elsewhere. West declares his passion for Olivia in an exceedingly ardent manner, and she refuses to listen to his proposal, dismissing him in anger. Watling finds himself in financial difficulties but, prompted by West, he has purchased some of Olivia's mining stock, and this, he tells his wife, will save them from actual want. Then it comes out that the stock has not paid a cent of dividend for years, and the fashionable Mrs. Watling, who neglects her sick child and lavishes her caresses on a lap-dog, turns on her husband and denounces him so bitterly that the poor old man tries to kill himself. This brings her to her senses and makes her see things so differently that "the simple life" no longer has any terrors for her. These incidents occur whilst a fancy dress ball is in progress at the Watlings'. West, who is among the guests, is intoxicated. He has received news of his wife's death, and feels that the joyous event calls for a celebration. In this condition he appears before Olivia, and insists on her becoming his wife. Being again repulsed, he breaks out into a violent tirade of abuse, and tells her that she is indebted to him for the clothes she wears and the food she eats. He is about to summon the guests and humiliate her before them, when the girl turns on him and hurls him down a stairway. Burbank, whose offer of marriage has been accepted in the meantime, comes in at this juncture, and the act ends with a striking scene between Olivia, West, and Burbank, in which the latter is forced to come to the conclusion that Olivia has agreed to marry him simply for his money. For the last act there is a pretty love scene, in which everything ends happily, at the open window of a darkened room in the wee sma' hours, the door of Mrs. Cathcart's bedroom being pushed open so that she may act as chaperone. The act is short, but very pretty and effective. Miss Grace George's Olivia is a sincere and winsome portrayal, that will more than sustain her popularity. Mr. Frank Worthing, Mr. Robert Haines, Mr. A. H. Stuart, Miss Louise Closser, Miss Jennie Eustace, and Miss Diana Huneker have important parts to play, and play them well.

"THE CHORUS LADY," a comedy in four acts, by James Forbes, has made a hit at the Savoy Theatre, and Miss Rose Stahl as Patricia O'Brien has repeated the success she won on the music hall stage in the same character, the comedy being an amplified version of the sketch in which Miss Stahl was recently seen at the Palace Theatre, London. The four scenes represent Dan Mallory's racing stables, a dressing-room in the Long Acre Theatre, the apartments of a man about town, and the New York home of Patricia. Miss Stahl's representation of the chorus girl whose manners are "tough" but whose head and heart are all right is one of the most diverting characterisations in current theatricals. Mr. Wilfred Lucas as Dan Mallory, the trainer, who loves the chorus girl, is capital; and two clever impersonations are the old Irish father and mother of Patricia, for which Mr. Giles Shine and Miss Alice Leigh are responsible.

MME. BERTHA KALICH is appearing at the Lyric Theatre, under the direction of Harrison Grey Fiske, presenting, for the first time in New York, Langdon Mitchell's English version of Jacob Gordin's drama The Kreutzer Sonata, which was written expressly for Mme. Kalich in the Yiddish tongue some years ago, and in which she made one of her most pronounced successes prior to her début last year as an English-speaking actress in Monna Vanna. Langdon Mitchell's version of the play differs but slightly from the version in which Miss Blanche Walsh recently appeared at the Manhattan Theatre. The play derives it name from the fact that the heroine is discovered reading Tolstoi's novel "The Kreutzer Sonata" by her father. In the book she has concealed her dead lover's picture and farewell letter. The story is not a pleasant one. Miriam Friedlander, a Jewish girl in Russia, being prevented by religious prejudice from marrying the man she loves, commits a social sin. Her father, with patriarchal authority, orders her to marry a dissolute musician who is aware of her condition. They emigrate to America, being followed soon after by both families. Here the musician subjects his wife and child to brutal treatment, and enters into a relationship with his wife's sister by which he places the latter on a similar immoral footing. On discovering this condition of affairs, the wife shoots the guilty pair.

Mme. Kalich's interpretation of the character of Miriam Friedlander has been highly praised by the critics. The climax of the play, in which she kills her husband and sister, is tremendously effective, and calls forth rounds of applause. The rôle of the musician, Gregor Randar, is well played by Mr. Giorgio Majeroni, whose name suggests a few reminiscences to an old play-goer and globe-trotter. He is the son of the late Signor and Signora Majeroni, who won fame in Australia thirty years ago, and whom the writer well remembers seeing at the Bijou Theatre, Melbourne, during the period when "Fritz" Emmett, Lytton Sothern, and Ada Ward were the reigning favourites of the Melbourne stage, and La Feuillade and Buckley's Minstrels were as popular as the Moore and Burgess troupe were in London. "Come, birdie, come and live with me," sung by the minstrels in a hall near the top of Bourke-street, and Emmett's "Lullaby" were the favourite songs of the day at that time. These recollections, irrelevant though they be, may interest a few "old-timers."

"THE DAUGHTERS OF MEN," by Charles Klein, author of The Lion and the Mouse, was performed for the first time at the Court-square Theatre, Springfield, Mass., on the 17th inst., under the direction of Mr. Henry B. Harris, and was very favourably received by the Press and the public. Mr. Klein has dealt with the subject of capital and labour and the widening gulf between the very rich and the "submerged tenth" in an original manner, being careful not to offend either class. The first act is rather "talky," but has a strong climax, in which Miss Effie Shannon carried off the honours. The second act is the strongest, and in this Miss Dorothy Donnelly was given an opportunity, which she fully improved, winning hearty applause. Mr. Herbert Kelcey, Mr. Orrin Johnson, Mr. Ralph Delmore, and Miss Grace Filkins all have excellent rôles.

"THE RICH MR. HOGGENHEIMER," a musical comedy, by Harry B. Smith and Ludwig Englander, in which the favourite comedian, Mr. Sam Bernard, reincarnates "Piggy" Hoggenheimer of The Girl from Kay's, was successfully produced at the Savoy Theatre, Atlantic City, on the 17th inst. As "Piggy of the second generation" Mr. Bernard kept the house in constant laughter, the situations giving him abundant opportunity for his peculiar brand of humour. Miss Georgie Caine as Flora Fair, an actress, around whom the complications revolve, made a hit.

THE new Astor Theatre, at the corner of Broadway and Forty-fifth-street, was to have been dedicated last Monday with a production of A Midsummer Night's Dream, with Miss Annie Russell as Puck, but the lessees, Messrs. Wagenhals and Kemper, failed to install a certain kind of pump approved by the Fire Department, and at the last moment permission to open the theatre was refused, a large audience being dismissed after it had waited for over an hour for the curtain to rise. The opening has been postponed for various reasons several times, and the lessees have suffered considerable loss in consequence.

"THE HOUSE OF MIRTH," a stage version of Miss Edith Wharton's novel, made by the authoress in collaboration with Mr. Clyde Fitch, was produced at the Opera House, Detroit, Mich., on the 17th inst. The play is a close reproduction of the book. Miss Fay Davis appeared in the leading feminine rôle, and won approval.

"ON PAROLE," by Louis Evan Shipman, presented for the first time at the New National Theatre, Washington, last Monday, is another Civil War play, treating of a love affair between a Southern woman and a Northern officer. Miss Charlotte Walker and Mr. Vincent Serrano appeared in the leading rôles, the former as Constance Pinckney, a young woman employed as a despatch bearer, and the latter as Major Dale, Chief of the Federal Intelligence Division, who discovers her identity, and promptly falls in love with her. He takes her parole, but scarcely is it given when he is captured by the Confederate forces, and he believes she has betrayed him. The third act ends with a stirring battle scene, which evoked enthusiastic applause.

THE GIBBONS'S "AT HOME."

In the Alexandra Room at the Trocadero, on Wednesday afternoon, Mr. Walter Gibbons, the well-known music-hall proprietor, and Mrs. Gibbons held an At Home to celebrate the christening of their son and heir, Adney Walter Gibbons, who was born on Aug. 7. The child was baptised on Wednesday morning at Christ Church, Holborn-square, by the Rev. Glendinning Nash, the godfathers being Mr. George Adney Payne and Mr. Gibbons, the father. The godmother was Miss Payne, aunt to the child.

It was a very happy little party which assembled at the Trocadero to celebrate the arrival of the little stranger who will, it is hoped, in the years to come uphold the Gibbons dynasty. Mr. George Adney Payne, of course, was there in the double rôle of grandfather and godfather, and his daughter, Miss Ida Payne, was also present. Mr. and Mrs. Gibbons agreeably entertained their guests, most of whom, by the way, were relatives or intimate friends. There were Colonel, Mrs., and Master Bosworth, Mr. H. H. Tozer, Mr. Henry Sutton, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Sutton, Mr. Lindsay Sutton, Miss Sutton, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Marriott and Miss Marriott (Miss Helena Millais), Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Newson-Smith, Mrs. Cecil Newson-Smith, Mr. Amery Parkes, Mrs. Frank Smith, Mrs. Moore, Mr. St. John Brenon and Miss Brenon, Mrs. Emerton, Miss Byrne, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Bull, Mr. and Mrs. Hartley Milburn, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Baker, Mr. Joseph Davis, Mrs. Richard Warner and Miss Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Warner, the Rev. Glendinning Nash, Mr. Ernest Steed, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ardley, and Mr. H. Chance Newton.

A magnificent christening cake, made by the Trocadero cooks, stood in the centre of a long table. Naturally, nobody went away without having tasted of the richness thereof, and wished, as he or she consumed it, all happiness and prosperity to Master Adney Walter Gibbons. A cleverly-worked little device on the top of the cake showed a cradle and a baby's face peeping out from the bed-clothes.

During the At Home, which lasted from three to five o'clock, a pleasant accompaniment to the buzz of conversation was furnished by an orchestra under the direction of Mr. Joseph Alfred Petersen, conductor at the Holborn Empire. The instrumentalists were taken from Mr. Gibbons's various establishments, and Mr. Petersen arranged a delightful musical programme, which included the overture to Raymond by Ambroise Thomas, "Laces and Graces," The Shop Girl, Suite "In Arcady," Papillonne, "Intermezzo Patrol," and "Amour Pictries."

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

The fairs ahead for next week are:—Abingdon, Cirencester, Great Grimsby, Halesowen, Houghton-le-Spring, St. Ives (Hunts.), Alcester, Barkerend Feast, Hartlepool, Kingsclere, Ledbury, Moreton-in-Marsh, Penryn, Chipping Norton, Colne, Gosport, Henley-in-Arden, Lancaster, Leicester, Mitcheldean, Northleach, Sherborne, Tavistock, Tetbury, Tewkesbury, Worksop, Ashford, Basingstoke, Burwell (Cambs.), Faversham, Highworth, Hingham, Hungerford, Hull, Lingfield, Lowestoft, Nuneaton, Thame, Torrington, Tring, Wooler, Bedford, Caistor (Lincs.), Hitchin, Needham Market, Stratford-on-Avon, Warwick, Ashton-in-Makerfield, Aylesbury, Basford (Notts.), Buckingham, Clay Cross, Crick, Farnsfield, Highworth, Hockley Heath, Ilmington, Luton, Middleton Stoney, Pinxton, Shipston-on-Stour, Tapron, and Wantage. In Scotland we have Forfar, Dundee, Galashiels, and Alloa; in Wales, Pontypool.

Among the amusements at Pontardawe (Wales) Fair were Henry Studt and Son's gondolas and motors, Baker's circus, Creecraft's lion show and bioscope, Haggar's new and up-to-date biograph, cokers, emmas, shooters, &c., by T. North and many others.

At Studley Mop were Clarke's racing motor-cars, Chipperfield's cinématograph and "laughing show," Clarke's shooting saloons, park swings, cokers, &c., bottle batteries and Japanese fisheries by Wilson and Chipperfield, and stalls and numerous amusements by Messrs. Clarke, Chipperfield, Tatlor, Kemp, and Herbert.

The news from Evesham is of considerable importance. We see from the Evesham newspapers that the Town Council purpose taking over the Fleece Meadow and making it into a public recreation ground.

This has afforded the Puritanical objectors to travelling shows their opportunity of showing their animus, the Fleece Meadow having been the locale for shows and other entertainments to stand. Whether or not under Corporation management, the Fleece Meadow will be available for travelling shows and roundabouts, it cannot in any way affect the annual statute fair due this week. It is the Home Secretary's wish that if Conservators, Town Councils, Corporations, &c., think it expedient, in the interests of the safety or convenience of the public to change the venue of a fair, that another suitable ground not too far away from the usual fair-ground be found for the showmen. The Home Secretary most emphatically expressed this wish to the Conservators of Mitcham Common, and refused to grant police interference with the showmen's and public's rights. We trust that if under the new conditions the Corporation close the Fleece Meadow to the travelling showmen they will allow them to stand on Merstow Green. This would be a considerable source of income, to the easement of public burdens, and we look forward with confidence that, if the Fleece Meadow is closed, another ground will be found, especially at the time of the regatta, and at all the Bank Holidays.

The ancient Devonshire city, Exeter, is the last important place to take up the modern enterprise of historical pageant. No English town has a better right to take its history seriously than has Caerwisc, Isca, Exanceaster, Excester, or Exeter—the City on the Water, as each name implies. There is not much doubt that its birth was actually in the dawn of the desire of prehistoric men to dwell in communities. It is as old as that.

But the events of over 2,000 years being too much to cover in a day's holiday, Exeter is restricting itself to the ten most picturesque and instructive incidents of the seven centuries that have gone since it obtained a charter from King John in 1206, and elected its first Mayor. Follow-that nameless Mayor, there is an unbroken record of 699, which includes the present, Mr. Thomas Linscott.

The first tableau will be a careful study in King John, Robin Hood (though it is not explained what that outlaw had to do with Exon's civic records), palmers, friars, and the people of the period. The second tableau will explain the usual row over common rights between the Church and the people, when Edward I. gave his decision, on a personal visit, to the indignant citizens. The next scene will catch another Mayor, Bymen, giving pleasing and frank "straight tips" to a presumptuous and insolent Earl of Devon, in which the common man was not struck dead for blasphemy, but lived to laugh some more.

Follows John Shillingford, another Mayor, and a common, sturdy man, who threw the gage to the powerful clergy of the cathedral, and humbled them. After a piece which includes Henry VII. will appear (of course) Gloriana, who honoured the Mayor and citizens in 1559. This naturally lets in the Devon Sea Dogs, who doubtless have been bursting with impatience, and the Merchant and Gentlemen Adventurers will, in the manner appointed (see "Westward Ho!"), snort defiance to all dons and "children of the devil."

There is a jump then to Charles II., who, impecunious and casual, as usual, granted a knighthood to the Mayor on the citizens paying £500. But it is admitted he would have made knights of all male Exeter over twenty-one for fourpence per head. Then the Prince of Orange, entering the West Gate, George III. on his visit to the city, Queen Victoria in 1856, and the visit of the present King, when will appear the two swords which the city possesses, presented by visiting monarchs, those of Edward IV. and Edward VII.

Being the most ancient town in England's favourite county, Exeter's great day is sure to attract visitors from everywhere to see Ancient Devon pass in review—a unique treat.

Those West of England entertainers of the people (long time before corporations went into the show business), Messrs. W. C. and S. Hancock, will ably co-operate, and, after the city pageant is over, the Devonians will hurry away to the fair-ground. There shall the shows and showmen play their time-honoured part in the people's carnival and holiday rejoicing.

Barton Fair is again held on the ground provided by the Corporation of Gloucester, and is more largely attended by the showmen and public than ever. The principal shows are John Studt's amusements, Jacob Studt's motors, &c., Symonds's switchbacks, Dooner's and Studt's bioscopes, Collins's amusements, Sedgwick's menagerie, Purchase's menagerie, Prince Samouda's illusions, and a host of other attractions.

At Folkestone there are at the fair S. Forrest's Japanese airship, Macklin's switchback railway, Henry Forrest's juvenile racers and turnover boats, Abnett's theatre of varieties and aeriel flyers, big swings by Forrest and Macklin, Sanders's fine art exhibition, pipe breakers by Messrs. Sanders, George Bolesworth and T. Bolesworth, and J. Pettegrove and Simons; cup-breakers by Waghorn and Simons; shooting saloon, by Macklin and Elliott; and other novelties by those well-known fun-providers, Bolesworth, Macklin, Sanders, Elliott, and others. Messrs. Forrest still retain the services of the Great Herman, who nightly performs on the high rope, and is a big attraction.

Tom Norman's Dahomey Warriors (from Earl's Court), numbering sixteen in all, are paying a short visit to the Corn Exchange, Luton, and opened on Saturday last to large and appreciative audiences, who watched with interest the various items on the programme, which included war dances, sword exercises, and fire eating.

During the early part of the week there has been a steady stream of showmen and others passing through Mansfield, en route for Nottingham Goose Fair.

Continuing our record of the Welsh fairs, Abergavenny had for its entertainments the splendid cinematograph theatres of Wadbrooke and Dooner and Son, and Carl Whyte's mysteries; John Studt's motor-cars and galloping horses, Whyte's varieties, including the power-chute. The gem horses, swings and motor-cars were by Bros. Butling, Odley, John Studt, and Mrs. Danter; and rifle saloons and the minor novelties, with throwing games, were provided by J. Fossett, Winsper, Freeman, Danter, Quires, Odley, Buss, Jones, and Butlin Bros.

The fairground at Llanfyllin was under the capable direction of the Shropshire showman, Greatorex, assisted by other caterers upon this border round.

At Uttoxeter were Farrell's cinematograph collseum, steam roundabouts, and throwing games; and with him was John Wright, who exhibited the up-to-date peep-show, shooters, bottle battery, and variety and doll frames.

Haslemere attracted a considerable crowd of fair-ground caterers. Steam circuses and manual swings were exhibited by R. Wall and A. Smith; the shooting galleries and bottle-smashers were those of Emmett, Davis, Edge, Wall, and Smith; throwing games and varieties by Matthews and Son, Smith, Hedges, Wall, and other caterers.

At Birmingham the principal shows were—P. Collins and Son's coliseum of varieties and animated photography; Mrs. F. Collins's similar show, the premier coliseum of the Midland circuit; Buff Bill's menagerie, "Ye cowboys' ranchers"; the famous Holloway's phantoscope and variety theatre, Sidney Graham with performing birds and the lady conjurer, and the boxing booths of Messrs. Harry Gess and H. Cullis. The electric and steam-driven roundabouts were provided by the ground lessee, Mr. T. Collins, and with him were—Messrs. Russell, Mercer, Chaplain, Cordwell, and Ford, with steam roundabout and gem sets of motor-cars, baby horses, and mountain ponies. Amongst the small army of amusement caterers with throwing games, variety stalls, cokers, Emmas, and pannum, we noticed Messrs. Powell, Mercer, Cooper, Young, Chaplain, Ingham, Cordwell, Mullock, Ford, Humphries, Hayes, Turner, Humphrey, jun., Hayes, Wagstaffe, Dunwell, Johnson, Dobson, Barker, Price, and, of course, that old-established Midland photographer, J. Caddick.

Amongst the many novelties at the famous seaside resort, Folkestone, for the annual Fair were the fairground enterprises of Forrest Bros. The exhibitions were those of Abbott and Saunders, and fairground varieties by the following caterers:—Bolesworth Bros., Waghorn, Elliott, Saunders, Macklin, Pettigrove, and other entertainers. The great free sight was Hermann, the high-rope performer.

A letter to hand addressed to the Rev. T. Horne by the relatives of the late James Dean will be of interest to our readers. Mr. Robert Dixon, speaking for himself and wife (the daughter of the late James Dean) and the other relatives, says:—"My wife, family, and I, in company with the other relatives of our honoured father, the late James Dean, have visited the grave on many occasions, and we are perfectly satisfied with the work that has been done. On behalf of the surviving members of the late James Dean's family, we beg to tender our heartfelt thanks to you, the committee, and all subscribers for the splendid monument that has been placed over the grave of our dear father."

Llanelly Fair was held on Monday and Tuesday, though the roundabouts of Messrs. H. Studt and Sons, the well-known bioscope show of Messrs. W. Haggar and Sons, Crecraft's lion show and cinematograph, Baker's circus, as well as the shooters, cokernut shies, Mollies, &c., &c., of Messrs. E. Booth, David Boswell, James Day, John Jones, W. Evans, &c., had been opened for some days previously. All did good business up to Monday night, but on Tuesday rain fell incessantly.

Kidwelly Great Fair is fixed for Oct. 29 and 30.

Yesterday was a very eventful and happy one for the Rev. Thomas Horne and his dearly-beloved wife. They celebrated a double event, namely, the birthday of the Rev. Thomas Horne and their wedding day. It is not often that both events happen on the same day.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

New Beginner.—Undoubtedly, whichever part of the country you determine to work first, your best policy is to get in touch with the principal ground lessee of the district you commence with; for instance, if in the Midlands, correspond with P. Collins, Walsall. If in the Manchester district, John Whiting, The Anchorage, Urmston-lane, Stretford. The Liverpool district, Messrs. John Collins, H. J. Wallis, J. Berry, or Mitchell and Sons. If you let us know where you would like to commence we will furnish you with the address of the particular ground lessee that will suit your purpose.

Quid Nunc.—No, it is not so simple as you imagine; you cannot petition Parliament in so primitive a fashion as that. For example, to petition against a Private Bill, you (however that Bill might threaten your interests) could not go with a petition in your hand and invade the Committee of the House of Commons with the statement of your grievance. The work of Parliament could not be done if it were open to such interruptions. Briefly, the procedure is, you must employ a Parliamentary agent and a Parliamentary solicitor to draft your petition in accordance with the rules set down by the Speaker, and if your petition is in proper form you have then to employ a Parliamentary barrister to speak for you and to submit your evidence and witnesses. This, of course, means not only expert knowledge, but money—money at every step in the business.

J. B.—Will make enquiries.

W. B.—Keep us in touch with your route.

J. B. (Stepney Green).—Will make enquiries next week, and let you know.

THEATRICAL PATENTS.

The following particulars have been supplied to us by Messrs. Hughes and Young, patent agents, 55-56, Chancery-lane, London, W.C., who will give advice and assistance free to our readers on all patent matters:—

Mr. A. Winckler, of 41, Steinmetzstrasse, Berlin, has invented an illusion apparatus, which consists of a glass vessel resting on a table, under which is a chamber from which one or more persons can pass to the glass vessel by way of an opening while the conjurer holds a cloth in front of the vessel. The vessel is supported by means of bars, one of which is cut away to enlarge the opening. To increase the illusion, a drawer which fits in a hollow bottom and hollow sides of the table, is drawn out to give the idea that the drawer occupies the whole of the underside of the table. When the drawer is drawn out its bottom space is occupied by a cloth, which normally is folded in concertina form in a space in front of a wall of the chamber. To cause the table-top, &c., as a whole to appear shallow, fillets are arranged at the bottom of the vessel.

SHOULD NOTTINGHAM FAIR BE ABOLISHED?

Like the annual appearance of the sea serpent and the big gooseberry, someone in Nottingham raises the perennial bogey, "Shall we do away with the Goose Fair?" Thus speaks a grumbling ratepayer in the Nottingham Daily Express:—

GOOSE FAIR.

Sir,—The annual carnival of noise and frivolity is close upon us. Before many days are over our ears will be assailed by the harmony of a dozen steam organs playing different tunes at the same time. For three days the Market-place will be something in the nature of a pandemonium.

Now, I quite admit the sentimental interest that attaches to Goose Fair. In our young days we enjoyed it to the full. Its continuance is defended on the ground that it is a relic of the past—a link with old-time history.

That may be so; but I submit that it is out of date in this modern age. The Fair may have had come reason for its existence in days when railways and mail-coaches were non-existent, and when people came to it from all parts for supplies or general purposes of commerce. But to-day it has degenerated into three days of amusement and nothing else.

It may of course be argued that the Corporation make money out of the Fair by letting of sites to showmen. But is this really a benefit to the town in the long run? The showmen take the money and depart, and the only people who benefit are the publicans and keepers of eating-houses in the vicinity of the Market-place.

For the tradesmen round the Market-place, Goose Fair means a serious loss. They might as well shut their shops during the three days. Yet they are among the largest ratepayers. Is this fair? I ask your readers to judge, and hope others will take up the subject.—I am, &c.,

MARKET RATEPAYER.

Nothing loth, the Editor, to give the matter public ventilation, remarks:—

With the approach of Goose Fair the clamour of the controversial correspondent assails, as usual, our ears. The Nottingham carnival divides the city into two camps. On the one hand, there are those who tolerate and—shall we say—probably approve of the Fair; on the other, there are those, though we fear they are in a minority at present, who would like to see it swept out of existence. We publish to-day a letter from a "Market Ratepayer," who puts the case against the Fair with a great deal of force. He admits its sentimental side, remembering his own childish recollections, but he has come to the conclusion that it is out of place in this utilitarian age. He argues that the tradesmen in the vicinity of the Market-place are heavy losers by the Fair, pointing out also that they are at the same time among the largest ratepayers. In opposition to this view the advocates of the Fair will no doubt claim to have their say. They may argue that it brings a deal of money into the town, and that, after all, its historical associations count for something. For the moment we are content, so to speak, to "hold the stakes" between the supporters and the opponents of the Fair. We shall welcome expressions of opinion on the subject, for it is only by the voice of public opinion that the feeling of the community can be ascertained. "Market Ratepayer" will, we suspect, have a goodly number of supporters and not a few opponents.

Then the Rev. T. Horne contributes the reply for the showmen:—

To the Editor, "Nottingham Daily Express."

Sir,—The diatribe against the continuance of Nottingham Goose Fair by "Market Ratepayer" has been brought before the Committee of the Showmen's Guild, and I have been asked to state the case for the retention of the Fair, from the showman's point of view. It is to me very remarkable in these days of national progress, wider charity, and the fuller life, to hear anyone speak of the old historic Fair at Nottingham as being something in the nature of a "pandemonium." In fact, Sir, the quite recent revival of pageants, under the highest sanction and patronage, at places like Sherborne and Warwick, and also the adaptation all over the country of the fair under modern conditions, at times of national holiday, prove beyond all reasonable dispute that fairs as a means of recreation and amusement are deeply entrenched in the hearts of the British people. To call such times of common enjoyment a "pandemonium" is to misuse language. "Ratepayer's" second paragraph is so obviously based upon purely selfish considerations as to be almost too ridiculous for reasoned answer. If it means anything at all, it means that "I have had my fling, and I object in my old age to let the youth of to-day enjoy what I myself enjoyed to the full." The showmen of the Empire claim to be thoroughly up to date, and in fact a little bit before their time if anything in the nature of high-class shows and wonderful mechanical contrivances offered by them for the entertainment of England's toiling millions. There is only one sense in which shows and showmen and our pleasure fairs are linked to the past, and that is, that they have just the same rootage in the historic past and the growth and progress of the national life as any other distinctive trade or skilled industry. For more than thirty years past I have been in close association with the travelling show-people, and for sixteen years of that time I have acted as the Honorary Chaplain to their trade protection society, known as The Showmen's Guild. I may therefore be permitted to speak as an expert, having made their interests and welfare the special work of my life. It is a very sturdy relic of the past—a thriving, and vigorous, and very important relic of the past—this enterprise and industry of the fair-ground, and it may be news to "Market Ratepayer" and others to know that it touches the livelihood of 70,000 workers, directly engaged in providing the amusements or making the commodities sold at our fairs, and that it indirectly touches the daily bread of many, many thousands more—traders, manufacturers, and work-people—catering for the necessities of show and fair-ground life and entertainments. It has been proved before Committees of the House of Commons that in one branch alone of the business a quarter of a million of money is invested—I refer to roundabouts. Some of the most modern, expensive, and costly of these concerns will be on exhibition at Nottingham Goose Fair. When we remember that the Messrs. Bostock, the descendants of the celebrated George Wombwell, will bring one of their splendid menageries to your Fair, and that the same family at the present moment are running similar exhibitions on the Continent and in America, that alone is a very important refutation of the commonly thought decadence of the fair-ground business. The one menagerie of George Wombwell has at the present moment grown to four separate and distinct concerns at home and abroad. The same tale of progress can be told of every other kind of travelling show. There are more circuses, menageries, portable theatres, and other entertainments touring the United Kingdom to-day than at any other period of our national life. The greatest proof of this is found at your historic Fair, for if your Corporation had three times the space in the same admirable position, it would be fully occupied with concerns that would gladly come to swell its attractions. Let anyone who remembers the Fair forty years ago contrast the present with the past, and I challenge comparison in every department of the fair-ground business; and I am quite certain that such a witness will in justice admit that the British showman fully justifies his position as an integral factor in the well-being of the Commonwealth. I have no doubt that other correspondents will deal with the extremely narrow view of "Market Ratepayer" with regard to the loss suffered by himself and other ratepayers in the vicinity of the Fair. I believe I am right in saying that for the three days of their occupancy of the Market Ground the showmen pay a very large contribution to the public funds in the shape of tollage, to the easement of the very rates concerning which "Market Ratepayer" grumbles. In conclusion, Sir, I venture to submit that the fair serves an intensely human and humane purpose: it is the opportunity for relaxation from toil, and also for the enjoyment of popular open-air amusement; and if there is any truth in the economic theory that demand induces supply, then the showmen of the Empire may claim to be traders and skilled providers of commodities that the public throughout all the ages has required.

Yours ever, for God and for good,

T. Horne,

Honorary Chaplain, The Showman's Guild,

5, Tavistock-street, Strand, London, W.C.

THE SHOWMEN'S GUILD MEETING AT GLOUCESTER.

In pursuance of the plan to make the Guild and its work more widely known, the hon. chaplain, the Rev. T. Horne, addressed a crowded meeting in Mr. Jacob Studt's grand coliseum on the fair-ground at Gloucester on Sunday afternoon last. Mr. Jacob Studt had obtained the consent of the Mayor to preside over the gathering, and also the patronage and presence of the City Sheriff (Alderman T. Blinkhorn), Alderman Hume, Alderman Jones, Councillor C. W. Poole, and other members, and the City Clerk (Mr. G. S. Blakeway). There were also present many local gentlemen interested in the fair and showpeople. Amongst these we noticed Mr. J. W. Bostock (from New York) and Messrs. Poole and Son, of the Palace Theatre, Gloucester, and of panorama fame. Every available seat was filled, and the gangways packed with eager listeners. Never before in the annals of the ancient cathedral town has such a sight been witnessed—the whole city roused and interested in the material, social, and spiritual well-being of the travelling show-people. For many centuries Gloucester has been interested in the itinerant entertainers and traders who attended their fairs; but outside of the interests of patron and player nothing of any moment has been done. The show-loving public had never been behind the scenes, as it were, or in the caravans. Now for the first time the city was to get to know of the life of the shows and show-people from the inside. The Mayor of Gloucester (Councillor George Peters) said that he had been asked to introduce the speaker—the Rev. T. Horne, chaplain to the Showmen's Guild—to them, but he doubted not that to many present Mr. Horne was better known than to himself, and this was obviously true of the show-people present. It was a pleasant duty that he had to perform, and it gave him great pleasure to know that the show-people were so well organised that they had a recognised chaplain to labour amongst them.

This, he felt sure, would tend to raise them in the esteem of the outside world and would also inevitably raise the character and tone of their entertainments. Through the agency of the Showmen's Guild public bodies would be brought more into direct touch with the work and daily life of the travelling entertainers who so ably maintained our fairs, and he could assure the showmen that the Corporation of Gloucester were anxious to do well by them, and they trusted that the show-people would appreciate their efforts by bringing them good and wholesome entertainments. In company with the town clerk he had been round the fair, and he testified, with great satisfaction, that there was nothing upon that well-supplied fair-ground to which the slightest exception could be taken. He would now call upon Mr. Horne to give his address on "British Shows and Showmen, with a Special Reference to the work of the Guild."

The Rev. T. Horne, on rising to deliver his address, was heartily cheered. He began by saying that to many people it might seem a strange thing that people like the travelling showmen of the Empire, whose very business led them to be independent of one another, and also extremely competitive in their enterprises one against another, should form themselves into a union or society in order to further their mutual interests and to better the entertainments they were offering to the people of the country. Such, however, was the fact. Seventeen years ago, when showmen were face to face with a serious danger from a Bill before Parliament which affected their interests very materially, they combined to protect themselves. The danger in the main was the attempt of certain misguided individuals and would-be public philanthropists to penalise the show business and to interfere, without any justice, in the domestic life of the showmen in their movable dwellings. No one, he felt sure, would willingly attack an industrious section of the community if they had full knowledge of the real life and character of the people they were attacking. Now it so happened that he was possessed of that intimate knowledge, for he had had many years of close acquaintance with the Bohemians who travelled from fair to fair to entertain the toil-worn workers. He did not wish to rake up and go over again the vile slanders and prejudice which he, amongst many other friends of the showmen, were able to refute. At that time he was serving a quiet country curacy in Yorkshire, and he was able, from his intimate knowledge of them and their life, to very materially assist them by defending them from attacks in the public Press and by speaking from many platforms in their defence.

Having taken his stand as their friend, it was not to be wondered at that they valued the work he had done, and very soon asked him to take part in their organised work of trade defence and betterment of the entertainments of the fair-ground. There was only one office that, consistent with his ministerial duties, he could occupy upon their executive council, and that was to become their honorary chaplain. He honestly held that the man of God must throw himself heart and soul into all the concerns of his people; he could not draw the line between things temporal and things eternal, and so he found from time to time that he had to stand in the gap and defend them in their business concerns as well as direct their thoughts to higher things. This he had persistently, and he trusted consistently, done. He started alone in this enterprise of bringing the Church as a real factor in the life of show-people seventeen years ago. He was now proud to say that many bishops, high dignitaries of the Church, and an ever-increasing crowd of the parochial clergy were taking part with him in this work. Wherever the local clergy were brought in touch with the travelling show-people there the Guild had made a link with the parish by asking the vicar to become a local honorary chaplain. The Vicar of St. Nicholas, the Rev. D. L. Duce, had consented to act in this capacity for the showmen because the fair-ground was part and parcel of his parish. They had similar honorary local chaplaincies in London, Manchester, Preston, King's Lynn, Rotherham, Killamarsh, Oxford, Burbage, Denton, and also at Porth and Treorchy in Wales. They were of course receiving valuable help in many enterprises of an uplifting and Christian character, from Christian men and women outside the obedience of the National Church; for these unities of Christian effort they were deeply thankful.

As a trade protection society they had defended the interests of showmen in the House of Commons and before many corporations and public bodies. He was glad to say that at the present time there was an immense awakening of public interest in the life and work of the travelling showman, and this he attributed almost entirely to the educational work which the Guild had done in supplying accurate information concerning the business of the fair-ground, and also in answering in the public Press the mistaken prejudice of those who misunderstood them and their avocation in life. Just consider, he argued, how very deep-rooted in the historic past is that intensely British institution—the fair. How did the fairs originate? Almost invariably around the feast of the patron saint of the parish. The people would come to keep the feast, friends and neighbours from adjoining parishes gathered together, not only inside the church to keep the feast proper, but also around the church for pleasurable intercourse and expression of neighbourly feeling. Then there would come to the crowd the people whose business in life it was to entertain or to trade with crowds—the mountebank, the posturer, the professional story-teller, the singer of the national ballads, the jester, the clown, the travelling quack doctor and astrologer, the scientific and mystery men of those days—and here you have the very genesis and birth of the pleasure fair and all other kinds of amusements that of necessity have grown therefrom. The showman boasts a long ancestry of honourable endeavour, and can point to-day to an ever-increasing necessity for his enterprise, talent, and persevering ability.

He was speaking to-day—and he was proud of the fact—to the "City Fathers" of Gloucester, and he congratulated them on their reasonable adaptation of the ancient fair, known as Barton Mop, to modern-day requirements. There were many other Corporations in the country who had neglected to provide for that reasonable demand of the people for open-air amusement such as well-ordered pleasure fairs provided. All honour, he said to Gloucester, for moving with the times and recognising that the provision of recreation for the people was a duty that no community can afford to ignore or neglect. They had the highest warrant for taking this progressive step. Sir James Crichton-Browne, one of our ablest scientists, only the other day, at a meeting of Sanitary Inspectors, pointed out the value of recreation as being mental hygiene, the clearing out of the clogged-up or the over-worked brain cells of mental rubbish, that if not cleared makes for dementia. The eminent scientist demonstrated that relaxation from toil was not sufficient, but that there must be amusement as well, and therefore he preached a gospel of recreation, and boldly asserted that it was the duty in these days of high pressure and specialisation for every doctor and for every social reformer to be preachers and teachers of the joy of life as expressed in recreation and amusement. Well, the showmen of the empire, he maintained, had been specialists for centuries past in the science and art of recreation, and it was something for them to-day to feel that, following upon their practical and successful work, the greatest of living scientists had come to their support by preaching mental hygiene as a necessity of daily life. That being so, he would ask them where can the toiling masses of the people be better provided with the means of relaxation and mental stimulus than upon the fairgrounds of the country? At half-past eight the previous night he stood upon the bridge and from that vantage ground surveyed all the glories (ever changing and wonderful) of Gloucester Fair—the careering horses, the dashing motors, the whirling wheels, the slippery slopes, the tunnel railway, the menageries, the cinematograph theatres, the side shows, and the hundred and one stalls, throwing games, and variety amusements. O the power of it, the joy of it, and all the life of it! For Gloucester was there in its multitudes, the ocean of life, with its cross currents, streamed before him. What wonder is it that such a sight draws and satisfies the people as no other sight or kind of amusement ever can?

In conclusion, he asked the people of Gloucester to help the showmen by demanding nothing short of the very best forms of amusement—to set their face sternly against all entertainments of a possibly vicious character. Showmen were prepared not only to meet every legitimate demand, but, judging from the high-class character of the shows upon that fairground, he thought it would be freely admitted that showmen were helping to create a better taste for higher forms of amusement amongst their patrons of the fair-ground. On Friday he had visited Birmingham Great Onion Fair, and great as the enterprise of the showmen of the Midland capital was, and magnificent and up to date as their entertainments were, he was glad to say that the shows and amusements of Gloucester Fair were quite equal to Birmingham Fair in both quality and quantity. The Corporation of Gloucester has been fortunate in securing the co-operation of so able a showman as Mr. Jacob Studt, who had succeeded in gathering together one of the finest aggregation of shows in the British Empire, for not only was Mr. Studt providing splendid motor roundabouts, but he also himself owned the magnificent theatre-pavilion in which he was now speaking; and his next-door neighbours were showmen of the type of Dooner and Son, Sedgwick, Purchase, and Prince Samouda (whose small show was one of the big features of the fair.) He had no hesitation in saying that whilst the fairground industry had such experts as these it would never fail in maintaining its hold upon the hearts of the British people. To his showmen hearers he repeated the homily he had so often delivered to them before—"Rise," he said, "to the full dignity of your work; and, calling in the economy of the national life, give of your best—your very best—to the amusement and recreation of the people; for every penny you receive give a pennyworth of the wares of your brain, or of your good right hand, and if you do that you will never have to fear, either the misrepresentations of your enemies, or the decrease of the warm-hearted appreciation of your work by the people to whom you so ably minister at the times of national or local holiday," and he invited every showman present to remain for the after meeting, which would be of an important business character, and open to show-people only.

Many times during the delivery of the address the speaker was interrupted by enthusiastic applause, and every point told with the highly-appreciative audience.

Mr. Jacob Studt proposed, and Mr. E. B. Jarvis (his manager) seconded, a vote of thanks to the Mayor, Sheriff, and the Town Clerk for their attendance. The Mayor, in responding, again expressed his gratification at being present, and he also heartily agreed with the position Mr. Horne had taken with regard to providing wholesome amusement for the people, and he thanked the proposers of the resolution and the meeting for the kind way in which they had received the resolution, and coupled with it the names of the Sheriff and his friend the Town Clerk.

Alderman Blinkhorn, City Sheriff, said that they were anxious, as members of the Corporation, to further the interests of the old feast, and anything that could be done to improve the conveniences for that object would, he was sure, be carried out.

After the dispersal of the crowd, the usual business meeting of the Committee of the Guild took place. Mr. Horne explained the dangerous character of the proposed Bill for the Education of Travelling Children, and great indignation was expressed at the crude and utterly cruel proposals of that measure, and it was unanimously resolved that it be opposed at every step. An interesting discussion took place on the best means of arousing greater interest and securing better support for the necessary work of public propaganda and Parliamentary defence. In this discussion Messrs. Jacob Studt, James W. Bostock, J. Johnson (of the theatre, Barry Dock), R. Dooner and Son, J. Fossett, E. B. Jarvis, and others took part, Mr. Horne being warmly thanked by all the showmen present for his continued interest in their concerns and unfailing championship of their interests.

The following members were enrolled and additional subscriptions received:—A. Purchase (of the menagerie), £1 1s.; Mr. Johnson (the theatre, Barry Dock), £1; Messrs. Sutton and Son, £1; W. Moore, 10s. 6d.; H. Freeman, 5s.; J. Warwick, 5s.; E. Smith, 5s.; J. Wilson, 5s.; W. Dobson, 5s. Additional subscriptions:—Jacob Studt and Son, £2 2s.; R. Dooner and Son, 10s.; J. Fossett, 5s.

In the morning the hon. chaplain, the Rev. T. Horne, preached at the parish church of St. Nicholas, in Barton-street, in which narrow thoroughfare the fair used to be held, and in the evening (after church service), assisted by the Evangelistic Band of this church, the hon. chaplain conducted an open-air service on the front of Mr. Studt's show at the fair. This was attended not only by the show people, but by a great crowd of visitors.

By the Rev. T. Horne.

How intensely conservative (I mean in the best sense) the British people are! How wise are those leaders and rulers of ours who remember this, and in their work for the betterment of civic life provide for the innate conservatism of our race, and legislate to mend rather than to end historic institutions! "Barton Mop" is essentially a Gloucester institution. It has its roots in the dim and distant past, and it begins a new lease of vigorous life to-day, because the City Fathers have wisely and well determined to be practical and tactful in dealing with it. The City Corporation and its able clerk have dealt with Barton Hiring Fair, or "mop," in such a liberal way that the people of the grand old cathedral town began to take an increased pride in their old Charter fair; and, as I have already stated, Barton old fair has become, under the city's enlightened management and modern conditions, one of the very best of our great town fairs.

To showmen it will be of interest and moment if I tell the story of how the fast dying "Barton Mop," under the able rule of the Corporation, has been transformed into one of the finest fairs in the world.

Under the old charter Barton Mop was located upon a small site known as Barton Hill, in the Barton Ward, or suburb of Barton. In the course of time the fair was removed into Barton-street, a continuation of one of the main arteries of the city. This was done in order that the permanent traders, the shopkeepers, and dealers in Barton-street might have their share of the extra trade that the fair brought with it. When the change from out-of-the-way Barton Hill or Green was made it was to the convenience and business profit of all parties concerned. So the change of site was established by use and custom. So long as ancient conditions of industrial and civic life obtained, so long were these somewhat free and easy and most primitive arrangements possible; but the industrial revolution did not pass by Gloucester City. Quaint and reposeful as it is, there has been in Gloucester the quickening of the modern spirit and the growth of a more advanced and up-to-date civic government.

For instance, as I sat in St. Nicholas Church listening to the good vicar of the parish wherein the new, as well as the old, fair is situated, I heard the whirr of the city electric cars, and saw the brilliant flash of the passing illuminated tram through the painted windows of the dear old church. Ancient and modern life thus were illustrated in the very Barton-street in which the old fair was held.

The immense change that has passed over showland in the last thirty years, the coming of the huge steam-driven roundabout, and the big cinematograph and great shows brought home the fact in Gloucester, as elsewhere, that it is no longer possible, with any regard to modern town street traffic, to hold fairs in the open roads and streets of the town.

This practical difficulty was for a time met by the enterprise of the showmen in leasing a piece of land conveniently near to Barton-street, where the big concerns could stand, and leave the run of the streets to the smaller shows and stalls. Then it was that the increased congestion of the traffic became of necessity a town concern, for at this time the city inaugurated its splendid tramway service.

The Corporation, instead of making the blunder of trying to abolish the fair, determined to provide a new site, so good and so commodious that every possible expansion and improvement was provided for. The new ground, leased for a term of years to the principal showman on the Gloucester circuit, Mr. Jacob Studt, has been an immense success from its inception, and I anticipate that in the course of a year or two it will rank in business importance with Birmingham, Nottingham, and Hull. At the present fair, as regards the quality and the quantity of its entertainments for the people, it is no wise behind the very best of our big back-end fairs.

This result, so quickly attained, is due, as we have indicated, to the enlightened civic policy of the Corporation in providing for the pleasure fairs of the people of Gloucester; but in a large way it is also owing to the ability, enterprise, and sound business sense of the lessee, Mr. Jacob Studt.

"The Oxleaze" is the local name of the vast meadowland bounded on one side by the flowing Severn, and now turned into Gloucester City Fairground. From the City Cross you are rapidly taken in the sumptuous electric cars down to the fair, and as you pass over Barton Bridge the vast assemblage of splendid shows is spread out before you. An immense quadrangle of fairyland and endless delight. When I went down at night to see the people as well as the fair I stood and watched it all from the vantage ground of the bridge, and never in all my varied experience have I seen a more entrancing or bewilderingly beautiful sight. A dozen gigantic machines lit up by tens of thousands of coloured electric lights, all the gilded carved work of these huge revolving marvels studded with electric lamps, vying with each other in the rapid mutation of colour. Then the vast multitude of the people, the joyous, light-hearted, happy, show-loving people, all classes, all sorts and conditions of men and women, in a fellowship of pleasure and recreation, crowding, surging, crushing along in cross-streams of eager, exultant life. Such is the fair under the best modern conditions.

Soon I found myself in the vast throng of people, so full of the joy of life, yet so orderly, so well restrained in the mutuality of a common purpose—to see and to be seen at Barton Mop. The promenade of the fair-ground—the place where people most do congregate—was alive with a spirit of ready comradeship. There was no rudeness, no rowdy element—all alike entered in the fun and freedom and jollity of the thing. We were all neighbours; and I, the parson, passed through that throbbing, eager, quick-tongued crowd, and never a word was uttered that a parson might not freely repeat from the pulpit. Then I saw the shows. Sedgwick's menageric, fourteen wagon-loads of wild beasts, a good show, that reminded one that the glories of George Wombwell still remain, and that beside the Bostocks there are now on the road splendid menageries, and that Sedgwick, Purchase, the Chipperfields, and a dozen more menageries in the second rank still travel the fairs. In Sedgwick's I saw the extraordinary performance of Miss Sedgwick in a den of wolves, a show that if given in the London Hippodrome would have all the town talking about it. In addition to this two lion performers put lions through exhibitions of animal training and taming. I then saw the menagerie of Andrew Purchase (one of Britain's veteran showmen), and here again were given lion taming and performing turns under the most exciting conditions—a capital show, with a still existing link with the past in the shape of one caravan of wax figures, all that now remains of the splendid waxworks that Purchase's father travelled the country with over fifty years ago.

In the central position of the ground, side by side in the most friendly competition, stood two of the most modern of British shows—the cinematograph theatres of Jacob Studt and Messrs. Dooner and Son. Here I found on the front of both shows, and also at the inside performances, the best and the latest novelties in the ever-progressing art of "the living picture"; the magnificent Marenghi-built organs, in a blaze of parti-coloured electric light; the graceful dancing to tuneful music by the coryphees of the outside parade; the quaint humour of the comedians, concentrated the crowds before these up-to-date exhibitions; and it is no flattery to say that they both stand in the front rank of portable theatres or coliseums.

Amongst the interesting shows of a minor character (I allude entirely to size alone) I found Prince Samonda and his charming partner, "The Mystic Princess," in the best séance of second sight I have seen in recent years. Their great turn, however, is a clever variant on the box trick. I heartily congratulate this clever couple on a performance that stands without a peer on the road in the great world of shows. Warwick's laughing show, Luta, the Mystic Lady, and Wilson's fine art show were each good of its kind. Prof. Taylor, with school of boxers, supplied the necessary sports element of the fair; and Fossett, with photo booth, caught and fixed for numerous patrons the passing shadows—by sunlight and flashlight.

The gigantic steam and electric machines were Jacob Studt's magnificent motor-cars; John Studt's two sets, the motor track and the zoological carousel, birds and animals. Wm. Symonds (the Gloucester showman) exhibited two high-class machines, the Venetian gondolas and the galloping horses; Patrick Collins, jun., two machines, the twin ships in the air and the Japanese machine "the wheely-whirly"; Mr. White had the tunnel railway, slipping the slope, the aerial flight, gem swings, and overboats; Strickland (the Worcester showman) had steam horses, shooting ranges, and varieties. Mr. Fossett, in addition to the photo booth, had shooting ranges; and the other shooting gallery proprietors were Messrs. Sutton, Hill, Dobson, and Moore. The ranges of park swings were by Messrs. Sutton, Hanks, and Strickland; sets of gem motor-cars and ponies by Messrs. Sutton, Matthews, Butlin, and Wilson. The other caterers, with throwing games, strikers, varieties, doll, and other frames, stalls, &c., were by Messrs. Embling, Davies, Clarke, Freeman, Butlin, Strickland, Smith, Fletcher, and others.

The following concerns opened at Maesteg Fair on Saturday:—W. Ford's four-abreast mountain gallopers, T. Danter's switchback, Prof. Carl Whyte's exhibition of bloodless surgery and hypnotism, E. Stockton's fine art show, and the shooting galleries of Scott, Jones, and Stocton.

"Pathe Freres," the world-famous cinematograph experts, have opened new and more extensive premises—31-33, Charing Cross-road, W.C. Our showmen readers will do well to make a note of this.

The Mayor of Gloucester has received a cheque for £20 from Mr. Jacob Studt, the lessee of the Corporation showground on the Oxleaze, with a request that the amount should be divided equally between the Gloucester General Infirmary and the Mayor's City Distress Fund, and the amount has been applied accordingly.

King's Norton kept the fair with the able assistance of Messrs. Farrell, with electric cinematograph, swings, shooters, midget horses, and throwing, Gess's boxers, Wright's up-to-date peep-show, shooters, cokers, and varieties, with many of the minor novelties on the Midland Round.

The Charles Urban Trading Co., Ltd., publishes to-day a film depicting the remarkable spectacle presented by the start of the competitors in the balloon race for the Gordon-Bennett Cup, as it occurred in Paris on Sunday last. The vicinity of the large pond in the Tuileries Gardens has almost the appearance of the paddocks of a racecourse on a big day, with monster balloons substituted for horses. Swaying and tugging at their restraining ropes, the sixteen giant globes seem almost fretting with eagerness to start. Every detail of this aerial field of huge racers is excellently depicted, and an unusual scene of great animation is presented.

Another subject illustrates operations in Atlantic whaling. The film carries us to where, as boys, we often longed to go—into the unknown in search of the almost impossible. The pictures give wonderful sea effects. From a whaling-boat we shoot a harpoon into a whale, fasten it alongside, bring it to shore, "flense" it, secure the whalebone, and almost play at housekeeping inside the skeleton.

An exceptionally large gathering of big shows attended Dumfries Rood Fair this year. Brilliant weather prevailed, and the town was en fête. Commencing at the bottom end was Biddall's famous ghost illusion and bioscope, which did capital business with a nice company and a clean little show. The next stand was Pinder Ord's royal circus, with a large array of circus artists, including a capital performance of the elephant and two ponies, in statue tricks, presented by Mr. George Pinder. Facing this show was Ralph and Pedley's new concern, Aya, the flying lady, with Mr. Leon Gould, who reports very good business, in charge. Then came Leo's modern American show of living pictures, under Mr. Leo's able management, which was sailing along merrily; Green's cinematograph show, under the management of Jim Styles, has been drawing crowded houses all the week; Prof. Moore, with his family of trained athletes, has also had a good share of the business; Willmot's and Green's motor-cars, Day's shooting saloons, James Lavin with his boxing booth, Coderell with his hobby-horses and motor-cars, Fred Miller's variety show, Mackney's ghost illusion, and Clarke's cinematograph and ghost show completed the attractions.

Mr. Geo. Bernard, character-vocalist, who has just concluded a lengthy season at Teignmouth, will resume business in the halls on Oct. 15.

After a long and weary illness Prof. Thos. Howard, of the Marvellous Howards, has recovered, and has commenced business again at the Empire, Merthyr Tydfil.

The part of Lord Boodle in the new sketch The Woman Who Was, produced at the Oxford on the 24th ult., was played by Mr. Chris Van Bern, not Chris Burn, as erroneously printed in our notice of the production in The Era of last week.

Jack M'Kenzie and company, including the Barcelona troupe of dancers, with The Belle of Barcelona, are fast booking ahead through the agency of Tom Shaw, and Mr. M'Kenzie's popularity is being much increased by the production.

Roma and Romani, the classical musicians, have returned from fascinating with their melody large and enthusiastic audiences on the Rand and elsewhere in our newest South African colonies, and are once again delighting London audiences. They have an extraordinary list of bookings, which run to the end of 1908, and are engaged to appear at every hall of repute in the United Kingdom.

Mr. G. S. Thomas, the chef d'orchestre of Collins's, had a cordial reception from the gentlemen of the orchestra, and from friends in front, on Monday last, on resuming the conductor's chair after his successful season at Clacton's new palace.

An entirely novel turn, entitled Hy Mack, the Good-tempered Man, has been secured by Mr. G. Adrey Payne, through the agency of C. St. John Denton, and opens at the Euston on Monday. Managers loking out for a novelty will do well to see this act.

Mr. Lennox Barry has forwarded to the hon. secretary of the Music Hall Home fund a cheque for £3 2s. 6d., this being the amount collected by him during his term of management at the Wolverhampton Hippodrome.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows :—

MANCHESTER, LIVERPOOL, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALAN W. YOUNG,
Empire Theatre, Liverpool.

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. W. LEA,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

TRADE MARK

THE BELL-RINGER'S DAUGHTER.

Code Word, BUCHEUR.

773ft. The Subject £12 17s. 8d.

SPORTS IN JAPAN.

Code Word, BUANDIER.

All the National Sports are shown in Japan. Shooting Arrows, Wrestling, Fencing, Ji-Jitsu. Very interesting.

545ft. The Subject £9 1s. 8d.

BOBBY AND HIS FAMILY.

Code Word, BRIQUE.

Pierrots' antics. Entering a Giant's Head. Jumping and tumbling. Very pretty study.

132ft. The Subject £2 4s. 0d.
Colouring, £1s. 7s. extra.

CHILD'S REVENGE.

Code Word, BUIS.

Another Grand Film! A father going out shooting gives chase to poachers. In revenge, one of the poachers pushes him over a plank bridge into a gorge, where he is killed. His young son, who has been following him, then gives chase, and, calling in the police, eventually traps the poachers to the same gorge, where he pushes one over, and the other is shot. Very dramatic, and occurs amongst wonderful mountain scenery.

345ft. The Subject £5 15s. 4d.

THE TROUBADOUR.

Code Word, BUANDERIE,

A fancy picture, showing a Troubadour conjuring other singers out of a fan. Beautiful colour effects.

132ft. The Subject £2 4s.
Colouring, £1 7s. extra.

THE POOR MOTHER.

A most dramatic and affecting story. The young child of a poor doting mother, looking out of the window from their little attic to watch the soldiers go by, falls out and is killed. The poor mother, distracted, takes to drink, and constantly sees visions of her child; finally dies in a hospital. Very pathetic.

354ft. The Subject £5 18s.

THE SOLE MAKERS AND PATENTEES OF THE CENTURY'S MARVEL

THE CHRONOPHONE at Berwick-on-Tweed.

Stirring Scenes. Striking Incidents.

At the CORN EXCHANGE on Monday, September 24th, Mr. R. Silvester experienced a repetition of his marvellous "send off" with the Chronophone at Newcastle-on-Tyne of the previous week. We quote an extract from the "Stage" which speaks volumes, and needs no other comment:

> "On Monday Mr. R. Silvester and Company paid a return visit. Mr, Silvester can always be relied upon for something new, and his latest enterprise, the Chronophone, is a decided success. Long before the doors were opened the street was completely blocked, and the police found it necessary to draw their batons to keep order, so great was the crush."—STAGE.

Never since the invention of the "living picture" has such a striking report been published in any paper respecting a "picture show."

The CHRONOPHONE is pre-eminently perfect in all points, and is the final and perfect production of the living picture. In a few months its success has surpassed the most sanguine surmises.

THE OLYMPIA, NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

THE SECOND WEEK OF THE CHRONOPHONE.
GREATER SUCCESS THAN EVER.

Miss AUDREY APPLBY, the proprietress of the New York Animated Picture Co., now at the Olympia, wires us again this week:

> "Objecisti, London.—Second week of Chronophone. Greater success than ever. Record houses. Highly pleased with Chronophone.—A. APPLBY."

Should the above not convince you that the Chronophone is not only a masterly marvel, but is the "turn" for the coming season, should you want a packed house, call and see it and hear it.

THE CHRONOPHONE WILL CONVINCE YOU BY VOICE AND ACTION.

NEW "ELGE" FILMS.

No. 513. HER MORNING DIP.

A UNIQUE SUBJECT. SUPERB QUALITY. NATURAL QUALITY THROUGHOUT.

A charming and fascinating young lady goes in her motor-car for her morning dip attended by a crowd of amorous young swains; they arrive at the esplanade. They then go to the water's edge, where the young fellows fuss around and erect a lady's bathing tent, and vie with each other in preventing the unruly wind from lifting the edges of the tent. The lady signals that she is coming out; the boys hover round; the lady appears. What a sight! What a startling change! The boys are apparently dumbfounded and blinded by the sight, rushing and tumbling in all directions. Then follows a highly ludicrous picture of a gaunt looking lady bobbing up and down in the sea. Length 330ft. Price £6 12s. net.

SPLENDID PANORAMA.

No. 1137.

"A RIDE THROUGH THE ARDENNES."

"FROM ARDENNES TO WALSIN."

No. 1142.

"FROM WALSIN TO DINANT."

The two films together make 500 ft., forming one beautiful panoramic view. They can also be had in two parts, 275 and 225 ft. The photographic quality is excellent and shows up the well-known lovely scenery with grand stereoscopic effect.

No. 1146.

"THE FATAL LEAP."

A coach and pair proceeding along a quiet country lane is suddenly brought to a standstill by the coachman being shot by a highwayman. The robber rides up to the coach, and dismounting, drags the poor driver from his seat. Leaving the man dying on the ground, the ruthless highwayman steps up to the coach just as an old bishop gets out. The good man is soon persuaded, by a pistol at his head and other threats of violence, to give up all his valuables to the aggressor. As the divine kneels down to examine his murdered servant, the outlaw rides off as quickly as possible. A few minutes later the Bishop sees with delight another horseman approach, to whom he quickly makes signs to stop. The two confer together, and with evident eager and indignant feelings, the newcomer gives chase after the thief. The chase becomes exciting as the pursuer, telling the tale to another wayfarer, is joined in his mission. Riding very hard, the highwayman being pressed closely, makes his horse take a leap which proves quite disastrous. The animal, in endeavouring to jump a five-barred gate, which bars the way, fails to clear, and the next moment both are brought down on top of the gate, which is quite wrecked. The man, almost before regaining consciousness, is captured. The last scene is a view of the wretched man riding back to front between his captors, being led to his well-deserved end.

OH, THAT DOCTOR'S BOY!

Dr. Killem's residence opens the picture. The Doctor's Boy, starting out on his round with the medicine, meets some of his particular chums in the shape of the butcher's boy and the baker's boy, and they all indulge in a game of marbles. The harmony of the game is interrupted by a cyclist colliding with the baker's basket, which is upset, and the butcher's boy throws some of the baker's boy's bread at the cyclist, general confusion ensuing, followed by the boys mutually exchanging volleys with their various commodities. Some of the physic bottles get broken in the tussle, and the Doctor's lad decides to replace them by some means or other, and he is next seen taking a devilish delight in filling up some bottles with paraffin, turpentine, weed-killer, &c., and then continues his round.

We next witness the patients taking their physic, the first being an elderly gentleman afflicted with the gout, who is immediately seized with horrible paroxysms consequent upon the noxious stuff that has been given him. Then a young lady patient receives her medicine from the nurse, and again follow terrible consequences. It is not long before the effect of the Doctor's strange physic is observed in the film, for messengers are seen gathering hastily at his house from all directions, evidently charged with news that will not wait, and the Doctor coming out detects the reason of all the trouble, and rushes to the relief of his patients. The boy plotter is then caught and given a dose of his own physic, but he escapes, and takes temporary refuge in a water-butt; but the defence is useless, and the water-butt is turned over, while the contents flow over the unhappy boy.

Code Word—"PHYSIC." Length, 336ft.

ATLANTIC WHALING.

A most enthralling subject, never before introduced. In this series we embark on a whaler of about 500 tons register, with its usual complement of whale-boats and men, and proceed on a cruise in search of the leviathans. The sea effects are wonderful, and the rising and falling appearance of the water as the ship forges her way ahead is so realistic that the usual results to some constitutions seem actually imminent.

In a "lively" sea, we are transferred to the whale-boat and shown the harpoon-gun in position, fixed upon a small platform. Mounted in a swivel, it is demonstrated that this gun commands both bows, as well as right ahead.

A whale is sighted; the harpoon-gun is fired, and we see that the harpoon has found its mark, a long distance ahead.

In corroboration, the whale is next shown, stiff and rigid, in the tossing waters. The monster is now made fast to the ship, and we see—almost feel—him towed alongside: a weird spectacle, with his scaly back, longitudinally marked.

The sea-scape is a marvel of photography, and the effects secured in this connection alone would amply recompense an enterprising firm for its reproduction.

Our destination being reached, as we ride at anchor we casually notice what appear to be two islands covered with sea-birds; but a second glance assures us that these "islands" are in reality dead whales—our own being one.

We now disembark and, in a cove of the sea, are shown the operation of "flensing," or the removal of the hide, blubber, and whalebone from the carcass.

A man runs up the head of one of the dead animals and makes an incision, others score its sides with long, sharp knives, a rope and pulley arrangement is secured to the incision at the head, a winch is started, and a long strip of hide is drawn from the body, from head to tail.

The process is repeated, until the huge animal is entirely denuded of its hide, and disembowelling takes place.

This accomplished, men now cut up the blubber into pieces about a foot square, which are piled in readiness for the further processes of oil extraction.

The skeleton only remains, and this structure is so light that one man is seen to sway it backwards and forwards with a single hand.

The finale of this marvellous series is reached by the removal, en bloc, of the whalebone from the upper jaw.

GREAT INTERNATIONAL BALLOON RACE

FOR THE GORDON BENNETT CUP.

We have pleasure in announcing the publication of a highly successful film of this epoch-making event in the ballooning world. However unpropitious from the balloonist's point of view the wind proved, from that of the photographer the weather conditions were perfect, and a wonderful result has been secured of this most unique spectacle.

The lovely Tuileries Gardens, near the big pond, on which the children daily sail their small boats, have almost the appearance of the paddocks of a racecourse on a big day, except that for horses are substituted the monster balloons, already inflated for this contest of endurance and capacity.

The countries represented by balloons are Great Britain, France, Spain, Germany, America, Italy, and Belgium, and from the successful inauguration we depict, it is most likely that ballooning will gain tremendously in popular favour.

Particular interest will be taken in the English team, and the start, beautifully shown, of the Hon. C. S. Rolls, who brings experience and enthusiasm which have carried him to many a victory.

Weird and eerie in the extreme, to unaccustomed eyes, appear the sixteen gigantic globes as, in general panoramic view, they sway and tug at the restraining ropes.

Great interest is excited by the working of M. Santos-Dumont's motor-car attachment during a demonstration preliminary to the actual start.

A grotesque ballon d'essai is seen to soar aloft, that the direction of the wind may be noted.

All the balloons sport their national flags, and scenes of great animation are depicted as balloon after balloon, released from restraining bonds, soars gracefully away.

The aerial field of monster racers—or paddock of air steeds—the balloonists, their military and civil assistants, the parapherhalia, the enthusiastic crowds—all form a novel and unique spectacle, and we predict for this splendidly photographed series, with its portraits of balloon experts, a very popular and cordial reception wherever introduced.

ONE OF MANY PRESS OPINIONS PUBLISHED THIS WEEK:

Sportsman.—"The 'Urbanora' is of such value as an educational institution, as well as for its capacity to carry one into the extremes of the Empire, that its exclusion from the Alhambra programme would be well-nigh a calamity. The series is never dull, and the new films put in this week, illustrating the natural wonders and breezy life of Canada, are a triumph of the photographer's art, and should not fail to be seen."

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Annual, 1906, is welcome as containing carefully compiled lists of the pieces produced during the past year in London, the suburbs, and the provinces, in Paris, and in Berlin. The rest of it is curious and entertaining reading. There is the almanack with its "memorabilia of theatrical events occurrences, &c." There are besides a score of stories and other articles contributed by theatricals a very good one being Miss Louie Freear's set of verses, "Boy Bob" at Sea," which has humour, feeling, and swing. The book contains many theatrical portraits. As a book of reference the Annual is of great use and value, and while some of its contents doubtless appeal more keenly to the professional than to the outsider, any thoughtful person may derive from its study much amusement and no little insight into the conditions, the magnitude, and the complexity of the English theatre of to-day.—Morning Post, Jan. 22.

SKETCHES.

MR. CHAS. E. MACHIN'S SKETCHES.

(Under the Personal Direction and Management of the Author and Producer).

Mr. CHAS. M. DALY.

Mr. Chas. E. Machin presents the most weird and realistic sketches of modern times, fully copyrighted and protected, which please note. All offenders or colourable imitators will be immediately dealt with to the utmost rigour of the law.

THE

BY

CHAS. M. DALY.

Full cast of real actors and actresses, and Zoughlez and Zephir, Indian Monkey, and Phæbyn Snake, imported by Mr. Cross, of Liverpool.

3,000 YEARS AGO,

BY

CHAS. M. DALY.

The greatest mythological and weird production of ancient Egypt ever witnessed.

The Earthquake and Eruption a masterpiece of Stage Mechanism; the bringing to life of the mummy holds the audience spellbound.

From a massive building, in all its splendour, to a shapeless mass of ruins, the storm, the effects of the elements, the vivid fire, and total destruction of a beautiful city right back again to the vaults of the Professor in record space of one minute.

The mummified remains of Amenatius, a Priestess of the Temple of Theives, 3106 years old, just purchased by Mr. Machin; the finest specimen ever brought out of Egpyt and dates from B.C. 1200.

All the scenery and effects carried for all Mr. Machin's productions.

Secured by Moss' Empires, Ltd., immediately after first performance at tip-top terms. Other sketches and top liners in active preparation by Chas. M. Daly.

NOTICE.

Managers and others are respectfully requested to note none of Mr. Machin's sketches by Chas. M. Daly are in any way a resemblance of anything else, but strictly original. Played only by real live actors and actresses, and speciality people in their own special line.

Only authorised agent, Tom Shaw, Esq., 18, Adam-street, Strand, W.C. All other communications to Mr. Chas. M. Daly and to Mr. Chas. E. Machin direct, AVENUE OPERA HOUSE, SUNDERLAND.

G. H. ELLIOTT,

The Chocolate Coloured Coon.
Another Success at Empire, Liverpool.
Evening News says, re Palace, Manchester, Marie Lloyd and G. H. Elliott had a great reception. After G. H. Elliott's coon song the audience refused to be appeased. Three times did the orchestra attempt to play in , but it was in vain. Finally Mr. Elliott begged for silence, and ultimately the appeal had the effect desired.

WALTER STANLEY,

The Successful London Comedian.
Evening News says:—We have left the most popular among the male performers until last. We refer to Walter Stanley. The only fault the house finds in this case is that Stanley cannot give more songs, so delightful is his entertainment; and it is a long time since we heard such funny songs; but good songs are one thing, and the ability to deliver them quite another, and Stanley's talents in the latter direction are astonishingly great.

Instantaneous Success of New Golfing Trio.
SISTERS (THREE) SPRIGHTLY
Usual Success, Palace Theatre, Aberdeen.
Occupying Stage over Forty Minutes Nightly.
A crowded house turned out at the Palace Theatre last night. The three Sisters Sprightly headed the bill, and, as usual, met with a great reception. They have added several new items to their repertoire, notably golf, female suffrage, and the doll songs.—Aberdeen Free Press, Oct. 2.
There was a large audience anxious to renew acquaintance with the Three Sisters Sprightly, who have nowhere more enthusiastic admirers than in Aberdeen. As burlesque artists these clever ladies take a very high rank indeed, and their versatility is shown by frequent additions to a repertoire that has become extensive.—Aberdeen Daily Journal, Oct. 2.
At this time of day it is almost superfluous to say anything about these clever burlesque comediennes—the Sisters Sprightly—whose name on a bill is synonymous with an overflowing house, nor is their popularity difficult to explain. Everything they undertake is marked by originality and a genuine sense of humour, entirely different from the stock imitation that so often does duty on the variety stage.—Bon Accord, Oct. 4.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, OCT. 11.—We have had an exceptionally busy week. No less than three theatres have launched their novelties, the first among them the Palais-Royal, which, under the new management of M. Judic—son of the well-known actress—has imitated the little outside playhouses, and instead of a piece in three acts, has given us what is styled here a "spectacle coupé," i.e., several plays in one act. The first, Heureux Père, is by M. Léon Abric. A lady is expecting an increase in her family, and her husband and the latter's mother-in-law are seated in the drawing-room awaiting events. The nurse enters and announces the birth of a boy, whereupon the elderly lady congratulates her son-in-law. A moment later another son is announced, and the lady no longer smiles. When, however, the arrival of a third youngster is recorded the mother-in-law gives the luckless father a sound beating. It is also delicately conveyed to us that a certain Oscar, the young wife's cousin, has collaborated with the husband with regard to these triplets.

"L'EXTRA" is by M. Pierre Véber. A few months ago this same author gave us a very amusing piece called Gonsague, wherein a piano-tuner was compelled by circumstances to play the part of a nobleman. This time the rôles are reversed. The Baron de Hennequeville, a young rake, in order to revenge himself on his family for having disowned him, hires himself out to wait at table, and is sent by the firm who employ him to a rich merchant who gives a ball. Whilst he serves behind the buffet he sees his friend Desvalettes and the latter's cousin Marianne. He at once throws down his serviette, places a flower in his button-hole, talks with Desvalettes, and dances with Marianne, until the head waiter, catching sight of him, calls him back and severely reprimands him for undue familiarity with the guests. This funny little act raised roars of laughter. The remaining three pieces—one of them a small revue—are too insignificant to be worth describing.

"N'AVEZ-VOUS RIEN A DECLARER?"
Farcical Comedy, in Three Acts, by Maurice Hennequin and Pierre Véber, Produced at the Nouveautés on Oct. 6.

Zézé	MLLE. DHL. BAYE
Mme. Dupont	MME. ROSINE MAUREL
Paulette	MLLE. BERNOU
Mariette	MLLE. GROMIER
Dupont	M. GERMAIN
La Baule	M. TORIN
De Trivelin	M. PRINCE
Couzan	M. COLOMBEY
Frontignac	M. LANDRIN

When the cat's away. . . . We have no longer a censor, and our playwrights now give free scope to their imagination. This, no doubt, is delightful to the authors and to the case-hardened portion of the playgoing public. But what about the unfortunate critic who is expected to relate the story of a play that defies description? Such a piece, alas! is N'avez-vous rien à déclarer? the new work just produced at the Nouveautés. I will attempt to give a faint idea of the peppery plot. M. and Mme. Dupont have an only daughter—Paulette—married to the Comte de Trivelin, and when the story opens the young people are expected back from their honeymoon trip. Mme. Dupont is very excited to see Paulette, and so is La Baule. This La Baule has for years been in love with Paulette, and ever since the girl married he has been shedding copious tears. He cries over dinner; he cries when he sleeps. A few moments later the young couple are announced, and whilst Mme. Dupont takes her daughter into another room, Trivelin makes a dreadful communication to his father-in-law. "I am married to Paulette," he says, "and yet she is not my wife." And then he tells how, when in the train to Brussels alone in the compartment with his wife, he suddenly took her in his arms, and just as he was going to kiss her a gruff voice called out, "Have you anything to declare?" It was the Belgian Custom House officer This apparition at such an inopportune moment gave Trivelin such a shock that whenever he wants to offer the slightest caress to his wife he always fancies hearing a voice—"Have you anything to declare?" and he is seized with a fit of trembling. Before M. Dupont can offer any consolation or advice Mme. Dupont enters, and, in a severe tone, says to her son-in-law, "Young man, you have three days to settle outstanding matters. Past that delay I will ask my daughter to apply for a divorce, and she will marry M. La Baule." When La Baule hears what has occurred he cries again, but this time with joy. And he at once thinks of a hellish device. He will take care that the three days' grace shall not avail Trivelin anything. He secures a Custom House officer's uniform, hides himself in the house, knocks at Trivelin's dressing-room door, and, when the latter opens the door, calls out, "Have you anything to declare?" And now I must bring my narrative to an end. Many more things occur, but they cannot be described in honest English. For the benefit of those interested in Trivelin's fate I will say that, as in all farces, everything comes right in the end, except, perhaps, for La Baule, who has his ears boxed by the charming Paulette, and gets into trouble all round. The work, excellently played by the efficient Nouveautés company, was received with much laughter.

THE well-established reputation of Messrs. A. R. Dean and Sons as theatre furnishers and decorators is not by any means confined to one continent. The famous Birmingham firm have not only furnished and decorated upwards of eighty-five per cent. of the theatres and halls erected in Great Britain, as well as a great many Continental places of amusement, but have also successfully carried out quite a large number of contracts in South Africa, America, and Australia. The contracts booked and in hand for the current year are far too numerous to mention in detail; they include Terry's Theatre, Strand; the magnificent Albert Hall, Southport; the Empire, Birmingham; Hippodrome, Wolverhampton; Hippodrome, Margate; Theatre Royal, Margate; Standard Theatre, Shoreditch; Tivoli Palace, Dublin; Opera House, York; Hippodrome, Birmingham; Hippodrome, Brighton; County Theatre, Guildford; New Palace-by-the-Sea, Clacton; Royal Hippodrome, Portsmouth; Theatre Royal, West Bromwich; Hippodrome, Lancaster; Empire, Burnley; Royal County Theatre, Kingston-on-Thames; Tivoli Theatre, Leeds; New Hippodrome, West Bromwich; and the Royal Albert Palace, Canning Town. The firm direct special attention to their new "Non Pareil" tip-up chairs in British velvet. Materials and workmanship are alike admirable and sound. Messrs. Dean and Co. have won a high reputation for their fibrous plaster decorations, and supply stage carpets, marble-top tables, floor coverings, band stands, stage furniture, and every kind of al-fresco seating. The firm still retain the services of Mr. A. F. Windibank as manager of the theatre department, who has superintended the fitting-up of more theatres than any man in the trade; Mr. C. Bardell, manager of the decoration department; and Mr. L. R. Beck, manager and superintendent of the factories. Architects, proprietors, managers, lessees, &c., are invited to write for the firm's new catalogue of theatre decorations and furnishings.

MR. FRANK LAWTON being unable to appear last Saturday evening in his part in The Belle of New York at the Borough Theatre, Stratford, owing to severe indisposition, the management wired to Mr. Charles Watkins in the morning to play the character, which he did with considerable success.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

ABERDARE.—New Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company is here this week in A Chinese Honeymoon. Mr. C. F. Howard as Tom Hatherton is very successful; Mr. James Wilson is decidedly good as Hang Chow; Mr. Edwin Sykes as Hi Lung and Mr. Louis Ashmeade as Chippie Chop are deserving of special praise; Mr. Lindsay Harman is a thorough success as Mr. Pineapple; Miss Frances Oigar as Soo Soo is charming, her singing being most artistic; Miss Florence Wilton is quite captivating as Mrs. Pineapple; Miss Kitty Clayton is an excellent Fifi; Miss Alma Bolton as Mrs. Brown is quaint and amusing; Miss S. Ross and Miss D. Greatwich are worthy of special mention as the Bridesmaids. The chorus is excellent, and the orchestra is under the direction of Mr. O. H. Bamberger.

ACCRINGTON.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. R. Barnes.—Hoodman Blind is renewing acquaintance with Accringtonians at the above house this week, Mr. Arnold Bell's company giving an entirely satisfactory interpretation. Mr. Bell submits an earnest embodiment of Jack Yeulett; Mr. Cuthbert Imrie is dully callous and blackguardly as Mark Lezzard; Mr. F. C. Carlile contributes a well-defined sketch. Mr. of Kridge; Mr. H. Fuller must be complimented on his performance of Ben Chibbles; Mr. Guy Morville is responsible for the clever character-acting of Tom Lattiker. Miss Frances Campbell, in the dual rôle of Nance and Jess, acts with sympathy and charm; Miss L. Vyner is effective as Tom Tit, a waif; and Polly Chibbles is capitally delineated by Miss Violet Campbell.

Hippodrome — Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Vandy, Potter, and Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Parsons.—Mr. C. Morritt heads the bill here, and fairly mystifies his audience by his clever tricks. Miss Olive Armidale is a dainty comedienne; Clive and Clark bring down the house by their clever dancing; the Three Seabornes are smart acrobats; the Lovelaces are pleasing; and Harry Grey, as local entertainer, is a host in himself. The Hippodrome Bioscope gives some interesting pictures.

ALDERSHOT.—Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Williams.—A return visit is being paid here by Mr. Lester Collingwood's company with the drama When London Sleeps. Miss M. Scudamore and Miss Maude Yorke do well as Queenie and Hilda respectively; and Messrs. C. P. Wentworth, Sam Arthur, and Frank Howard are seen to advantage in the prominent rôles of Rodney, David, and Bertie; whilst Mr. D. Kelway provides the comedy as Sammy.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Fairbairn.—English opera is attracting lovers of music to the Theatre Royal this week. Mr. J. W. Turner's company opened with Il Trovatore, the tragic story of the troubadour enlisting the attention of a good house. Mr. F. J. Hargrave appeared as Manrico, and sang and acted the troubadour with vocal power and vigour of impersonation. Miss Kitty Brownless gave to the delineation of Leonora the required grace and dignity, and sang with good effect, the Miserere scene being repeated in reply to an encore. Miss Beatrice Hill scored as Azucena; her voice, light and flexible, told admirably in all the music, "Home to our mountains" being encored and repeated. Mr. T. Griffiths made an admirable Count di Luna, his powerful baritone and expressive methods being much admired. Minor rôles were in capable hands, and good work was done by chorus and orchestra. On Tuesday The Daughter of the Regiment was performed; on Wednesday Satanella, with Mr. Turner as Count Rupert; on Thursday Old Knockles, a one-act opera by Caldicott, and The Waterman; and on Friday The Bohemian Girl.

Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—A capital combination of variety "stars" are here for the current week, including three comedians of varied styles: Mr. T. E. Johnstone, who appeals to patriotic sentiment, Hardy Palm, who convulses the house with his "Potted Meat," and Monty Walker, an admirable "Silly Billy"; Baby Ladybelle is a clever juvenile; the Levitts are a couple of expert vaulters; the Montaldos are remarkably adroit slack wire artists; Reed and Co. give a melodramatic sketch, The Right Road, in which father and daughter meet as burglars; the Seven Woolfronas are a smart troupe of acrobats; Dolly, Agnes, and Maud, the singing box makers are a pleasing feature; they give a musical turn of a novel kind; the Eight Lancashire Lads are old favourites here, and their harmony in chorus is very effective. The Bioscope pictures are not the least entertaining "turn" of the evening.

ATTERCLIFFE.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. H. Beagle.—Mr. John H. Tomkinson's Royal Gipsy company is the attraction here this week. Miss Flora Buxton is a contralto singer of rare power; and the violin solos of Miss Minnie Richardson are received with applause; whilst Miss Annie Knowles deserves praise for her trombone solos; a pleasing turn is furnished by Miss Buxton and Mr. Fred Dobito in old-fashioned melody; other commendable items are given by La Belle Tosca on the tight-wire; the Recars, Chinese acrobats; Mlle. Vanda, a clever juggler, on a revolving globe; Mr. Dan Whitley, comedian; Little Vio Lette, male impersonator; Miss Evie Lynn in tambourine dance; and the Rizarelis, smart juvenile trapeze performers.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. H. Laycock.—Mr. Sid Cotterell and his company head this week's bill with a mirth-provoking sketch entitled The Substitute; Mr. L. B. Athol, character actor, is heartily applauded for his song-scena, "An Old Man and his Pipe"; the Ettenas give a smart show as rolling globe artists; Miss Ruby with her "merry mannikins" is a source of much merriment; Mr. E. C. Clayton is still to the fore with his Attergraph pictures. Other items are furnished by Miss Alice Maud, mimic and male impersonator; the Sisters Brooklands, comediennes and dancers; and Mr. H. Levaine.

AYR.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—This week the theatre is occupied by Mr. George Dance's own company in the musical play, The Duchess of Dantzic. Of special excellence is the portrayal of Sergt. François Lefebvre, afterwards Duke of Dantzic, by Mr. Leonard F. Griffiths, who sings and acts with great dramatic power, and looks and dresses his part so well. Mr. Alfred Ibberson is the Napoleon, and he brings out that overbearing monarch's strong and weak points to perfection. Miss Blanche Lynd imbues the part of Sans Gêné with that life and abandon and just that touch of humour and mischief to save the play from a fault of too seriousness. She gives a most creditable interpretation of the part. Papillon is admirably taken by Mr. Arthur Ferris. The Vicomte Bethune has a manly portrayal from Mr. Cecil W. Parke, and the Lisette of Miss Hettie Ludlow is brought into prominence by capable acting and singing.

BACUP. — New Court Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Richard Nightingale.—Mr. Frank R. Burdett's company is appearing here this week with The Indian Mutiny. Mr. George Steel as Lieut. Manley gives a forcible and telling performance; Mr. Cyril Harrison is excellent as Captain Manley; and as Major Ingleby Mr. John Davidson is quite satisfactory. Mr. Villiers Stanley as Nebu Singh is a capable exponent of the rôle, and Mr. J. S. Sheddon as Abul Khan is all that could be desired. Mr. Charles Boult gives a capable rendering of Ra. Goongs. Miss F. Melrose Milleti presents a highly commendable impersonation of Ghuz-nah; Miss Agnes Kingston is an effective Kate Ingleby; and Miss Lillie Grey plays well as Mrs. Ingleby. The humour of the drama is well sustained by Mr. Cecil Morant.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — Royalty Theatre and Opera House. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mrs. Morton Powell's company in When It Was Dark is here. Mrs. Powell herself acts the part of Helena Byars with spirit, and Miss Mabel Mannering is exceedingly effective in the difficult part of Gertrude Hunt. Mr. Cyril Austin is good as the Rev. Basil Gortre, and Mr. George H. Pitt is clever as Constantine Schwabe. Mr. Riddell Robinson gives a powerful study of Sir Robert Llewellyn; Mr. Henry Heller is a capable Rev. Mr. Byars; and Mr. A. Carrington does well as Harold Spence.

His Majesty's Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Mr. Julian Malvern's company in I Defy the World is here. Mr. Percy Ballard gives a careful and effective interpretation of the part of Leon Darville, and Miss Violet Crawford is exceedingly skilful as Blanche Darville. Mr. Charles Wilton makes his mark as the Count, and the Laroche of Mr. Chas. Conway is convincing, while Miss Rosalie Heath is good as Pauline.

Tivoli Theatre of Varieties. — Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage Manager, Mr. Tom Whiting.—Mr. Harry Tate's company in Motoring makes a great hit. Mr. J. A. Wilson, the original black oracle, is entertaining; Gilbert Girard is a clever animal and instrumental mimic; Daisy Lane, comedienne, is pleasing; Harry Carmen, vocal comedian, sings well; and the Constances in a comedy duologue, A Game for Two, are successful.

BATH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—On Monday Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company began a third visit to Bath, with The Walls of Jericho, which once again drew a capital audience. Fortunately Mr. Herbert Bunstan, Mr. George A. Brandram, and Miss Florence Jackson are at hand to enact the rôles of Jack Frobisher, Nankey Bannister, and Lady Alethea, and these talented artists continue to portray these characters with all their old success. Others who are repeating excellent impersonations are Mr. Sydney Hamilton (Harry Dallas). Miss Edith Cuthbert (Miss Mornington), and Miss Molly Carton (Lucy). The Marquis of Steventon is now represented in finished style by Mr. Cyril Baleine, another newcomer being Mr. E. F. Meads as Bertram Hannaford. Miss Lydia Busch is certainly one of the best Lady Westerbys we have seen; while Miss Rita Milman and Miss Evelyn Maxwell do all that is possible as the Duches of Skye and Lady Parchester.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—Mr. Macnaghten (who was himself present on Tuesday evening) is presenting this week as his leading attraction Dronza, the marvellous mechanical talking head, which by its mystery has created great wonderment among the large audiences that twice nightly assemble. Quite an ovation has been accorded to Miss Annie Schuberth for her delightful vocalism; her song-scena, Josephine's Welcome to Napoleon, which she gives this week for the first time, is well arranged and tuneful, and is sure to be popular wherever heard. Prince Kokin, Japanese juggler, is an adept in all his difficult feats, and his reception is cordial to a degree; the Steinway Quartette of Gentlemen Vocalists score a big success in their solo and concerted scena "Songs of the Sea"; Frank and Free create plenty of laughter in their domestic musical squabble; Geo. C. Doughty and company give an amusing comedy sketch, Capt. Cupid; Ruth Lytton is smart as a Scotch comedienne; Maude Vera, vocalist and dancer, is a favourite; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux have new and interesting films to show.

BATLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Whitty.—A Woman's Past is here this week. Mr. J. Myron-Howard plays the part of David Heath with earnestness and conviction; Mr. David Phillips is bright, cheery, and effective as Frank Delauney; Mr. Clifton Earle is energetic as Craven. A capital embodiment is that of Miss Irene Carrington, whose admirable study of Clara Darrel is appreciated; Miss Doris Cameron gives a neat study of Dorothy Heath; and Miss Dorothy Wallace is also successful in her part.

BEDFORD.—Royal County Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—This week, by special arrangement with Mr. Tree, Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company presents J. Comyns Carr's version of Oliver Twist. Mr. Stanley Drewitt undertakes with entire success the trying rôle of Fagin; Miss Edith Anton Laing pathetically represents the character of Nancy; Mr. James Shea as Bill Sikes leaves nothing to be desired; and Mr. Charlie Clark as the Artful Dodger, Mr. R. C. Hunter as Charlie Bates, and Mr. J. Johns as Tom Chitling well maintain the humour of the piece. Mr. Arthur Klein submits an admirable impersonation of Barney; Mr. Fred Penley cleverly interprets the rôle of Mr. Brownlow; Mr. W. H. Rotherham capitally enacts the rôles of Mr. Grimwig and Monks; and Mr. Paige Lawrence ably depicts the refined gentlemanly character of Harry Maylie. Miss Dorothy Marsdin enlists the sympathy of her audience by her pathetic rendering of Oliver Twist; Miss A. Lingham as Mrs. Maylie acts capitally; and Miss Dorothy Mayhew makes a charming Rose Maylie.

BELFAST.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. Durward Lely and Mr. William Mollison's company is paying a welcome return visit to this city, and on Monday produced with marked success Mr. Henry Arthur Jones's fine play, The Middleman. Mr. William Mollison must be congratulated on his clever impersonation of Cyrus Blenkarn, being deservedly recalled at the end of each act; Miss Evelyn McNay was charming as Mary; Mr. John Clyde appeared to great advantage as Joseph Challender; and Mr. Alec F. Thompson acquitted himself with distinction as Jesse Pegg; Miss Edith Blair Staples furnished a humorous interpretation of Nancy; and Mr. Durward Lely was all that could be desired as Sir Seton Umfraville; Mr. Archie W. Chappell was the young lover, Captain Julian Chandler, to the life; and other rôles were cleverly sustained by Miss Gladys Fare, Miss Alice Francis, Miss Josephine Woodward, and Messrs. A. Macpherson, Hyam Twyson, D. Lyall, &c. On Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and last night, Beside the Bonny Brier Bush was produced with every element of success.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General Manager, Mr. J. De Freece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—Messrs. Colby and May top the bill, and have been most successful with their ventriloquial act; Miss Alice Hollander's lovely contralto voice has been heard to great advantage in several songs; the Six Brothers Luck appear in a new and original pantomime entitled Blazes, or the Private Fire Brigade, which evokes shrieks of laughter; the jumping feats of Fioretti and Miss Elly have caused much amazement, and Miss Florence Deighton sings several songs with much taste; Kisbey, the call boy, is certainly very smart, and a good reception has been extended to that clever character actor, Mr. Tom Stuart; also here are Miss Adey Spencer, Miss Nellie Adrienne, comedienne and whistler, and the Palace Pictures.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—The star here this week is the popular Belfast favourite, Mr. Mark Sheridan, whose reception on Monday must have been most gratifying to this clever comedian. A good reception has also been extended to the Scottish Meisters for their capital vocal and comedy act. Mr. R. H. Douglas upholds his reputation as one of the smartest entertainers on the boards, and Miss Florence Esdale is a delightful vocalist; the feats of the Picquays, consisting of head and hand balancing, have created quite a sensation; Fielding and Hull, vocal entertainers, have made a big hit; and also here are Miss Flo Hilton, male impersonator, and Mr. Will Cornish, with his silver bells and chimes.

New Alhambra Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The Alhambra Dramatic Company presents this week, with unqualified success, the drama, The Mockery of Marriage. Chief honours are due to that charming actress, Miss Nina Blake-Adams, for her delightful impersonation of Rose Vernham; Mr. Percy M. Stevenson acquitted himself with high distinction as the villainous Dick Kenyon; and nothing but praise must be accorded Mr. Horace Denton for his clever impersonation of the dual rôle of Jack and Ned Stanley; Mr. Cyril Grier skilfully interpreted the part of Seth Pearce; and the same may be said of Mr. Henry Elmore Frith, who impersonated Joseph Vernham; Miss Norah Caronne had a difficult part to sustain in Alvo Kenyon, but she played it with much credit to herself. The humour of the piece was in the hands of Mr. Tom H. Solly, who was excellent as Toby Wright; and Miss Alice Clarke, who was decidedly funny as Mary Ann; Mr. H. Arnold Allen, who was capital as Old Pete, completes the fine cast.

BILSTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. H. Battersby; Manageress, Miss Battersby.—Owing to the sudden death of Mr. Frank Bateman, and the utter prostration, in consequence, of Mrs. Bateman (Miss Lizzie Montague), changes at the last moment had to be made in the cast of No Wedding Bells for Her, the drama of the week. The part of Lola Delaspierre is being undertaken by Miss Louie Adair, and this lady proves a very worthy understudy; Mr. Fred Garton is Dick, the detective, and his portrayal of the part is most commendable; Mr. Stuart Lomath plays the Rev. Frank Hatherleigh excellently; the Horatio Fane of Mr. Harry Belford fits him like a glove.

BIRKENHEAD.—New Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—Mr. George Dance's company in The Cingalee is presenting an attractive entertainment. Mr. Jack Crichton plays Chambuddy Ram with infinite humour; Mr. Cyril Dane scores heavily as the Hon. Harry Vereker; and Mr. Ethelbert Edwards is a decided success as Bobby Warren. Mr. Helier le Maistre is to be complimented on an excellent rendering of Boobhamba; Sir Peter Loftus is amusingly portrayed by Mr. Grafton Williams; Miss Georgina Middleton invests Nanoya with vivacity and chic; Lady Patricia Vane is admirably impersonated by Miss Marjory Clark; and Miss Gladys Guy is an unexceptionable Peggy Sabine.

Argyle Theatre of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Miss Dora Lyric, a comedienne and descriptive vocalist of exceptional ability, has returned after a short absence and meets with a cordial reception; Mr. Jack Pleasant, a genuinely funny comedian, has made a hit; and the Motramos are renewing previous successes. Bernar's Marionettes are marvels of mechanical skill; Mr. J. W. Rickaby is a comedian of resource; the Two Bostons are going big in a humorous interlude; and other prominent turns are supplied by Mr. Norman B. Osborne (ventriloquist); Miss May Moore Duprez (the American Dutch girl); the Sisters Neilson, duettists and dancers; and Merton and Ryder, variety artists. Brown's Royal Bioscope is also an attraction.

BIRMINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Mr. Martin Harvey's appearance this week has produced great scenes of enthusiasm, in which Miss N. De Silva has shared. On Monday, a big audience cheered to the echo Mr. Harvey's fine performance as Brian in Boy O'Carroll. Miss N. De Silva was admired in the rôle of Paudheen; and Mr. Chas. J. Cameron as Major Yarrington, Miss Mary Rorke as Lady Honoria Vere, and Miss Maud Rivers as Lettice Yarrington, received much applause. On Tuesday, A Cigarette-Maker's Romance was given; and Hamlet and The Only Way have also been presented. Wednesday evening was marked by a grand revival of The Corsican Brothers, which is noticed elsewhere.

Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Mr. Lewis Waller is scoring here as Brigadier Gerard, a part that he invests with delightful braggadocio. Miss Evelyn Millard, looking lovely, and acting superbly as the Comtesse, has her share in the ovation that comes at the end. Mr. A. E. George makes a commanding figure of Napoleon; Mr. Edward O'Neill acts with subtlety and power as Talleyrand; and Messrs. Eric Scott, Shiel Barry, R. C. Smith, and Herbert Yyvian distinguish themselves. Mr. Waller also appears as Philip Challoner in the monologue, Fortune's Fool, which serves as a curtain-raiser.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Victor Turner.—This week, Mr. George Dance's company presents A Country Girl, with which the patrons here appear well pleased. Mr. Coningsby Brierley is well received for his bright and brisk acting as Barry; Mr. F. J. Booney makes an imposing Rajah; Mr. John M. Hay as Geoffrey Challoner is liberally applauded; and Mr. Arthur Jackson as Sir Joseph Verity, Mr. Chas. Stafford as Douglas Verity, Mr. H. W. Hewlett as Lord Anchester, and Mr. H. A. Mather as Granfer Mummery, are well appreciated. Miss Ellaline Thorne is charming and piquant as Nan; Miss Barbara Babington as Marjory displays a winning presence and tuneful voice; Miss Ernestine Desborough gains admiration for her presentation of the Princess; and Miss Cissie Sephton as Madame Sophie sings and dances with vivacity and charm. Miss Muriel Johnson is also praiseworthy as Lady St. Quinton; and the chorus is adequate.

Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chris Felton.—Mr. Lingford Carson's répertoire company is here on a return visit. On Monday, The Heart of a Hero held attention, and Mr. Charles Draycott was once more acclaimed for his acting as Jem Resdale. Miss Muriel Thompson graced the rôle of Nell Resdale with many artistic touches; Mr. Ernest J. Fare portrayed the schemer; Wilfred Marl, with skill; Mr. Sidney C. Cranston was eminently satisfactory in the rôle of Jack Collinson; Mr. J. Dobson Clyde was duly appreciated for his work as Mark Marl; Mr. Arthur Byron made a diverting Timothy Heighno; Miss Daisy Norman a humorous Susie Slack, Miss Marie Robson a successful May Ryder, and Miss Louise Millward acted cleverly in a dual rôle. On Wednesday, The Ticket-of-Leave Man was played, and The Octoroon was down for Thursday and Friday.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—Mr. T. Edward Ward's company, including Miss Ward, is appearing here. Miss Ward is sympathetic as Honor Symes; Miss Adelaide Raby depicts Bella de Lara with callousness and abandon; Mr. George M. Newall is an admirable Mark Desmond; Mr. Wilson Coleman, a clever Gilbert Fernside; and Miss Audrey Sutherland, a pathetic Little Leonard. Miss Kate Newman does well with the part of Sal Jenkins; and a quintette of comedy rôles are effectively played by Mr. T. Edward Ward as Jonathan Buckstone; Mr. Sydney Bryant as Dicky Bird; Mr. Claude Paget as the postman, Treadaway; Miss Gertie Reid as Kitty; and Miss Ettie Spalding as Martha Sprigwell.

Carlton Theatre, Saltley. — General-Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Mr. T. Morton Powell's company is here, in Honour Thy Father. Mr. Walter M. Cameron makes a powerful Gabriel Garth; Mr. Bertram Ross, an effective Jack Halyard; and Mr. W. R. Winning, a successful Sir Duncan Bly. Miss Kate Newton acts with sympathy in the rôle of Gertrude Garth; Miss Winnie Donavon is an effective Mercy Merry; Miss Mabel Coleman, an excellent Lillian Garth; Mr. W. H. Melrose, a humorous Ned Pennycomquick; and further comicalities are provided by Mr. Fred Rolls as Mike, Mr. Claude Merton as Bloggs, and Miss Lizzie Morley as Poppy Cornleigh.

Theatre Royal, Aston.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. B. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—Mr. Samuel James's company is here in As Good as Gold. Mr. William Heilbron is responsible for a dashing portrayal of Jack Stanton; Mr. Richard Ferris bears a distinguished appearance as Sir Richard Wharncliffe; Mr. H. H. Barrington acts forcibly as Mark; Miss Gertrude Bonser is a charming Nora; Miss Kate Froud a capable Kate D'Arville; Miss Irene Tracey a clever "Kipper"; and much mirth comes of the efforts of Mr. Norman Hall as Spanker, Mr. Fred May as Simpson, and Miss Ella Seton as Madge. Mr. F. Thorpe Tracey as Timothy Nias and Miss Florence Lovell as Anna Nias also contribute to the success.

Empire Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Willie Edouin heads a brilliant programme here, his pathetic and amusing character studies being loudly applauded; Bob Hutt and company are appearing in a pantomimic absurdity, Welcome Home, which is well staged; the wire act, by Wyndham and Kitty is daring and clever; Daisy James sings herself into favour; as also does Harry Marte and Harry Maynard; Binns and Binns, musical comedians, are well applauded; A-Ba-Be, a novel picture post-card album, and Alburtus and Bartram, who are expert at club-swinging and juggling, complete the bill.

Gaiety Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Florrie Forde is here again. She certainly appears to be one of the Gaiety's greatest favourites, her songs being contributed in her happiest manner. The Three Laurels present a sensational gymnastic performance; Dora Martini gives a clever gymnastic turn; Edie Gray and her White Coons, the Violas, Cyril Carle, Millie Denham; Assaf, Byron, and Shaw, Chas. Sloman, and J. H. McCann are also in the bill.

Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Collinson's company of juveniles is appearing in a sketch, The Topsy-Turvy School, which is highly amusing; Grant and Grant, a pair of octoroons, also come in for a good share of applause. The trick cycle act of the Villions is decidedly clever; while the novel feats of strength of the Lavalis are far above the average. Other popular turns are Eileen Douglass, Baroux and Bion, Lauri Wylie, Edna Latonne, Harry Zetter, and Sammy Shields.

Bordesley Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—Peggy Pride is scoring a great success here; another smart turn is Lupino Lane, a juvenile comedian; Datas, the marvellous man of memory, and Fox and Melville are well applauded; Lord, Murray, and Lord are old favourites, as also are the Lupino Bros.; Esta Stella is encored for her songs.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — Eden Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. Herbert Ralland's company is here in the comic opera La Poupée. Great praise is due to Miss Mysie Devine for her clever rendering of Alesia; in Mr. Arthur Cozens is seen a brilliant exponent of Launcelot; Mr. Harry Brayne is humorous and entertaining as Hilarius; a clever portrayal of Father Maxime is given by Mr. Walter Balfour; Loremois is well played by Mr. Arthur Dennis; Mr. Fuller Allen is successful in the rôle of Baron Chanterelle; Miss Edith Hunter makes an excellent Mme Hilarius; and Miss Doris Dickens a pleasing Henri.

BLACKBURN. — Theatre Royal.— Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Manager, Mr. Reginald C. Yorke.—Mr. Mouillot's company in The Toreador is appearing here with much success. Miss Rose Helene is a dainty Nancy and makes a big hit with her "bouquet" song in the first act; Miss Zoe Gilfillan as Dora Selby is also charming; as is Miss Katie May as Susan; Miss Florence Burdett as the much-married Mrs. Malton Hoppings invests her part with a vein of humour; Mr. Harry Buss as Sammy Gigg is exceedingly funny; and Mr. Howard Cridland as Sir Archibald Slackett introduces comicality which fairly captures the house. Mr. Fred Fowler as Pettifer is also a capable laughter-maker; Mr. H. M. White as Carajolo should be mentioned for his fine rendering of the Toreador's song; and Miss Marie Adair acts and sings well as the disappointed Donna Teresa.

Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page.—Mr. H. Marriott-Watson's company is appearing here in A False Wife. The company is a good one, and Miss Florence E. Florence acts finely as Estelle de Lusan.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—A variety show of all-round merit is contributed to by the Six Æolians, singers and dancers—a bright and interesting turn; Austin Rudd, an old favourite, is as humorous as ever; Hall and Earle are eccentric acrobats; and the Davonports, a pair of dexterous and amazing conjurers. Kit Keen, a coloured coon artist; Almon, contortionist; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are also among the attractions.

BLACKPOOL.—Her Majesty's Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone. — All-of-a-Sudden Peggy, played by Mr. Lionel Glenister and Mr. Wood-Ingram's company is the pleasing fare provided here this week. The title-rôle is played by Miss Decima Moore, whose delightful acting is the principal charm of the play. Miss Annie Brophy scores at all points as Mrs. O'Mara, and Miss Kate Wingfield carries conviction as Lady Crackenthorpe; Miss Violet Barton-Astor makes a good impression as the Hon. Millicent Keppel, whilst Miss Estelle Despa scores a veritable triumph as the Hon. Mrs. Colquhoun. Mr. Frank Bayley contributes a careful study of Lord Crackenthorpe, Mr. Lionel Glenister is satisfactory as the Hon. Jimmy Keppel, Mr. Henderson Bland is responsible for Major Phipps, and Mr. Harold Weston is good as Jack Menzies.

Grand Theatre.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—The Orchid, played by Mr. George Dance's company, is proving a great attraction here. Mr. Colin Campbell as Meakin, Mr. Fred Thompson as Guy Scrymgeour, and Mr. Harry Ray as Zaccary provide endless fun, whilst the vocalisation of Miss Mabel Sealby (Lady Violet), Miss Florence Vie (Caroline Vokins), and Miss Gladys War (Josephine) materially assist to make the play successful. There is a strong chorus, and the dresses and mounting are highly commendable.

Palace. — General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—George Gilbey tops a capital bill here this week. Other popular turns are Dunningarto, conjurer; Jessie Albini, comedienne; Herbert Lenton and Carmen La Morena, in a Spanish scena; Ross and Grayson, in a mélange of music and dancing; Sidney Dolf, juggler; Maude Marshall, vocalist; and the Royal Ando Troupe of Japanese jugglers.

BLYTH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—Mr. Fred L. Connynghame, supported by an excellent company, has paid a successful visit with the domestic drama, A Mother's Love. Mr. Arthur Mervyn undertook the part of Paul Wingate, and gave a fine impersonation; as Geoffrey Mannering, Mr. Arthur E. Pringle achieved a decided success; Mr. Fred Connynghame was a prominent figure as Mat Ruddock; as Ralph Mervin, Mr. S. Clifton won favour; Miss Rosa Mervyn was successful as the Vicar's wife; Miss Holly Haselwood made a charming picture as the Vicar's child; Miss Dorothy Monkhouse as Mary Smart was commendable; whilst Miss M. Lavinia Ellis left nothing to be desired as Elaine Mervin.

Hippodrome.—Lessee, Mr. George E. Good.—The star turn here is supplied by Mr. George Bohee, who gives a most accomplished performance on the banjo. Other artists also appear, and the animated pictures continue to draw good audiences.

Gaiety.—Proprietor, Councillor John Grantham, J.P.; General-Manager, Mr. Arthur James.—Kyoto, the wonderful Japanese juggler, is the chief attraction here. The bill also includes the Landor Bros., acrobats; J. H. Clark, tenor; Williams and Laidler, comedy gymnasts; May Geraldine, a pleasing comedienne and dancer, and the Gaiety Bioscope in a series of fine pictures.

BOLTON.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Melvin.—Mr. George Dance's principal company with Veronique (richly dressed and superbly staged) made its initial appearance in Bolton on Monday. Miss Nellie Wigley gives inexpressible charm to the title-rôle, her pleasing and tuneful voice in the swing song "While I'm Waiting" being used with good effect; Mr. J. Warren-Foster sings and acts well as Florestan; Miss Agnes Tandy is vivacious and fascinating as Mme. Coquenard, her rendering of the song, "The Apple Tree," being loudly encored; Mr. Ellis Holland as Mons. Coquenard is extremely comical, his antics frequently convulsing the house; and Messrs. Tom Seymour (as Mons. Loustot, the bailiff) and Scott Cullen (as Seraphin, the groom) make much diversion. Miss Edith Devonshire as the Countess de Champ d'Azur has a voice of much charm, which is heard to advantage in her song, "The Garden of Love"; Miss Maude Leonard makes a capable Aunt Benoit and Miss Neste Laurel plays the part of Denise with ability. The chorus and augmented orchestra are under the able direction of Mr. Clement Locknane.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—A "big bill" here comprises the following clever turns:—Chung Ling Soo, Chinese magician; the Sisters Cora, duettists and dancers; Harry Nelson, comedian; Bella Braham, in illustrated song pictures; Walker and May, coloured comedians and dancers; Mlle. Haydee's miniature vaudeville theatre, introducing the latest creation, a grand spectacular Chinese scena, "The great little Chung Ling Soo"; H. O. Wills, low comedian; Frank and Violet Payte, in their successful racing sketch, Also Ran; Alex Victor Duo, juvenile duettists; Clown Zertho and his troupe of wonderful performing dogs; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

BOOTLE.—Muncaster Theatre. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Manager, Mr. H. Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—There is an excellent variety company here this week, the top of the bill being occupied by Mr. Harry Calden's company, in a dramatic Irish sketch, entitled A Sprig of Shamrock. The same company is responsible for a musical comedy extravaganza, played for the first time, entitled The Dandy Duke, from the pen of Mr. Harry Calden, and music by Mr. Albert Wilson, conductor of the orchestra. This is a bright and laughable sketch, and Mr. Calden as Roaming Roger is exceedingly funny. A feature of the piece is the delightful choruses and dancing, which are much enjoyed. Other items in the programme include the Sisters Douglas, comediennes and dancers; Godfrey and Barnard, in a comedy duologue; Harry Rouston, vocal comedian; Geo. Barr, comedian; Dulcie Milner; also Boon and Bradley, clever comedians and dancers, who are enthusiastically received. On Thursday the anniversary night was celebrated, when turns from the principal halls appeared.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Proprietors, David Allen and Son.—Sole Lessee Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—Messrs. Silvanus Dauncey and M. V. Leveaux's company in The Fascinating Mr. Vanderveldt is paying a first visit here this week. Mr. Reginald Dance plays the title-rôle in fine dashing style, and divides the honours of the piece with Miss Gladys Mason, who gives a skilful rendering of Lady Clarice. Mr. H. Lawrence Layton is admirable as Colonel Rayner; and Mr. G. A. Seager as Sir Bartholomew Cardick, and Mr. Russell Barry as Mr. Goddlestone, present two familiar studies of humorous types of character; while other strong support comes from Mr. Edward Coutts as Lord Woolham. Mr. George Percy as Mr. Langston, Miss E. Titheradge as Aggie Coles, Miss M. Weigall as the Marchioness, Miss May Brook as Lady Clementina, Miss A. Gunn as Miss Pelling, and Miss Dorothy Haigh as Mrs. Brevell. The play is preceded by the excellent one-act drama entitled The Drums of Oude, in which Mr. Reginald Dance, Mr. Edward Coutts, and Miss Gladys Mason shine conspicuously.

BRADFORD. — Theatre Royal. — Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—Mr. Hall Caine's dramatised version of his popular novel, "The Prodigal Son," was presented here on Monday night. Miss Lily Hall Caine, who doubles the parts of Thora and Thora's child, was refined and convincing in her acting in the first two acts, and later in the play her artlessness was delightful. Miss Cecil Cromwell with artistic skill portrayed Helga Neilson; Mr. Henry George gave a fine performance of Stephen Magnusson; Anna, his wife, Miss Alma Murray represented with genuine earnestness Sarah Williams; Mr. Franklyn Graham's Major Colden deserves commendation; and Miss Phyllis Back is a winsome Molly Edwards.

NEW PALACE PIER THEATRE.—Mr. Harold V. Neilson and company submit a triple bill here this week. In Dream Faces Mr. Neilson as Robert Lumley and Miss Dorothy Milne as Margaret are especially effective. In The Light that Failed Mr. Neilson gives a fine impersonation of Dick Helder and Miss Dorothy Milne is a charming Maisie, while the parts of Torpenhow and Bessie are ably sustained by Mr. W. Lemmon Warde and Miss Hilda Sims respectively. A Pair of Lunatics is capitally sustained by Mr. Neilson and Miss Dorothy Milne.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson are here for the week. On Monday Much Ado About Nothing was staged in a liberal manner. Both Mr. and Mrs. Benson were highly successful in their respective parts of Benedick and Beatrice; Miss Helen Haye presented a pleasing and sympathetic study of Hero; Don Pedro, Don John, Claudio, Leonato, and Antonio had excellent exponents in Messrs. Clarence Derwent, John Carrington, George Buchanan, Edward A. Warburton, and J. P. Wilson; Mr. George R. Weir was amusing as Dogberry, having excellent support by Mr. H. O. Nicholson, as Verges, and Mr. Charles Warburton. Miss Gwladys Wynne was pleasing as Balthazar, doing full justice to her song; and other parts were satisfactorily taken by Mr. Hannam Clark, Mr. Stanley Howlett, Mr. P. D. Owen, Mr. J. M. Johnston, Miss Estelle Stead, Miss Gwladys Wynne, and Miss Leah Hanman. As you Like It was the attraction for Tuesday. The comedy was well staged, the Forest of Arden scenes being delightfully picturesque and realistic. Mrs. F. R. Benson presented an artistic and charmingly interesting exposition of Rosalind; Mr. Benson did excellently as Orlando. The other members of the company also acquitted themselves satisfactorily, and Miss Gladys Wynne successfully contributed songs in the Forest of Arden scenes. Macbeth, Henry the Fifth, School for Scandal, Hamlet, and Richard the Second are also billed.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Crowe.—Mr. Frank Bertram's company is here with the interesting drama, The Convict's Daughter, the play being well staged and the company a competent one. Mr. Frank Bertram displays considerable power in his exposition of Michael Grahame; Mr G. Nelson Wallace scores as Frederick Neville; Mr. Herbert M King is manly ard convincing as Harold Trevalyen; Mr. G. Moreton Williams is consistent throughout in the heavy part of Jasper Thorn; Miss Nellie Clyde is pleasing as Edith. The comic relief is treated excellently by Mr. Sam Roberts as Patrick O'Laragan, and Miss Phyllis Gibbon as Betty Hyne; and other parts of more or less importance are carefully taken by Miss Rose Carew, Mr. H. Lee, Mr. W. Hunt, Mr. H. B. Henderson, Mr. Percy Robinson, Mr. Frederick Rallings, and Mr. Fred Facer.

PALACE THEATRE.—Resident-Manager, Mr Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. V. Welchman.—King and Benson, comedy vocal entertainers, head the programme with a very acceptable turn; the Casino Comedy Four amuse with eccentricities and enjoyable singing; Madge Mayfield is a pleasing vocalist and dancer; the Mayvilles score with their liliputian turn; Travers is always a favourite ventriloquist here; Charles Ashdown, comedian, obtains applause; Ray and Calden are successful in a speciality of song, dance, etc.; and Lily Flexmore is highly appreciated for her clever acrobatic dancing, etc. The performance concludes with interesting animated pictures.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Mlle. Camilla D'Alberg is highly successful here with her dramatic episode, La Main, in which she introduces some clever dancing, and is ably supported by Mr. George Wright and Mr. Cecil King; Arthur Lennard, vocal comedian, is appreciated; Yamamoto and Koyoshe are clever Japanese equilibrists: the Four Maisanos do a good musical act; Cora Duncan and Albert Brasque present an interesting duologue; Will Freedo does some clever dancing; the Charnleys are pleasing duettists and dancers; and Bishop and Vale are smart acrobatic comedians and dancers. There are some popular animated pictures to conclude the entertainment.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—The Great Awakening commenced a week's run here before a good house. Miss Hildyard as Lola Selby made a great impression, showing much histrionic power. James Selby was well played by Mr. Tracy Barrow; Mr. Bernard Copping appeared as Sir Henry Merton, and also as Jack Merton, with advantage; Guy Rogan was fittingly represented by Mr. Charles E. Linney; and Mr. Herbert Evelyn worked well as Capt. Harry Lambert. Miss Doris Digby was a very acceptable Molly Merton; Mr. Willie Scott as Billy Brass, and Miss Isa Bellington as Selina Worts, were amusing. The play is produced under the direction of Mr. Tracy Barrow.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The habitués of this house are being afforded a treat this week in the production for the first time here of The Duchess of Dantzic by Mr. George Dance's company. Miss May Glenn as Sans Gêne is a clever actress, and uses a fine voice artistically; Mr. Alec Johnstone is a capital Adhemar; Mr. Steve Fitzgerald a bright and amusing Papillon, and Mr. Ernest Torrence a distinct success as Lefebvre; as Napoleon Mr. Gilbert Yorke is seen to advantage; Miss Maggie White is a charming and winsome Renée; Miss Buena Bent is a good Lisette, and Miss Ella Derwent an excellent Empress Josephine. A word of praise is due to the chorus and to the orchestra under the direction of Mr. Edward Whitehall.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—An excellent programme is provided here this week. The Martelloni troupe of lady acrobats are clever; T. C. Edwards, baritone, gives a fine rendering of "The Deathless Army"; the Marlo and Dunham trio are smart and funny on the horizontal bar; F. S. Hume is an acceptable vocal comedian; the three De Veres are a good comedy turn; Bert Lytton is loudly applauded for his descriptive songs; and the Brothers Montes in Mishaps on a Motor Car are very good.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. H. Dudley Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Waller.—The management have secured some good turns this week, consisting of Hinton and Wooton, in their football match on bicycles; Letta and Minnie, in their hand-jumping and musical specialities; Florrie St. Roy, song and character actress; Fred Lyndo, comedian; Sisters Brand, duettists; and the Bros. Brooks, amusing dialogue and patter artists. Some good living pictures are also shown by the Raymond Tableaux Bio.

BURY (LANCS.).—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. Louis Calvert's company is appearing here this week in Sunday. In the title-rôle Miss Emelie Polini thoroughly deserves the hearty applause which awaits her at the end of her act. Mr. Leonard Pagden makes a capital Colonel Brinthorpe; Mr. E. A. Douglas gives a good account of Tom Oxley; the difficult part of Arthur Brinthorpe is well played by Mr. G. Wallace Johnston; Messrs. W. Lockhart, G. Rennef, C. Yapp, and A. Vezin as Towzer, Davy, Lively, and Jacky respectively could not be improved upon. Miss Muriel Pope and Miss Aimée Murray as the Nun and Mrs. Naresby give capital impersonations.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—A good programme here includes Bosanquet, in a musical scena; Brown and Robinson, vocalists, in a sketch, entitled Home from Work; Harry Rogerson, a fine comedian; Lily de Breton, trapeze artist; Rose Tilley, vocalist; Del and Hal, duologue artists; and Carter Livesey, Lilian Rosebery, and Albert Mason in a laughable sketch, entitled Would-be Actors Rehearsing.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead; General-Maanger, Mr. W. B. Broadhead, jun.—A delightful entertainment is provided here, and includes the Gondoliers, four singers who render humorous selections very finely; the Vyponds, in a musical scena, entitled His Birthday Present; Oakdene, ventriloquist; Haig and Novel, comedy artists; Gladenbecks, acrobats; Monty Biggs, female impersonator; Juan and McQue, dancers, and an amusing comedy, In the Fire Station, by the Fimans.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.—ATHENÆUM HALL.—Manager, Mr. E. Arnold Crack.—The Earl and the Girl, played by Mr. Bannister Howard's No. 1 Company, was here for three nights. Mr. Charles Cleveland as Jim Cheese was delightfully funny in the absurd adventures of the supposed Earl; Mr. D. Fitzgibbon created a good impression as Crewe Boodle; Dick Wargrave was played with genuine humour by Mr. Frank Wilson; and the rôles of Downham and Host Hayel lost nothing in the hands of Mr. Melville and Mr. Alec Godfrey. Miss Florence Brandon is pretty and piquant as Daisy Fallowfield; the Elphin Haye of Miss Alice Nixon is a dainty piece of acting; Miss Adele Moye capably fills the part of Liza Shoddam; and Miss Carmen Cecil makes the most of her opportunities as Miss Virginia Bliss.

BUXTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Arthur Willoughby.—For the first three nights of this week we had Mr. Arthur Hardy's company in Beauty and the Barge. An excellent representation of the amusing farce was given. Mr. Blake Adams still retains the part of Captain James Barley, and makes this affable gentleman a very droll personage. The audience were kept continually merry when Mr. Blake Adams was on the stage; Mr. Edward Coventry was a manly Lieut. Seton Boyne; and Mr. Pennington-Gush was good as Herbert Manners; Mr. Walker Pemberton played with commendable spirit as Major Smedley; and Mr. Fred Knight was particularly amusing as Tom Codd; Mr. Thomas Pauncefort worked well in his capital part of Augustus; and Mr. Charles White was a really capital John Dibbs. A very humorous piece of acting was George Porter, played by Mr. Ewart Drake; Miss May Fairclough acted gracefully as Ethel Smedley; and Miss Mary Pemberton was a pleasing Lucy Dallas; Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite was very amusing as Mrs. Porter; and Miss Ruby Wyndham was excellently placed as Mrs. Baldwin. The play was admirably staged. For the remainder of the week we had Mr. Leonard Boyne and company in Raffles.

CAMBRIDGE.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—Mr. A. H. Canby's company opened here on Monday in The Prince Chap. Mr. H. R. Roberts has made a careful and convincing study of William Peyton; Mr. George Shilton was likewise most successful as Marcus Runion; Mr. Wilfred Draycott was excellent as the Earl of Hemmingford. In the first act Claudia is represented by little Miss Betty Green, and admirably she filled the part; in the second act little Miss Geraldine Wilson plays the part, and worthily she enacted the character. In the third act Claudia, now grown to womanhood, is in the hands of Miss Lorna Lawrence, and her performance was one of high merit. Miss Ethel Hollingshead has an uninteresting part in Alice Travers; and Miss K. Kellie appears as Mrs. Harrington. The play is preceded by the amusing sketch, entitled Burglar and Judge.

CARDIFF.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—The Spring Chicken was received on Monday with much enthusiasm, being played by Mr. George Dance's company. Miss Crissie Leonard, who appears as Rosalie, is vivacious and bewitching; as Dulcie Babori Miss Florence Lee is particularly sweet; Miss Nellie Kavanagh works extremely hard as Mrs. Girdle; Mr. J. S. Durant is a comedian that would put life in the dullest of plays, and his performance as Gustave is admirable; Mr. Fred Payne is equally successful in providing merriment as Girdle; Mr. Harry Averell makes a capital Boniface; Mr. Edwin Dodds is conspicuously successful as Felix; Mr. Ralph Holland is good as Baron Papouche; and Miss Poppy Poole is a delightful Baroness Papouche.

KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. C. Duncan.—Proving an attraction here is Miss Annie Bell and company in Sapho. Miss Bell undertakes the title-rôle with infinite credit; Mr. Fredk. Annerley impersonates Jean Gaussin with considerable ability.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—Fred Karno is synonymous with "house full" at the Cardiff Empire, and The Mumming Birds has proved no exception this week. The Molasso Quartette provide a capital turn, their dancing being simply astounding; Dan Crawley is an entertaining comedian, with an enviable reputation here; the Three Dumonds, charming performers, present some excellent violin playing; Miss Lilian Lea has a good voice, which she is able to use with much effect; Jack Charman is another successful vocalist; and Katie Butler is certainly a promising comedienne. Silent Tait, the eccentric wizard, and Lilian Bishop, male impersonator, are entertaining turns; and the bioscope exhibits interesting pictures.

CARLISLE.—H.M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Trustees of R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Stanley.—Mrs. Alice Chapin's company in the comic opera A Knight Errant is occupying the boards here this week. Mrs. Chapin appears as Helen Ferrier; Mr. Harry Welchman acts and sings nicely as Captain Perduie. The opera is followed by the ever-popular musical comedy A Pantomime Rehearsal, in which Mr. Harry Welchman and Mr. Clarence Ibbotson score as Jack Deedes and Lord Arthur Pomeroy respectively.

THE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Palace Theatre, Ltd., Carlisle; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—Arden and Abel's sketch company in Three of a Kind is the principal attraction here this week. The piece is exceedingly funny, and exceedingly well acted. Hughes and Elliott make a hit in a smart dancing act, and the turn submitted by the McKays is both amusing and clever. Other items include Mill May and Theresa, singing protean artists; Arthur Royce, eccentric comedienne; Yetta, wire act; Cribb and Cribb, comedians; and the Pepiscope, with some excellent films.

CASTLEFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Cr. Hy. Masterman.—Mr. Bert Coote's company in The Fatal Wedding fills the bill here. Miss Madge Haines is extremely good as Mabel Wilson, the much-wronged wife; Miss Gertrude Harrison is to be commended for her success in an unpleasant part—that of Cora Williams, the female villain; the Irish servant, Bridget, is humorously portrayed by Miss Julie Temple; Mr. Ernest Owtrim plays Howard Wilson exceedingly well; Mr. Herbert Humber makes Robert Curtis sufficiently villainous; Mr. C. H. Hughes is amusing as Toto, as is Mr. Cyril Melton as Peter Schwartz. A clever representation of Jessie, "the little mother," is given by Miss Marjorie Lawrence, who possesses natural talent of a high order. Worthy also of particular mention is the clog dance of Master G. Grice, the song "Starlight," by Master E. Frisby, and the performances of Misses Ethel Press, Nora and Hessie Herbert, Miss Shirley Sparks, and Miss May Maddison.

CHATHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. G. Ridley.—This week marks a return visit of The Blue Moon. The present company is sent out by Mr. Robert Courtneidge, under the general management of Mr. Douglas Miller. Miss Clarice Lockstone gives a dainty impersonation of the title-rôle; Miss Florence Imeson's Millicent Leroy is a skilful bit of work; Mr. Alfred Clark is quite natural as Major Vivian Callabone, while Mr. Alec Frazer makes a popular Captain Jack Ormsby. The chief comedy work rests with those able comedians, Messrs. Reginald Switz and Alfred Beers, as Private Charles Taylor and Mooiraj respectively; Mr. Arthur Soames is admirably suited as the Prince; Miss Ethel Callanan makes a pleasing Evelyn Ormsby.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—That neat male impersonator, Hetty King, is winning all hearts with her capital ditties; Herbert Rules's chorus song is well received; Drew and Alders have a new act, which proves their versatility; Hayman and Franklin are back again with their Matrimonial Agency duologue; C. H. Unthan, the armless wonder; the Sisters Tinsley, Gold and Sterling, Lacey's Erascope, and Phil Bransby complete the bill.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Capt. H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. Frank E. Donne.—Edwin Boyde's name tops the bill here, but owing to indisposition he is absent, and in his stead we have Virginia and her Piccaninnies. The Lynches reappear with American picture songs; and Dolly Harmer is on a return visit. Others appearing are Johnny Alexander and company, Kitty Gresham and Ethel Morrison (vocalists), Bessie Lind (serio), and Ventom Swift (comedian); while the Edisonograph gives its weekly selection of pictures.

CHELTENHAM.—OPERA HOUSE.—General Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—Mr. William Greet's company is paying a return visit in The Earl and the Girl. Mr. William Cromwell is energetic and droll as Jim Cheese; Mr. Robert Hyett's pleasing style and personality assures his success as Dick Wargrave; Miss Gertrude Simpson is a dainty and taking Elphin Haye, singing prettily the popular "In Zanzibar"; Miss Eva Bevington does excellently as Daisy Fallowfield; Mr. Stanley Harrison as Crewe Boodle is spirited, and makes a hit in "Here come the Grenadiers"; Miss Nellie Grant is a formidable Strong Lady; Miss Florence Wix acts with much humour as Liza Shoddam; Miss Helen Langton is good as Virginia Bliss; Mr. Frank Cane sings a capital patter song as Downham; Mr. A. E. Coleby as Bunker Bliss, Mr. Arthur Cassidy as Mr. Talk, and Mr. Fred Pattrick as Hazel do well.

CHESTERFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. Wordsworth.—Mr. Charles Macdona is this week presenting the charming musical play The Toreador. Mr. Harold Batt, in the rôle of Petitfer, gains enthusiastic applause for his singing and dancing. Mr. Ralph Lynn is well suited to the part of Sir Archibald Slackell; Mr. Walter Champney scores as Sammy Gigg; Miss Leah Howard is a pleasing Susan; Miss Eliza Earle well interprets Dora Selby; Miss Beatrice Grosvenor is good as Mrs. Malton Hoppings; Miss Nina Carlton is a popular Donna Teresa; Miss Marie Berresford suits the part of Nancy Staunton; and Miss Nora O'Neill's dancing is well received.

CORPORATION THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. J. Cranston.—The Biograph forms the chief attraction here, and there is also a good company of artists, including Miss Minnie Newman, soprano, Carl Osmond, lightning cartoonist, Pulo, a clever juggler, and Herr Bertram Brennan, pianist.

CHORLEY.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hemingway.—Miss Grace Warner is paying us her fourth visit this week, opening on Monday with East Lynne. As Lady Isabel Miss Warner gave an exceptionally powerful impersonation, Mr. J. Leighton Leigh being particularly successful as Archibald Carlyle; Mr. George Gordon submitted a clever rendering of Sir Francis Levison; Richard Hare was ably undertaken by Mr. Arthur Page; Mr. R. Brown humorously played Mr. Dill, as did also Mr. L. Brien Detective Perryfoot; Barbara Hare was charmingly presented by Miss Hilda Herne, Little Violet Palfrey effectively rendering Little Willie, and Miss Cornelia Carlyle was well depicted by Miss Kathleen Cranston. A Scarlet Clue is billed for the last three nights of the week.

CLYDEBANK.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert J. Montague. The convict drama Sentenced for Life is being presented here this week by Mr. Bulmer's company. Mr. Edward E. Louis gives a fine embodiment of the part of Lieut. Roy Stillwell; Mr. Morris Maud acts well as Rev. Martin Orris; Mr. Ernest Vaughan makes an unscrupulous Captain Paul Derrick; Sir Wallace Stillwell has a good exponent in Mr. R. S. Nevill; Miss Madge Douglas acts and sings well as Adele Gray; and the same may be said of Miss May Neilson as Kate Rennell. Mr. James F. Firth is a clever comedian and makes a lot out of the part of Percy McGentle, and is ably assisted in his funnisities by Mr. Arthur Keand as Bill Sharkey, and Mr. Reg. Oldroyd as Toby. Mr. Fred Dalby is worthy of mention as Warder Blake; and the small part of Lady Hillwell is safe in the hands of Miss Mary Dalby.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton.—Another of Mr. J. Bannister Howard's companies is here this week, Florodora opening a six nights' engagement on Monday. Mr. Gus Danby played the part of Tweedlepunch with a rare amount of humour, whilst the American millionaire was well presented by Mr. Colin Johnson; Mr. Howard Cropton sang nicely the songs allotted to Lord Abercoed, and Mr. H. Carnelly-Joye was well placed as Arthur Donegal; a really capital make-up was the Leandro of Mr. C. A. Road-Night; Miss Rosa Sullivan played dashingly as Lady Holyrood, her very engaging personality and catchy songs adding greatly to the success of the piece; Miss Daisy Lake was conspicuous as Dolores, especially with regard to her singing; Miss Dorothy Dempster made a charming Angela Gilfain, and the dancing of the Florodorean girls was very pretty and much applauded.

HIPPODROME.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Ben de Frece.—Stratton Mills and Bobbie Nairn top the bill in a farce entitled A Lovely Liar, and met with success. Rice, Rose, and Rosert, in a comedy-act described as Always Moving, provide a good knockabout turn. Kendrick and Laura, vocal artistes of considerable ability, are particularly well received, whilst Amurat provides an interesting exhibition of physical strength and poses; J. C. Heffron scores as a comedian, and Elsie Vincent dances in a really clever manner. The pictures are a feature of the programme and earn unstinted applause.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Messrs. E. L. Mitchelson and Harris Finberg's company with The Traitor is here this week. Mr. C. E. Clive gives a masterly performance of the part of Prince Rudolph; and as Chief of the Police Mr. Stephen E. Stanton is excellent. Capt. Ross, R.N., is in the able hands of Mr. T. W. Hurst, and is well supported by Mr. F. Sutherland. Miss Gwynne Warren is most effective as Countess Zicka; whilst as Elsie Dupres Miss Katherine K. Vere is admirable. Miss Maud Stewart is attractive as Cou-Cou, and is deserving of the applause accorded her. Miss Isabel Hunt's delineation of the part of Lieutenant Nicholas is deserving of special mention, as is also Miss Ruth Shepherd's Zulu. The other characters are well filled by the other members of the company.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. John Horgan.—Mr. George Dance's company has paid a return visit here this week in A Country Girl. Mr. Charles Wallen as Barry is the life and soul of the piece; Mr. Percy Carr as Geoffrey Challoner sings very effectively; Mr. John Hamund, who appears as the Rajah of Bhong, is excellent; Miss Addie Lennard sings and acts with vivacity in the part of Mme. Sophie; as Marjory Joy Miss Nancy Rossiter is natural and engaging; while Miss Winnie O'Connor as Princess Mehelanah uses a cultivated voice with success.

Levarni is a resourceful tight-wire expert; the Lorrisons are amusing eccentrics; Bruesto is a capital juggler; and Stan Aubrey, comedian; and the Palace Bioscope, with an exciting film, complete an excellent programme.

DEVONPORT.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King.—Mr. Harry Foxwell's company in the drama An Abandoned Woman, by Myles Wallerton and Frances Gilleton, is the attraction this week. Miss Georgette Thierry gives a fine portrayal of an unscrupulous adventuress; Mrs. Harry Foxwell as Eleanor Dean is sympathetic; and Mr. Wolston Foster as Capt. Seaton makes a manly hero; and humour is infused into the part of Paddy Boyle by Mr. Harry Foxwell.

DEWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Asquith.—Florodora goes on blithely and merrily, and its popularity remains undimmed and undiminished. Mr. Alf R. Passmore proved himself an uncommonly droll interpreter of Tweedlepunch; in the rôle of the pert, pretty, and piquant Lady Holyrood, Miss Leicester has undoubtedly found her métier—she plays the part with verve and archness; Miss Lily Gullick prettily characterises Angela Gilfain, her acting, singing, and dancing finding popular acceptance. The favourite solo, "Under the Shade of the Sheltering Palm," was sung with excellent taste and discretion by Mr. Allen Morris as Frank Abercoed; Mr. Stanley White, the stage-director, played Cyrus Gilfain with all the sangfroid and nonchalance desirable; and a tall, handsome, and talented exponent of Dolores was seen in Miss Josephine Sullivan. Very capable acting and vocal work were shown by Mr. Herbert St. John as Captain Arthur Donegal; and the Leandro of C. A. James received careful treatment. Mr. Bannister Howard is adding materially to his reputation by sending out companies of such uniform excellence as this one exhibits in Florodora.

DONCASTER.—GRAND THEATRE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and J. E. Cardwell's Juvenile Musical Comedy Company, in the fairy spectacle, Beauty and the Beast, drew a crowded house on Monday. Silver Star, presented by Miss May Gibson, comes very close to perfection, and Miss Beattie Townshend, as Evilheart, is graceful and pleasing. Miss Kitty Trewhitt has all the qualifications necessary for making a success of Prince Charming, and in Miss Daisy Fielder the representation of Will Scarlett is strikingly interesting; while Maid Marion had a good exponent in Miss Isa Gibson. Wee Georgie Wood, as Pip, was well applauded; Will Orston did well as the Beast; and Miss Dolly Dodds was fascinating as the Beauty.

DUBLIN.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Hyland.—A large and appreciative audience was present here on Monday to witness the production by Mr. George Dance's company of The Duchess of Dantzic. Owing to the fact that the leading lady was laid up with a bad cold, the title-rôle was cleverly portrayed by Miss Doris Greville, who acted and sang her music with great care; Mr. Albert Chapman's fine voice was heard to advantage as Lefebvre; Mr. Frederick Moyes was an effective Napoleon; Miss Lilian Best a charming Renée, singing with taste and expressiveness; Mr. H. C. Barry was a diverting Papillon; Miss Nancy Hearne was well suited as Josephine; Mr. T. C. Maxwell was distinctly good as Vicomte De Bethune, and Miss Lily Edmunds bright and vivacious as Lisette.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Parrington.—Mr. Arth man is a smart comedian; Ian Colquhoun is a refined and cultured vocalist; Dion Wade scores as a quaint comedian; and the Empire pictures complete the bill.

Tivoli.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—One of the chief features of the bill is Wilbur Hill and Willette Whitaker in a vocal and instrumental entertainment; the Moet Chandon Trio have a daring gymnastic act; Fred Arthur, comedian, is popular; Neba Gray and company, in The Lancashire Lass, create laughter; Yolande Noble, comedienne, has many admirers; the Kimberley Brothers, comedians and dancers, score a success; as does also Ada Gatley in a swinging wire act; Mark Merry, a humorous comedian, is nightly recalled; Hettie Hall, in a pleasing musical act, makes a favourable impression; and the Bioscope is as interesting as ever.

Pavilion, Kingstown.—Manager, Mr. C. Irvine Bacon.—Mr. Russell Rosse's repertoire company commenced a second week's engagement here on Monday in Confusion. Mr. David James played with humour the part of the butler, being ably seconded by Mr Norman Clarke as Blizzard; Miss J. Greer in the rôle of Rose was excellent; Mr. James Geldred as Martin Mumbleford attained success; Miss Ida Phillips as Violet met with appreciation; as Aunt Lucretia Miss Rachel de Traves did well, and Miss Edith Hesketh was particularly good as Maria. Our Boys is also billed.

Dudley.—Opera House.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.— Messrs. Garside and Knowles' company is here this week, in The London Fireman. Mr. Knowles acts with much earnestness as Hal Curtis; and Mr. Oliver Birrell gives a finished rendering as Viscount Fleming; Mr. Garside is responsible for a forcible representation of Ratty, a returned convict. The comic element is well to the fore with Nixey Stinger and Polly Bramble, parts well filled by Mr. Henry C. Momber and Miss Nellie Garside respectively; Miss Florence M. Daly plays the difficult rôle of Grace Curtis in a pathetic manner; and Miss Nellie Shirley is particularly pleasing as Ida Curtis, the fireman's wife.

Empire.—Managing Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson.—A good programme is headed this week by Allis and Cassati, in a comedy and dancing act; J. H. Greenan, comedian, is well received; the Sisters Geronde are clever vocalists and dancers; Max Merlin scores as the human crocodile; Edie Anderson is a pleasing comedienne and dancer; and J. P. Ling is a capital comedian.

Eastbourne.—Devonshire Park Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. Standen-Triggs.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company is appearing here in Leah Kleschna. Miss Bessie Rignold is an admirably restrained and very successful Leah Kleschna; Miss Ethel Russel and Miss Helene Belgrave are excellent representatives of Madame and Claire Berton; and Miss Violet Thorold is an appropriate Sophie. Mr. Paul Belmore is an earnest and able Kleschna; Mr. William F. Grant gives admirable help as Paul; Mr. Campbell Goldsmidt is a creditable Schram; Mr. Ronald Daniel does well as Berton and Favre; and smaller parts are satisfactorily undertaken.

The Pier Pavilion.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Walter Maxwell's company is appearing here in The Lion and the Mouse. A strong dominating performance is given by Mr. Leslie Carter as John Ryder; Mr. Stephen Wentworth is a refined and pleasing Jefferson Ryder; Mr. J. W. Mackie gives a finished performance as Bagley; Mr. John Wheatman is an excellent Roberts, M.P.; and able help is given by Mr. Richard Norton as Stott and Mr. George Lyttleton as James Rossmore. Miss Christine Silver, one of the most delightful and charming of actresses, is a most appealing Shirley Rossmore; Miss Elspeth Dudgeon is a commendable and natural Mrs. Ryder; Miss Dorrie Roberts is an animated Kate Roberts; Miss Maude Townsend a very good Mrs. Rossmore; and further service is well rendered by Miss Marjorie Murray as Jane and Miss Ethel Gordon as Mary.

The Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Smith.—Miss Phoebe Mercer and Mr. Guy Lane cleverly amuse the audience with their smart sketch, Mistakes Will Happen; Vasey and Ramsey excel in various kinds of dancing; Princess Pauline is quickly a favourite with well-received work; Grant and Allen are original and clever comedians; Mr. Fred Hallam scores in his songs; Serpentello is an expert bender; Miss Ethel Dove deserves special praise for work of more than ordinary merit; and new animated pictures are shown.

Eccles.—Lyceum Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Wardle and Potasch; Manager, Mr. P. Potasch.—Mr. Harry E. Leigh's company is here in the farcical comedy, The 'Varsity Belle. Mr. James Danvers plays the part of Professor Septimus Stoney with dignified bearing and great tact; Miss Josephine Ellis is chic and piquant as the 'Varsity Belle; Theocritus Ward Sparkleton is well impersonated by Mr. Edward Chesters; Mr. Frank Lilliput as Runyard is quite a success; Miss Emma Rainbow as the mother-in-law of the Professor's wife admirably fills the position.

Edinburgh. — Theatre Royal. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead. — The performances of the musical farce, The Dairymaids, are drawing crowded houses here this week. The practised hand of Mr. Robert Courtneidge, who produces the piece, is seen in every detail. Miss Violet Lloyd acts with real charm, and delightful vivacity, and her singing is admirable; Mr. E. Statham Staples contributes a capital bit of low comedy work as Sam Brudenell; and Mr. Harry Dent acts with untiring energy as Joe Mivens, A.B. That sound actor, Mr. Clarence Blakiston almost succeeds in making bricks without straw in the part of Dr. O'Bryne; and Mr. Geo. Desmond is a bright Lieut. Frank Brudenell; Miss Edith Blanche is a fascinating Lady Brudenell; Miss Rhoda Gordon a dainty, graceful Winifred; and Miss Madge Avery an acidulated, humorous Miss Pyechase; Miss Rose Musgrove makes a distinct hit by her lively impersonation of Eliza, the maid-of-all-work; and Miss Beryl Vaudrey is fresh and girlish in the character of Helene, and sings with taste. The chorus sing with precision and effect; and Mr. Albert Bartlett is an able conductor.

Royal Lyceum Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company is fulfilling its usual autumn engagement, opening on Monday evening with Gounod's Faust. Madame Fanny Moody, in her favourite part of Marguerite, gave it is needless to say, both vocally and histrionically, an exquisite representation; and she had excellent support from Mr. Wilson Pembroke as Faust and from Mr. Manners as Mephistopheles, both singers being in fine voice. Mr. William Dever made a most acceptable Valentine and Miss Mildred Bryan a tender Siebel, while Mr. King and Miss Harrow were successful in the rôles of Wagner and Martha. On Tuesday Cavalleria Rusticana was given with Mr. John Child, a powerful Turridu; Madame De Vere, an effective Santuzza; and Mr. Lewys James as Alfio; Miss Arnold as Lucia; and Miss Garland as Lola; followed by Pagliacci, in which Mr. Joseph O'Mara was excellent as Canio; and Miss Kate Anderson appeared to advantage as Nedda; while Mr. William Dever created a good impression as Tonio; and Mr. V. Brodo and Mr. Lewys James gave adequate aid as Beppe and Silvio. Wednesday evening was allotted to Tannhäuser, Thursday to Romeo and Juliet, and Friday to The Merry Wives of Windsor. The admirable work done by orchestra and chorus have been duly recognised.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—The company here this week includes Miss Ella Retford, who proves herself a comedienne of much more than average ability. Those popular favourites, Bella and Bijou, present a selection of burlesque sketches in diverting fashion; and "Buddha's Blackboard" is one of those weird illusions the mystery of which remains apparently inexplicable. An exceedingly pretty exhibition is provided by Miss Rose Naynon with a troupe of trained tropical birds; Mr. J. H. Milburn is a tower of strength as a comedian; Mr. Ben Albert also supplies a capital comic turn, showing distinct originality; and as a farmyard mimic Mr. Leo Tell causes much amusement. Other enjoyable items on the programme are the Two Tees, in their grotesque musical act; Hillman and Russell's comedy duologue, The Somnambulist; and a mirthful performance by the Wedburns. The American Bioscope completes a good bill with some humorous pictures.

Alhambra Theatre of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. J. Ireland.—This house has been well patronised since the opening last week. An excellent programme includes Mr. Billy Richardson, the well-known "stump orator"; the Whirligigs, capital vocalists, and expert dancers; Leary and Miles, in a sketch, in which dancing is a prominent feature; Rebla, with juggling feats; the Ellimans, in a clever musical act; and the Rays, the Falcons, and Miss Lena Wylie.

Exeter.—Theatre Royal. — Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. E. J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Mr. Mouillot's company is here this week with San Toy. The title-rôle is well filled by Miss Bessie Allayne; she has a good voice and renders her numbers in excellent style. Mr. Arthur Cartwright as Bobby Preston does exceedingly well; Mr. Bert Edwards is a highly amusing Li, and Miss Lottie Sargent takes the part of Dudley with verve and vivacity: Miss Irene Lavington is good as Poony; Mr. Hugh Webb's Yen How is all that could be desired; whilst Mr. William Webb sustains the part of the Emperor in a capable manner.

Victoria Hall.—Secretary, Mr. Matt. Jno. Dunsford.—Gilbert's Circus opened their second week here on Monday with almost a complete change of programme. One of the chief attractions was the marvellous acrobatic exhibition of the Novellos troupe; Massona, the burlesque juggler, was smart; the Kyasyas are sensational in their weight-lifting; and the Cumberlands showed much skill with their cycles; considerable amusement was caused by the musical clown, Hulines; Bishop, clown, and Little Dando.

Falkirk.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Manager, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—Musical comedy fills the bill this week. On Monday A Country Girl reappeared with all her charm and wonted freshness. As Nan Miss Madeline Du Val did very nicely all that was required of her, and as Marjorie Joy Miss Violet Leslie was pretty, and sang with effect. The part of Sophie was made a delightful success by the sprightly acting of Miss Madge Campbell; Miss Adelaide Clifton's Princess of Bhong was favourably received; as Geoffrey Chaloner Mr. Martin D. Pitts was well received, his singing being a distinct recommendation. The same may be said of Mr. Bernard Vaughan (the Rajah of Bhong). Mr. Frank Weir scores as a comedian in the irrepressible character of Barry. The other parts were well filled, including those of Lord Anchester (Mr. Clifton Yates) and Sir Joseph Verity (Mr. W. O. Billington). On Thursday evening A Trip to the Highlands was produced.

Farnworth.—Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. Morton Powell.—Mr. Frank Lindo and company are this week presenting the drama, Home, Sweet Home. Mr. Lindo, in the principal part of Stephen Armitage, gives a capital representation and fully merits the applause he receives. He is ably supported by Miss Marion Wakeford as Joan, who is to be complimented on her really fine acting and spirited rendering of the character; Mr. D. Lawrence Doyle, as David Armitage, is all that could be desired; the Duke of Ancaster is well played by Mr. Gerald Gambier.

Folkestone.—Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—A most enjoyable attraction is presented here this week in a visit of the Moody-Manners Opera company. On Monday Carmen was played. The title-rôle was taken by Mlle. Zélie de Lussan, whose fine acting and powerful voice were much appreciated; Mr. Charles Carter was much applauded for his capable delineation of his part. Tannhäuser, Faust, The Marriage of Figaro, Cavalleria Rusticana, Il Trovatore, Maritana, and Pagliacci are also billed.

Gateshead.—King's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. M. S. Hammond; General Manager, Mr. Joe May.—"Starring" in a mammoth programme submitted here this week are Raleigh Abrahams and company in an absurdity entitled Fun in a Pawnshop. By far the most popular item in the entertainment is the Shakespearean episode, Prince Arthur, played by Mr. Albert Wyndham's excellent company; Arthur Randal's Original Middies and Maids' Costume Party present a pleasing scena named Fun in a Country Inn; Story and Trigg get a cordial reception; the H. Leslie Bell and Lily Pearl company are responsible for an excellent comedy sketch entitled A Bit of String; very popular is Tony Iveson in clever imitations; Lack and Ford cause roars of laughter; the comicalities of George and Edwards are much enjoyed; Master Joe Conway bids fair to make a name for himself as a comedian; Cordite, a charming young lady, who claims to be the world's champion rope-spinner, is paying a return visit; Arthur Stacey, comedian, completes the programme.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—Two old favourites in Atlas and Vulcana form the principal attraction at this house. They are assisted in their excellent and refined business by the charming sisters, Maud and Gwen Atlas. The classic poses of Miss Vulcana are highly appreciated. Charlie Deane gives two humorous songs with good effect; the Gilbert Girls are very popular; Furber Leach, "lightning painter," and Barney Salmon, a clever vocalist, contribute acceptable items; and Downey's pictures make up a capital show.

Metropole Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas France.—At Cripple Creek, excellently interpreted by Mark Blow and Ida Molesworth's company, is doing good business here this week. Joe Mayfield is played in an admirable manner by Mr. Stanley Bedwell; Mr. Chas. H. Lester as Mason and Mr. J. G. Maine as Alvarez make a good pair of villains; very picturesque is the get-up of Mr. Archer D. Layland, who plays Wahketah; Mr. Will Hook is amusing as Reggie; Miss Agnes Verity is successful as "Dynamite" Ann; Miss Lily Beagle makes a sweet Belle Gordon; Miss Daisy Carlton as Maggie Mason keeps the house in good humour; and Little Rosie Hopkins gives a clever impersonation of Little Tatto.

Gillingham (Kent).—Hippodrome.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. F. R. Griffiths.—The main feature of the programme is again the animated pictures, which continue to draw good houses. Variety items are contributed by Miss Unity Vezzey with her clever musical poodles; and Miss Madge Terry, descriptive vocalist.

Glossop.—Theatre Royal. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—On Monday and two following days, Mr. Charles Macdona's company appeared in Three Little Maids, and had a flattering reception. Mr. J. Herbert Willis as Lord Cheyne caused roars of laughter with his droll impersonation of a dude; Mr. Lawrence Tessier as Brian Molyneux was received with favour; and Mr. Herbert Ranson as M. de l'Orme was excellent. Mr. Wallace Bosco as the Rev. Mr. Branscombe made an efficient clergyman; Miss Mabel Kerbridge (Ada Branscombe), Miss Bessie Walters (Hilda Branscombe), and Miss Edith Colley (Edna Branscombe) were a delightful trio, their singing and dancing being highly appreciated; Miss Kate Graham Beck as Lady St. Mallory appeared to advantage; Miss Mollie Tremaine as Lady Rosemary Beaulieu, Miss D. Sarjent as Venetia Crafton, and Miss Daisy Goldsack as Lady Marjory Crichton were well placed; Miss May Wright (Gretchen) and Mr. Joseph Edwards (Cupid) were repeatedly recalled for their excellent dancing, and throughout the course of the play created roars of laughter. The augmented orchestra was under the able direction of Mr. C. V. Nightingale. Judy was the attraction for the latter part of the week.

Gloucester.—Palace.—Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. Rea.—The programme this week is contributed to by the Musical Keiths, who are agile and clever, and Zenora presents a capital hand-balancing performance; then come Dale and Vale in a smart singing and dancing speciality, followed by Loudoun Cameron, a conjuror, who completely baffles his audience; the Three Seymons give a marvellous equilibristic and juggling performance, the little girl of the troupe being especially clever; George Martinengo has a good baritone voice, but relies chiefly on his 'cello, and duly scores; Mme. Constance Bellamy is no stranger to Gloucester, but this is her initial appearance in a variety house here; the Lannons, champion pedestal dancers, are excellent; Newhouse and Ward present a daring cycling act, and some excellent fooling by one of the twain is responsible for much laughter; Robert Gilbert's dogs are nearly the acme of animal training, and receive hearty recognition. The Bioscope is showing this week a capital film of the Great Paris Balloon Race, and this completes the programme.

Goole.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John E. Tomlinson.—Mr. Howell Webb and Miss Emily Huby's company is here this week. On Monday The Price of Pleasure was presented to a good audience. Mr. Howell Webb acts with well directed power the part of Sir James Featherstone; Sidney Roberts is cleverly portrayed by Mr. John E. Tomlinson; Mr. Graham Arthurs sustained the rôle of Gilbert D. Armand in capital style; Mr. J. Bardsley as Tatters and Miss E. Huby as Biddy keep the house in roars of laughter; Mr. Charles E. Howell is well placed as Charles Mordaunt; Miss Kate Tever is excellent as Polly Wilson, and Miss Ivy Blanche acts with charm as Claire; Miss Madge Moore gains the sympathy of the audience as the sorely-tried heroine; and great praise is due to Miss Lilian B. Earle for her dramatic impersonation of the adventuress, Alice Rivers; a feature of the performance is the capital songs introduced with great success by Miss Ivy Blanche and Miss Kate Tever. The Convent Bell is announced for the latter part of the week.

Gravesend.—Grand Theatre of Varieties, Ld.—General-Manager, Mr. David Hart.—At the top of the bill this week appears Henri Cazman in his popular entertainment "Le Café-Chantant"; Maud Marlow, a charming burlesque artist and dancer; Snowball and Miss Dohlia, American comedy artists; Fred Holland, the cricketer, whose baritone voice has been much appreciated; Mlle. Sylvesto, in her unique speciality act; Harry Cotton, a good eccentric comedian; and Florence Yaymen, an exceptionally clever coon song burlesquer, also contribute to the programme.

Great Yarmouth.—Royal Aquarium.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Hardie and Von. Leer's company occupies the boards this week with Two Little Vagabonds. The boys, Dick and Wally, are capitally represented by Miss May Hart and Miss Margaret Nybloc, the contrast between the sturdiness and courage of the one and the weakness of the other being well accentuated. Bill Muggins and his wife Biddy are cleverly depicted by Mr. John F. Tragna and Miss Marie Pritchard. Other artists appearing are Mr. William Fazan as George Thornton, Mr. Henry Watson as Capt. Darville, Mr. Edmund Cuthbert as John Scarth, Mr. Ernest K. Nelson as Dido Bunce, Mr. Fred Archer as the Cough Drop, Miss Laura Hansen as Marion Thornton, and Miss Mildred Hodson as Barbara Scarth.

Greenock. — Alexandra Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—The first visit here of Mr. A. W. Pinero's play His House in Order has proved a big success. Mr. George Alexander's company is responsible for the production. Miss Jean Sterling Mackinlay's finished acting in the rôle of Nina was all that could be desired. Mr. Stephen T. Ewart as Hilary Jesson played with great dramatic powers; and Mr. J. Edward Pearce acquitted himself with distinction in the part of Filmer Jesson, M.P. Mr. Lloyd Lowndes was an able representative of Major Maurewarde; and the part of Mlle. Thome was well portrayed by Mlle. Eve Grand. The Ridgeleys are ably represented by Mr. George Fitzgerald as Sir Daniel; Mr. Ernest R. Holloway, Pryce; Miss Augusta Haviland, Lady Ridgeley; and Miss Elaine Sleddall, as Geraldine.

Empire Theatre of Varieties. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington. The bill here includes Mr. Charles Baldwin's up-to-date absurdity, entitled The Bank Clerks, which is responsible for much hilarity. A capital mystical interlude entitled Semi-detached has been staged by the Meymetts. Andy Fagan is a good comedian and dancer, and Capt. Devereux and his performing dogs are a great treat. The Brothers Dean are expert dancers, and are much applauded; while the Three clarions (comedy artists and dancers) are exceedingly clever.

Pavilion Theatre. — General-Manager, Mr. Saml. Lloyd.—Lillie Soutter, character comedienne, heads the bill here. She sings and dances well. Mr. G. Webber is a fine baritone vocalist. The Sisters Morgan (duettists and dancers) are much appreciated. Terry and Bently in a comedy sketch The Hunt are amusing; and Cora Caselli is a clever singer and dancer; the performance of the Alskarno Trio (acrobats and tumblers) is exceptionally good. The Paviscope completes the bill.

Grimsby.—Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Chairman of Directors, Mr. H. J. Curry; Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry.—A cordial reception has been extended to The Prince of Pilsen upon the first visit of this bright musical comedy. The life of the show is Mr. Harry Kilburn, whose quaint mannerisms are eminently suited to the eccentric character of the brewer, Hans Wagner. Miss Sophie Harriss is a prominent figure, and as Mrs. Crocker finds opportunity to display some magnificent costumes. Mr. Frank H. Crimp achieves vocal honours as Carl Otto, the real Prince, whilst Mr. Bernard Russell is quietly amusing as the amorous Earl of Shrimpton. The characters of the French waiter and French lady's maid are played with spirit by Mr. Ernest Gifford and Miss Connie Leon. Others contributing to a successful representation are Miss Dorothy Grasdorff, Miss Florence Beech, Miss Mollie Wynne, and Mr. Roy Sydney. The comedy is handsomely staged and dressed by Baron H. Harriss.

The Tivoli.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—Something quite novel in the way of canine acrobatic performances is accomplished by J. Reichen's troupe, the feats of equilibrium being especially remarkable. Will Vay's Juveniles give an entertaining sketch of slum life, which affords contrasts of humour and pathos. Fred Cary, a comedian with a refreshingly original style, scores heavily; the Three Taracs also cause much merriment, and gave a display on the horizontal bars; and skilful exhibitions are given by the Ladderites and Primavesi; Halter and Ray, a soubrette, combine in a pleasing speciality; and others appearing are Siggins and Murlone, vocal entertainers, and Evelyn Taylor, comedienne.

The Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. H. Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. W. Moyes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. V. Allton.—The Brothers Montague, in the speciality The Sculptor's Dream, present beautiful statuesque tableaux, followed by feats of strength and a wrestling bout. Edwin Barwick has enhanced his reputation as a character comedian, and his song, "The sorrows of Satan," is a marked success. Helm and Cozens occasion much laughter in their sketch, The Doctor and the Patient; Speedwell displays ability as a cartoonist; the Three Pirmans give a clever gymnastic turn; the San Remo Girls prove charming dancers; Eno is a successful mimic of popular artists; and May Marton proves herself to be a pleasing comedienne.

Halifax.—Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—Lady Madcap is being presented here by Mr George Dance's company. The title-rôle gives Miss Isabelle Dillon a fine opportunity; a dashing Oroya Brown is found in Mr. Harold Parkes; two adventuresome young troopers are Mr. Bay Russell (Bill Stafford) and Mr. James Graydon (Josh Perkins); a pleasing Susan is Miss Edith Beech; Mr. Sheriff Clunes is responsible for an energetic embodiment of Captain Harrington; some effective work is presented by Mr. J. Knox Orde, who as the Frenchman, Count St. de Hubert, makes a creditable impression; Mr. Vincent Erne is distinctly humorous as Corporal Ham; and Miss May Davis is delightful as Gwennie Holden.

Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Oswald Williams, the Wizard, assisted by Miss Winifred Le Barte and company, heads the bill here with an astounding illusion, Where are They? A pleasing comedian with an easy style is Frank Leslie; and Eva Kelland is favourably received; in a musical comedy sketch, The Automatic Girl, Eddie Stidder and Gwennie Dunbar are delightfully clever; "The Cotton Blossom" quartette of coloured comedians and dancers give a good account of themselves; the Clement Trio, in a stage-flying trapeze act; Espinosa and Neilson, in dancing specialities; and Mlle. Lucretia, expert top-boot dancer, create a good impression, as does Mr. E.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Edward Harrison.—Rich and Rich, patterers, had quite a flattering reception here on Monday night; Elsie Robey appeared in her humorous satire, "The Slavey's At Home," which proved a distinct success; Mr. V. L. Granville, the Protean character masquerader, was also in good form; Walter Emerson introduced some new business; Miss Maud Prenton, burlesque artist, was as sprightly as ever; an excellent animal performance was presented by Cabaret's dogs in the "Dog's Derby." The Sivronis, the Wreford Brothers, and Frankie (juggler) are all well received.

Hanley.—Royal, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—Mr. George Alexander's company opened here on Monday in Mr. Pinero's beautiful comedy His House in Order. The cast is a perfect one, and all the members work admirably together. As Nina, Miss Auriol Lee scores a distinct success, her emotional scenes being most artistic. Mr. Frank Fenton is the Hilary Jesson, and his admirable reading was enthusiastically applauded. Mr. Cyril Harcourt gives an excellent portrayal of a country gentleman as Filmer Jesson; Mr. Chas. Tyrrel as the Major displays true histrionic ability; Miss Carmen Woods makes a natural Derek Jesson, her impersonation being much admired; Mlle. Juliette Milo is an amusing Mlle. Thome; Sir Daniel Ridgeley finds a worthy exponent in Mr. Adam Alexander; Mrs. Kemmis is well placed as Lady Ridgeley; Miss Audrey Campbell as Geraldine Ridgeley is successful; Price Ridgeley is all that could be desired in the hands of Mr. Geo. Silver; Mr. James Annard as the Major is capital. The mounting is excellent, and Mr. Elphinstone well deserves crowded houses for such an excellent booking.

Grand.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Alfred Edwardes.—Casey's Circus heads the bill, and proves exceedingly amusing. The Lukushima Troupe return in their clever performance, which is much appreciated. Bertha Winder is a remarkable dancer; Musical Silvio provides a capital turn, which is much appreciated; Florence Schubert is a comedienne of much merit; the Saletos in their head and hand balancing turn are excellent; Lady Julia is an intelligent monkey, and shows the perfection to which animals can be trained; the Grand Pictures are, as usual, capital.

Harrogate.—Grand Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Fielding-Smith.—The first three nights of this week Mr. Chas. Frohman's company was in Raffles here. A large audience welcomed Mr. Leonard Boyne in the title-rôle, and he gave a finished performance of the amateur cracksman. He had excellent support from Mr. Lewis Edgard as Harry Manders; Mr. Clifford Brooke was convincing as the detective Curtis Bedford; Miss Hilda Stewart made a particularly handsome Mrs. Vidal, and also played very well; Lady Melrose had an able exponent in the person of Miss Amy Thomas; and Miss Hazel Thompson was suitably placed as Gwendoline Conran. Mr. Arthur Willoughby as the Earl of Amersteth gave a good performance, and of Mr. Edmund Brecon as Viscount Crawley the same may be said. Miss Beatrice Fitzgerald as the French maid Marie submitted a clever little study. For the remainder of the week Mr. Arthur Hardy's company in Beauty and the Barge was in the bill.

Hartlepool.—Empress Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Messrs. Everton and Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns.—Lottie de Abbey, a character impersonator, has a charming style, and renders her songs in excellent voice. The Dunvilles, in a comedy musical act, go as well as of yore. Harmony of an exceptionally high-class character is rendered by Norman and Saxon. Grace and originality mark the sensational gymnastic act of Lozelle. The 3 Cape Girls, vocalists and dancers, excel in a big-boot dance. Charles R. Whittle has been here many times, but never has his reception been more hearty than now. The Silbon Family are also old friends, and the performance given by them in their miniature circus with their clever cats, dogs, and ponies, is a veritable treat; and the Bioscope with a change of pictures is interesting.

Hastings. — Gaiety Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—The Geisha has been presented here in a very complete manner by Mr. Frederick Mouillot's principal company. Miss Louie Collier sings finely and acts cleverly as O Mimosa San; Miss Violet Kenyon delights the audience as O Juliette Diamante; there is a charming gracefulness in Miss Florrie Saunders's presentment of Molly Seymour; and a good impersonation of Lady Constance Wynne comes from Miss Aubrey Ashton. Mr. Cyril Thompson, who appears as Reginald Fairfax, sings his songs in excellent style; Mr. S. Leckridge scores as Dick Cunningham; Mr. J. Mansell Stringer as Captain Catana sings well; Mr. A. J. Nicholls is capital as Takemine; an amusing performance of Wun Hi is given by Mr. Edward Carlton, who gains much applause; and Mr. Lionel Braham submits a clever representation of the Marquis Imari. Mr. Francis Knowles directs the orchestra. On Friday A Greek Slave was played.

Hippodrome Theatre of Varieties.—Resident and General-Manager, Mr. Albert Mathanis.—An excellent programme opens with the attractive juvenile comedienne and dancer, Dot Irving; the drawing-room entertainers, the Four Cecilians, are accorded a hearty reception; Ted Thomas is genuinely comic and peculiar; the acrobatic dancers, the Sisters Remo, are singularly clever and original; Arthur Albert has a good voice and an excellent style of singing; the musical contortionist, Max Duffek, performs on various instruments in most curious and difficult positions; the return visit of Grey and Welford, eccentric comedians, proves very popular; a vivacious and winsome burlesque artist is found in Miss Amy Elvira; the Maxim Trio introduce an effective equilibristic novelty; and some amusing scenes are shown on the Hippodrome Bioscope.

Hastings Pier Pavilion.—Pier-Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Mr. Arthur B. Malden is here this week delivering his five lectures of different countries, illustrated by a series of cinematograph pictures.

St. Leonards Pavilion Theatre.—Pier-Master and Entertainment Manager, Mr. E. Thomas.—Mr. Norman V. Norman and a talented company are appearing here in a new historical comedy, entitled The Chevalier de St. George. The play is admirably acted. Mr. Norman gives a polished interpretation of the Chevalier, at once elegant and natural; Miss Beatrice Wilson is a captivating and charming Beatrix Esmond; and Miss Sybil Ruskin makes a lively and vivacious French grisette. Mr. Dennis Cleugh is capital as Colonel Harry Esmond; an agreeable portrait of Lord Castlewood is shown by Mr. Norman Leslie; Esmond's servant, Lockwood, is well taken by Mr. Brember Wills. The minor characters are successfully assumed.

Hoyland.—Metropole.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. R. Baker.—An Unwedded Wife is the attraction here this week. Mr. J. Edward Whitty is an excellent John Hawthorn; Mr. R. Payne is a manly Frank Armstrong; and as Philip Blackstone Mr. E. St. Clair Forbes is all that can be desired. Mr. Edward Finlay is an amusing Christopher Lennox, and as Inspector Grabbem Mr. Fred Allen is good. The humorous element is entrusted to the capable hands of Messrs. R. Purdon and Harry Townley as Napoleon D. Bloomer and Perkinson Pimple respectively, ably assisted by Miss Amy Coralli as Caraway Crumpet. Miss Violet Wilson scores as Elsie Langham, and Little Ella is excellent as Beggie. Special mention must be made of Miss Ethel Van Praagh, who as Marion displays great histrionic ability.

Huddersfield.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—A big house gathered on Monday evening to welcome Miss Mabel Love on her first appearance here, with the company organised by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison for the presentation of The Freedom of Suzanne. Miss Mabel Love's part of Suzanne gives her an opportunity which she uses fully, to display her marked ability as an exponent of delicate light comedy. Mr. Percy Hutchison handles the part of Charles Trevor with the firm, light touch of a master, and wins an undoubted success; Mr. Townsend Whitling shows fine discretion as Captain Harry Cecil; Mr. F. G. Thurstans is good as Harding; Mr. J. Hastings Batson gives a well-studied reading of his part, Lord Dachet; Miss Charlotte Mead as Minching is delightfully quaint; Miss Annie Stalman is dignified as Lady Trevor. Miss Violet Ley looks charming as Lady Isabel; and Miss Dorothy Lart adequate as Mrs. Tustail. The comedy is preceded by the bright one-act piece entitled Mary's Secret.

Hippodrome Ltd.—Resident Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—Turns are provided here by Paulton and Dooley, clever trick cyclists; Harry Barker, a smart light comedian; the Four Hearnes, a troupe of fine acrobats; J. A. Skerratt's vocal and electrical display; Onda and Artell in a clever display on the trapeze; the Sisters Lunelle, a couple of good singers and dancers; Rastus and Banks, coloured entertainers—the nimble and daring dancing of Rastus brings down the house; the clever Sisters Geretti, double trapeze artists, and a change of films on the Bioscope completes an excellent programme.

Hull.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—The Prince of Pilsen, which has always been favourably received, has met this week with a very warm welcome, and being the Fair week exceptional business has been done. Martin Adeson, though a new representative of the Brewer Prince, is an old favourite here, and he hits the taste of the public. As the brewer's daughter little Isa Bowman had a rôle which just fitted her; this talented artist has rarely been seen to better advantage. Mr. Alfred Selby kept the fun rolling as François. As the widow Miss Millicent Marsden repeated the success attained on the last visit.

Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Local Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—The Belle of Mayfair is the attraction here this week. The success of the evening was notably achieved by Miss Alice Russon, who is a charming cantatrice as well as an accomplished actress. Mr. Robert Whyte, jun., as the amorous French count, gives a very clever performance. The rest of the company have been chosen with care. The staging and mounting are creditable to Messrs. Gatti and Frohman, who are responsible for the tour.

Alexandra Theatre.—Mortons, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—A Midnight Chimes is one of those plays which appeal especially to holiday folk, and more so when it contains in its cast so talented a comedian as Witty Watty Walton. A fine character study is that of Ezra Gamble, portrayed by Mr. Herbert Belmore. Mr. Lewis Leslie invests the hero with all manly attributes; Mr. Percy Maitland is as the villain his antithesis. Miss Mary Campbell plays with distinction as the wife.

The Hippodrome.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—Tom Foy and company present their laughable sketch, The Yorkshire Lad in London; the Four Juggling Geraldos give a clever club juggling and hoop-rolling act, one of the members being the son of the esteemed stage-manager, Mr. Wm. Stonehouse. Mabel La Blanche sings charmingly. Other favourites include Tatten Hall, Bros. Mellott, and Dusty Rhodes.

The Empire.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—The Five M.P.s, old favourites here, make a welcome reappearance; Pearce and Ward give a speciality boxing act; the Reays are smart equilibrists. Other artists include Daisy Almer, Alex. Fox, Arthur Richards, Fred Tenby, and Renee Walon.

The Circus.—Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Emerson.—Mr. Sydney H. Carter is presenting a capital series of pictures to crowded houses.

Ilkeston.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—A variety show is provided this week, in which Ediscope and Barnum's Animated Pictures are a leading feature. Lulu, a lady instrumentalist, has a good reception; Vic Verney's whistling is much applauded; Queenie Vane pleases as a comedienne and dancer; and the same remark applies to the Oldham Mill Girl for her singing; Mlle. Corellie is an up-to-date songstress; the Two Ver-Vains, coon sing turn, and the Brothers O'Brien, acrobats, come in for rounds of applause. Boden and Bell, juvenile vocalists both sing and dance well, and the sisters Russell, burlesque artists, meet with approval. Tiger Lily, coon singer and dancer; Bob Baxter, vocalist; Alma O'Brey, comedienne; and Walter Payne's animated pictures complete the bill.

PALACE.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. and C. Fell; Manager, Mr. John Fell.—The original Arley's Gymnasts are at the top here, and have a good reception. The Bohemians, in a musical act, is an exceedingly pleasing turn, and the Brothers Buchanan have some smart patter. Millie Myers, singing Mill Girl; the Sisters Belmont, comediennes and dancers; Trich and Trixie, comedy artists; Dan Noble, comedienne; Marie York, burlesque artiste; and Sid E. Jones, coon singer and dancer, all win favour; while the Edison-Swan animated pictures prove an extra attraction.

LEAMINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. Harvey Hunter.—The White Chrysanthemum is this week being presented by Mr. Charles Macdona's company. Miss Muriel George in the part of Sybil Cunningham scores a decided success; Miss Nellie Groves as the American heiress is particularly good; as is also Miss Emily Taylor as Betty Kenyon. Mr. Langdon Bruce gives a vivid impression of the character of Lieut. Armitage, and his capital singing is greatly appreciated. Mr. H. E. Garden plays with dry humour the part of Lieut. Chippendale Belmont, whilst Mr. Richard Telford as Sin Chong is decidedly funny. Others who add considerably to the success of the piece are Mr. Charles Schmidt as the Admiral and Mr. Jamie Dallas as Private Perks. There is a competent chorus and orchestra, under the able conductorship of Mr. Harry Richardson.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's brilliant production, The Blue Moon, opened here on Monday, and was accorded a big reception. No better purveyors than Mr. Edward Lewis and Mr. Bert Gilbert could have been selected, and their humorous encounters are a source of continual merriment. The delightful singing of Miss Florence Smithson as Blue Moon is a feature which never fails to evoke loud appeals for encores. In the part of Millicent, a lady's maid, charming Miss Lulu Valli is very successful, and Miss Daisy Revett makes a dainty and lovable Evelyn Ormsby. Mr. Leslie Gaze puts plenty of life into his work as the gallant Major Callabone; that fine vocalist and accomplished actor, Mr. Herbert Clayton, finds plenty of scope for his abilities as Captain Jack Ormsby; Mr. George Mudie, jun., ably fills the part of Bobby Scott, and Mr. Thomas Holding enacts the rôle of the Prince with distinction. The leading native girl has a satisfactory exponent in Miss Olive Crellin, and as Lady Brabasham Miss Mabel Lorrell ably realises her part.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—Mr. Ernest R. Abbott's company is back again at the Royal, achieving success with the drama, A Wife's Triumph, by Mr. Sutton Vane. The hero is Frank Wilton, a bank cashier, and this part is portrayed by Mr. Ernest Abbott with his accustomed power. Miss Ada Abbott is responsible for a convincing impersonation of Bessie Dewhirst, and Alice Wilton is a pleasing and sympathetic effort by Miss Doris Drew.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; General-Manager, Mr. C. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company is here with the successful musical play, The Gay Parisienne. Miss Evelyn Hughes is particularly pleasing and vivacious in the name-part. Mr. Will Harman makes an effective Ebenezer Honeycombe; Mr. Horace Lingard, who resumes the rôle of Major Forsdyke, is vastly amusing; the clever portrayal of M. Pompier by Mr. Clifford Leyler is a successful effort, and Miss Madge Soutter gets plenty of fun out of her rôle of servant girl. Mr. Edgar Ashwin and Miss Ethel Ivimey find plenty of scope for their vocal abilities in leading parts, and some effective part-singing by the Imperial Glee Singers is a popular feature.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alex Galley.—There is no more popular comedian visiting here than Wilkie Bard, whose quaint methods have attracted and amused full houses; Sanford and Lyons make a success with funny talk and smart dancing; The Mezzettis on the triple bars are both expert and humorous; The Anartos are also having a successful time with good music and clever comedy; Frank Lynne is a really smart comedian; Nellie Stratton delights all with effective song and dance; the Eight of Hearts posssess vocal and acrobatic abilities; the popular and expert juggler, Atroy, meets with his usual success, and Violi plays quite a number of musical instruments.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Claude Shayler and Mr. Chas. Weldon.—The Kentucky Four are a clever quartette with song, dance, and comedy business; Barmaids, again presented by Hodgson and Lowther's company, meets with generous appreciation, as also does the clever turn submitted by Harry Champion; Regan and Ryan are past masters of comedy entertainment; Bicknelle is here with novel clay-modelling; an original ventriloquial wire act by Rex Fox arouses much interest; another novelty is the skating speciality by Willie Gardiner; Alix Lukos finds favour in descriptive songs; Leah Arden sings ballads in pleasing style, and Nancy St. John, comedienne, and the Valdos, with comedy specialty, also contribute good things.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred W Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—Lew Lake and company make a welcome reappearance this week in The Bloomsbury Burglars; Bert Williams is doing a novel ventriloquial turn; Bliss and Bliss contribute good things in the way of eccentric comedy, and the Three Sisters Lee (vocalists), Wyze and Adna (comedy specialists), Frank Boyce (character comedian), and Sam Mayo also contribute to the bill.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General and Business-Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—A rare treat is being afforded local playgoers this week in a visit of Miss Olga Nethersole and company. On the talented actress making her appearance on Monday evening in Sapho she received a most flattering welcome from a crowded and enthusiastic audience. As Fanny Le Grand, Miss Nethersole has an exacting part, which she played with a perfection rarely seen here, her success throughout being most conspicuous. She was well seconded by Mr. Frank Mills as Jean Gaussin, to whom must be accorded high praise for a performance of exceptional merit. Mr. William Clark made an excellent impression as M. Cesaire Gaussin. As Joseph, Miss Agnes Tina played well; and as Madame and Monsieur Hettema, Miss Mary Relph and Mr. A. T. Hendon also showed great ability. Mr. Julian Royce was very good as Eugene Flamant. The Second Mrs. Tanqueray was presented on Friday, with Miss Nethersole as Paula and Mr. Frank Mills as Aubrey Tanqueray.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—A first-rate attraction is provided here this week in a visit of Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmond's company in The Golden Ladder. Miss Mary Austin is seen to considerable advantage as Lilian Grant, and Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds is good as the adventurer, M. Peranza. Mr. William Clayton does full justice to the part of the Rev. Frank Thornhill. Mr. J. Milne Taylor is capital as Michael Severn. Both Mr. Joseph Rowlands as Samuel Peckaby and Miss Nellie Graham as Mrs. Peckaby give popular and humorous portrayals. Mr. W. Chambers is excellent as Dr. Lemair; Miss Winifred Acton as Victoria Alexandra Peckaby and Miss May Ediss as Lily are clever in the juvenile parts. Miss Teresa Haynes as Mrs. Dixon and Mr. Fred Acton as Jim Dixon also render able support.

PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bertram G. Iles.—Those clever comedians, the McNaughtons, are the star turn here this week, and by their versatility and humour keep the audience in continual laughter while they occupy the stage. De Dio charms all with her dances, which are beautifully done, the lighting effects adding greatly to the success of the turn. Alice Lloyd, a delightfully dainty comedienne, secures a well-deserved hearty reception; Park's Eton Boys, excellent vocalists, are a popular turn; Kitts and Windrum are presenting, to the accompaniment of great laughter, the sketch, The Cuckoo; Jake Friedman repeats his usual success; Roberts, Hayes, and Roberts, in The Cowboy and the Lady, are good; and Forest and King are well to the front as dancers and acrobats. The American Bioscope still remains a popular feature of the programme with up-to-date films.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapworth.—Davis and Gledhill, in their novel and exciting bicycle and motor-paced races, are the great attraction here. In connection with the engagement, a competition for amateurs is being held during the week. The Olive Trio of comedians and dancers are smart; Johnson and Pelham, in their comedy pot-pourri act, The Golf Match, display much cleverness; the Nettas are excellent in their vocal duets. Other entertaining turns are contributed by Rita Reedan (male impersonator), Llewellyn (Welsh basso), and Mabel Le Roy (comedienne). Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope, which has become quite a fixture here, well maintains its popularity with interesting pictures.

LEIGH.—ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident Manager, Mr. Harry Rousby.—Mr. Harry Starr's new musical drama The Unseen Power was presented here for the first three nights of the week. The brunt of the work is borne by Mr. Starr, who portrays several characters with much ability; Mr. Edwin Firth gives a capital representation of Antonio Romano; Miss Katie Norris distinguishes herself as Chris. Granville; Mr. Will Miller is well placed as Harold Granville; Miss Ella Crossley acts the rôle of Lucretia Granville in an able manner; Miss Madge Blundell makes the most of her opportunities as Anita Romano; while the comedy element is well brought out by Mr. Fred W. Graham as Horatio Cracklesby.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—Two of Mr. Henry Arthur Jones's most emotional dramas have been staged here this week by Miss Elaine Verner and a good company, which includes the notable Welsh actor, Mr. Harding Thomas. Saints and Sinners provides in Jacob and Lettie Fletcher congenial rôles for Mr. Thomas and Miss Verner, both of whom prove equal to the demands made on them; George Kingmill and Captain Fanshaw find convincing representatives in Mr. Percy Brown and Mr. Edgar Kent; good work is done by Mr. Frank Lyndon as Samuel Hoggard; Mr. Edward de Vere as Lot Burdon; Mr. J. Max Jerome as Prabble; and Miss Ada Clarke and Mr. Guy Dene as Peter Greenacre; heads a list of minor parts, all of which are capably acted. In The Middleman Mr. Thomas is a realistic Cyrus Blenkarn and Miss Verner a sympathetic Mary; and these outstanding impersonations are strongly supported by Mr. Lyndon's Joseph Chandler, Mr. Brown's Julian, Mr. De Vere's Batty Todde, and Mr. Kent's Jesse Pegge; while Miss Ada Clarke, Miss Maud Beard, and Miss Ruby Roma do well as Nancy, Mrs. Chandler, and Maud.

LEVEN.—TOWN HALL.—On Monday night a large audience was attracted to witness The Silver King, presented by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company. Mr. Walter Bentley as Wilfred Denver scored a decided success, his natural acting and fine elocution earning unstinted applause. Miss Marie Menzies, by her capable rendering of the part of Nellie Denver, speedily won the sympathy and approval of the audience. Faithful old Daniel Jaikes, well played by Mr. Tom G. Warry, made himself a popular favourite. In the hands of Mr. Paul Beckett, Captain Skinner, "the Spider," lost none of his sinister plausibility; Mr. Baxter, the detective, found a capable representative in Mr. W. B. Sommerville; Mr. A. Hall Menzies was good as Henry Corkett; Messrs. Walter Seabrook, A. H. Simon, and Fred Wear were amusing as Mr Parkyn, Binks, and Bronson respectively. The waitress, Susie, was played in bright and lively manner by Miss Rose Blackwell; Miss Marie Lyndon and Miss Joan Wellman were well suited as Tabitha Durden and Olive Skinner. The children's parts were taken by little Nelly Lyndon and Mabel O'Neill, the former, as Cissy, having most to do, and doing it well.

LICHFIELD.—ST. JAMES'S HALL.—The patronage accorded to Mr. W. Payne Seddon's presentation of Mr. F. R. Benson's (South) Shakesperian company on Tuesday and Wednesday, was very satisfactory. The School for Scandal, Merchant of Venice, and Hamlet were the plays presented. Mr. Charles Donaldson was the Sir Peter, Antonio, and King; Mr. John Cairns, Sir Oliver, Gratiano, and the Ghost; Mr. Arthur Phillips, Joseph Surface, Shylock, and Hamlet; Mr. Frank Darch, Charles Surface, Bassanio, and Laertes; Miss Christie Laws, Lady Teazle, Portia, and Ophelia; and Miss Kathryn Stocks, Lady Sneerwell, Jessica, and the Player Queen. The plays were presented with great completeness.

LIMERICK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Robert Fogerty.—A second week of grand opera by the popular Elster-Grime company was opened on Monday night, when The Bohemian Girl was presented. Miss Elsie Lynham, a charming soprano, enacted the rôle of Arline with great success, and Miss Kathleen McCabe was the clever and realistic Queen of the Gipsies; Miss C. Russell was a pleasing Buda, and as Count Arnheim Mr. T. Partridge sang well. Mr. A. Kewley was an amusing Florestein, and as Devilshoof Mr. Gilbert King was at his best. Mr. P. Nolan was good as Captain of the Guard, and in the absence of Mr. Payne-Clarke, who is suffering from a severe cold, Mr Frank Land ably sustained the rôle of Thaddeus.

LINCOLN.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank King.—Mr. Hilliard Vox's company, in a strong representation of Alaska, fills the bill this week.

PALACE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Sydney Arthur.—Will Musgrave is repeating all his former successes; Will Driscoll, Nina Martino, the Five Bon-Bons, Emma Don and her piccanninies, Andre Carne, Stirling and Cashen, Bowman and Morton, and Raymond's Biotableaux also score.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne-Seddon and George Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards.—The Two Hussars, presented by Messrs. Fred J. Webb and Wilson Benge's company is the attraction here this week. As Harry Alford, Mr. Wilson Benge submits an excellent interpretation of the part; Miss M. Danvers Smith as Ellen Maythorne and afterwards as Will Gunstock proves herself a capable actress; Miss Lallah Price is good as Molly Cutts, and Miss Sadie Smith scores as Marie; Mr. Fred J. Webb is a capable Paul Villiers, and Mr. G. Paradise is excellent as Sergeant M. Finne. Other parts are also well sustained.

LOWESTOFT. — MARINA. — Managing-Director, Mr. E. A. Smith.—On its first visit here A Royal Divorce is received with much favour, and is undoubtedly a welcome change after a long and successful run of musical comedy. Mr. Fred Victor's able method and clear enunciation makes his Napoleon an artistic and clever assumption of a difficult rôle; Miss Edith Cole's charm of manner and womanly instinct are brought to bear with excellent effect in the part of the Empress Josephine, and she must be warmly complimented on her natural and convincing work in the malmaison scene.

LUTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Business-Manager, Mr. L. J. Beard.—Mr. Alexander Loftus and company opened on Monday night to a very good house in The New Barmaid. The new songs and dances being greatly appreciated. Miss Violet Osmund, as the Lady Journalist, scores a hit with "The Bamboo Bungalow"; Mr. Loftus, as Wm. White, is excellent, as also is Mr. J. Grant as the Colonel; Mr. Dwyer, Mr. Adison, and all the members of the company seem thoroughly at home in their different parts.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—£1000 Reward was presented here on Monday night. Messrs. F. J. Pitt and Chas. Halling's company is one of the best seen here for some time. Mr. J. B. Murray as Gilbert Lisle gave a graceful and telling portrayal. Mr. C. Halling as Vincent Rainsworth submitted a highly meritorious performance; Mr. C. Rogers, jun., as Dick, played a difficult part exceedingly well; Mr. J. N. Cowling as Fred Ingleford was excellent; and Mr. Frank J. Pitt as Fred Ingleford, jun., was very satisfactory. Mr. F. Dallas as Inspector Gilbert gave a humorous portrayal; and Mr. A. Merton's Fighting Jepps was another good study. The part of Meg was finely played by Miss Lynn Darlington, who held the sympathy of the house from start to finish. Miss Crissie Frances, as Kitty, came in for a cordial reception, and her exceedingly able acting quite justified the applause accorded. Miss Daisy Halling as Madame Sanson proved a most able performer; and Mrs. Sydney Halling as Mrs. McCarthy was very good.

MAIDENHEAD.—TOWN HALL.—Secretary, the Town Clerk.—After an uninterrupted season extending from early May until this date, the Pavilion Cadets gave their farewell concert before a crowded house on Wednesday. The programme largely consisted of songs, &c., which have proved specially acceptable during the season, and the reception accorded to the individual members of the troupe gave decided evidence of the appreciation which they have gained. Special turns were provided by Witty Willis, raconteur and banjoist, who was well received, and by Mr. Fred Evered, who, as a female impersonator, is decidedly the cleverest we have seen here. The ladies of the troupe were presented with handsome bouquets.

MAIDSTONE.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. Baskerville.—A good programme here is headed by Graham, the human marionette, who gives a clever turn. Kyoto, Japanese equilibrist and contortionist, is exceedingly clever, and is recalled again and again; the Lavelle Brothers, quaint comedy acrobats, are well received; and Miss Emmie Ames, on a return visit, is popular with her Great Big Ben scena. George Fox, operatic vocalist; and Miss Mollie Seymour, comedienne and solo violinist; together with Harry Bancroft, vocalist; the Daintons, duettists; and the Hippograph, complete the bill.

MANCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, the United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra.—A notable event here on Monday was the performance of Colonel Newcome by Mr. Tree and company. The play serves to present the Colonel chiefly in the midst of his vicissitudes, and in every phase Mr. Tree proved himself a perfect master of the part. The impersonation, so wonderful and convincing in all its details, gave unbounded pleasure to a large audience, which testified its admiration by repeated calls. The part of Colonel Newcome is of course the backbone of the play, which is not intrinsically strong, nor even greatly interesting, as a play; and other members of the cast were therefore not very remarkably in evidence. Nevertheless, despite the poor material, Miss Constance Collier managed to imbue her rôle of Ethel Newcome with a certain charm and distinction; while Mr. Sidney Brough made an entertaining Lord Farintosh, and other prominent parts were cleverly rendered by Mr. Charles Quartermaine, Mr. A. E. Benedict, Mr. Edmund Maurice, Miss Annie Schletter, Miss Mary Sumner, and Mrs. Percival. At the end Mr. Tree was prevailed upon to speak a few responsive words. The distinguished actor's astonishing versatility was amply evidenced on Tuesday, when he played Isidore Izard in Business is Business, and Austin Limmason in The Man Who Was, both parts being rendered to perfection. In the former play Miss Nora Lancaster acted very well as Inez, and Mrs E. H. Brooke gave a capital impersonation of Mrs. Izard; while Miss Constance Collier made the most of her opportunities as Millicent Durgan in Kipling's painful little drama. At the Wednesday matinée Trilby was given with powerful effect; and the remainder of the week is filled in with the plays already mentioned, to which is added The Ballad Monger.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, the United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—Mr. William Greet's company reappeared here on Monday in their popular attraction, The Earl and the Girl, the cast including Mr. William Stephens as Jim Cheese, Mr. Arthur Harrold as Dick Wargrave, Miss Frances Earle as Elphin Haye, Miss Gertrude Melville as Daisy Fallowfield, Mr. Will Hudson as Downham, and Miss Jennie Richards as Liza Shoddam, all of whom contribute largely to sending the piece along with a fine swing. These are assisted by quite a number of clever people in smaller parts, and the piece is strengthened by a chorus and orchestra of seventy-five performers, under the direction of Mr. Evelyn Baker. Scenery and dresses are also elaborate and charming, and the piece is certainly one of the brightest and most entertaining musical comedies on the road.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, the United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—Great pleasure is afforded patrons of this theatre by the appearance of Mr. Edward Terry in a répertoire of favourite plays. On Monday Liberty Hall was given, the eminent comedian being seen as William Todman, a distinct and admirable success. Mr. Allan Pollock played Mr. Owen with excellent effect, and the rôles of Blanche and Amy Chilworth were rendered very nicely by Miss Fyfe Alexander and Miss F. Glossop Harris. Others worthy of high praise were Mr. Frank Cellier, jun., as the Hon. Gerald Harringay and Mr. William Dexter as Mr. Briginshaw. Mr. Terry's impersonation of Mr. Posket in The Magistrate on Tuesday was done in fine humorous style, and his efforts were cleverly supplemented by Mr. Frank Cellier, jun., as young Farringdon, Mr. E. W. Thomas as Mr. Bullamy, Mr. George Howard as Colonel Lukyn, Mr. Allan Pollock as Captain Vale, and Miss Agnes Knights as Agatha Posket. Equally enjoyable was Wednesday's performance of Sweet Lavender.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Messrs. Carpenter and Cooper's company is here this week in The Spider and the Fly, presented last week at the Grand Junction Theatre.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Billy Williams, "the man in the velvet suit," gives a capital "top" turn here this week; May Lilian Levey, the popular comedienne, sings some good songs; and a comic turn is that of The Land-Grabbers, a burlesque on the unemployed. Other good turns are Little Beattie, a clever juvenile comedienne and dancer; Alfonzo, the Tranka wonder; Dolly Denver, lady buck dancer; the three Royal Temples, Welsh singers; Mozzetto, a clever young juggler; Clifton and Gibson, eccentric comedians; and Harry Tomlin, speciality artist.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Richard Flanagan; Manager, Mr. Gus Flanagan.—Miss Bonwin Carlton's company is here this week in a clever and sensational comedy drama entitled The Plucky Nipper. A very efficient cast is employed, Miss Carlton playing the title part of Polly Hithard with distinction, Mr. Edward Surrey being seen to advantage as Billy Burgess, and Mr. Fred Rivers giving a powerful impersonation of the villainous Richard Vanbrugh. Heroic parts are well played by Mr. Edward Stream as Frank Leslie and Miss Evelyn Terwent as Ina Fenwick; while Mr. H. J. Butler does well as Colonel Fenwick and Mr. Douglas Campbell gives a creditable depiction of Tommy Atkins. The incidental vocalism is good, and the scenery well arranged and effective.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Messrs. Northway and Garrod present here this week their revised version of The Prodigal Parson, a very effective play, very well rendered by a capable cast, which is headed by Mr. W. V. Garrod in the title part. Mr. Garrod's personal success as the Rev. T. Godley is equalled by Mr. Hugh Carmichael as Jaggins, the rascally churchwarden; and other good parts are cleverly realised by Miss Lilian Rignold as Gretchen Van Craus, Miss P. Hastings as the Parson's wife, Mr. Wm. Hayward as Ben Jaggins, and Mr. H. Newton as Phil Drive, the cheerful handy man. Among others, Miss Dot Russell dances well; and during the course of the action several pleasing songs are introduced.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—This week's programme here is particularly strong in sketches, the honours being divided between Mabel Bardine and company in Ivan Berlyn's version of Nancy Sikes (adapted from "Oliver Twist") and John Tiller's company in the musical burletta High Jinks. Both of these are highly acceptable to the house. Other excellent turns are ?Letine? the mysterious; Vivian Cliff and his dog Kitty in a funny act; the Sutcliffe family of pipers, acrobats, and dancers; Playfair and Nikola, makers of paper pictures; and "A Son's Revenge" on the Bioscope.

PALACE.—General Manager, Mr. Walter De Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Acting Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Harry Ford, the well-known comedian, tops the bill here this week, and contributes three songs in his usual entertaining manner; Smaun Sing Hpoo, a miniature athlete, gives a smart performance on the rings; Lotto, Lilo, and Otto are exceedingly clever trick comedy cyclists; Barney Armstrong, a very quaint comedian, with coboy assistant, is well received; Ada Cerito, comedienne, has a capital song with a good chorus; the Four Jumels offer a delightful musical act, and W. H. Downs, the Australian coloured vocalist, sings well. Other enjoyable turns are Cole and Rags, neat jugglers; Johnny Fuller, as a cat, clever on the wire; and Lola Patey, character vocalist. The Palace Pictures are up-to-date.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—The big attraction here this week is provided by "Wizard" and Irene Stone in their marvellous and daring cycle act, "The Globe of Life." Carl Hertz, the famous illusionist, adds some clever and novel tricks, including a new sensation called "The Bridal Chamber." Beside these Boris Lensky, the Dutch violinist, gives the audience a real musical treat; some good fun is forthcoming from Griff, "the Clown in Apartments"; the De Breans are seen in a juggling and equilibristic act; and other good turns are provided by Jas. Toner, the singing newsboy from Belfast; Max York's well-trained dogs; Ted and May Hopkins, Welsh humorists; Jack Lorimer, Scotch comedian; and the choir, who give Faning's glee, "Moonlight." The Bioscope pictures are interesting, as usual.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—An excellent turn here this week is that of Herbert Shelley, who scores a distinct success in an interesting episode entitled Dan the Outlaw. Lawrence Barclay, a comedian of the eccentric order, is very amusing, as usual; the Clarkes are exceedingly clever banjoists; and the Three Rubys go through a unique equipoise acrobatic trapeze act. Other good items are contributed by Mark Anthony, a capital humorist; the three Sisters Jonghmans, well-known singers of harmonised songs; Harry Morgan, coon comedian; the Watana Trio of lady jugglers; and Florence Leonard, vocalist. Raymond's Vivagraph pictures complete the programme.

KING'S, LONGSIGHT.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Messrs. Little and Darcy's company are here this week in their well-known attraction The Executioner's Daughter, a story of the French Revolution. Mr. Stanley Radcliffe plays the part of the executioner, Mons. Roche, in telling style, and Miss Nellie Howitt is well placed and does admirably as Annette, his daughter. The play contains a large variety of well-defined characters, among which that of Paul Rovel, embodied by Mr. W. Ruddle Brown, is notable, as also is that of Kretch, played by Mr. W. S. Stephenson; while Mr. Juan De Alberti adds a strong rendering of Felix Marius, the gambler and thief. Miss Evelyn Robson plays Felice with power; and Miss Bella Moody makes a lively Sally King. The scenery and effects are all that could be desired.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—An enjoyable programme is offered here this week. Charming Mlle. Von-Etta, "La Mystery Indescribable," is to the front with bewildering illusions and smart conjuring tricks; Johnson and Bert, in their act, A Queer Customer, provide some clever tumbling, and are very amusing; Mlle. De Rose, lady baritone, meets with deserved applause, her rendering of "The Wolf" being particularly good; Ford and Hanson are entertaining as the Musical Millionaires; Mephisto and Marie are seen in a clever contortionist scena; and Mr. Walter Wade as "Patsy Burke" pleases greatly. Other good turns are those of J. H. Hawtrey, actor vocalist; Percy Curry, a very funny comedian; and Selby and Myers, with their entertaining patter and smart dancing. An amusing film, "This Side up with Care," is depicted on the Bioscope.

HIPPODROME, HULME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Linah Morris and a first-rate company, including Bessie Morris, head the bill here this week in that capital musical comedy, The Lost Coon, and are well received. Georg Chanti in his great transformation act dances exceedingly well, and gains much applause; Tate and Tate, comedy trampolin acrobats, are clever and amusing; and good items are contributed by the Katos, "Komical Kidgets"; Stephen Blythe, actor-vocalist; York, Mac, and York, in comedy, The Widow's Worries; and Olga Fane, vocal comedienne. On the occasion of our visit Bert Weston, the popular swell comedian, acting as deputy for the Siddons, made a hit; and Selida and Vane, coloured artists, appeared in place of the Ottawas, and sang and danced excellently. "The Gentleman Burglar" is the Bioscope subject, and is interesting.

RUSHOLME PAVILION.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Leslie; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles North.—Another excellent programme is provided here this week, with old favourites, and good houses are the rule.

MANSFIELD.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Captain Cecil Clayton; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Gray.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company is here in The Drama of Life. Mr. Edward M. Hamilton ably portrays the part of Harry Beech, while the rôle of Walter Beech is capably interpreted by Mr. John J. Hooker; Mr. Edward Van Biene is a first-class Count de Foi; Mr. R. B. Foote is a shrewd Richard Brenton; Sir Dobson Wilde is nicely portrayed by Mr. Harwood Roberts; the part of Lady Jane Wilde is in the capable hands of Miss Florence French; Miss Elsie May portrays the part of Master Robert Beech; Miss Nellie Beechenough as Betty Black plays finely.

HIPPODROME.—Lessees, Messrs. H. Darnley and T. Jennings; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. Jennings.—After being closed for some months this place was reopened on Monday. The whole of the seating has been remodelled and the place redecorated. Miss Marie Loftus tops the bill. She gives two songs and her sketch, "Singers Past and Present," which is loudly applauded; Lang and Beal present a good musical turn; Professor Anderson receives applause for his exhibition of legerdemain; the ventriloquial turn of Tom Garland is appreciated, as is also the turn by Connie Mori; other turns are contributed by Don and Frister and Mr. Kino Johnson. Vernon's Imperial Bioscope depicts a good series of pictures.

WORLD'S FAIR.—Mansfield October Cheese Fair commenced on Thursday, and was continued on Friday and Saturday.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Exclusive Manager, Mr. Edward Michael; Business-Manager, Mr. A. Austin Leigh.—Mrs. Russ Whytal has been successfully appearing here this week in Barrie's fanciful comedy, Alice Sit-by-the-Fire. Her impersonation of Mrs. Grey is a piece of acting of real excellence, the lines being delivered with rare elocutionary power. Mr. J. J. Bartlett is extremely good as the indulgent Col. Grey, authoritative yet kindly, and possessing a keen sense of fun; Mr. A. W. Baskcomb plays Cosmo Grey with the necessary lightness, and Mr. Aubrey Mallalieu gives a capital study of comic perplexity as Stephen Rollo. Miss Lilian Locke sustains the part of Richardson, the humble heroine, in an irresistible manner; Miss Beatrice Bramah, as Amy Grey, acts with exquisite humour; Miss Lucie Verrier is delightfully ingenious as Leonora Dunbar; and Miss Ada Marius, as the imperious nurse, and Miss Ninon Dudley, as Fanny, are good in their respective parts.

THE HIPPODROME.—Sole Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. F. Houillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtrey.—This week's programme includes several entertaining turns, the list being headed by the Spanish Goldini Trio, whose juggling and plate and carpet spinning feats are very expertly performed; Nellie Chandos, comedienne, sings well and dances capitally, and Farley, Rennie and Farley are amusing in the comedy acrobatic novelty, Fun at a Railway Station; the Bensons give a pleasing vocal comedy duo with unabated success, and Venie Clements proves herself a versatile comedienne and a graceful dancer in A Trial Trip; Young Colossus and l'Homme Miniature are as great a contrast in two living men as could well be seen, and create a striking effect.

MERTHYR TYDFIL. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Lewis Gilbert.—Mr. Cyril Keightley and company opened on Monday in The School for Scandal, and Mr. Cyril Keightley played admirably the part of Charles Surface; and Miss Haidee Gunn gave a charming representation of Lady Teazle. On Tuesday She Stoops to Conquer was played to a crowded house. Miss Haidee Gunn gave a delightful impersonation of Kate Hardcastle; and Miss Ethel Dane made an interesting Miss Neville; Miss Alice Arden was capable as Mrs. Hardcastle; Mr. Charles Medwin was well suited as Sir Charles; Mr. Cyril Keightley's Young Marlow was an excellent study; Mr. Baliol Holloway was a good Mr. Hastings; Mr. Henry Crocker a bluff and hearty Hardcastle; Mr. Iden Keyne an amusing Tony Lumpkin; and Messrs. R. A. Pittor, Henry Hutchard, and Basil Dean praiseworthy as Diggory, Roger, and Tom respectively. Miles Carew was presented on Wednesday, and She Stoops to Conquer, on Thursday.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. C. Watson Mill's company occupies the boards here this week in A Warning to Workmen. Mr. C. Watson Mill gives a vigorous portraiture of the villainous Dr. Marcus Dread; Mr. Norman B. Cannon plays cleverly as Fergus McNaughten; Mr. Howell Travis is always interesting as Shaun; the Lord Eversleigh of Mr. N. Carter Slaughter is a pleasing effort; Mr. Henry Rutland is well placed as Squire Kennion; while Mr. Henry P. Kennedy is humourous as Mike McQuade; Miss Rosalind Tate, in the rôle of Moira Kenyon scores a dramatic triumph, playing with rare skill; Miss Emmie Barton is decidingly pleasing as Sheila Kennion; and able support is also given by Miss Ellen Beverley (Molly O'More), Miss Mary Moore (Hildred), and Miss Phyllis Brook (Lady Colner).

MIDDLESBROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—The new musical comedy, The Sweet Girl, was played here for the first time on Monday, by Miss Claudia Lasell and her company, under the direction of Mr. Charles E. Hamilton. The leading rôle of Lola was well portrayed by Miss Claudia Lasell, a lady of attractive appearance, fascinating manner, and the possessor of an exceedingly sweet voice; Miss Lister Murrah as Dick Kenyon sang admirably; and Mr. Leonard Russell scored a great success in the part of Florin Lierlich; Miss Alice Lethbridge's dancing and acting were a feature of the performance; and Mr. Algernon Newark and Mr. George de Lara both did well as Anthony Strauss and Prosper Pleway respectively; Mr. Fred Eastman achieved a pronounced success of Count Leibenberg. As the art students, the Misses Grace Hunter, Lelia Gordon, Muriel Harding, Ada Wingood, Merza Leidan, Lilian Leslie, and Mr. J. Murray Morris added in no small measure to the evening's enjoyment.

OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. W. K. Chatto.—Mr. Walter Melville's drama, The Female Swindler, is being played here this week. Mr. Henry Wright in a variety of rôles creates much merriment; and Miss Grace E. Leslie is exceedingly good as Lu Valroy, the female swindler; Mr. Joseph Millane, as Jack Coulson, a detective, is excellent; and Mr. John Melton does full justice to the part of Mikestein; Miss Edith Gray causes much laughter as Mrs. Poppem; and for the part of Geoffrey Warden a clever representative is found in Mr. Wilford Cheetham; M

Lincoln; Mr. E. H. Kelly, as Lord Dundreary, plays with dash and breeziness; Mr. A. R. Botelle is a successful Higham Montague; Master Grata makes a decided hit as Bucket; the Hon. Sophia and Honoria Bedford were made the most of by Miss Margaret Saville and Miss Jane Eyre; Miss Bella Napier is an excellent Lady Caterham; and Mr. Julian Cross does well as Sir John Crystal.

Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. E. B. Clarke.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company, with The Ugliest Woman on Earth, occupies the boards here. Miss Beatrice Homer, in the leading rôle, is seen to great advantage; Mr. Philip Darien, as the hero, looks well and acts capably.

Grand Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—Mr. J. Leicester Jackson's company is here in the emotional drama, Her One Great Sin. Miss Blanche St. Albans displays power as Grace Warhurst; Squire Thornhill is excellently portrayed by Mr. J. Leicester Jackson; Mr. J. Beresford Innes makes the most of the part of Reuben Warhurst; Miss Maudie Lambert is a natural Gracie; Charlie is cleverly handled by Miss Phillis Damian; and the disreputable tinker and his wife are admirably portrayed by Mr. Charles E. Lambert and Miss Louie Walton.

Empire Theatre.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Andrews.—The premier position here is occupied by Mr. George Lashwood, who lives up to his reputation as the Beau Brummel of the variety stage. He had a great reception at both houses on Monday. Alf. Gibson's quaintness delights everyone; Hanid Alexander introduces new features in her entertainment, which are much appreciated; Frank Sylvo, the comic juggler, is welcome; Boswell's stage circus is a clever interlude; Burley and Burley score in their contortionist exhibition; Joly is a capital cornet player; Lora, the weird parrot, is a mystery turn worth seeing; Lilian Lowe is a successful ballad vocalist; and Ernest Ball completes a good bill.

Pavilion Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—Mr. Fred Wright, jun., holds the premier position on the bill here, and his Chinamen songs have hit the popular fancy; Tom Graves cycles round a revolving wheel, an act calling for as much daring as ability; the Mackinnon Family are a clever musical quartette; Bert Bryne, comedian, sings his songs cleverly; Woodward and Walton, rag-time dancers, give a smart performance; Hallam and Stanton display vocal abilities; the Deer Family achieve a success. Jack Rae scores as an eccentric gymnast; Tom York contributes coster songs; and Rosalie Jacobi, comedienne, and the Barrascope complete the bill.

NEWPORT.—Lyceum.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sydney Cooper.—Mr. James Welch's company is presenting for the first time here the new farce, When Knights were Bold. Sir Grey de Vere, the central figure, is taken by Mr. James Welch, in a manner that stamps him as an able comedian, and he convulses the house with his humour; Mr. Edward Sass, as Brian Ballymote, furnishes a clever picture of the Rank Outsider; Mr. J. Ford provides clever comedy, as Charles Widdicombe; and Mr. Arthur Grenville's Isaac Isaacson is excellent; Mr. George F. Tully makes an ideal Trittle, the valet; Mr. Gordon Tomkins is an admirable Barker; and Mr. Jas. Nelson, in the dual part of the Dean and Peter, the Monk, is everything that can be desired; Miss Audrey Ford portrays Rowena Eggington with dignified sentimentality; and other female characters are ably sustained by Miss Emma Gwynne; Miss Estelle Winwood, Miss Enid Sass, and Miss Mabel Wentworth.

Empire.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. O. Stoll.—Fred. Ginnett's Rejected Remounts attract considerable attention here this week; Kelly and Gillette give an amusing turn that is full of novelties; the Vernon Troupe win applause for their xylophone playing; Carlotta Levey sings a couple of songs that are well received; Charles Vincent is successful with a catchy sailor song; the Obersteirers, Tyrolean singers and dancers, provide a pleasing turn; and Gertrude Bradshaw, Dorothy Clarke, and Frank Darwin complete a good bill.

NORTHAMPTON.—Opera House.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Seddon.—Mr. E. Lockwood and Mr. Crossman's company opened here on Monday with a return visit of the successful musical comedy Sergeant Brue. Mr. T. A. Shale was heartily welcomed in his old part of Crookie Scrubbs, and his singing and acting were deservedly applauded. Miss Lily Lingard was also sincerely welcomed in the rôle of Lady Bickenhall, in which her charming grace is so admirably displayed. Mr. E. Russell played the part of Sergeant Brue with great humour and spirit. Mr. J. H. Goldsworthy sang and acted well as Michael Brue; Miss Kitty Dale, a clever and vivacious young actress, with a good soprano voice, gained great applause as Aurora Brue; Miss Constance Berkeley made a good Daisy; Mr. Arthur Stroud was pleasing in the part of Gerald Treherne; Mr. Henry Chichester was capital as Mr. Crank. The chorus and augmented orchestra are well controlled by Mr. J. H. York, the musical director.

Palace of Varieties.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Representative, Mr. Edwin C. Jazon; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. A. Evans.—Michael Nolan, the clever Irish comedian, has made a great success here; Ariel and Astarte are paying a return visit with their pretty gymnastic pot-pourri display; Chas. F. Best gives a clever and comical act, illustrative of circus life; Harry Nation, comedian, provides some laughing songs; Stanert and Yondi give a comic and musical act of interest; Ten Dixie Girls tender with success a vocal and terpsichorean scena, The Silver Coon; and the Palace Pictures contribute some pleasing films. Friday being the anniversary of the opening extra attractions were provided.

NORTH SHIELDS.—Theatre Royal. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—The Shadow of a Crime, presented by Messrs. Fred J. Little and Fred D'Arcy's company has been heartily received here this week. Mr. Stephen Crossley as Lieut. Harry Bullington is admirably suited; Mr. William Matthews as Jim Murdock is seen to advantage; the character of Ralph Esmond is in the able hands of Mr. R. Forder; Mr. John H. Manley is well placed as Sir Edward Bullington; and Messrs. E. W. Avery and Alfred Richards are clever as Brown and Todd. Miss Ina Grant contributes a capital interpretation of Loyale Norman; Miss Dorothy Riddell displays ability as Dora; Miss Bertha St. Ruth is smart as Sarah; and Miss May Rosine does well in the character of Mrs. Brown. Animated pictures are introduced this week, and have been greatly enjoyed.

Central Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—Messrs. Craig, Rose, and Craig, gymnasts, top the bill here, and are very smart; Mr. Leo Curtis, the magical marvel, presents a clever act; the Three Coopers, vocalists, are popular; Mr. Frank Newbury, whistling comedian, is loudly applauded; and Messrs. Kay and Miles, speciality artists; Messrs. Cliff and Kean, comedians and dancers; and the bio-photoscope, contribute successfully.

NORTHWICH.—Central Theatre.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden; Secretary, Miss E. Golden.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Maclaren's company, in the romantic costume play Proof has paid a return visit to this town, after an absence of a year. Mr. Gerald Kennedy gave a powerful and skilful rendering of the part of Pierre Lorance, his acting being impressive throughout. Much praise is due to Mr. W. J. Butler for an excellent portrayal of Lazare, alias the Count de Laval. Mr. Carl Beechey is a fine type of the Fench artistocrat of the old school in the part of the Duke D'Aubeterre. As Valentine Miss May Grimshaw gives one of the most powerful and artistic examples of acting we have seen here for a long time. Miss Beatrice Shirley imparts a charming pathos to the character of Adrienne; Miss Phena Powell is a dignified Mme. Deprets; as the Duchess D'Aubeterre, Miss Nita Ashby is all that can be desired; Miss Ellina Turner proves herself a clever child actress as little Adrienne; much well-earned applause falls to the share of Mr. Wilford Bailey for his humorous impersonation of Chamboran. Mr. Albert Cavanah is the courteous business manager.

NORWICH.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Bade Montefiore's company is here with The Streets of London. Mr. William Rokeby is a great favourite as Badger; Mr. Riddell Robinson successfully appears as Gideon Bloodgood; Mr. Reginald Palgrave is an effective Mark Livingstone; and Mr. Jerrold Manville a humorous Puffy. Miss Winifred Ingham displays feeling as Lucy Fairweather; Miss Dorothy Cacey is good as Alida Bloodgood; and Miss Florence Moore is all that can be desired as Dan Puffy.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. B. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. F. W. Fitt.—Harry Radford and Mlle. Valentine, an amusing turn, meet with much appreciation here; Tom Lloyd renews his popularity; Charles Stevens and Walter Stanley are successful; Mamie Cannon, as a trick pianiste, gains approbation; the Westwoods introduce clever cyclist tricks; La Belle Nello as a contortionist and balancer, does well; Fred Sinclair and Gracie Whiteford present a funny sketch entitled Getting Even; and the Hippo-Bio has some pleasing pictures.

NOTTINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing Director, Mr. Robt. Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—A delightful presentation of Olivia has been given this week by Miss Winifred Emery and company. Miss Emery gave a true and vivid character study of the Vicar's wayward daughter, passing from laughter to tears with an adroitness born of experience and artistic feeling. Mr. Brandon Thomas played the Vicar with an earnestness that was at once successful and convincing. The well-modulated voice of Mr. Billie Norwood added force and dignity to his admirable assumption of Burchell, and the callous villainy of Squire Thornhill was cleverly indicated by Mr. Franklin Dyall. Mr. Harry Ashford rendered excellently the bluff Yorkshireman, Farmer Flamborough, and the two children were capitally taken by Miss Maidie Andrews and Master Bobbie Andrews. Miss May Chevalier deserves high credit for her dainty impersonation of Sophia, and as Pollie Flamborough Miss Isabel Roland won favour. Miss Keith Lytton made a satisfactory Mrs. Primrose, and Mr. H. Cannon George contributed a quaint study as Moses.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Charles P. Cooke.—Her Forbidden Marriage, the sensational drama by Walter Melville, is presented by an excellent company. Mr. Henry Lonsdale, an actor of merit, is responsible for the part of George Madison, whilst the scoundrelly Charles Devereux finds an able exponent in Mr. Louis Hector. Mr. Leonard Maxwell does good work as Geoffrey Broughton, and Mr. H. L. Hickman makes a satisfactory John William. The broad comedy part of Timothy loses nothing in the hands of Mr. Fred de Vere, and he is ably assisted by Miss Denny Fitzherbert as Patty. Miss Nellie Bonser looks charming as Lucy, whilst a clever piece of acting is the Lady Lancaster of Miss Octavia Noel. Miss Barbara Gott makes up excellently as the Mother Superior, and the child part is well done by Little Lucy. Mr. Rawdon Vivian and Mr. James Raymond are respectively very good as the clergyman and the doctor; Mr. Kenneth Black has all the necessary dignity and presence for the part of Sir George Lancaster, and Mr. George Elsworthy finds a congenial rôle in Benjamin Wardle. The cast is completed by Messrs. William Griffin and Mr. Philip Penouf.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles H. Bowmaker.—Miss Dolly Elsworthy and company are seen in a sketch entitled Nell Gwynn, in which the versatility of Miss Elsworthy brought her many rounds of applause; Whit Cunliffe is an exceedingly smart comedian; Cull-Pitt displays a cleverness in facial expression, conjuring, and "patter" that finds ready appreciation, and a lively songstress is heard in Lillie Langtry. Meritorious singing, with appropriate setting and costumes, calls forth high praise at the initial venture of the Welsh Wanderers. Mlle. Eldee's poses plastiques compel admiration for their artistic effect, and the American Bioscope provides an interesting film of the G.W.R.'s new route to Ireland; Gwennie Hasto makes a supple and active dancer; Bennett and Martell provide amusement by their eccentricity; and Carrie Joy contributes to the general pleasure by her song.

NUNEATON.—Prince of Wales' Theatre and Entertainments Co., Ltd. — Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—M. Auguste Van Biene is here with The Broken Melody, and this clever actor-musician's celebrated impersonation of Paul Borinski has been followed by the marked enthusiasm of a crowded house. Miss Lena Burnleigh gives a clever portrayal of Borinski's wife; Mr. Henry Ludlow appears as General Ivanoff; and Mr. Charles A. Morgan, Mr. Faulkner Cox, Mr. Lawrence Grove, Mr. Archie Selwyn, Mr. W. Thomson, Miss Rosemary Rees, Miss Rosie Lewis, and Miss Mary Mannering are seen in other parts.

OLDHAM.—Empire Theatre.—General Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—La Poupée is paying a welcome return visit, and Mr. C. P. Levilly has a capital company. Miss Stella Gastelle is playing the part of Alesia with her usual success; Mr. W. H. Powell as Hilarius keeps the audience convulsed with laughter; Mr. Aubrey Carr makes a capital Launcelot; and Mr. Frederick Hobbs as Father Maxime sings well; Mr. William Griffin is a humorous Baron Chanterelle; Mr. Vernon Reed a good Balthazar; and Miss Kitty Cavendish an excellent Henri; Miss Avis Grahame, a capital Madame Hilarius; and Mr. Fred Seymour a capable Loremois. Amorelle was staged on Thursday.

Colosseum.—Manager, Mr. W. Eastwood.—The attraction here is Mr. Walter Melville's combination in A Girl's Cross Roads. Miss Beaumont Collins as Barbara Wade is pathetic and powerful; Miss Nannie Meade as Nellie Meadows plays the part capitally; Mr. Wilson Gunning is a manly Jack Livingstone; Mr. Kean a good Dr. Weston; Mr. Charles Eranmore an excellent John Meadows; and Mr. Fred Ingram makes the most of the part of Toby Turvey. Miss Jessica Black is a sympathetic Constance; Miss Lena Delphine a humorous Tilly Vane; and Joe Coyle is well played by Mr. David Borone.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Howgate.—Miss Millie Hylton is starring here this week in a song scena, being ably assisted by Miss Decima Brooke. Albert Athas and Lizzie Collins have an original comedy act, full of specialities; Helen Charles gives a capital entertainment at the piano; Howard and Collinson are good in their act, The Porter and the Parcel; and the Laure Brothers are a smart pair of French musical acrobats. Bruli and Hemsley introduce good singing and dancing in Fun in a Music Shop; Wee Mona is a clever child vocalist and dancer; and Joe Almasis is good as a jumping juggler with his funny servant. The Royal Dottoscope also adds to the attractions of the bill.

Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Nuttall.—The Carina Sisters give a capital artistic musical mélangé; Doris Lillian is a good comedienne and dancer; Welda and Wynne have a successful comedy juggling act; King Leo is an accomplished ventriloquist; Squire Wyndham and Tom Waters appear successfully in a high-class comedy act; and the Rushforths, song illustrators; Bob Hamilton, a popular Scotch comedian; and the Dottoscope also add to the attractions.

PAISLEY.—Paisley Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey and company are paying a welcome return visit with the Irish play, The Wearin' o' the Green. Mr. Mackey, on making his reappearance in the rôle of Barney O'Hea, had a cordial reception, and delighted the patrons of the house by his drollery; Mr. Charles Homer as Shamus M'Dermott achieves distinct success; as Michael Kenny Mr. Haughton Macaulay makes a decided hit; Mr. David M'Farlane ably sustains the part of Connor Martin; Mr. H. Salmesbury is well suited as Sir George Courtenay; and Mr. St. John Stuart displays tact and ability in the rôle of Gerald Courtenay. Miss Nana Flensberg is a charming and graceful exponent of Biddy M'Ginn, Barney's sweetheart; Mrs. Mackey is responsible for a telling performance as Nora M'Grath; and Mrs. M'Dermott is capably embodied by Miss Adele Liddon.

Empire.—Lessee, Mr. J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr. Delno Fritz.—Appearing with success here are Karr and Kooney, comedians and dancers; Maggie Binnie, soprano vocalist; J. J. Mannix, coon comedian; Les Valadons, jugglers and equilibrists; Charles Howarth, comedian and pantomimist; Alventee, wire walker; and Stacey and Williams, comedians, patterers, and dancers.

PENTRE.—Lyceum Theatre.—Sole Owners, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Counsell.—Mr. J. B. Woulfe's répertoire company has appeared here this week in Lady Godiva, Nell Gwynn, and Jane Shore. The first-mentioned, which was presented on Monday evening, was very cordially received. Mr. F. B. Woulfe, in his impersonation of Tom of Coventry, showed excellent histrionic abilities. Miss Ethel Griffies as Lady Godiva deserves the highest praise, her grace and charm being highly appreciated; Miss Katherine Brook as Lady Aldyth is seen to great advantage; Mr. A. E. Dunstan, in the rôle of Edgar, sustains his part with admirable effect; Mr. E. Seath-Innes gives a capital portrayal of Leofric, Earl of Mercia; while the scheming and designing villain Algar, Earl of Northumbria, is powerfully depicted by Mr. Wm. Macready, assisted in vigorous style by Mr. Ernest Hamilton as Unwolf Unwolfson. The serious portions of the play are relieved by the vivacious acting of Mr. Bob Anderson and Miss Edith Lorraine, as Robin Shackleild and Elfrida respectively.

PERTH.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Mr. Charles Carey's successful musical comedy After the Ball is presented here this week for the first time in Perth. Mr. Algernon Lee assumes the rôle of Halliwell Menit, and amply justifies the reliance placed upon him in so important a part; Mr. Percy Baverstock's amusing portrayal of Colonel Joseph Menit is decidedly good; Mr. Buckstone Clare sustains the part of Martin with marked ability; Mr. Norman Bowyer does well as Dick Seymour; Miss M. Sadies' clever, vivacious impersonation of Nancy is vociferously applauded; Miss Queenie Finnis makes a great hit, and is favourably received as Nellie Mather; as also is Miss Eva Ellis in the rôle of Ruth Gay; Miss Nellie James making a successful Kitty.

PETERBOROUGH.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. A. Darville Vernon.—This week we have Mr. Brandon Thomas' company in Charley's Aunt. A capital cast deserve much commendation for their clever performance, and there is none more worthy of praise than Mr. Edmund Baker, whose assumption of Lord Fancourt Babberley would certainly be difficult to surpass; Mr. Sydney Lynn was well received as Jack Chesney; Mr. Basil Lynn scored as Charles Wykeham; Mr. Frederick Tyrrell gave a good rendering of Col. Sir Francis Chesney; and Mr. William Allison furnished a clever character impersonation of Stephen Spettigue, solicitor. Mrs. Margaret Moreau was a sweet and attractive Kitty Verdum, and Miss Eva Boyne and Miss Mary Mallalieu were decidedly charming as Amy Spettigue and Ella Delahay. Miss Katherine Vereker was well placed as Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez.

PLYMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr J. Langdon Lee.—A house, packed in every part, gladdened the hearts of performers and management alike when Mr. George Dance's company made its first appearance here on Monday in Veronique. The quaint dresses of the early Victorian period, coupled with the elaborate setting of the piece, were greatly appreciated, and the more popular musical numbers rapturously applauded. Miss Ruth Lincoln as Veronique earned high encomiums for her fine singing and delightfully graceful acting; Miss Ethel Negretti, who impersonates Madame Coquenard, has an excellent voice; Miss Lena Maitland is a dignified Countess de Champ Azur; and the dancing of Miss Gracie Sinclair as Denise is a prominent feature of the performance. Mr. Leslie Holland as Monsieur Coquenard causes roars of merriment by his quaint witticisms, the tit-bit being the joint effort in the second act with Mr. Fred Lyne as Monsieur Loustot, a bailiff; Mr. Roland Bottomley as Florestan de Vallancourt is heard to most advantage in the exceptionally pretty duets with Veronique, while the vicissitudes of Seraphin (played by Mr. Courtenay Comber) are enjoyed immensely.

Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Grant.—This week's production, entitled Defending His Honour, occupies a prominent position in dramas of the domestic type, and Mr. Percy Williams' company has completely mastered the details of a difficult production. The prominent members of the cast are Mr. Edward Lloyd as Douglas Byce, the hero; Mr. Alfred Brandon as Stephen Graid, the villain, undertaking the part with his customary ability; Mr. J. D. Geddes as the venerable George Duncan; and Mr. Tommy Gough as the versatile Richard Verison. Little Miss Kathleen Saunders plays the double part of Harry Bryce and Jack Bryce in a way which augurs well for her professional future, and Miss E. Kay as Ethel Bryce, the heroine, is as acceptable as ever.

Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—The principal position on the bill is this week accorded Haley's Juveniles, and the youngsters fully justify the confidence bestowed on them. Alexander and Hughes are finished exponents of the English concertina, and incidentally introduce some comedy business quite out of the hackneyed groove; Hector and Paulus, comedy acrobats, submit an item requiring enormous powers of endurance; G. W. Hunter is a comedian who is genuinely popular; Starr and Leslie are clever manipulators of the Indian clubs; and Little Rose Pink, a diminutive mite of some six summers, has all the abandon of an old music-hall artist. The remaining items, George Hyman (comedian), Nellie Rose (speciality dancer), and Vernon's Pictures, receive due measure of approbation.

PONTYPRIDD.—Royal Clarence Theatre.—Proprietors, Mrs. Trenchard and Miss L. Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company, in the domestic drama, entitled Two Little Drummer Boys, is here this week. Captain Darrell is ably portrayed by Mr. Archie Helsby. Mr. Harry Lyndon as Timothy Trimmer is a host in himself. Other characters are ably sustained by Messrs. Edward Birker, Beresford Louatt, Charles Gallier, Philip Redgrave, J. Macgrath, Miss Edie Macklin and Miss Kathleen Magee. Much interest is centred in the powerful portrayal of Alma Kingsley by Miss Mildred Eversleigh.

PORTH.—The Palace (late Opera House).—General-Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—Heading the bill, we have here the famous Taro Miyaki, the Japanese wrestler, who is accorded a warm reception; the Donatos, one-legged acrobatic clowns, are exceedingly clever; the Bros. Venoia give a finished performance on the comedy rings; Gus Granville, comedian, is a turn which is much appreciated; Leo Selwyn, the handcuff king and jail-breaker, gives a most creditable performance; the Two Izons, in the up-to-date comedy act The Captain and the Mate, deserve mention; the Two Neros are most successful in their acrobatic performances; Ward and Wylie, comedians and duettists, are also well received; some exceedingly pretty pictures are shown on the New Bioscope.

PORTSMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J.W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—The new and original comedy, with music, Mr. Popple of Appleton, is being presented here this week by Mr. Charles Macdona's company. Mr. Morris Harvey in the name part is admirable; Miss Mamie Brickwell is archness personified as La Bolero; Miss Claire Pridelle is a piquant Violet Brinton; Louise is well taken by Lulu Londen; Miss Louie René as Mrs. Doring is a capital foil to the weak and tearful Mrs. Henning, ably acted by Miss Stella St. Audrie. Mr. Augustin Symonds as George Hennay, and Mr. Fred F. Allen as Henry Doring play their respective parts with care and discretion; Mr. Herbert Dickeson is successful as Norman Popple; and Mr. Maguire makes the most of the part of Jacques Kenyon. The orchestra is under the direction of Mr. H. R. Mathews.

Prince's Theatre.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Mr. W. H. Hallatt and company are here this week with Two Little Sailor Boys. Miss Blanche Steele is an excellent Lola Grey; Miss Alice Defoe a sympathetic Mildred Grey; Miss Lizzie Chambers a bright and amusing Lucy Wilson; and the title-rôles are in the hands of Miss May Day as Cyril Grey, and Miss Ethel Frances Green as Tom Yorke, performances that are distinctly good. Mr. Jerrold Heather as Commander Noel Tregarthen gives a finished impersonation; Mr. Ellerslie Pyne plays Lieut. Redstone with ability; Mr. W. H. Hallatt as Capt. Tom Yorke is admirable; and Mr. Oscar Power in the part of Jack Jolly is responsible for some excellent touches of comedy.

Empire Palace.—Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—Albert Whelan, the Australian entertainer, is a capable mimic; Frank Cass, character vocalist, gives a highly meritorious turn; Cissie Scofield is a dainty and smart soubrette; Fred Spencer, expressionist, creates roars of laughter; Theodore Jones and company present a vocal scena in an effective and finished manner; the Continental Stilt Walkers are diverting; Bishop and Hanlon, speciality artists, are droll; and the Pender Troupe have a side-splitting sketch, Hands Up. Other attractions are Lydia, impersonating a Dutch doll; the Sisters Lavender, duettists and dancers; and Payne's Bioscope.

PRESTON.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—Local playgoers are greatly enjoying their first acquaintance with The Little Michus, which Mr. George Dance's company is presenting here this week. Mr. Foster Courtenay's impersonation of General des Ifs keeps the audience in continuous laughter; and Mr. Gilbert Childs in the complementary part of Bagnolet also creates unlimited merriment. Mr. William Everard is a soldierly representative of Gaston Rigaud; Mr. Leon Simkin makes the most of his opportunities as Pierre; and Mr. Robert C. Harcourt is quite satisfactory as Aristide Vert. Miss Florence Coverick and Miss Ethel Bryan are charming exponents of Marie Blanche and Blanche Marie respectively. Miss Florence Hylton cleverly depicts Madame Michu; Miss Bessie Mackenzie is a commendable Mlle. Herpin, and Mlle. Marjorie dances very gracefully as Mlle. St. Cyr. The artistic singing of the chorus merits praise, and the sparkling music is skilfully rendered by the augmented orchestra under the bâton of Mr. Maurice von Stratum.

Prince's Theatre. — Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Miss Florence Baines and company are appearing here this week in a new musical farce, entitled Miss Lancashire, Limited. Miss Baines, as Mary Ellen Thompson, keeps the house amused, and her well-sung songs gain applause; Mr. Will Casey in the character of Herbert Fox is a great success; Miss Annie Mitchell is a vivacious Eva Lancashire; Mr. David Donaldson as John Higgins leaves little to be desired; Miss Muriel Johnston makes a charming Bertha; Mr. Patrick Evans as Harry sings some delightful songs; Miss Pattie Groves as Bridget Thompson is a typical Irishwoman; Mr. Walter Hicks is genuinely humorous in the rôle of Grant; and Mr. Fayne Fletcher successfully undertakes the part of William Henry Thompson.

Royal Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H Broadhead and Sons; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. E. J. Linsdell.—A capital programme is submitted here this week. At the top of the bill is Dawson Dewick, who scores a success with his funny songs and stories; the Imires give a smart display of drill and wall-scaling; a brilliant leaping act is presented by the Errols; the Three Dorians perform difficult feats on a trapeze; Marston is a clever mimic; Jack Truman, tenor vocalist, renders his songs delightfully; the Brontes, in a comedy duologue, evoke hearty laughter. Other good turns are those of Calile and Walker, Avon and Crest, and T. B. Fayme, comedian. Bioscope pictures complete the entertainment.

Public Hall.—The annual visit of Hamilton's Excursions commenced here on Monday evening. A large number of the latest animated pictures are shown on the Eragraph. The programme also includes some excellent variety turns.

RADCLIFFE. — Grand Opera House. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Boothman.—The attraction here this week is Life's' Sweetest Sins. Mr. Arthur Jones as Captain Harold Marston makes an excellent hero; Mr. O. Douglas takes the part of the rascally Dr. Colbrooke with much enthusiasm; Mr. Robert Sawin and Mr. Clem Thorlock impersonate the two scoundrels well; Mr. Fred Wilson as Ernie Wodstone is also good; and Mr. Edgar Morgon ably fills in the humorous part of Bob Tanner. Miss Hazel Dent as Doreen Rivers is successful; Miss Mary Ainslie as Fay Colbrooke is graceful and pleasing; and the part of Doreen's maid is satisfactorily filled by Miss Walton.

RAMSGATE.—The Amphitheatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman.—The boards here have this week been occupied by Mr. Henry Bedford and company in the effective dramas, Gipsy Jack, and The See-Saw of Life. The first-named play was in the bill for the first three nights. Thursday was set apart for the annual benefit of Mr. Henry Bowman, the popular lessee of the house, and a special programme attracted a big booking, as one might expect, seeing the number of friends he has made in Ramsgate. The Shaughraun, by Mr. Bedford's company, was the chief item in the bill, and other names which figured in the programme were Mr. Henry Wardroper (musical monologue), Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Hunt ("The Widow and the Duke"), Mr. K. Cleveland (baritone), Mr. Harry Gold (comedian), and Mrs. Adelaide Ross-Ford (reciter), and an exhibition of Jury's Imperial Bioscope.

Royal Victoria Pavilion. — Proprietors, the Corporation of Ramsgate; Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jules Richeux.—Mr. Junius Booth has been appearing here during the past week with conspicuous success in the adaptation of Dumas's Monte Cristo. He gives a performance as Edmond Dantes that merits the highest praise, while the Mercedes of Miss Clara Estol is in all respects admirable. Their efforts are supplemented by those of an all-round excellent company. The scenic effects are admirable.

RAWTENSTALL. — Grand Theatre. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur De Frece.—Mr. Henry Swinerd's fine Dare-Devil Dorothy company opened here on Monday to a good house. Miss Marie Vere as Ruth Montrose was very successful; and Miss Dorothy Desmonde as Dorothy Montrose was both charming and dainty, whilst her songs were all exceedingly well-rendered. Miss Nellie Harcourt as Judith was a delightful comedienne, her comicalities and songs convulsing the audience, and the same can even more emphatically be said of Mr. Will Brereton as Silas Crump, who is the life and soul of the play whilst on the stage. Mr. William Ashley as George Fielding gave an excellent portrayal, and sang remarkably well; whilst Mr. Henry C. Ward as Edward Dudley scored as the villain of the play. As Mr. Featherston Haugh, Mr. Deane Cliffe imparted great humour to his impersonation. In the third act specialities are introduced by Miss Desmond, Miss Harcourt, Misses Mabel and Lillie Blake, who give a novel "reflection dance," Miss Vere and Mr. Brereton, the latter bringing down the house with his songs.

READING.—Royal County Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. Michael Dempsey.—Mr. William Greet's company is here this week with the musical comedy, The Earl and the Girl. Mr. Alfred Donohoe is extremely diverting as Jim Cheese, and is well supported by Miss Lena Hicks as Liza Shoddam; Mr. Thomas Kennard is an excellent representative of Dick Wargrave; Mr. Leslie Owen as the Hon. Crewe Boodle, Mr. Greville Hayes as A. Bunker Bliss, Mr. Ernest A. Plumpton as Downham, Mr. Sam Lysons as Mr. Talk, all take their parts well. Mr. Tom Stephens makes a characteristic landlord. Miss May Yates is very engaging as Elphin Haye, Miss Ida Stratham is a capable Daisy Fallowfield, and Miss Kathleen Gerard is excellent as the muscular Mrs. Shimmering Black.

ROCHDALE. — Theatre Royal. — Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague.—Hardie and Von Leer have an exceptionally strong company here this week with George R. Sims' play, For Life—and After. The staging is excellent, and interest is maintained throughout the performance. Mr. Vernon Sansbury submits a realistic impersonation of Richard Grey; Mr. Charles Osborne is prominent with a capital portrayal of Rube Hexham; Mr. Sidney Vautier acts well the part of the young doctor, Gilbert O'Neill; Mr Henry Hare in the dual rôle of Jack Huggett and Jim Huggett could not be better placed; Mr. Chris Mason is a typical showman as Joe Grimper, being ably assisted by Miss Edith Barwell as Mrs. Grimper; Miss Grace Heywood acts with distinction the difficult rôle of Marion Grey; Miss Muriel Deane plays with charming sweetness the part of Dora Grey; Miss M. Fawcett is effective as Jenny Huggett; and Miss Rosslyn Vayne faithfully depicts the passions of Loo Hexham.

Circus and Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Smith and Co.—John Higgins, described as the champion jumper of the world, performs remarkable feats; Will Rain and company present an amusing sketch, The Motor Maniac. Other items are submitted by the Bros. Onda, acrobatic comedians; Bessie Willow, burlesque artist; Lester, juggler; Nancy Renshaw, negro comedienne and bone soloist; Jack Hylton and Tom Parker, comedians; and Vernon's Bioscope.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—Lockhart's Elephants top the bill here this week. Remarkable sagacity is shown by these clever animals, who go through a series of most entertaining tricks under the management of Captain Taylor. David Poole, ventriloquist, gives a most amusing turn with his dolls; and Sadie Simpson (comedienne and coon artist), Frank Coyle (comedian), Davis and Davis (comedians), Dan Thomas ("My Old Woman"), Ray Royal (the chorus vocalist), and the Empire Bioscope complete the list.

ROTHERHAM.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy. — Mr. Augustine Knight and company are here this week on a return visit with The Assassin. Mr. Augustine Knight has a strong part as Prince Demetri; Mr. Edward E. Ashby is highly successful as Ivan Ipanoff; Mr. Theo. Balfour scores as Duke Karl; Mr. Cecil H. Raymond is an amusing Baron Alphonse, Mr. Chauncey Morris a capable General Nicol, Mr. Edwin Jenner a smart Captain O'Neil, Mr. Tom Taylor a humorous Peter, and Mr. Jack H. Smith does well as Evangie. Miss Georgina Hamilton is a vivacious Connie Jonathan, Miss Francis Waring an excellent Nita, Miss Marie E. Robertson scores as Katrina, and Miss Ella Vane gives a clever representation of Countess Wanda.

SALFORD.—Prince of Wales's.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Held in Bondage, presented by Mr. Vivian Grantham, drew a good house on Monday, when Miss Florence Tyrrell sustained the part of Zara in a sympathetic and convincing manner. Prince Mazaroff is well played by Mr. Richard Vane; Mr. George Child gives an excellent character sketch as Sir John Hawthorne; Mr. Charles Stirling works well as Ivan Droneski; Mr. George Scully as Harry Dunn and Miss Maude Merrick as Lisette cause much amusement. Leonie Devigne, an adventuress, is ably portrayed by Miss Grace Baring; Miss Joan Pereira makes the Baroness Valinski very droll; and an acceptable Princess Mazaroff is that by Miss Amy Rudd.

Regent Theatres of Varieties, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—One of the chief attractions here is John Lawson, in Humanity. Ella Shields has a flattering reception for her coon songs; Stanley's Urchins are a clever troupe of singers and dancers. The other items include Luis Hardt, the mighty atom, strong act; Dave McNeil, versatile comedian; Mason and Bart, clever comedy gymnasts; the Belmores (Bertha and Kittie), comediennes and expert dancers

Bandmann-Palmer, is appearing in a round of popular characters this week, supported by an excellent company. The week's programme was as follows:—Monday, Mary Queen of Scots; Tuesday, East Lynne; Wednesday, From Washerwoman to Duchess; Thursday, Sapho; Friday, Nell Gwynne; Saturday, Jane Shore. All the plays are mounted in a careful and artistic manner.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—The Trumpet Call, under the direction of Mr. Charles F. Cooke, is once more delighting Alexandra patrons. Mr. Joe Bracewell as the music hall agent, Ginnifer, repeated a performance full of rich low comedy; Mr. Leonard Yorke, looking every inch a "soldier and a man," acted with vigour and sincerity as Cuthbertson; Mr. C. F. Cooke was humorous and smart-looking as Sergeant-Major Millington; and Mr. Fred Bentley made a funny Tommy Dutton. The villain, Featherstone, was well represented by Mr. John Dennys; Mr. W. G. Blunt realised the character of the revengeful Redruth; Miss Elsie Evelyn Hill was a graceful and sympathetic Mrs. Cuthbertson; the tragic part of Astrea was acted with intensity and passion by Miss Dora Gilham; Miss Phyllis French made a vivacious Lavinia Ginnifer; and Miss Helena Rigby's Mrs. Wicklow was a clever character-sketch.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The bright star in the local variety firmament this week is Miss Winifred Hare, who opened on Monday to a packed audience, and sang three songs in a cultured and expressive manner. The other artists who successfully appeared were Mr. Mark Melford (a great Sheffield favourite) and his company, in a comic absurdity called Only a Wedding; Mr. Johnny Gilmore, a diverting vocal comedian; Mr. E. Sheldon, vocalist and whistler; the Henri Taylor Trio, marvellous equilibrists; Marba and Verity, in a funny and agile act; the great Selbini Troupe in a cycling show, which brought down the house; Miss Annie Abbott, the famous little "Georgia Magnet," in her remarkable exhibition of strength; the comedy trio, Goodfellow, Gregson, and Wade, in their sketch, Watch the Chalk; and Les Voces, operatic vocalists.

GRAND PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Richard Ralli.—Excellent business continues to follow Mr. Ralli's exertions for the comfort and entertainment of the Grand clientèle. The auditorium has been improved and the stage re-stocked with beautiful new scenery. This week are appearing Miss Carlotta de Yonson and her company, in a dramatic sketch; Millstead and Bell, the musical mascots; Miss Gladys Williams, serio; Mr. Horace Slade, dancer; the Camerons, burlesque artists; Mr. George Menva, magician; and Pallister's popular animated pictures.

SHREWSBURY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Licensee and Acting-Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—The highly-diverting musical comedy Sergeant Brue was played here on the first three nights of the present week by Mr. E. Lockwood's capital company, presented by Mr. Thos. McKenzie. Mr. J. Harold Curson was a smart and energetic Sergeant Brue; Mr. Robert Selby was well qualified to fill the part of Michael Brue, his singing being effective; Miss Fletcher Spurgeon made an attractive and sweet-voiced Aurora Brue; Miss Reydon Dallas a creditable Lady Bickenhall; Mr. Albert James a most amusing Crookie Scrubbs; Mr. F. Laceby a capital magistrate; and other parts were capably taken.

SOUTHAMPTON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Weston.—Enthusiastic and appreciative audiences are this week greeting Mr. Frank Curzon's company in The Girl Behind the Counter. The company includes Miss Isabel Jay (Winnie), and Mr. C. Hayden Coffin (Charles Chetwynd). Both these artists were in fine form, singing their ballads and duets with great effect, and gaining many encores. The support accorded these stars was excellent, Mr. J. F. McArdle (Gen. Willoughby) creating roars of laughter with his quaint mannerisms and funniosities. Mr. G. Davy Burnaby (Lord Gushington) and Mr. Lionel Victor (Adolphus Dudd) are both great local favourites; Mr. Fred Allandale scores as Monsieur Duval; and Mr. George Barrett as a nameless waiter is capital. Others who do well are Miss Violet Englefield (Millie Mostyn), Miss Helene Rose (Ninette), Miss Kathleen Courtney (Susie), Mr. E. W. Laceby (Rudolph), and Mr. A. E. E. Edwardes (Joseph). The augmented orchestra is conducted by the composer, Mr. Howard Talbot. Mr. Arthur Weston, the new manager of the theatre, has had a very busy week to begin with.

PALACE. — Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. W. Trussell.—Mr. Frederick Maxwell's sketch, Lord Harkaway, occupies a prominent position in the current bill, and is exceedingly well played; Maurin's illuminated fountains are pleasing; Harry Freeman is applauded for his comic ditties; Elton and Elma excel as acrobats; and others who do well are Daisy Morell, a pleasing vocalist; and Rowland Hill and W. B. Raby, a couple of quaint comedians.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. P. Howell.—On Tuesday evening this house celebrated its first birthday, and many happy returns of the day were accorded Mr. Howell by patrons of this popular resort. Herr Fritz is a wonderful illusionist, and mystifies everyone; Daisy Jerome is a chic little comedienne; the world's worst wizards, Walton and Lester, convulse the house with laughter; the Collinson Combination are very popular in The Cook's Quest; George Linton is a clever wire-walker; Rosie Archer as a mimic wins golden opinions; Fred Keeton is a smart comedian; and the Sisters Poole dance gracefully.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA. — EMPIRE THEATRE. — Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—The attraction this week is the play entitled The Village Blacksmith, produced by Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey. Than Mr. Sam Livesey a more able impersonator of John Strong, the village blacksmith, could not be wished for, and the child Harry is pleasingly and cleverly taken by Miss Bertha Hanbury; Mr. Joseph Carter is responsible for the characterisation of the villain, Captain Leo, whose accomplice, Lucas Marlow, is successfully taken by Mr. Edwin Maydew; Mr. George V. Campbell certainly does himself great credit as Billy Twigg, and dances with ease and cleverness; Mr. Thomas E. Marshall and Mrs. T. C. Livesey deserve mention as Jeremiah and Sal Parkins respectively; Miss Cassie Le Grande is admired for her portrayal of Ruth Parkins; and Miss Maggie Edwards, who is entrusted with the all-important rôle of Kate Strong, displays great ability.

THE KURSAAL.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. P. T. J. Bacon.—Miss Eileen McCarthy's variety company, which proved so entertaining and successful last week, is responsible for this week's attraction. Mr. Tom Carpenter, C.A., is heard to greater advantage each time, whilst Miss Eileen McCarthy also continues to maintain her high reputation, and both artists dance well; Mr. Wal Burt contributes his songs being tuneful and well rendered; Mr. Will Sutton's excerpts from an extensive répertoire are interesting and pleasing; Messrs. Carpenter and Burt and Miss McCarthy also contribute, and a highly amusing item is The Automaton, or Boggle's Blunder. The pictures on the Bioscope are still a feature, the weekly changes being most welcome.

SOUTHPORT. — OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietors, The Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary, Mr. R. Singleton.—Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, with their excellent company, are paying their annual visit here this week, the popular artists opening on Monday with The Elder Miss Blossom. Mrs. Kendal repeated her former success in her inimitable representation of the title-rôle, which she depicted with a natural pathos and realistic touch which at once appealed to, and fascinated the audience; Mr. Kendal in the part of Andrew Quick played in his well-known artistic and brilliant manner; Mr. Ernest Hendrie was excellent in every way as the country gentleman Christopher Blossom; Mr. Bassett Roe scored as Major Twentyman; Miss Moore-Lane was a charming and clever exponent of Sophia Blossom; Mr. Metcalfe Wood submitted a capital character-study as Withers the valet, and Mrs. A. B. Tapping effectively represented the prim parlourmaid Cooper. The week's programme includes The Housekeeper and The Ironmaster.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. J. and F. Coulson.—The drama The Beast and the Beauty is staged here this week. Mr. W. S. Hartford as Jack Barrymore by his earnest acting evoked the sympathies of the house; Miss Alice Bowes as Violet charmingly portrayed the part; Mr. Bernard Mervyn scored as Henry Denver; Mr. William E. Passmore was good as the Earl of Loman; Mr. Eric Campbell as Ned Samson interpreted the character convincingly; the Delilah Vane was well delineated by Miss D. Gynne; and Tom Chicken, the light-weight champion, played by Mr. H. Talbot, was well received.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—Lady Mansell's clever juveniles have been accorded a good reception; Herbert Darnley's company are vastly amusing in a sketch entitled Muscles; Woodhouse and Wells are old favourites here; a good comedy sketch is submitted by Phillips and Terry; some eccentric dancing is contributed by Will Vokes, comedian; and other enjoyable items are contributed by Rita and Roma, clever dancers; Madge Osmond, male impersonator; Beatrice Renée, comedienne and dancer; and the American bioscope.

TIVOLI. — Proprietors and Managers, Councillor J. M. Hall and Mr. Jos. Sweney.—At the top of the bill is Mabel Thorne, who delights the audience; Will Letters, comedian, does well; Earle and Melville cause much merriment; Ward and Davis contribute a good sketch. Other items are the Haverleys, American song illustrators; Maidie Berker, entertainer; and Walter Payne's Photo-bioscope.

ST. HELENS.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader.—Mr. Walter Reynolds' company is here in the popular play, Mr. Smith. There have been some changes in the cast since the last visit, but the efficiency of the representation is maintained, and the interest is as strong as ever. The principal characters are creditably acted by the Misses Mildred Cottell, Phyllis Relph, Daisy England, Elsina Gaunt, and Messrs. Cecil du Gue, Russell Norrie, Sydney Price, W. Dunlop, Austin Spencer, and G. F. Ross.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Will Sley, and F. Wilmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. V. Carnell.—Heading the bill here this week are the accomplished comedians and acrobats, the Marvellous Craggs, in a sketch, Billy. Mr. Walter Munroe is a good Irish impersonator; Miss Lily Black is a comedienne of much merit; Mr. J. S. James gives a good turn as a banjoist and bone soloist; Happy Atwood scores a decided success; Mr. Sid Bandon has made a hit as a character comedian; "the society clown," Dandy George, and dog Rosie, cause much hilarity; and the Barrascope with new pictures delights all.

STOCKPORT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—The attractive character of The Christian has been shown here in the large audiences that have witnessed the capital representations given this week by Mr. Wentworth Cooke's company. Mr. Frank Tennant acts with power and effect as the Hon. John Storm; and Horatio Drake is commendably presented by Mr. W. Brisco Owen. As Lord Robert Ure Mr. Frederick Scarth acts with natural ease; and Mr. Charles E. Dering makes a typical Archdeacon Wealthy. Miss Grace Chalmers gives a charming impersonation of Glory Quayle; and Miss Vashti Wellbourne is pleasing as Polly Love.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Black.—Heading the bill here this week are Austin and Cowan, whose vocal abilities are greatly appreciated; Stylo is a clever hoop manipulator; McCann's performing dogs are most entertaining; Sandy and Carl are neat dancers and clever and amusing boxers; Gracie Taylor, comedienne, sings popular ditties with success; Carney Bros., comedy duettists, are distinctly pleasing; the Grisse Trio provide abundant fun in their acrobatic pantomime act, On the Tiles; and May Zant and her juveniles, coon vocalists and dancers, and Charles Beanland, comedian and contortionist, contribute a satisfactory share to the evening's enjoyment.

MECHANICS' INSTITUTE. — The Parisian Animated Picture Company is paying its third visit here with a series of up-to-date and interesting views.

STOKE.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Manager, Mr. H. Miller.—Another good programme is submitted this week. Professor Fuller introduces a wonderful mystery, viz., "Astarte," which is excellent; the Schafers are extraordinary athletes; Ruby Bijou dances cleverly, and is appreciated; the Four Burnells have a funny sketch in Fun on the Links; the Calcotts are expert banjoists, their execution being admirable; W. J. Lytton is a comedian of excellence; the Jalvans provide a clever and interesting turn; J. H. Wakefield as a coon singer and dancer is capital; and the pictures are good.

SUNDERLAND. — AVENUE THEATRE.—Director and Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Machin.—Claudian is the attraction here this week. Mr. William Maclaren gives a particularly fine rendering of the title-rôle; and Mr. F. Owen Chambers makes the most of his opportunities as Thuriogalus Tetrarch. Mr. Douglas Earle is well placed as Agazil; while Mr. Chas. T. Chaloner scores as Belos. Miss Maud Garth is a charming Edessa; and Miss Lily C. Bandmann gives a refined and pathetic rendering of Almida.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jos. Hemingway.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company, in Revenge, is drawing crowded houses here this week. Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson gives a powerful impersonation of Prince Orloff; and Mr. H. Bonhote Wilson submits a manly rendering of Captain Loris Vanease. The King finds an apt exponent in Mr. Jerrold Ord; whilst as Lieutenant Maurice Miss Grace Aimiers is particularly smart. Mr. L. Usher is a pleasing Captain Carr; and Mr. Russell Bogue is amusing as Jim Jennings. As the Queen Miss Violet Carlyle could not well be improved upon; and as Draga Nanessa Miss Amy Ellam is excellent.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Acting-Managers, Messrs. A. Brown and S. B. Stringer.—Mr. Harry Cadle's company, in Casey's Court, heads the bill here. The programme also includes the Karno Trio, in the sketch entitled The Traveller's Rest; Janet H. Reynolds, vocalist; the New York Nippers, in the sketch entitled Bedtime; Billy Burns, a singing pit lad; Frank Maura, the Mexican wonder; Verno and Voyce, in selections from their répertoire; and Vernon's animated pictures.

SWINDON.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Responsible Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners; Musical-Director, Mr. Fred Lucas.—For this week the management has arranged a double attraction, opening on Monday with another visit of Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's East Lynne company for the first three nights. In the rôle of Lady Isabel Miss Julie Kennard is admirable throughout, and Miss Jessie Bayes deserves the highest praise for her work as Willie, especially in the death-bed scene, while Miss Ethel Saville is pleasing as Barbara Hare. Mr. Alfred Beaumont gives a clever and powerful study of Archibald Carlyle, and Mr. Harry Nunn proves himself an excellent exponent of the part of Captain Levison. Mr. Alfred Tate is great as Bullock, while Mr. C. C. Grattan as Justice Hare, and Miss Ethel Hardacre as Cornelia are responsible for considerable fun. On Thursday The Blue Moon was presented for the first time, and was accorded an enthusiastic greeting. Mr. Mouillot's company, under the general management of Mr. Gordon Starkey, includes that excellent artist, Mlle. Marguerite Naudin, in the leading rôle.

TONYPANDY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ridgewood Barrie.—Messrs. Chas. H. Phelps and Harry Tilbury's company this week occupies the boards with His Dishonoured Wife. As Frank Lindon Mr. Chas. H. Phelps is seen to advantage; the part of Neil Lockeley is ably played by Mr. Frank Harvey; Mr. Alfred Geo. Fry as Lord Devant is successful; Mr. Bernard Webb does well as Tom Redman; Mr. Harry Tilbury gives a humorous impersonation of Mickey Doolan; Miss Belle Tilbury makes an effective Florence Lindon; and credit is due to Miss Amy Dalby as Alice Harvey.

WAKEFIELD.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's company is providing this week's attraction in the play Lucky Durham. Mr. Edmund Kennedy gives a decidedly clever and forcible rendering in the title-rôle; Mr. Arthur Leigh scores as the Hon. Reginald Steighton; Mr. A. E. Walker is good as Mr. Vallerton, and Mr. Robert Forsyth is well placed as Lord Mountfallon, and the part of Arthur Welcome is capably undertaken by Mr. W. V. Simmons Lynn; Miss Alice Esther Belmore gives an admirable impersonation of the part of Helen Vallerton; Miss Louisa Gourlay submits a charming portrayal as Mrs. Durham; Miss Florence Dullhunty is successful as the Hon. Margaret Steighton, and Miss Francis Wolviston displays ability as Lady Mountfallon.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Henry Lucas.—The Musical Savonas remain another week, and continue to draw good houses with their excellent musical performance. Miss Chummie La Mara, comedienne, sings in spirited style; Harley and Hardon, comedy acrobats, contribute a good turn; Babs Lloyd is a clever juvenile artist; Thorpe and Coe, sketch artists, merit favour; and Will Sergeant, vocalist, and Miss Nellie Van, character comedienne, also appear.

WALSALL.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood. — A capital programme is being presented here this week. Henri Cot, the French giant, and Prince Colibri, the Russian midget, head the bill. Also appearing are Florence Lambeth and Robert Robertson in Scots Folks' Wooin'; Halma, society juggler; the Marsumas, comedy cyclists; Adeline Yohle, comedienne and dancer; Geo. Reeves, the conjuring comedian; and the Lyons Trio of pantomimists and dancers; the American Bioscope, as usual, is interesting.

GRAND THEATRE.—General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—This week's attraction here is The Fatal Wedding, by Mr. Bert Coote's company. Miss Katherine Clarke makes a capital Mabel; Miss Leah Marlborough does well as Cora; Mr. Wilson Howard is successful in the part of Howard Wilson; Robert Curtis is well portrayed by Mr. Guy Hastings; the humorous parts are taken by Miss Blanche Stanley as Bridget and Mr. Edward Morgan as Toto; Miss Madge McCalla gives a clever rendering of the child Jessie; the chorus by trained children is exceedingly good.

WELLINGBOROUGH.—EXCHANGE HALL.—Excellent in every respect were the performances given here on Monday and Tuesday by Mr. G. Dance's The Girl from Kay's company. Mr. Stanley Ravenscroft (Harry Gordon, and Miss Marie Greenhouse (Norah Chalmers) were a capital newly-married couple; Miss Irene Vere, conspicuous for her dancing, being a sprightly Ellen; Mr. Harry Jennings scored at every possible opportunity in the part of the Hon. Percy Fitzthistle; Messrs. Edwin Forde and Louis Edmunds were both droll when occasion offered as Theodore Quench and Mr. Chalmers respectively; a captivating Winnie Harborough was found in Miss Jessie Fraser; Mr. J. W. Hooper worked admirably in bringing out the fun of Max Hoggenheimer. It must, however, be said that in Act II. the honours were shared with Mr. Claude Dampier, whose excellent study of the hall porter, Joseph, was a delightful piece of acting.

WEST BROMWICH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. P. Moore.—Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Elliott's company, in A City of Sin, is proving an attraction here this week; Mr. Henry W. Hatchman, who is a very capable actor, plays the rôle of Mortain, of the police; Paul Torraine finds a powerful exponent in Mr. Conrad Heywood; Mr. Wilfrid Graham as Zip Barzon is good; the comic element is in the hands of Mr. C. W. Spencer as Bibi Leboeuf; and Mr. Val W. Gully as Titi Culotte, and both do their best to keep the house in good humour; Alice Bertrand is cleverly portrayed by Miss Edith Wallis; Miss Jenny Weston scores in the character of Ilma; Miss Polly Denville and Miss Elvira Stuart are well placed in the respective parts of Zazotte and Chouette.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Managing Director, Mr. T. M. Sylvester; Manager, Mr. H. W. Player.—The programme here this week includes Onda and Leon, who give a unique performance on the bars; the vocal work of Sinclair and Parr is of excellent quality; Prince and Milner deserve great praise for their skilful manipulation of the hoops; Billy Farrell greatly pleases the audience with his clever dancing and coon songs; peals of laughter followed the funny antics and escapades of Wal Pink's Workmen in Repairs; a real smart turn is submitted by the Paolias; Miss Dolly Denton is well received; the Hippodrome pictures are as good as ever.

WEST HARTLEPOOL. — GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. J. A. Lewis.—No Man's Land, which is being played this week by Miss Ida Millar's company, is on a return visit. The earnest and commendable acting by Miss Millais in the rôle of Mary Bathurst enlists sympathy. Mr. Henry Herne plays the part of Harry Oaklands in a manly and vigorous style; Mat Marsden is portrayed with good dramatic effect by Mr. A. G. Lytton, as also is Silas Moore by Mr. Frank Denis, and acceptable humour is added to the piece by Mr. William Mallalieu as Dr. Buxton, and Mrs. Mallalieu as Mrs. Poodle.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—The dry humour and originality of Harry Pleon as P.C. Pudden, who made his first appearance here on Monday, kept the house in one continual roar. The sketch The Artist and His Monkey, introduced one of the best imitations of animals that has been seen here. The funny gymnastic display by Du Gros Trio is irresistible; Ted Saunders' imitations of star artists are good; a pleasing turn is provided by the Sisters Gilbert, speciality dancers; and the programme also includes Sterling and Love in instrumental comedy; Dan Conroy, comedian; and George Collins, comedian.

TOWN HALL.—All-of-a-Sudden Peggy was produced for the first time in West Hartlepool on Monday, when it received that greatest compliment of all, a crowded house. The piece was well played by a company under the direction of Miss Florence Mudd. Peggy was admirably depicted by Miss Florence Mudd, who entered into the fun of her part with great spirit; Mr. Horace Maclean as Anthony created unbounded mirth, and was soon a great favourite with the audience; Miss Ida Mudd showed great skill in representing Lady Crackenthorpe; Mr. Evan Hayward played the part of Jimmy Keppel in creditable style; a vein of genuine Irish humour was carried through the play by Miss Beatrice Harrison as Mrs. O'Mara; Miss Mabel Kay was a graceful Millicent; Mr. John Cameron played the part of Major Archie Phipps in a style quite in keeping with the character; Miss Winifred Sivewright as the Hon Mrs. Colquhoun was a distinct success; and Mr. Henry Crawford and Mr. George Corner made the most of their respective rôles of Jack Menzies and Lucas.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Mr. Mouillott's company appeared here on Monday and Tuesday in that successful musical comedy, The Blue Moon. Mlle. Marguerite Naudin gave a charming impersonation of Chandra Nil; Evelyn Ormsby was delightfully portrayed by Miss Dorma Morgan; Miss May Audrey must be given unstinted praise for her delineation of Millicent Leroy, Miss Mary Glanbrane made an excellent Lady Brabasham; Miss Kitty Baughton (Miss Lovelhill), Miss Emily Wallace (Miss Lilian Moore), Miss Mabel Loten (Oma), and Miss Cliny Touissant (Chua) were all good exponents of their respective characters. Mr. Charles Stephenson's extremely comical acting and eccentric dancing as Private Charles Taylor fairly brought down the house. Equally successful was that clever comedian, Mr. Ainslie Burton as Moolraj; Mr. Victor Wallace gave a praiseworthy performance of Major Vivian Callabon; Mr. Arthur Radcliff is entitled to eulogy for his Captain Jack Ormesby; and so, too, is Mr. Basil Mercer for his Bobbie Scott. Very commendable was the Prince Badahur of Mr. Fred Inwood; Mr. Arthur Lawrence (Hon. Archie May), Mr. Otto Alexander (Clive Mansfield), and Mr. J. W. Kibble (Leslie Arbuthnot) well deserve encomiums. Mr. Gilbert Heron's company opened on Wednesday in that delightful comedy, The Superior Miss Pellender, this being a return visit.

WEST STANLEY.—VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Raws; Responsible-Manager, Mr. John Cassidy.—Mr. Edwin Garth is here this week with the musical comedy entitled McKenna's Flirtation. Mr. Dennis Campbell is a capital Tim McKenna, sen., and the part of Tim, jun., is in the able hands of Mr. Wallace Childs; Mr. Edwin Garth shows a rich vein of humour in the rôle of Michael Ryan; Mr. C. W. Cudd as Greenleaf Blackstone Kent is responsible for some good work; Mr. E. Percival as Willet Chase is a capital society swell; Mr. E. Sutherland as Catherine McDonnell evokes much amusement; Miss Amy Knott is a capital Mrs. Ryan; the rôle of Mary Ellen Ryan is in the hands of Miss L. Langley; Miss Cissy Vyner ably fills the part of Anastasia McKenna; Miss Minnie Wallace is good as Magga Casy; Miss Annie Graham as Sadie Monabam, Miss Daisy Lee as the jealous Annie Carey, Mr. James McKee as Patrick McQuirk, and Mr. William Yates as Pan Handle Mike are also worthy of mention.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Stanley Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company in The Power of the Cross is here this week. Mr. Hartwell J. Kirby gives a striking portrayal of Baron Woulfe Curzola; Mr. Harry C. Rutland is good as Gerald Fairfax; Mr. Royce Carleton represents the rôle of Dr. Leslie Fairfax in an able manner; Mr. E. Nugent scores in the Irish character, Tim O'Dowd; Mr. Arthur Read is quite at home as David Kingsley; Miss Cissie St. Elmo displays some powerful acting as Rita Lascelles; Miss May Grace is a winsome Blanche Kingsley; Miss Stanley Burt does well as Margaret Seaton; Mr. Fred Tenaur gives a smart portrayal of Benj. Hawk; Mr. Mark Collins is good as Joe Foster; the part of Inspector Blake is ably embodied by Mr. Rupert Ronald, and well seconded by Mr. Brandon Brice as Sergeant Watt.

WIDNES.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Kiddie.—This week the boards are occupied by Mr. Walter Melville's company with the strong melodrama, Her Second Time on Earth. The play created quite a sensation here on the first visit three years ago. Miss Hilda Beverley is still appearing as the fascinating adventuress, Dora Gray; Mr. W. H. Porter is the polished scoundrel Guy Brand to the life; Mr. John Nolan is excellent as the somewhat susceptible Capt. Norman, and Mr. Frank R. Robertson is responsible for a manly delineation of the part of Jack Carlton; Mr. Leonard Aardale presents a striking portrait of Beppo, the ill-fated Italian; Mr. Cyril Vernon does well as Tom Norman; Miss Dorothy Hildebrand is a charming and convincing Laura Norman; while Miss Polly Marsh reveals undoubted ability in the part of the hag, Elizabeth Burke. The beach scene—a marvel of stage craft—fairly "brings down the house."

WIGAN. — ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Worswick.—Mr. F. Mouillot's principal company has attracted large audiences during the week in A Message from Mars. Mr. Herbert J. Bentley gives an intelligent exposition of Horace Parker; Mr. Wm. H. Brougham displays elocutionary power as the Messenger; and Miss Flora Hastings, Miss Peggy E. Yeoman, and Miss Joan Ellis all maintain the high reputation of the company in their respective rôles.

THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Worswick.—Leoni Clarke exhibits a number of highly-trained animals—cats, mice, rabbits, monkeys, canaries, &c., which create considerable diversion; and Barton and Ashley are responsible for an amusing sketch. F. V. St. Clair, in topical songs; Mlle. Zelda, in musical novelties; Flo Hill, comedienne and dancer; Le Brun and Irene, equilibrists and jugglers; Chas. Vandyke and Co. in a pantomimic absurdity; Ted Waite, vocal comedian; and Belrose and De Velin, duettists, all assist in maintaining a capital programme.

POOLE'S MYRIORAMA.—This popular combination of pictures and stage artists are booked for a two-weeks' stay at the Drill Hall with Mr. John R. Poole as guide, philosopher, and friendly showman. In addition to the instructive pictures, including scenes of the earthquakes at San Francisco and Valparaiso, there are several capable performers. Harry Raymond, the American coon, is an extremely smart exponent of clog-dancing. Other entertaining features are Woolford's trained ponies; Dane's marionettes; the Fordyces; Funny Chef, an amusing clown; and Maxey and Pete, comedy cyclists.

Mr. John Worswick, the managing-director of the Wigan Entertainments Company—Royal Court Theatre and Hippodrome—we regret to say still lies dangerously ill at his residence at St. Anne's-on-Sea. Although his condition showed some improvement on Wednesday night, his state of health is most precarious.

WOLVERHAMPTON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Lessees and Managers, Mr. E. H. Bull and Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Percival.—The Carl Rosa Opera company is paying another visit here, and on Monday a fine performance of Carmen was heartily welcomed by a large and appreciative audience. Mr. Jules Walker as Jose sang with his accustomed ability; Mr. Charles Victor was a great success as Escamillo, his voice and acting being alike excellent; and Mr. Alec Richard was seen and heard to advantage as Zuniga; chief honours, however, must be accorded to Miss Doris Woodall, whose singing as Carmen was brilliant, her acting being also full of vivacity; as Micaela Miss Retta McAllister was delightful; Miss Dorothy Mayfield was an admirable Mercedes; and Miss Ina Hill a charming Frasquita. Faust, the Bohemian Girl, Maritana, Trovatore, Fidelio, and Tannhäuser were also included in the week's programme.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—A good bill this week includes James Fawn, comedian; Alice Raymond, cornetist and bugler; Anna Kenwick, American comedienne and danseuse; Frank Elliston and company; the Sisters Marion, juvenile vocalists; Julian Mack, patter comedian; and George Race, comedian and sifleur, also appear.

HIPPODROME.—Here we have George Hackenschmidt looming large at the head of the week's bill, and large audiences are being attracted to see the great wrestler. Other items in the programme are the Jackley Wonders, acrobats; Arthur Slater, whistler; Cavalli, ventriloquist; Barney Kane, Scotch comedian, and Lil O'Gorman, vocalist and dancer.

WORCESTER. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. L. Wards. — Fred Karno's company of comedians is this week presenting for the first time here the musical extravaganza, Saturday to Monday. Mr. Rolando Martin is excellent as the irrepressible Jaggs, and keeps the house in uproarious laughter. The company is a numerous one, and the following are most capable exponents of their respective parts; Miss Amy Rogerson (Clorinda), Miss Daisy Stone (Violet), Miss Ada Maskell (Aunt Skinner), Mr. J. W. Bradbury (Mr. Blake), Mr. Dick Harcourt (Mr. Potts), Mr. C. H. Summers (Tom Freeman), Mr. J. Fletch (Spinks), Mr. V. H. Crawford (Jaggs, jun.), Mr. Patten (Bartlett Jaggs), Master T. McDonagh (Ellen Jaggs).

WORTHING.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Mr. Charles Harrington's excellent combination was here for the first three nights with Uncle Tom's Cabin. Mr. J. Carr gives an excellent and pathetic impersonation of the character of Uncle Tom; Mr. J. H. Renney presents a masterly display as Phineas Fletcher; Mr. Stanley Howard is good as Mr. St. Clair; Mr. Leslie Beaufort makes a manly George Harris; Messrs. John Gibson, J. Henry Rogers, and James Jackson are alike effective as Wilson, Legree, and Dan Haley; and Mr. Walter Langford funnily enacts the part of Marks. Miss Hettie Johnson effectively delineates the character of Eliza Harris; Miss Annie Watson creates roars of laughter in an excellent presentment of Topsy; and Little Minnie represents Little Eva excellently. The remaining characters are well placed, the whole play being thoroughly enjoyed.

WREXHAM. — EMPIRE MUSIC HALL. — Proprietor, Mr. J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr. Herbert Nicholls.—This week, Miss Ella Dean, the comedienne, has been the great attraction, ably supported by Hans and Lux, in their original comedy act; Mr. Martin Haley, character comedian; Miss Dora Dyson, versatile vocalist; Mr. Eugene Brant, eccentric comedian and dancer; and the pictures.

YORK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington and Sons; General-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—The farcical comedy, What the Butler Saw, is the attraction here this week. Miss Ada Blanche is appearing as Mrs. Barrington, and on Monday night she was heartily received. This clever lady has not lost any of her sparkling vivacity, and her success is most marked. Miss Marie Daltra as Miss Foder is thoroughly natural. Miss Jennie Wigney makes a delightful Nora. Miss Dorothy Garth as Maria is dashing and amusing. Miss Hylda Davies and Miss Vera O'Connell as the Sisters Dunlop are alike excellent. Mr. Lionel Rignold was received with great enthusiasm, and as the butler he has many opportunities, of which he takes the fullest advantage. A large amount of work falls on the shoulders of Mr. C. Fawcett, who is heartily applauded for his capital representation of Jack Barrington. Mr. Roy Byford as Professor Shale is quaintly humorous. Sir Charles Foden, in the safe hands of Mr. Reddick Anderson, is a breezy performance. Mr. Harry H. Rignold as Abraham Weinstein is amusingly funny.

OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brooke.—The programme presented here this week includes Melot, the conjuror, who is a great attraction. H. Flockton-Foster's company present a laughable sketch, entitled Ferdie's Ma-in-law, which is well received. Barney Vox is a good ventriloquist, who causes roars of laughter. Gus Garrick is a clever comedian. Garson Hicks, a ragtime dancer, is much appreciated. Mr. A. E. Clifford is a vocalist who uses his voice with excellent effect. Ada Parker, a young coon songstress and dancer, is deserving of a word of praise for her clever work. Harris and Worth, in song and patter, cause much fun.

YOUTH AND THE STAGE.

THE PART THE HAIR PLAYS IN APPEARANCE.

Youth is the watchword of the present age. It is to the young and ardent that the chief prizes in the great lottery of life fall nowadays. Whatever our business or occupation may be, everyone of us realises the great advantage of preserving as long as possible a fresh and youthful appearance.

And in no walk of life is this of so supreme an importance as it is in the world of the Stage. Here youth is at a premium, and beauty is a priceless possession. It follows, then, "as the night the day," that anything that deals with the question of how best to make use of and to preserve those gifts with which nature has endowed them must be of the greatest interest to the members of the Profession.

Now in this connection there are two rather peculiar points to which we wish to refer.

The first is, that whereas most people devote a large amount of time and trouble to the care of the complexion and the improving of the figure, calling in to their aid massage and physical exercise, and all the arts of the chemist, the perfumer, and the beauty specialist, yet very few of them give anything but the most cursory attention to the hair. And yet the hair, "woman's crowning glory," as the poet says, holds a very important position in the scheme of beauty. Nothing preserves the appearance of youth more than a beautiful, glossy head of hair. Nothing heralds the slow, steady advance of years more distinctly than hair that is faded, and thin, and lacking in pristine brightness.

And if the hair is not properly tended to, this fate is sure to come to it. All those who are engaged in professions entailing deep thought and mental stress are very liable to become prematurely bald and grey. Particularly is this so

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Oct. 8, the Drama entitled
"EAST LYNNE."

A striking performance of East Lynne is being given here this week by Miss Dorothy Grimston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, and a full West-end company. A hearty welcome has been accorded this "old evergreen" play by good audiences throughout the week, galvanised into new life as it is by the present excellent company. In the assumption of Lady Isabel, Miss Dorothy Grimston assumes no light task, but her excellent delivery and resource overcome all difficulties. Miss Grimston exerts herself to the utmost in the emotional phases of the part, and wins admiration on all sides for her sympathetic exposition of a trying rôle. Miss Helena Millais charmingly portrays the part of Barbara Hare. Her impersonation of the bright, ingenuous maiden is in every way charming, and she sings "When other lips" with delightful expressiveness. Miss Agnes Byron does capable work as the elderly Cornelia Carlyle. Mr. Walner Gregory as Archibald Carlyle submits an effective and manly rendering of the part; and as the tyrannical, unforgiving Justice Hare, Mr. Harry Barford gives a good account of himself. A word of commendation is earned and bestowed upon Mr. David G. Noble, who contributes a sound embodiment of Richard Hare. Mr. Frank Harding, who possesses no inconsiderable dramatic knowledge, gives a fine characterisation of Captain Levison, and Mr. Edward Sydney seems exactly "cut out" for the part of Lawyer Dill. Mr. James A. Storey is an excellent representative of Lord Mountsevern, and Mr. Lloyd Townrow is responsible for good honest fun as P.C. Bullock. The remainder of the cast—Miss Mary Stafford Smith (Joyce), Miss Marion Beresford (Suzanne), Miss Dorothy Townrow (Wilson), Miss Dollie Swift (Little Willie), and Miss Maud Lord (Little Isabel)—appropriately act their respective rôles, and the play is very well mounted and adequately staged.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 8, the Farcical Comedy, in Three Acts, by C. H. Hawtrey, entitled
"THE PRIVATE SECRETARY."

Mr. J. Bannister Howard is playing a safe card when he presents Mr. Eugene Stafford's company in the above well-known farcical comedy and the house is full and the bookings good. The comedians keep the audience in roars of laughter, even the orchestra being moved to great mirth. The principal share of the fun is allotted to the Uncle Cattermole and the Rev. Robert Spalding, represented by Mr. W. Hargreaves and Mr. Donald Price-Evans respectively, both being admirably suited to the parts by nature, for Mr. Hargreaves rivals the late W. J. Hill in bulk and Mr. Price-Evans is smaller and slighter than Mr. W. S. Penley. Mr. Hargreaves depends little on make-up for effect, his boisterous manner and liverish irritability being easily assumed, and Mr. Price-Evans does not miss a chance to give effect to the familiar mannerisms of the little curate. Mr. W. T. Elworthy as Mr. Marsland is a bluff and breezy Squire, and looks well in his costume as "M.F.H." As Douglas Cattermole, Mr. Randolfe Reade makes his rendering acceptable, whilst Mr. Jas. P. B. Hussey as his mercurial companion, Harry Marsland, is full of life and "go." Mr. Vivian Gilbert as the ambitious Bond-street tailor, with leanings towards high life, is very amusing. Mrs. Alfred Davis acts in finished style, and makes Miss Ashford, the chaperon, a dear old lady, quite of the old school. Miss Cecily Wade as Mrs. Stead, Cattermole's landlady, hardly looks old enough in her make-up, but otherwise is very good. Miss Dora Gray is girlish and roguish enough as Edith Marsland, and with her friend, Eva Webster (Miss Beth Elliott), keeps the audience well interested and amused whenever they are on the stage, while both of them succeed in looking charming.

ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Oct. 8,
the play, by E. Hill-Mitchelson, entitled
"REVENGE."

The excellent stock company has surpassed even the successes of the previous three weeks in presenting that stirring military play Revenge, and although the performance on Monday evening lasted till a very late hour, the interest of the audience was retained to the very end. The hard-working company is headed by Mr. Albert Ward, and this week he is seen in the trying part of a young captain who early in the play is blinded by his enemies. Mr. Ward is entirely successful throughout, and his great dramatic powers enable him to take full advantage of the many opportunities offered by this fine part. Mr. Horace Hunter is again seen in the rôle of the villain, and, as usual, scores repeatedly by his admirable acting. Mr. Harry Crane cleverly plays the long-suffering King; Mr. Brian Daly affords much amusement as Count Mussant; Mr. W. Felton makes a smart Captain David Carr, R.N.; Lieut. Maurice is effectively played by Miss Hannesley; that really clever comedian Mr. Teddy Coleman causes roars of laughter as Jim Jennings, A.B.; Mr. Alfred Holles also contributes to the fun as Stephen; Miss Agnes Paulton, daughter of the popular comedian Mr. Harry Paulton, shows hereditary talent as Tusha, and carries by storm the hearts of the male part of the audience. Miss Kathleen Russell as the Queen ably maintains the dignity and majesty of the character. This is never lost in many scenes of stress and trial, where the sweet womanly side of the character is in evidence. Altogether Miss Russell scores a great triumph. Draga Vanessa is effectively played by Miss Daisy Murch, who is very successful when portraying feminine vindictiveness. Miss Florence Harcourt is charming as an American adventuress, Cora Brook. The costumes and scenery are all that could be desired, and Mr. J. M. East must be congratulated on his production. The genial and energetic Mr. Neville looks after the front of the house.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Oct. 8,
the Opera, in Four Acts, by S. Feinman, entitled
"HOLY SABBATH."

The opera of Holy Sabbath, by S. Feinman, was presented here by the Jewish Operatic and Dramatic Company on Monday, and a distinct success was testified by the continual bursts of applause with which the play was greeted. The story is highly dramatic, and contains a well-connected and ingenious plot, in which are woven many thrilling incidents, while the delightful music has been cleverly orchestrated and arranged in an able manner by Professor F. Staub, who conducted the large chorus and orchestra in brilliant style. As the setting of the opera has been placed in Spain a good opportunity for magnificent dressing and charming scenery has been given, and it is almost superfluous to mention that the enterprising management have taken full advantage of this, with the result that several beautiful stage pictures are presented, in which are found a wealth of artistic colouring. Mr. S. Feinman portrayed the part of Leib Sfarde with wonderful skill, and gave as vigorous, as striking, as pathetic an impersonation as could be desired, while every action and gesture were replete with significance. Mr. M. D. Waxman was manly and efficient, and gave a fine account of Joseph; his vocalism was excellent, several of his numbers being loudly redemanded. Mr. Joseph Fineberg deserves the highest praise for his Lord Fernande de Castillan, which was a thorough and most conscientious piece of acting. Mr. N. Hamburger as Alvarez made the most of not very extensive opportunities; and a spirited King Philip of Spain was found in Mr. Goldsmith. Mr. Isaacowitch was impressive and effective as Lord Ambrose; and Mme. J. Kayzer gave a well-studied performance of Helena. The efforts of Mr. J. Schilling as Shmaya and Miss Bryh as Chaya throughout the evening were received with continuous and hearty outbursts of laughter and applause, both these talented artists being genuinely funny without resorting to exaggeration. Mme. Rose Waxman sang and acted with refreshing spirit, her assumption of Shashma being in every way most attractive, while her vocal contributions were warmly applauded. During the week Solomon Scharlatan, The Two Cripples, and The Yiddish King Lear have been played.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 8,
"THE BELLE OF NEW YORK."

Mr. George Musgrave's company is here in the ever welcome Belle of New York this week. The pretty music and the drolleries of Ichabod Bronson and the polite lunatic meet with their due meed of laughter and applause. The part of the eccentric millionaire, Ichabod Bronson, who sets out to reform the rising generation while standing sadly in need of moral guidance himself, is drily and humorously depicted by Mr. Paddy Duprès, and his songs, "Lucky Jim" and "Dontcherknow," are very well received. Mr. Max Copeland causes considerable merriment as Karl Von Pimpernick, the polite lunatic, and he has an unostentatious method of drollery which is vastly entertaining and diverting. Mr. Frank Lawton still enacts his original part of the mixed ale pugilist, Blinky Bill McQuirk, and his delightful whistling in the candy store is highly appreciated by the audience, and his acting throughout is of valuable assistance to the success of the piece. Miss Empsie Bowman enacts the part of Violet Grey, the Salvation Army lassie, who kicks over the traces in order to bring back Bronson père to a proper sense of his paternal responsibility, and she looks, acts, and sings the part admirably. Miss Lily Maxwell gains golden opinions as the all too loving Fifi Fricot, and her songs are well rendered, especially "Teach me how to woo thee." Miss Florence Hersee, who doubles the parts of Mamie Clancy, a Pell-street girl, and Kissie Fitzgarter, acts with any amount of verve and vivacity and dances with much agility. As Cora Angelique, the queen of comic opera, Miss Winnie Brown creates a most favourable impression; and Mr. Alfred Sandoe as Doc Snifkins, manager of the Cora Angelique Comic Opera, contributes considerably to the fun of the piece. Mr. Walter Uridge, as that quaint comedian of the opera company yclept Mr. Kenneth Mugg, puts in some very good work in the fun-making line. As the Portuguese twins, Counts Ratsi and Patsi, Messrs. Lionel Yeoman and R. L. Cody are exceedingly diverting. Mr. John Doran does excellently as Harry Bronson, and the part is well suited to him. Mr. Owen O'Brien as Snooper and Mr. Townley Searle as Peeper, of "Flapdoodle" fame, are well in the picture; and Mr. A. Linforth, who enacts the small part of Twiddles, Harry Bronson's secretary, also undertakes the duties of stage-manager, the business-manager being Mr. Wilfred Esmond and the musical-director Mr. Ernée Woodville.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Oct. 8,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by Ridgewood Barrie, entitled
"A QUEEN OF VILLAINY."

Mr. P. Howard Sturgess's company in the domestic drama A Queen of Villainy is proving a powerful attraction here this week. Full justice is done to the play, which goes strongly from start to finish. The character of the scheming Cora Granville is cleverly depicted by Miss Edith Blande, who throughout acts with earnestness and vigour and scores a decided success. Mr. P. Howard Sturgess is seen to great advantage in the rôle of Timothy Kodac, and his efforts to extract himself from unfortunate predicaments are the signal for much laughter. He is well supported by Miss Jessie Crammonde, who, as Mollie Maggs, acts with vivacity and contributes largely to the fun. A finished performance is given by Mr. Edward Heanley in the part of the villainous Stephen Faucit; and Mr. Owen Harris satisfactorily acts the rôle of the escaped convict Dick Leinster. Miss Amy Rose Clyde as the gipsy Sally Chimes contributes an excellent character-study, and is responsible for a considerable share of the humour in the piece, in which direction good support is rendered by Mr. Arthur E. Maskell as Reuben Hawk, a poacher. Miss Cecilia Desmond makes an attractive appearance in the part of Rose Delmayne, and acts with a brightness and charm that are very pleasing. Mr. Alfred E. Calver is manly and straightforward as Alec; Mr. Lawrence Stevenson is well suited to the part of Kit, a waif; and Mr. Gordon Carnegie as Sir John Desborough makes the most of his limited opportunities.

THE GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Oct. 8,
the Drama, in Five Acts, entitled
"THE LIGHTS O' LONDON."

Mr. Herbert Hollister's company is paying a return visit here this week with the above-named drama, and on Monday evening met with an excellent reception from a number of old admirers and new friends, who followed with much interest the adventures of the varied characters whom the practised pen of Mr. G. R. Sims brings together under the glare of the lights of London. In the rôle of Bess Armytage Miss Jeannie Burgoyne is provided with a part which gives her ample scope for the exercise of considerable histrionic ability, and it is not too much to say that she makes the most of her opportunities, portraying the character of this true-hearted woman with rare insight and pathos, and carrying with her from first to last the full sympathies of her audience. Mr. Nat Collins gives a straightforward, manly representation of Harold Armytage, and is seen at his best in the more forceful scenes. Miss Constance Davey plays Hetty Preene with distinction and success, and is by turns grave and gay, weak and determined, with perfect naturalness. A thoroughly efficient rendering of Seth Preene comes from Mr. Herbert Hollister, whose acting is instinct with life and energy, and whose great scene with Hetty in the fourth act brought down the house. Mr. Raymond Thomas is sufficiently villainous and blackguardly as Clifford Armytage; Mr. Herbert Lewis is very amusing as Jarvis, and with the valuable aid of Miss Violet Temple as Mrs. Jarvis is responsible for a great deal of laughter, in the provocation of which Miss Rene Douglas, in the rôle of Shakespeare Jarvis, renders efficient assistance. The smaller characters are handled by a uniformly capable cast too numerous for individual mention, and the mounting and staging of the play are quite adequate.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Oct. 8,
the play, in Four Acts, by A. Conan Doyle, entitled
"BRIGADIER GERARD."

Sandwiched between an admirable series of musical comedies, Brigadier Gerard, judging by the enthusiasm with which the piece was received on Monday night, is just the right attraction for the Borough Theatre this week. Mr. Loring Fernie is happily cast as the swashbuckling but valiant captain of Hussars. Mr. Fernie's acting is easy and natural in every phase of the character, and he has the additional advantage of a fine stage appearance. Miss Maud Hoffmann as the Comtesse de Roquelaure undertakes the part with much charm, tact, and sympathy, and her artistic performance renders it quite befitting that she should share the honours of the evening with Mr. Loring Fernie. Mr. Arthur Somers makes up well and acts convincingly as Napoleon; and Mr. George Mallett's performance as the autocratic and scheming Talleyrand is replete with histrionic ability. Mr. Cecil Wynne is well placed as General de Caulaincourt, and Mr. Frank Powell makes a soldierly Colonel Guerin. A well-defined sketch of Mons. D'Albut comes from Mr. Penn Hamilton; and Mr. Reginald Mason makes the most of his opportunities as Mons. Bossompierre. Miss Gertrude Beattie is a satisfactory Agnes. Minor parts are all admirably rendered, and the piece is exceedingly well staged. The Borrowed Uncle, a charming one-act play, precedes, and is capitally presented by Mr. Frank Powell, Miss Gertrude Beattie, Mr. Arthur Claremont, and Mr. Arthur Somers. Patrons of this sumptuously redecorated theatre have their comfort well looked after by the popular acting-manager, Mr. Frank Rothsay.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Monday, Oct. 8,
the Farcical Comedy, by Brandon Thomas, entitled
"CHARLEY'S AUNT."

Once again has Charley's Aunt found its way to the Alexandra, and been welcomed with all the warmth usually extended to an old friend. The masquerading of Lord Fancourt Babberly as Donna Lucia Di Alvadorez is as provocative of laughter as ever, and the part of the impudent "Babbs" is played by Mr. Stanley Cooke with the greatest possible effect. Mr. Cooke in no way attempts to reproduce the eccentricities and mannerisms of Mr. Penley, yet his performance throughout is a genuinely humorous one, entirely without exaggeration, and wholly devoid of any suggestion of vulgarity. An excellent Jack Chesney is found in Mr. Hastings Lynn, who has a natural and easy style, and proves himself a first-rate light comedian. Mr. Richard B. Mason is also successful as the other undergraduate, Charley Wykeham; and a characteristic sketch of the college scout, Brassett, comes from Mr. Sydney Compton. Mr. C. B. Keston supplies a finished and polished rendering of Colonel Sir Francis Chesney; and Mr. Walter Beaumont contrives to extract a considerable amount of comic capital from the rôle of Stephen Spettigue. Miss Lena MacNaughton is a handsome and imposing Donna Lucia; and as the three young ladies of the piece Misses Lilyan Lait, Kitty Carew, and Gladys Storey have little to do beyond look charming, a task in which they one and all easily succeed. The farce is preceded by another play by Mr. Brandon Thomas, entitled Fourchette and Co., in which Mr. C. B. Keston, Sidney Compton, and George Ellis and Miss Gladys Storey appear.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, Oct. 8, the Comic Opera, by W. S. Gilbert and Arthur Sullivan, entitled
"THE GONDOLIERS."

On Monday evening the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company commenced the second week of its engagement here, and a packed audience was present, and the demands for encores were persistent throughout the performance, which was of the best description. It is pleasant to note the enthusiasm which these performances have aroused, and it augurs well for the suggested revival at the Savoy. All the old favourites are found again in their places in The Gondoliers. Mr. Fred Billington repeats his capital impersonation of the Grand Inquisitor, speaking the lines allotted to him with the utmost humour. The part of the Duke of Plaza-Toro is ably filled by Mr. C. H. Workman, who is most amusing, and sings and dances in his best style, making himself a bigger favourite than ever. Miss Theresa Rassam gives a dignified impersonation of the Duchess, and uses her fine voice to the best advantage. Miss Lulu Evans and Miss Hope Hastings are very bright and entertaining as Tessa and Gianetta; Mr. Pacie Ripple makes a first-class Marco Palmieri, and his singing of "Take a pair of sparkling eyes" is much admired; as the other gondolier, Guiseppe, Mr. Albert Kavanagh is in fine form. Casilda is charmingly played by Miss Mabel Graham; while Mr. Leicester Tinks is to be complimented on his assumption of the part of Luiz. Miss Ellen Whyte and Messrs. Drawater, Stafford Moss, and Lewis Campion also lend valuable assistance. The chorus and orchestra both do much meritorious work, and the whole effect is excellent. It must be gratifying to Mr. Robert Arthur to know that his wisdom in securing this company for a fortnight has been fully justified.

NEW PRINCE'S THEATRE, POPLAR.

On Monday, Oct. 8,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by Arthur Shirley, entitled
"THE MIDNIGHT MAIL."

Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company is here this week with The Midnight Mail, which is a drama with a moral, and as such serves a double purpose by interesting the public and teaching a lesson on the evils of intemperance. All the trouble originates through the hero, Harry Steyne, an engine driver, who indulges too freely in drink. Mr. Alfred Goddard gives a fine rendering of the part, presenting the character in such a way as to win the sympathy of the audience. Mr. Fred G. Evison as Billy Brewer, a drunken stoker, wins golden opinions by his portrayal of the character of the poor besotted wretch; and as Leonard Loyle Mr. Robert Grey does good service. Mr. Arthur Gilroy as Hassan Padisha has a capital part, and makes the most of his opportunities; and Mr. Charles McCann as Donald Craig is quite satisfactory. Mr. H. Dobell Lyle gives a capital character-sketch of an old signalman known as Jasper Thornleigh. Miss Ada Oakley is exceedingly good in the part of Mary Steyne, the engine-driver's wife; and as Nancy Brewer, Miss Mildred Carr earns rounds of applause for her bright and attractive rendering of the character. Miss Phyllis Dailley is graceful and charming as Lady Phillis Eustace; and Miss Kate Johnson as Parker is attractive as a maid. Smaller parts are all well filled, and the whole production is admirably staged. The incidental music is well rendered under the capable leadership of Mr. Stephen E. Blythe, the resident musical director.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, Oct. 8,
the Comedy, by Arthur Law, entitled
"A COUNTRY MOUSE."

One of the excellent companies organised by Mr. and Miss Hutchison, with Miss Annie Hughes in the leading rôle, is performing in Mr. A. Law's somewhat cynical but amusing comedy, and in the ably written playlet by Mrs. Beringer, A Bit of Old Chelsea, in which Miss Hughes is so particularly at home. As Saucers Miss Annie Hughes plays with her characteristic brightness and smartness and an admirable touch of pathos. In The Country Mouse Miss Hughes takes the title-rôle, Angela Muir. It is a very clever study of an apparently unsophisticated maiden, who proves to be much more artful than her friends imagine. Miss Hughes' assumed demureness and simplicity are delightful, and she scored heavily in the scene with Lady Sylvia at the end of the second act. The stately Miss Moyra Creegan made an excellent Lady Sylvia; and Miss Frances Davie acted brightly, with a good sense of humour, as Violet Aynsley. Miss Ida Laurie contributed a good character-sketch as the charwoman, Mrs. Creeper, without undue exaggeration. Mr. William Calvert was admirable as John Bowlby, playing with earnestness and sincerity; Mr. Charles Esdale was good as the Hon. Archibald Vyse; Mr. Evelyn Vernon acted excellently as the amorous old lady-killer, the Duke of St. Kitts; and Mr. Thomas A. Braidon was most entertaining as Lord Robert Wyckham, a young gentleman whose idea of romance is somewhat peculiar, to say the least of it. The smaller part of Jephcot, the family butler, gave Mr. J. E. Watson the opportunity of displaying some acting of a high order in a sympathetic rôle; and the little scene of the old servant and his master hobnobbing over their reminiscences, admirably done by Messrs. Calvert and Watson, formed a charming finale to the first act.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, Oct. 8,
The Drama, by Edwin Elsner, founded on Ouida's Novel, entitled
"UNDER TWO FLAGS."

Mr. Cecil Paget has provided a great attraction here this week in the return visit of Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company in the above popular adaptation of Ouida's picturesque and interesting novel. The interpretation of the play is all that could be desired, and excellent audiences have been the rule. Mr. Mark Blow makes an ideal Guardsman as Bertie Cecil Royellieu, looking the part to perfection, and playing with much earnestness and dramatic force. Miss Mary Thorne plays admirably as the impulsive and generous-hearted vivandière, Cigarette. Her unrequited passion for the handsome "Beauty" is well indicated, and the pathos of her death scene wins the tribute of tears from many eyes. Mr. Harry Benson as the valet, Rake, ably assisted by Miss Amy Maitland as Lavinia, make the most of the comedy element of the play. Mr. Archer Elwyn gives a polished picture of the grim-visaged and saturnine Black Hawk; Miss Mabel Ormonde looks handsome and plays well as poor Cigarette's successful rival, the Princess Venetia Corona; and neat character-sketches of the minor characters of Ezra Baroni and Babayum are supplied by Messrs. Fred Beck and Francis Curtiss. Mr. Lionel West makes the most of the unsympathetic rôle of Barklie Cecil Royellieu; and Mr. Joseph Cowell is impressive as Lord Royellieu. The scenery and effects are excellent, and Cigarette's ride for life through the storm in the Arabian desert is admirably managed.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Oct. 8,
the Musical Comedy, in Three Acts, by Owen Hall, entitled
"SERGEANT BRUE."

This clever and tuneful production had a most cordial reception at the County Theatre on Monday evening, when a capable all-round company, engineered by Messrs. E. Lockwood and R. Crossman, appeared in the first of six performances, which was mightily enjoyed by a crowded house, and a similar verdict was pronounced at each subsequent presentation. The chief honours in the production are divided between Mr. Arthur Reynolds, an old Kingston pantomime favourite, who appears in the title-rôle, and Mr. Charles McLagan, who appears as the criminal, Crookie Scrubbs. The whimsicalities of these two keep the house in roars of laughter throughout the evening, and they richly deserved the warm plaudits that greeted their efforts. Miss Hebe Bliss achieved a distinct success in the part of Lady Bickenhall, which she filled with a charm that won her many friends; and Miss Mary Hay was equally acceptable as Aurora Brue, her singing and dancing being much appreciated. Mr. Percy Rogers gave a very good account of himself as Michael Brue; and a special word of commendation is deserved by Miss Marion Hargrave, who appeared as Daisy, the serving girl, and invested the part with a personality irresistibly funny. Others who lent valuable assistance were Mr. Harry Soutar as Matthew Habisham, and Mr. Charles Sims as Mr. Crank. There was an exceptionally well-trained chorus, and an augmented orchestra was ably conducted by Mr. Norman Latham.

THE LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Oct. 8,
the Drama, by Edward Thane, entitled
"THE MOCKERY OF MARRIAGE."

Though the above drama is an old one, yet it still has the power to excite and entertain. Dick Kenyon, an unscrupulous villain, is played with every success by Mr. Fred Morgan. Miss Minnie Grey, who is entrusted with the part of Rosa Vernham, is also welcome, and with her usual grace, contributes an excellent piece of acting. As Jack Stanley Mr. Arthur Bawtree gives us a brilliant study of the hero soldier; and Miss Nellie Fletcher embodies the pathetic rôle of Alva Kenyon in a style full of pathos. In the hands of Mr. A. P. Kaye humour seems doubly amusing, and his Toby Wright is full of cleverness. Mr. Bert Morley as Seth Pearce makes a capital villain, his rendering of the part being helped considerably by his excellent make-up. As Mary Ann Miss Nell Gilmore is well placed; and Mr. Ashton Winslow does good work as Pat O'Connor. A clever character-study of the "coloured man" is given by Mr. J. E. Manning, his Old Pete, the negro, showing real ability. Others who deserve praise are Mr. J. P. Dryden as Joseph Vernham, and Miss Bertha Baker as Nellie Kenyon.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 8,
the light Opera, entitled
"FLORODORA."

The members of Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company, who are appearing this week at the Dalston Theatre in the light opera Florodora, are meeting with that amount of hearty applause which the excellence of the representation fully warrants. The cast, which includes no less than thirty-two artists, is in itself a guarantee of variety, and the result is inevitably charming. Mr. Daly Cooper is certainly a host in himself as Anthony Tweedlepunch, showman, hypnotist, and palmist. His embodiment of this versatile personality is decidedly funny. Mr. Jos. R. Tate as Cyrus W. Gilfain, proprietor of the perfume of Florodora, and Mr. R. Courtier Dutton as Frank Abercoed, Gilfain's manager of the Island of Florodora, are an amusing and entertaining couple. Mr. Harold Perry makes a dashing Capt. Arthur Donegal; Mr. Edwin Oxlee appears as the overseer; and Mr. Donald MacAdam makes a scrupulous footman. Miss Violet Grasia is a charming Dolores; Miss Maud Brock is vivacious in the part of Mr. Gilfain's typist; and Miss Gladys Ray is a sprightly Valleda, maid to Lady Holyrood. The character of Lady Holyrood is presented with much effect by Miss Housley. The entire performance can only be adequately described as charming. The chorus is an additional attraction. For the musical direction generally Mr. B. T. Paterson is responsible.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 8,
the Musical Comedy, in Two Acts, entitled
"LADY MADCAP."

The reign of musical comedy at Kennington Theatre, which has been one of the leading features of this season, was continued on Monday by the return visit of Lady Madcap. This is an exceedingly pretty piece, Paul Rubens having put into it some of his best music, whilst the lyrics, which he has composed in collaboration with Percy Greenbank, are both bright and catchy. The book, too, in the preparation of which Newnham-Davis has taken a hand, contains many clever lines. Lady Madcap is played by Mr. George Dance's chief company, the members of which do not fail to make the best of the many amusing situations which abound, with the result that, from every point of view, whether of singing, dancing, staging, or merriment, the performance leaves nothing to be desired. In the title-rôle Miss Vera Vere scores a big success. She is pretty, clever, and high-spirited, and her singing and dancing bring down the house. Mr. H. V. Surrey worthily sustains the part of Oroya Brown, otherwise Trooper Smith, and his undoubted abilities find ample scope, his "butling" causing roars of laughter. Count de St. Hubert is excellently portrayed by Mr. Alex Chentrens, whose singing is very effective, whilst his dancing is of the highest order. As Susan Miss Peggy Primrose does remarkably well, and proves herself to be an actress of much promise. Mr. Percival Knight as Bill Stratford and Mr. Oliver Round as Posh Jenkins, his confederate, are both admirable; whilst Mr. Tom Neldon makes an exceedingly funny Corporal Ham, a character full of humour. Miss Maize North is charming as Gwenny Holden, the friend of the Madcap; and Miss Florence Raymaur gives an attractive interpretation of the character of Mrs. Layton. Mr. Martyn Roland as Lord Framlingham, Mr. R. S. Comber as Colonel Layton, and Mr. H. Henson as the butler contribute largely to the popularity of the piece. The chorus is strong and well trained, the vocalisation being a credit to that able musician Mr. Ernest Hartmann, who directs both chorus and orchestra.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 8,
the Musical Pantomimical Comedy, entitled
"THE SWISS EXPRESS."

This popular and far-famed musical comedy is attracting large and appreciative audiences at the Brixton this week. The company, which is an exceptionally strong one, is headed by the Bros. Charles and Fred Renad, who give a very humorous performance as the two eccentric servants of Dr. Gull, and cause endless amusement by their antics. Mr. Johnny McElroy is exceedingly funny as Dr. Gull, and the various amusing predicaments in which he is placed are the source of considerable laughter during the evening. Mr. George Martin is well placed as Rob Rollingstone. Mr. Alec Wylie is very good as Dudley Green, the dude part; Mr. C. Gray is satisfactory as Septimus Squeeze. Mr. Harwood adds to the fun in the dual characters of Jack Gadabout and Admiral Bombshell; and a word of praise must be given to Mr. Cecil Barrett for his impersonation of the Gendarme. Miss Ida Ernest is a charming and dainty Virginia, captivating with her fine singing and nimble dancing. Miss Dora Moorhouse creates a favourable impression as Mrs. Squeeze. The Edene Quartette of vocalists and dancers deserve special mention for their clever dancing, which is greatly appreciated. Mr. H. Leyton is the courteous business-manager for the company. Mr. Leslie Lewis conducts an augmented orchestra, and the scenery is very elaborate.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Oct. 8,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by George V. Wybrow and Frank M. Thorne, entitled
"A BEAUTIFUL FIEND."

The scenes in this drama are laid in Russia, a country peculiarly suitable for the hatching of plots and mysteries, and ample scope is afforded the members of Beaudyn and Livesey's company for the display of their histrionic ability. Mr. Montague Beaudyn impersonates Ivan Paulovitch in a telling and masterly way, his well-modulated voice reaching every corner of the house. Mr. Tom Robertson plays with vigorous determination as Count Fedor Karateff; Mr. Harry Oates exhibits well-balanced humour as the bibulous Christopher Crackles; Mr. Tommy Byron is energetic and resourceful as Sergeant Malachi; and Mr. John Carlton proffers a carefully thought-out study of Nicholi Trolski. Miss Irene Munro, in a make-up reminiscent of Mercia in The Sign of the Cross, does exceedingly well, her impersonation calling for special mention; Miss Blanche Hill is decidedly bright and cheery as the pert Patty Woodlands; whilst Miss V. St. Lawrence portrays Wanda Lubinoff in such a heartless, yet withal fascinating way, that she thoroughly succeeds in convincing all that she is indeed "a beautiful fiend."

CASTLE THEATRE, RICHMOND.

On Thursday, Oct. 10, the comedy, entitled
"OUR BOYS."

There are not wanting those of the younger school of playgoers who are inclined to look askance on the drama of earlier days; it is even suggested that old-fashioned plays are lacking in interest, polish, and plot; yet Byron's masterpiece still lives—nay more, it has lost none of its charm which years ago filled the Vaudeville to overflowing. Under the direction of Mr. Russell Rosse, the comedy met with an excellent all-round interpretation, and Mr. J. Bannister Howard and all concerned may be highly complimented. Mr. Thomas Thorne again delighted the audience in the rôle of Middlewick; it was a fine performance from start to finish, and peals of merriment greeted his efforts. Mr. Montagu Lane did exceptionally well as Charles Middlewick. Another successful impersonation was that of Mr. Horace Pollock as Talbot; his best effort was in Act II., where he makes love to Violet, and wins her heart and hand; quite a clever little scene this, and admirably done. Mr. Norman Clark was perfectly successful as the austere Baronet, Sir Geoffrey. Exceedingly pretty was the Violet of Miss Madge Flynn; throughout the play she acted with great delicacy, and won the hearty applause of the audience. Equally happy was Miss Marion Ripley as Mary Melrose; her badinage and fun proved irresistible, and it would have been difficult to find a more handsome or clever exponent of the part. An unqualified success was scored, too, by Miss Ada Milton as Clarissa; the rôle is one not bristling with opportunities, but Miss Milton missed none of them. Belinda found a droll representative in Miss Carlotta Blondin, and throughout Act III. kept the house in a ripple of merriment; Mr. A. Harding played Kempster. The comedy is preceded by a duologue, Twins, written by Carlotta Blondin. Mr. Josiah Jenkins has decided to present his wife with a souvenir on the occasion of her birthday, and the trouble centres on a couple of twin doggies that are mistaken for twin babies. There is the usual complication and the customary explanation. Mr. Groves-Watson was excellent as the husband, and the authoress did well as Mrs. Josiah Jenkins, the suspicious but altogether forgiving wife. Both productions were capably stage-managed by Mr. Norman Clarke. A good word is due to Mr. Arthur Howard, acting-manager, whose unflagging energy in front of the house leaves nothing to be desired.

A waterspout descended ruthlessly upon Southend on Tuesday, when the pit of the local theatre was flooded, and the performance had to be stopped for a time. Many business places were also flooded, and considerable damage done to goods.

At the King's Theatre, Sutton-in-Ashfield, A London Actress is being excellently staged and played by Miss Emma Litchfield's company. Miss Litchfield gives a brilliant performance of her rôle; the title-rôle is capably played by Miss Maud Saxby; and Miss Madge Clare is good in the part of Mrs. Skinner. Mr. Stuart Cleveland as Sergeant-Major Clive Crawford gives a manly rendering, and Lieutenant Kingson is well played by Mr. Douglas Howard. The Moses Mendoza of Mr. George H. Doyle is distinctly good, and a humorous comedian is Mr. Carl Vallander as Pat Maloney.

Miss Marion Warwood was the recipient on Wednesday evening last, at the Queen's Theatre, Farnworth, of a handsome bouquet from the members of the Farnworth Wednesday football team, who had assembled to witness Mr. Frank Lindo's successful production Home, Sweet Home.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Nearly a generation must have passed since Kyrle Bellew delighted provincial playgoers with The Corsican Brothers, but its memories are with us yet; while Henry Irving's elaborate revival at the Lyceum in 1880 is well remembered. Originally the play, under the title of Les Frères Corses, was adapted from the "Impressions de Voyages" of Dumas by E. Grangé and Xavier de Montépin, and produced by Fechter at Paris in 1850, and two years later an English version by Dion Boucicault was produced at the Princess's Theatre, London, in which Charles Kean appeared. To come to Mr. Martin Harvey's production, his is a revival in the fullest literal sense of the word. The play is galvanised into actual life, the characters not being "merely players," but living men and women—in a romantic atmosphere, truly, but living men and women none the less. This the crowded and obviously sympathetic house was quick to realise and appreciate, and Mr. Harvey's wish to make The Corsican Brothers a staple dish of his dramatic répertoire is likely to be gratified: Mr. Harvey's version follows somewhat on the lines of Irving's. First we see the reception of M. Meynard by Mme. dei Franchi, who is waiting the return of her son, Fabien. M. Meynard is the bearer of a letter to the Franchis from Louis, who is pursuing his studies in Paris. The message being three weeks old does not quieten the mother's fears, nor those of her son Fabien, who, on his return from the mountains, confides in M. Meynard, and reveals the remarkable sympathy existing between his brother Louis and himself. The story of the vendette is interrupted by the belligerents, Colonna and Orlando, whose sanguinary desires are abated by Fabien. M. Meynard is shown to his bed-chamber by Mme. dei Franchi, and Fabien being left alone is for dispatching the serving-man, Griffo, with a message to his brother, and sits down to write accordingly, when his brother's ghost appears unto him, thus realising his own fears and forebodings. Mr. Harvey's acting in this thrilling scene calls for the utmost praise, and the curtain fell to an outburst of enthusiasm which lasted some minutes, during which time the curtain had to be raised four times, Mr. Harvey also being specially summoned. The next act, showing the foyer at the Opera House, where M. de Château Renaud wagers with Montgiron that he will bring Emilie de Lesparre to supper; the Salon at Montgiron's, where Mme. de Lesparre discovers she is the victim of a trick, and gathers Louis to her aid; and the Glade in Fontainebleau Forest, with the horror of Louis's death at the point of Renaud's sword, was followed with tense feeling and sympathy, the audience, as the curtain fell, being again demonstrative in their applause. Act III., where Fabien follows and overtakes the slayer of his brother, brought about a brilliant and tensely dramatic consummation to the play, the duel holding the audience spellbound. The avenging death of Château Renaud and the vision of Louis dei Franchi's ghost was exceedingly impressive, and at the fall of the curtain, the audience, not contented with cheering themselves hoarse—and seldom has there been such a scene of enthusiasm in this theatre—called loudly on Mr. Harvey for a speech, which he made with grateful and graceful allusions to "the splendid manner in which they had received the old classic."

Mr. Harvey's differentiation between brother and brother is subtly indicated. As Fabien, the patriot Corsican, proud and fond of his liberty, and his devoted mother, but overcast with fears for his brother Louis, he acted with all the artistic perception of which he is so well possessed. And in the duel scene as the avenging spirit he showed the unquenchable fire of revenge with quiet but convincing art. As Louis, he depicted deep-seated melancholia, his acting being distinguished by the utmost grace and fascination. In his death scene, he, with hollow voice and glazed eye, held the audience rigid and silent, till, as has been described, the audience broke out into storms of applause. Mr. Vincent Sternroyd showed polish and virility in the rôle of Château Renaud, and his part in the duel scene was admirably done. Miss Coleridge appeared as the imprudent, if spotless, Emilie de Lesparre, and revealed the goodness as well as the frivolity of the character with much tact and success. Miss Mary Rorke represented the tender and dignified traits of Madame dei Franchi with the finished art of a clever and experienced actress. Mr. Albert E. Raynor did all that was necessary with the rôle of Montgiron, affording excellent support to the villain. Mr. George Cooke gave a sturdy rendering of the rôle of the loyal friend, Martelli, and showed an earnestness befitting the character. Mr. Alfred Mansfield was unobtrusive, but most capable, as Meynard; and the sanguinary Colonna and the fiery Orlando were rendered amusing by Messrs. Fred Wright, sen., and Philip Hewland. Mr. Leslie Palmer was successful as Griffo; Miss Madge Fabian appeared as Marie; and the Misses Maud Rivers, Bessie Elder, Marjory Field, and Ethel Patrick lent gaiety to the opera scene. The overture and incidental music have been specially composed by Mr. C. Franckenstein, who conducted on this occasion; and the special scenery, which is exceedingly effective and appropriate, is by Mr. George J. Dodson. The costumes are by M. Alias, L. and H. Nathan, and Miss Dyball, and the duel, so dramatically realised, is the clever arrangement of M. Felix Bertrand.

The Prince of Wales's Theatre, Liverpool, was put up for sale by auction on Tuesday, but, no bid being made, the lot was withdrawn.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Jones (Ada Mansfield) have secured another new vocal scena from Mr. Albert Voyce, entitled Mother Shipton, a Christmas scena. Miss A. Mansfield created a sensation in a similar part last year.

At the Theatre Royal, Whitehaven, Messrs. Beandyn, Livesey, and Hardy's company is in the stirring melodrama The Days of Cromwell. Chief honours fall to Mr. Henry Belding, who as Ironhand is excellent; Mr. Robertson Foulis works hard as Mardyke; and Mr. Howard Hardy is good as Matthew Mardyke. Mr. Jack Gray is well cast as the Protector, and Mr. T. R. White is an amusing landlord. Miss Gertrude Gillman is pleasing as Ruby, and Miss Cissie Coleford makes an effective Mistress Shadwell.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—With reference to numerous inquiries addressed to me as a member of the Organising Committee, it cannot be too clearly understood:—

(1) That the Actors' Day Fund has nothing whatever to do with the Actors' Association. The Council of the Actors' Association merely supplies the necessary machinery for the preliminary organisation of the fund.

(2) The trustees—Sir George Lewis, Sir Squire Bancroft, and Mr. George R. Sims—while recognising the claims of existing funds and charities, hope further to accumulate a fund which shall place our calling for all time beyond the need of charitable appeal.

(3) If the Actors' Day Fund is properly supported, all existing and approved theatrical charities will benefit to a far greater extent than has ever been, or ever will be, the case under the present subscription system.—Faithfully yours,

Norman McKinnel.

THEATRES v. MUSIC HALLS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Mr. Frederick Mouillot says in the Daily Chronicle that the two entertainments a night given in the music halls have undoubtedly injured the provincial drama. Mr. Mouillot is right, but I will even go further than that, and say that some of our provincial managers have no one to blame but themselves. What do some of them do for the comfort of their audience? Nothing. What do the music-hall managers do for their audience? Everything. I was playing some time ago in a provincial theatre. I drove up and saw an enormous crowd waiting at the early doors—it was just half-past six. The poor people were drenched, for there was a veritable deluge. I remonstrated with the manager, who told me the man who is supposed to open the doors "had not come yet."

Now, had I been the local manager, I should have had plenty of light outside, à la music hall, paid my band a half-a-night salary (which I, as the travelling manager, would have shared willingly, as would any other sensible travelling manager), let the people come in, even at six, or as soon as there was a crowd, and given them music. That would have pleased the audience; they would all have been in a good humour. Whereas, in the circumstances, they were irritable—and rightly so—and of course the performance suffered. Our local managers have to wake up considerably, or else they will arise one morning and find that the music halls, who now take a good deal of their business away, will capture it all; and they will have no one to blame but themselves.—Yours faithfully,

Auguste Van Biene.

Mr. Editor.—Sir,—Re your article "Theatres and Rates," may I point out that the rating of the New King's Theatre, Hoxton, is £240 and the public-house attached £139, making the total rating of the premises £379, and not £183.—Yours faithfully, F. Dudman Bromwich, New King's Theatre, Hoxton, Oct. 12.

Mr. P. Norman and company are this week presenting at the Alhambra Theatre, Stourbridge, the dramas, What Men Dare and A Woman Worth Winning. On the opening night the former piece was presented. Mr. Norman gives a capital embodiment; Mr. E. Hall as Nickola proves a capable exponent of the part; Mr. A. E. Forbes as Richard Wilson wins favour, as does Miss Maud Buchanan as Olga Levin. Another prominent artist is Miss Iris Daventry as Clara Panloon.

"THE GOOD-NATUR'D MAN."

A Comedy, by Oliver Goldsmith, arranged in three acts by William Poel, and revived by him at the Coronet Theatre, Notting Hill, on Thursday afternoon, Oct. 11.

For his revival of Goldsmith's comedy, The Good-natured Man, Mr. William Poel, whose name is so well known in connection with the performances of Everyman, was favoured by a fairly large and undoubtedly sympathetic audience on Thursday afternoon at the Coronet Theatre. In his arrangement of the three acts of the play Mr. Poel followed the original pretty closely, and the result was a very delightful performance. The Good-natur'd Man undoubtedly possesses fine and attractive qualities. The dialogue is vivacious, abounds in excellent natural wit and humour, and is marked by that priceless literary quality which Goldsmith infused into all his writings. It was in 1776, the year when "The Vicar of Wakefield" was published, that Goldsmith began the comedy of The Good-natur'd Man, which, finished the following year, received the approbation of the author's little senate of friends. The play was offered to Garrick at Drury Lane, but he did not care for the piece, and his relations with Goldsmith soon became too complicated to make him otherwise eager to accept it. Goldsmith then took it to Colman, who accepted it and produced it on Jan. 28, 1768, at Covent Garden Theatre, where it ran for nine nights. The characters in The Good-Natur'd Man are kept entirely distinct from one another, and some of them are entirely original conceptions. The hero—for so we will call the generous young Honeywood—takes himself just seriously enough to secure our sympathy, and it is not only his good spirits which make him good-natured, as in the case of Charles Surface. The character of Croaker is unquestionably one of the most humorous creations of the comedy of character in our dramatic literature. Goldsmith admitted that he had borrowed the notion of Croaker from the Suspirus of Dr. Johnson's "Ramblor." The Good-natur'd Man when first put on the stage was intended as a protest against a species of comedy which still dominated the English stage, and which was known to its contemporaries as well as in subsequent literary history under the name of sentimental comedy. Goldsmith's protest was to be delivered, and the allopathic cure which it professed to administer was to be accomplished, in the most direct way possible. So Dr. A. W. Ward tells us that The Good-natur'd Man was his first attempt to enforce the lesson practically.

Mr. Poel can certainly be congratulated upon his revival of this old comedy. He himself was seen in the character of Croaker, that delectable embodiment of British pessimism, who is never without a grievance of some sort. Mr. Poel has certainly handled parts better suited to his individual capabilities than Croaker could possibly be, but his portraiture certainly showed an intellectual grasp of the character and the absurd idiosyncrasies which combine in its constitution. If anything, Mr. Poel should have been a little more serious in his disagreeableness. At the same time, we do not overlook the fact that the part was not an easy one to present, and, all circumstances considered, Mr. Poel may be commended for the afternoon's effort. The part of Mr. Honeywood was entrusted to Mr. Lewis Casson, and a very gentlemanly and lovable personage he was as the Good-natur'd Man. His acting, like that of Mr. Charles Allen as Sir William Honeywood, was marked by scholarly polish. Miss H. B. Potter was so pretty and winsome and sweet and girlish in the rôle of Olivia that Leontine could be well excused from following his father's wishes and pursuing the wealthy Mistress Richland in order that there might be no interference between himself and the fair Olivia. We should like to see more of Miss Potter, for whom it would not be rash to predict no small fame in a particular branch of the dramatic art. Miss Muriel Currey brought gracefulness, dignity, and ladylike demeanour to her presentment of Miss Richland, and her work, if somewhat stiff at times, was meritorious on the whole. Mr. Edwin Coates was acceptable as the soldier-lover, Leontine, although it did seem that he was too ready to bubble into merriment on the slightest—even sometimes without—pretext. Mr. W. M. Mayne (who also appeared to advantage as Jarvis) and Mr. Edwin H. Wynne, as Twitch and Flangan, were irresistibly comical; Lofty the Lawyer, with all his pretended influence on peers, statesmen, and the world of politics in general, was a characteristic figure in the hands of Mr. Ben Field; and the cheerful Mrs. Croaker found an admirable and skilful representative in Miss Clare Greet. All the other characters were played in adequate style.

DEATH OF FRANK BATEMAN.

The news of the death of Mr. Frank Bateman, the touring-manager and actor, which took place with painful suddenness on the stage of the Theatre Royal, Bilston, about mid-day on Monday, created a painful impression. The deceased gentleman was joint-author with Mr. John Douglas of a drama entitled No Wedding Bells for Her, and he had arrived in the town with the object of opening a week's engagement at the local theatre with his own company. The rehearsal of the play, in which Mr. Bateman took a leading part, was in progress, when he suddenly remarked that he felt awfully queer, and shortly afterwards fell into the arms of Mr. Stuart Lomath, to whom he was talking, and died a few minutes later. It is understood that the deceased had suffered for some time from heart disease, and had been attended for that complaint last week at Walsall. He was forty-two years of age, and leaves a widow, a Walsall lady, who is known on the stage as Miss Lizzie Montague.

An inquest was held on Tuesday, when Lizzie Bateman, wife of deceased, said her husband left Walsall on Sunday night to go to Bilston. She was not aware of him having heart disease, but on Sunday night he had been attended by a Walsall doctor, who said he was suffering from fatty degeneration of the heart. Stuart Lomath, a member of the company, said he was holding a conversation with deceased on the stage of the theatre on Monday afternoon, when Bateman caught hold of him and exclaimed, "I am feeling very queer," and sank into his arms. Witness lowered him gently on the floor of the stage, but Bateman, after struggling to his feet and drinking a little water, again fell into his arms, and although artificial respiration was resorted to, Bateman died before the doctor could arrive. The coroner said that the medical opinion was that deceased died from heart disease. The jury returned a verdict of "natural causes," and expressed sympathy with Mrs. Bateman.

"The Era" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

"MATT OF MERRYMOUNT."

Dianthe Frothingham..Miss Lilias Waldegrave

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The period of Matt of Merrymount is 1635, and the scene of the play Massachusetts. Matt of Merrymount, really the heir to a handsome estate in England, is a leader of a lawless gang who are at warfare with their Puritan neighbours. Matt is self-exiled, believing himself to have murdered his cousin, George Armitage. To Matt's house, to consult Red Jill, a reputed witch, comes old Frothingham's daughter Dianthe, in boy's garb, to learn her future as to her betrothal to a man now voyaging from England to manage the Killigrew estates. She is saved from the cruelty of the gang by Matt, who falls in love with her. Following the girl a few days later to Edgemouth, Matt is arrested for trespass and theft, and is placed in the stocks. Taking service in Frothingham's house, he grows in the good graces of Dianthe, who has fallen in love with Matt, though she expects her betrothed to arrive from England at any moment. The fiancé is none other than George Armitage. Matt is delighted to learn his innocence. In the last act he comes into his own, the "ending" being a thoroughly "happy" one.

Mr. Fred Terry in the title-part played with a dash that proved quite to the taste of the house. After the third act he was cheered again and again; and at the fall of the curtain he had an enthusiastic ovation. In a character of great contrasts Mr. Terry was equally happy in all its varying phases. He was especially good in depicting Matt's gradually increasing attachment to the Puritan maiden; and was seen to great advantage in the second act, in the market-place. In a scene with Dianthe, when Matt, recalling his happier days, dances a minuet with the girl, Mr. Terry was as graceful and gallant as could be desired. In the rôle of Red Gill, Miss Miriam Lewis, whose rise in the profession has been very rapid, gave a very fine performance. Dianthe was very prettily interpreted by Miss Lilias Waldegrave; and valuable support was given by Mr. Alfred Kendrick as Roger Frothingham. Praise is also due to Mr. Carter-Edwards as the elder Frothingham, and to Mr. Jerrold Robertshaw as Peck. Others in the cast were Mr. Malcolm Cherry, Mr. C. R. Gibbon, Mr. Walter Edwin, Mr. D. J. Williams, Mr. W. A. Haines,, Mr. Frederick Groves, Miss Claire Pauncefort, and Miss Kathleen Doyle.

The scenery by Mr. R. C. McCleery was excellent; and pretty incidental music had been specially written and composed by Mr. Sydney Faulks.

The performance was a complete success; and there is every prospect, judging by the enthusiasm it created, of the piece having a long and successful run. Mr. Terry acknowledged the reception given to the play, and thanked his company and the staff of the Theatre Royal for their assistance.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

On Wednesday afternoons during October Mr. Stewart Macpherson, F.R.A.M., is giving a lecture on "The Evolution of the Symphony." In the course of his lecture on Wednesday, Oct. 10, Mr. Macpherson referred to the three-movement form of the symphony as being almost universal. The lecturer also mentioned how in the eighteenth century the symphony had become quite conventional until the advent of the great Mozart. The professor then played some examples of the great master. He referred also to the fact that Mozart never, or, as Sir Arthur Sullivan would have said, "hardly ever," used the trombone in his symphonies. The lecturer ridiculed the idea that any great oratorio symphony, or concerto could be, or ever had been, composed by any musician under nine or ten years of age; such works, he contended, must be slight and immature. In speaking of modern composers and their orchestral works, Mr. Macpherson said they depended too much on what "dear old Macfarren" used to call the chemistry of sound. The professor here gave on the pianoforte a portion of the first movement of Mozart's G Minor Symphony, saying he considered it the finest work of its kind ever written. It had been said that the G Minor Symphony reveals throughout the struggles and many great disappointments which the noble-hearted artist had so rudely experienced during the later part of his life. We may here mention that Mozart composed no fewer than forty-nine symphonies. At the close of Mr. Macpherson's interesting lecture he stated that on the next occasion he would deal with the works of the great master Beethoven.

BROADWAY THEATRE.

On Monday, Oct. 8,
the Musical Play, in Three Acts, entitled
"THE GIRL FROM KAY'S."

This popular musical play from the Apollo Theatre, presented by Mr. George Dance's principal company, has scored a distinct success. The charming music received ample justice at the hands of principals and chorus, and the Broadway orchestra, under the able direction of Mr. Basil Horsfall, rendered able assistance. Miss Aimée Grey was a delightful Norah Chalmers, and quickly won all hearts. Miss Chrissie Balland was a vivacious Ellen; Miss Cruickshanks was capital as Mrs. Chalmers; Miss Clarice Cartner as Nancy Lowly, Miss Dolly Gibbs as Mary Methuen, Miss Phyllis Melville as Mabel Macdonald, Miss Beatrice Hallet as Hilda French, Miss Vivienne Clare as Irene Powell, and Miss Ella Linden as Saidie Roberts, were charming girls from Kay's; Norah's bridesmaids were pleasingly impersonated by Miss Poppy Clifford, Miss Mabel Hay, Miss Hilda Grundy, Miss Gracie St. Clair, Miss Ethel Edwardes, and Miss Suzanne Graham; Miss Dora Grey was very good indeed as Jane; Miss Hervyn, in the title-rôle, was a most attractive shop girl; Mr. Herbert Franklyn was a manly and convincing Harry Gordon; and Mr. Tom Shelford an excellent Percy Fitzthistle. Mr. Buchanan Wake was successful as Theodore Quench, K.C., Mr. Charles Lupton scored as Mr. Chalmers, Mr. S. Major Jones was a humorous Joseph, and Mr. Copland Dawson an amusing Pepper. Mr. Walter Bates did well as Archie Pemberton, Mr. Geoffrey Saville was a capital Frank, and Mr. Arthur Stigant submitted a clever impersonation of Max Hoggenheimer.

Further trouble has cropped up at the Vaudeville, consequent upon the resignation of Miss Edna May. Miss Ethel Newman, who was understudy to Miss May, and who took her part whenever she was absent, has issued a writ against Messrs. Gatti, to show cause why she should not continue to play the part given to Miss Phyllis Dare. Miss Newman contends that by her contract she was engaged to understudy Miss Edna May for the run of the play, and that on Miss May's departure she should have succeeded her.

MISS DOT STEPHENS' SAD CASE.

The following additional subscriptions have been received since last week towards the fund now being raised for Doris Stephens, best known in the profession as "Dot" Stephens, whose lamentable accident on the railway on June 30 last has awakened such widespread sympathy:—

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Sir Charles Wyndham gave away the bride at a wedding at Hove on Tuesday. The lady was Miss Violet Kendall Wyndham Wood, daughter of Mrs. Archer Wood, of Hove, and Sir Charles's niece. The marriage took place at St. Patrick's Church, Hove, Mr. Pelham Benjamin Knowle Greenhill, son of Mr. Pelham Spencer Greenhill, J.P., of Knowle Hall, Bridgwater, Somersetshire, being the bridegroom. Among the wedding presents were a silver tea and coffee set from Sir Charles and Lady Wyndham, and two silver-mounted cut glass scent bottles from Miss Mary Moore.

Thursday next will be the initiation of Actors' Day. In case there should still be some who have not yet made themselves familiar with its aims and objects, all who are interested in its success will be doing good service by bringing it under the notice of their friends. The organising committee, to whom all communications should be addressed at 10, King-street, Covent Garden, London, W.C., will be glad to receive further names as early as possible, and give any further information that may be required. Over 2,000 artists, in addition to managers and authors, are helping towards the promotion of the success of the scheme, and Sir George Lewis, Sir Squire Bancroft, and Mr. George R. Sims have consented to act as trustees.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree is among the latest additions to the committee associated with the benefit matinée to Miss Soldene, to be given at the Palace Theatre on Nov. 13. Mr. Tree wired his acceptance of office in the following sympathetic terms:—"Delighted to join your committee to support the occasion. Kindly send tickets. Best wishes."

Mr. George Edwardes's birthday was celebrated on Saturday by a jovial supper party at the Carlton, when Mr. Ivan Caryll, the musical director, and the various ladies and gentlemen of the Gaiety, Daly's, and Prince of Wales's theatres, met to make a presentation to their popular chief. The souvenir presented took the form of a charming flower basket beautifully worked in silver. Mr. Caryll and Mr. Grossmith both made speeches that fell pleasantly upon the ear, referring to the connection of the various members present with Mr. George Edwardes and his theatres. Mr. Edmund Payne subsequently, in a witty speech, made the presentation to Mr. Edwardes, who responded in felicitous terms. The designs of the floral decorations corresponded in all particulars with the dishes on the menu, which was embellished with photographs of Mr. Edwardes and Mr. Caryll, and also of scenes from popular plays.

Sir Squire Bancroft has been elected to the Marlborough Club. The eminent actor is a great friend of King Edward, and it was on His Majesty's invitation that Sir Squire became a member.

A reassuring incident occurred on the last night of Mr. Arthur Bourchier's recent visit to the Theatre Royal, Newcastle-on-Tyne. Called upon to make the customary speech at the end of his successful week, Mr. Bourchier said that he and his company were just starting for Ireland, and lamented the fact that they were all of them bad sailors. Immediately a voice from the gallery shouted encouragingly, "Never mind, Arthur, you are very good actors." The remark was thoroughly endorsed by the delighted audience.

Mr. Charles Cruikshanks, the able secretary of the Actors' Association, has written to the Daily Telegraph with reference to a letter which recently appeared in that paper on the subject of actors' dressing-rooms. The council of the association, says Mr. Cruikshanks, as the representative body of the theatrical profession, sent to all the county councils throughout the kingdom a circular letter calling attention to the necessity of careful periodical inspection of the dressing-rooms in all theatres and the accommodation behind the scenes; at the same time the council gratefully acknowledged that in the majority of theatres the managers had shown their anxiety to provide for the comfort and convenience of actors and actresses; but still there were cases where the cleanliness and ventilation of the dressing-rooms, the sanitary arrangements, and the means of exit were extremely unsatisfactory. The council were particular to say they did not cast reflections on any particular theatre, and they were merely desirous that thorough inspection of the accommodation provided should be made, and that in cases where it was found to be defective, the managers should be requested to make reasonable and necessary improvements.

Mr. Cruikshanks has received replies from nearly all the clerks of the various county councils; and, in very many cases, where licensing of theatres has been delegated by the county council to some other body, they have either forwarded the circular to the proper authority, or, where there existed several bodies to which their powers have been delegated, they have kindly obliged him with the names and addresses of the persons to whom the circular should be sent.

Whenever a complaint reaches the council it is investigated, and unless it appears to be groundless or too trivial for serious consideration, the management is communicated with, and asked for an explanation; sometimes that explanation is considered satisfactory; sometimes it is not, and the manager is asked to remedy defects, and he does so. If he does not, the hon. medical officer of health moves the authorities of his town, and he is compelled to do so. Unfortunately, actors do not in every instance complain, and thus cases of insanitation and other matters are not brought to the notice of the council; and it was therefore thought advisable that the licensing authorities should be asked to make inspection before renewing licenses.

Mr. Cyril Maude's new theatre is making excellent progress, and it is hoped the Playhouse will be reopened early in January. There is not the least danger of another collapse, as there is now no roof at the railway station to fall in upon the theatre, so that the public may rest assured that the house is absolutely safe. The whole of the ground-floor area will be devoted to stalls, provision for the "pittites" being provided upstairs above the dress-circle. The stalls will have roomy armchairs, and the regulation space of one foot between each row of seats will be increased to eighteen inches in order to provide playgoers with ample room for passing to and from their places.

Miss Emily Soldene, whose fame in opera and burlesque is widespread, will have a farewell benefit matinée at the Palace Theatre on Nov. 13, when a programme of superlative excellence will be presented. Madame Melba is president and Miss Ellen Terry vice-president of a special ladies' committee, and the names of Earl Carrington, Lord Gleneek, Sir Douglas Straight, Mr. Alfred de Rothschild, Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr. R. C. McConnell, K.C., Mr. Henniker Heaton, M.P., Mr. Arthur Collins, Mr. Frederick Harrison, Mr. Charles Hawtrey, Mr. George Edwardes, Mr. Seymour Hicks, Mr. Stefano Gatti, and Mr. Alfred Butt add to the influential nature of the event. A souvenir programme illustrated by Mr. John Hassall, R.I., will be presented on the occasion of the benefit, the secretary for which is Mr. Richard Northcott.

Mr. James M. Glover has been invited by the Bexhill Town Council to be Mayor for the ensuing year. The popular musical director of Drury Lane Theatre is already an energetic member of the corporation.

"Les Merveilleuses," the operatic adaptation by Captain Basil Hood from the French of Victorien Sardou, composed by Hugo Felix, an added degree the prodigality in mounting and appointments which is always the distinguishing mark of Mr. George Edwardes's productions. The dresses are exceedingly tasteful in design and colour, and the ball at the Luxembourg will be remarkable for an exquisite combination of costumes. Miss Evie Greene, Miss Denise Orme, Miss Mariette Sully, and Miss Gabrielle Ray will play important parts, and among the other principals will be Messrs. Louis Bradfield, Robert Evett, Fred Kaye, W. H. Berry, George Graves, and Willie Ward.

Mr. Jerrard Grant Allen, who is bringing out The Amateur Socialist at the Criterion this evening, is the son of the well-known novelist, and has for several years been manager to Mr. James Welch.

Mr. Otho Stuart has deserved well of the great unacted during his two years' stay at the Adelphi, for Mr. Rudolph Besier, who has written The Virgin Goddess, will be the fourth new playwright whom Mr. Stuart has introduced to public notice. The full cast of the new piece, which will be produced on Oct. 23, will consist of Mr. Alfred Brydone, Miss Lily Brayton, Miss Genevieve Ward, Mr. Oscar Asche, Mr. Charles Rock, Miss Madge McIntosh, Mr. G. Kay Souper, Mr. H. R. Hignett, Miss Florence Gretton, Miss Agnes Brayton, and Mr. Walter Hampden.

Mme. Fanny Moody, no less enthusiastic than her husband in the desire to popularise music among the masses, paid a visit to one of Sunderland's slum scholars last week, and, after listening to the poor children's part-songs, sang "Home, Sweet Home" to the girls and "Robin Adair" to the boys. Mme. Moody further made the youngsters happy by saying that she would ask the education authority to allow her to offer prizes for vocal music. She expressed her great pleasure at the children's singing, and at the close the teachers presented her with a lovely bouquet.

A young alien who tried to emulate the heroine of Mr. Melville's drama, The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning, at the Standard Theatre, on Saturday night found his way into the police-court. When brought up at Old-street, on Monday, it was stated that the prisoner, who is a Russian, wanted to go to the shilling seats at the Standard, but joined the 6d. queue by mistake. When this was pointed out to him he tried to thrust himself into the other line of people waiting and secure an unfair advantage. Complaints were made, and the prisoner was put out by constables there to enforce the accepted order of theatre-waiting, which, however, is not, it appears, enforceable by any regulation or order of the legal authorities. Prisoner, who did not dispute the constables' directions on any point of this kind, and protested that he was not able to understand much English, was ordered to pay 7s. 6d., police costs.

The Ben Greet Company left London on Saturday for their fifth tour in America. The company, which has attained marked prosperity in the States, recently returned to this country for a brief stay, in the course of which a special open-air performance of A Midsummer Night's Dream was given at the Crystal Palace.

Leading schools of music benefit by the will of the late Mr. John Rutson, J.P., of Newby Wiske, Yorks, and of Nunnington Hall, Yorks. The testator, who left an estate of the gross value of £247,384, including net personality of £246,762, was a director of the Royal Academy of Music, and was one of the founders of the Hovingham Musical Festival. His bequests include £500 to the Royal Academy of Music, the income therefrom to be applied to the continuance of the "Albert Osliff Rutson Memorial Prize," and £235 to the same academy for the discharge of students' fees. Each of these bequests is free of duty.

Mr. Rutson leaves valuable musical instruments to the Royal College of Music, including a harp, two Guadagnini violins and a Foster violoncello. To the Royal Academy of Music he also leaves two Stradivarius fiddles, besides a viola of that master, an Amati fiddle and viola, and a number of other instruments of celebrated makers. In connection with these gifts the testator orders that those who were at present in charge of them should have the use of the instruments so long as they needed them.

The O.P. Club will discuss, not the ethics of the playhouse, but their seventh annual dinner, at the Criterion on Sunday, Nov. 4. The toast of the Drama will then be proposed by the president, Mr. Sidney Dark, and will be responded to by Mr. Hall Caine. Amongst other speakers will be Mr. Granville Barker, Mr. Mostyn T. Pigott, Mr. Alfred F. Robbins, Mr. Orton Roberts, and Miss Edith Wynne Matthison. Tickets may be obtained from the hon. treasurer, Mr. Carl Hentschel.

The final evening of the Promenade Concert Season, on the 26th inst., will be devoted by the directors of the Queen's Hall Orchestra, Ltd., to the endowment fund, inaugurated last year, for the benefit of the members of the orchestra. The artists, who have generously given their services for this occasion, are Mrs. Henry J. Wood, Mr. Ffrangçon-Davies, and Mr. Henry J. Wood. Neither Mrs. Wood nor Mr. Ffrangçon-Davies have appeared at these concerts this season, and this fact, together with a very popular programme, will assuredly attract an overflowing audience to Queen's Hall to appreciate the splendid work done by this orchestra, which has been trained to such a high state of efficiency by Mr. Henry J. Wood.

A final chance of witnessing the unique performance of Mr. G. P. Huntley, with Charles Macdona's principal company, including Miss Millie Legarde and the entire and actual production of Mr. Popple (of Ippleton) from the Apollo Theatre, is afforded to patrons of the Kennington Theatre next week. This is absolutely the last and only week in which Mr. Huntley will appear in town in Paul Rubens' successful "comedy with music," and Kenningtonians will, without doubt, seize the earliest opportunity of securing seats for this great attraction.

A preliminary instalment of the humour which one may suppose is forthcoming in the debates of the Playgoers' Club was given at the annual meeting held on the 5th inst. at the Hotel Cecil, when an amendment to the club's annual report was proposed by Mr. Douglas Story. This amendment was that the sentence of the report reading "Mr. Hannaford Bennett (late honorary secretary) was offered a hearty vote of thanks on resigning" should read, "Mr. Hannaford Bennett, on resigning, was offered a hearty vote of thanks for his past services." The amendment was adopted with enthusiasm. Mr. Hall Caine was elected president for the ensuing year.

Mrs. Brown Potter was among the guests at the wedding of the Rev. Harold F. Davidson, rector of Stiffkey, Norfolk, and Miss Moyra Cassandra Saurin, eldest daughter of the late Mr. Michael J. J. Saurin, of Garballaugh, Co. Meath, which took place at St. Martin-in-the-Fields on Tuesday. The bridegroom was formerly connected with the stage, and Miss Saurin is also well known in theatrical circles. The Bishop of London, with the bridegroom's father, the Rev. F. Davidson, and the rector of the parish, the Rev. Prebendary Shelford, performed the ceremony, after which a reception was held at the Grand Hotel.

The following gentlemen constitute the preliminary committee which has been formed to make arrangements for the complimentary dinner to be given by the musical world to Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M.P., on the 18th prox., to celebrate the successful passing of the Musical Copyright Act of 1906. Sir Hubert Parry, Sir Alexander Mackenzie, Sir Charles Villiers Stanford, Mr. Edward German, Mr. Hamish MacCunn, Mr. Michael Maybrick, Mr. Leslie Stuart, Mr. Ivan Caryll, Mr. Paul A. Rubens, Mr. Lionel Monckton, Mr. Howard Talbot, Mr. Alfred Littleton (Messrs. Novello and Co.), Mr. Arthur Boosey (Messrs. Boosey and Co.), Mr. William Boosey (Messrs. Chappell and Co.), and Mr. F. H. Pedgrift.

The British Empire Shakespeare Society has secured the services of Mr. Arthur Bourchier, one of its Vice-Presidents, to give a lecture, entitled "William Shakespeare: Maker of Men," at three of the prominent provincial centres of the Society. The first will be delivered on the stage of the Theatre Royal, Manchester, on Thursday afternoon next, when members of the London Council will be present. The second will take place at the Athenæum, Glasgow, on the following Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 23, when Sir John Ure Primrose will preside; and the Freemasons' Hall, Edinburgh, will be the scene of the third, on Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 30, with Lord Kingsburgh in the chair.

Mr. Bert Sinden, whose singing and dancing with his talented sister has been among the best features of The Beauty of Bath at the Aldwych, has unfortunately been obliged to give up through illness. He is suffering from internal hemorrhage, and is entering a sanatorium, where we hope he may speedily recover. It is naturally a great shock to the members of the gifted family, to whom the heartiest sympathy of all will be offered.

Mr. Clifford Bown, who is now embarked upon a tour of India and the East, passed through all the varied phases of dramatic art before he reached his present high position. Beginning as an amateur, Mr. Bown acceded to the professional stage in 1878, and has since served a long apprenticeship. He graduated in drama, and has over 2000 performances of the Convict in Man to Man to his credit. Pantomime also claimed him annually, and he was a leading member of the first company of that sort sent out by the late Sir Augustus Harris from Drury Lane. For six years he supported that favourite "star," Edward Compton, in high and old comedy; he played the principal comedian's parts in Shakespeare with the popular Walter Bentley, while in more modern productions his Earl of Loam in The Admirable Crichton and his Dr. Juttner in Old Heidelberg will be recalled. Four years spent with the late Sir Henry Irving, during which Mr. Bown accompanied the great actor twice to America, are a cherished memory, and more recent engagements of surpassing importance are those with Miss Ellen Terry in The Amber Heart and as Grimwig in Mr. Beerbohm Tree's production of Oliver Twist, at His Majesty's.

Miss Annie Hughes will commence a tour on November 27 at Manchester with Tommy, a new piece by Jerome K. Jerome, taken from his amusing book "Tommy and Co."

Mr. F. W. Purcell has taken a long lease of the Lyric Theatre, Bromley, Kent, which, after undergoing a thorough cleaning and renovation with a number of additional improvements, will reopen under his direct management on the 22nd inst.

A dramatic reading of Henry V. will be given by the British Empire Shakespeare Society on Sunday evening, at the Passmore-Edwards' Settlement, under the direction of Mr. Acton Bond, when Miss Edith Wynne Matthison, Miss Margaret Bussé, Miss Margaret Parker, Mr. Lewis Casson, Mr. Michael Sherbrooke, Mr. Kenyon Musgrave, Mr. Courtenay Foote, Mr. John Macfarlane, Mr. Lewis Willoughby, Mr. John Beamish, and Mr. Cecil Duncan will be included in the cast.

"The Charity That Began at Home," the new comedy by St. John Hankin, is due at the Court Theatre on Oct. 23, for a series of matinées. The cast will consist of Misses Florence Haydon, May Martyn, Margaret Murray, Lizzie Henderson, Agnes Thomas, and Gertrude Henriques, and Messrs. Dennis Eadie, Edmund Gwenn, Ben Webster, Bert Thomas, Eugene Mayeur, and Norman Page.

Mr. Barnet Pareezer, manager on behalf of J. Bannister Howard, Ltd., of the New Royal Theatre, King's Lynn, has received from Mr. J. Bannister Howard, as a mark of appreciation, a silver cigarette case inscribed on one side with a monogram and on the other "With kind regards from Mr. Cat-ter-m-o-l-e." It was a suitable and kindly souvenir from Mr. Howard of his benefit performance of The Private Secretary, held on Sept. 26, in which Mr. Howard took the part of Cattermole.

Negotiations for the production at a West End theatre of The Electric Man, the farcical comedy by Charles Hannan, which was produced at the King's, Hammersmith, in the April of 1904, are now in progress. Mr. E. B. Norman, late general-manager for Mr. Edward Terry, will "produce" the play.

The Grand Theatre, Islington, will be converted into a "two-houses-a-night" establishment on Monday, when the popular Princess's drama, Ben-my-Chree, will be presented twice without a cut. The first performance will begin at 6.15 and the second at nine o'clock, the necessary saving of time being effected in the intervals of the acts, the waits between which will be reduced to a minimum.

Miss Kitty Gordon, the well-known actress now playing the title-rôle in The Duchess of Dantzic, has been engaged, through the agency of C. St. John Denton, to play the principal boy in the forthcoming pantomime at the Crown Theatre, Peckham.

Miss Estelle Despa, in the rather difficult part of Mrs. Colquhoun in All-of-a-Sudden-Peggy, has been meeting with much success in the provinces.

Mr. Edward Cotte, who died last week at the age of seventy, appeared as Francis Osbaldestone in a revival of Rob Roy at Sadler's Wells in October, 1879, but a much more important engagement was when he played a leading part in The Black Crook, produced at the Alhambra during the Christmas of 1872. The spectacle was founded on the Biche au Bois, with music by the late Frederick Clay and Georges Jacobi, and adapted by Mr. Harry Paulton and his brother, Mr. J. Paulton. The cast included Mme. Cornelie d'Anka, Miss Kate Santley, and Miss Julia Seaman, Mr. Cotte, Mr. Harry Paulton, and the late Mr. Worboys.

Mr. Cotte, who possessed an excellent tenor voice, also appeared as Ange Pitou in La Fille de Madame Angot, when a version of that popular musical piece was produced at the Globe Theatre, and in a number of operettas that were once popular.

Many happy returns to Mme. Susanna Cole, A.R.A.M., 1849, who attains her seventy-sixth birthday on Monday next. Mme. Cole was for many years principal soprano at St. George's Cathedral, Southwark, and the Royal Sardinian Chapel. On the occasion of the visit of the King of Sardinia to London she was specially selected to sing before his Majesty. Mme. Cole now resides at Bruges, Belgium, and occasionally sings in public for charity.

The usual weekly meeting of the council of the Actors' Association was held on Tuesday last, when there were present Mr. C. Aubrey Smith (chairman), Mr. A. E. Drinkwater (deputy chairman), Mr. Henry W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Miss Kate Phillips, and Messrs. Cecil Barth, Acton Bond, Burton Cooke, F. Cremlin, Lawrence Grant, A. B. Tapping, Spencer Trevor, Fredk. Volpe, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary).

The hon. solicitors reported they had advised several members on points submitted, and they were requested to obtain the opinion of counsel upon a question arising out of the construction of a clause in a contract; in another matter they were asked to suggest arbitration to the parties concerned in a case in dispute. Daisy Irvine, Montague Wigan, and Mary Masters were nominated for election, and three former members were reinstated.

The questions concerning the proposed "Irving Memorial," discussed at the meeting of members of the A.A., held at Drury Lane Theatre on Monday the 1st inst., having been referred back to the council with a recommendation to call a meeting of the profession at large, it was resolved that those questions should be considered at the meeting of the council, which will be held on Tuesday, the 23rd inst., and the secretary was directed to request the attendance of all the members of the council, in order that the subject may receive the fullest attention.

The report of the Finance and General Purposes committee was received. The secretary was directed to call a meeting of the "Special" committee. Mr. Spencer Trevor was elected a member of this committee.

The Finance and General Purposes committee held a meeting on Tuesday last, when there were present Mr. Acton Bond (chairman), Messrs. A. E. Drinkwater, Lawrence Grant, C. Aubrey Smith, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). The committee were engaged in formulating suggestions to the council in connection with matters relating to routine, and in dealing with a question referred to them by the council.

Miss Edna May will make her reappearance in London, as has been hinted, in Nelly Neil, the new play by C. M. S. McLellan, author of The Belle of New York and Leah Kleschna, with music by Ivan Caryll. The event will take place on Boxing Night, and Mr. Charles Frohman will himself superintend the production.

The Playgoers' Club will open their Sunday evening debates at the Hotel Cecil on Oct. 21, with Mr. L. Bensusan in the chair. The subject chosen is "The Vexed Question of Dramatic Criticism," and the discussion will be opened by an address by Mr. J. T. Grein.

The tenth anniversary of the opening of the Royal County Theatre, Kingston-on-Thames, which was celebrated throughout last week, was a more than usually interesting event in the annals of suburban playhouses. Many other outlying houses started about the same time as the Royal County have, through stress of competition and other causes, ceased to serve the purpose for which they were built, having been turned into music halls, but the Royal County has continued to command the hearty support of the theatre-going public. During the nine years of its existence, 512 plays have been produced on its stage, many distinguished artists have trodden its boards, and the theatre has been the birthplace of several successful plays. Mr. Peter Davey, to whom the continued success of the theatre is largely due, still retains the post of managing-director, and all the heads of departments who were working on the opening night, remain at their posts.

The actual date of the anniversary, which was Thursday, the 4th inst., was signalised by a special performance of The School for Scandal, in which Mrs. Peter Davey, wife of the managing-director, appeared as Lady Teazle. The Sir Peter Teazle was Mr. Geo. Mudie; Mr. Rawson Buckley acted Sir Benjamin Backbite; Sir Oliver Surface was entrusted to Mr. Fred Dark; Charles Surface was sustained by Mr. F. Montague Lane; Miss Leonora Braham appeared as Mrs. Candour; and the Lady Sneerwell was Miss Lilian Hallows. The Mayor of Kingston and several members of the corporation were present at one of the performances.

Mr. Norman V. Norman has scored a great success with the Rev. Frederick Langbridge's new play, The Chevalier de St. George, the theatres being filled with enthusiastic audiences, who applaud the numerous exciting situations in the play. Opinion is unanimous that the Chevalier de St. George and Beatrix Esmond are the finest performances Mr. Norman and Miss Beatrice Wilson have ever given. Mr. Norman and Miss Wilson will appear in Brighton in a new duologue at the Catholic Bazaar, which will be opened by the Duke and Duchess of Norfolk in November.

Early in the year Mr. Ernest Dottridge, eager to "snap up" talent wherever it is to be discovered, found a very fine boy vocalist in a Master May, of Burnley. As the lad was under age, Mr. Dottridge advised the parents to keep him from appearing again until October, when the bother of obtaining licences each week would be obviated. The new singer duly appeared on Monday at the Pier Pavilion, Southport, and scored a great success. On Tuesday Mr. Johnson, the manager of the Pavilion, wired Mr. Dottridge, who has his sole bookings, to secure him for several more dates.

A great success has been established at the New Gaiety Theatre, Glasgow, under Mr. J. Barker's management, by running a stock company with popular drama, twice nightly, at popular prices. Mr. M. Montgomery, of the Rotunda Theatre, Liverpool, has provided an excellent company, the members of which are prime favourites with the Glasgow public, and crowded houses nightly is the reward reaped. On Monday, Nov. 5, A Trip to the Highlands will be produced by arrangement with Mr. Newton and Mr. E. T. de Banzee, with the original company, which appeared at the Royalty Theatre so successfully this year.

Keen interest is being evinced in American musical and theatrical circles in the forthcoming production by Mr. Thomas W. Ryley of The Belle of Mayfair at Rochester on the 29th inst. It will thence go to Baltimore, and reach New York for the Horse Show week. No fewer than 1,000 vocal scores of the work have been asked for in advance, and supplied, and Mr. Fred Day, the manager of the New York branch of Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, anticipates a more than ordinary busy time—which in America means much.

Mr. John Humphreys will undertake to-night the part now played by Mr. Berry in See-See at the Prince of Wales's.

Mr. George Arthurs, who has written the words of the new songs in The Belle of Mayfair—"I'll wait for you, little girl!" and "She always does the right thing," is, like the composer, Mr. Leslie Stuart, a Manchester man. Mr. Arthurs seems to possess the knack of hitting the popular taste, for another of his recent efforts, "If the world were ruled by girls," has been the success of Miss Ada Reeve's engagement at the Tivoli. Miss Lloyd is about to sing one of his songs, "The Adventures of Lady Jane," Miss Lottie Collins has another, called "A Marriage of Convenience," and Mr. Whit Cunliffe is scoring heavily with "It's a different girl again," the music being composed by Mr. Bennett Scott.

Mr. Martin Harvey, whose successful production of The Corsican Brothers, at Birmingham, on Wednesday, is fully dealt with in another column, is to appear next week at the Theatre Royal, Hull. At the request of the organisers, Mr. Harvey has kindly consented to recite at the Grand Military Bazaar, to be held in the Assembly Rooms, Hull, on Thursday, and two following days. The bazaar is to be given in aid of the building funds of the East Riding of Yorkshire Imperial Yeomanry, and will be opened by Earl Roberts.

On the occasion of the production at the King's Theatre on Monday evening of the play by Mr. George Warren, founded on Mr. Edgar Wallace's sensational novel, "The Four Just Men," a handsomely bound volume of the story was presented to every member of the audience on entering the theatre.

Mr. J. Bannister Howard, having successfully launched his Four Just Men company, starts to-day for the South of France for a well-earned holiday. On his return he will start preparing for his first Christmas pantomime, the subject of which will be Aladdin.

"A Heart's Desire," the romantic play by Frank Adair, will be staged by Messrs. Elliman's No. 1 Company at the Theatre Royal, Houghton-le-Spring, on Monday. The cast will include Miss Dora Eastlake, Miss Lily Barley-Clarke, Miss Ada Salmon, Mr. Cecil Grey, Mr. A. W. Beresford Carl, and Mr. Gerald Nolan.

Mme. Bernhardt's performance of Hilda Wangel, in Ibsen's Lady of the Sea, at Geneva recently, fell very flat, the general opinion being that the part did not suit the great tragedienne. This is the first time Mme. Bernhardt has played Ibsen. The theatre was crowded, a large number of French and German journalists being present. In reply to an interviewer, the actress said she was giving the performance in Geneva to judge of its effect before producing it in Paris.

One of the most promising young operatic singers in Berlin has just come to a terribly tragic end. Fräulein Reta Walter—one of the leading sopranos at the Konische Oper—was shot through the lungs by her fiancé, in her flat at the West End last week. The motive was jealousy. The murderer reserved another shot for himself, and both were buried on Monday. Fräulein Walter was only twenty-one; she was already a finished artist, and was beloved by all who knew her.

Mr. Alfred Lester, who loses himself every night in the character of the Constable, in The New Aladdin, recently lost his fox terrier—a very "old friend"—and spent every spare minute in trying to find his favourite. He was rehearsing at the Gaiety at the time. The offer of a good reward bringing no result, he doubled the amount; and, directly after the window bills were displayed in the suburb where he lives, a man appeared upon the scene with a vague story of having seen a "dorg" answering to the description somewhere in Shepherd's Bush. Should he follow up the clue? Mr. Lester asked him to do so, admiring his assumed manner, although he rather over-acted the part. The following day it was arranged that Mr. Lester should meet the Shepherd's Bush man at the end of a certain street, and they would both watch for the coming of the "dorg." Before the actor and his companion had been waiting three minutes another man appeared, strolling in an accidental way round the corner, leading Mr. Lester's by a bit of cord. Of course, the dog rushed to his master, the reward was paid, and the two dog "lifters"—whose capital acting really deserved the money—departed in opposite directions.

Miss Nellie Bowman has been shining as a particularly bright little star at Dalston this week. She looks charming as Angela Gilfain, in Florodora, and the part is greatly strengthened by her bright songs and original dancing. She has never had a dancing lesson in her life, but when a girl is a good mimic, under 7 stone in weight, possesses a quick ear for music, and unbounded vivacity, she can afford to laugh at apparently insurmountable difficulties. The second of the four Bowman sisters, the latest Angela Gilfain made her début at the promising age of six, when she was engaged to play with a stock company at the Standard Theatre. The piece was a harrowing melodrama, in which she had to kneel on a rock in mid-ocean, in an attitude of prayer, while her parents were drowned on either side. She had not rehearsed with the scenery, and, having no experience of the alarming flap of a stage ocean, she had to be solemnly warned by her mother not to be frightened, and not to move, whatever happened. In the middle of the scene, just when little Nellie was getting accustomed to her surroundings, a big tank at the back of the stage burst, and there was a sudden rush of very real water. The drowning parents made for the wings, the members of the orchestra leapt from their seats, and even the audience showed signs of alarm, but the "little, little child" remained on her rock, drenched and resolute, until she was rescued by her real mother, who waded through the wet canvas waves and carried her off under her arm.

Miss Bowman is always a great favourite behind the scenes, but her comrades sometimes show their belief in her good temper in rather a trying way. For instance, when she was playing Micah Dow, in The Little Minister, somebody caught her up off the floor, just before the curtain was to rise, and put her outside the emergency door at the side of the stage. She tried in vain to re-enter, but the door was too heavy to open, so there was nothing for it but to run round the corner of the street to the front of the house! On another occasion, when she was playing "A Little Stowaway" at one of the halls—Miss Bowman has tried everything from Shakespeare to variety—the door-keeper mistook her for a little street urchin. She had slipped downstairs to ask for her mail; but, finding the office empty, was just reaching up to get her letters out of the rack, when a hand seized her roughly by the collar, and she was unceremoniously pushed through the door into the street. Explanations and profuse apologies followed.

The late Mme. Ristori had a most thrilling and nerve-trying experience on the memorable occasion when in January, 1858, Orsini and Pierri attempted the lives of Napoleon III. and the Empress Eugénie by throwing bombs at the carriage in which they were seated. They were on their way to the Opera House in the Rue Lepelletier in Paris, where the outrage took place, and though the intended victims escaped unhurt hundreds of innocent people were injured. Mme. Ristori was at the moment on the stage in the execution scene from Maria Stuarda; a loud report re-echoed through the house, followed by the sound of falling glass and the shrieks of the wounded. But the great tragedienne proceeded with the performance as though nothing had happened, and a moment later Napoleon III. and the Empress Eugénie stepped into their box. The first thing which the Emperor did after acknowledging the plaudits of the house was to turn to Mme. Ristori with an encouraging wave of the hand, and she, after a curtsey, resumed her performance of the part of the unhappy Maria.

"Mrs. Warren's Profession," the piece by Bernard Shaw that came under the Censor's ban in America, was produced in Vienna on Tuesday, and met with great success. The play has been ably translated, and was presented in the Raimund Theatre before a large audience.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Very illustrative of the late Sir Henry Irving's whole system is the instance which Mr. Bram Stoker in his interesting "Personal Reminiscences of Henry Irving" gives of a detail of stage-management in the last act of Hamlet: "The cup from which Gertrude drinks the poison is an important item, inasmuch as it might have a disturbing influence. In one of the final rehearsals, when grasped by Hamlet in a frenzy of anxiety lest Horatio should drink: 'Give me the cup; let go; by heaven, I'll have it!' the cup, flung down desperately, rolled away for some distance, and then following the shape of the stage, rolled down to the footlights. There is a sort of fascination in the uncertain movement of an inanimate object, and such an occurrence during the play would infallibly distract the attention of the audience. Irving at once ordered that the massive metal goblet used should have some bosses fixed below the rim, so that it could not roll. At a previous rehearsal he had ordered that, as the wine from the cup splashed the stage, coloured sawdust should be used—which it did to exactly the same artistic effect."

Mr. George Bernard Shaw's whimsical comedy, Cæsar and Cleopatra, is at last to be produced in America by Mr. Forbes Robertson. When the piece was produced for copyright purposes, but unseen by the public, at Newcastle more than seven years ago, Mrs. Patrick Campbell read the part of Cleopatra and Mr. Nutcombe Gould that of Cæsar; and a writer in the Pall Mall Gazette was then credibly informed, "some of the stage hands who heard the performance were provoked to uproarious mirth by the audacious humour of the dialogue and the daring originality, modernity, and unconventionality with which the leading characters had been treated."

The same paper is scandalised by Mr. Shaw's attack on Shakespeare's Cæsar, which the dramatist has called an "admitted failure." As an exposition of Cæsar's character "all round," the glimpses given of him in Julius Cæsar are undoubtedly inadequate. But if no hero is on stilts "all the time," every great man when in authority and on view takes some of the professionally pompous tone. It is all the difference between a judge on the bench and a judge, say, on a race-course. It was no part of Shakespeare's plan to paint a portrait of Cæsar the warrior, the historian, and the reforming statesman. The bard merely wanted to emphasise the lordliness which was so offensive to his inferiors in the Senate, and accounted for the hatred of Cassius and his like.

A correspondent of the Daily Chronicle writes: "Miss Soldene, in her interesting reminiscences, has made a singular mistake in speaking of herself as the 'sole survivor' of the old Geneviève artists. Miss Lennox Grey is still living, though in delicate health, and in the sick ward (after an operation) of the Strand Union, Edmonton. Miss Grey, of the Princess's, Adelphi, Olympic, the Grand, Islington, the Soldene Touring Company, &c., was for some three years a leading lady at the Alhambra. Miss Soldene herself played for Miss Grey's benefit at the Olympic, lent by Miss Conover, in 1884."

The brothers Gatti, says the Morning Leader, became associated with the Adelphi Theatre more or less by accident. A marine store dealer, by the name of Clark, who had amassed a fortune, invested capital in the Grecian Theatre, the stock playwright of that house at that time being Henry Pettitt. F. B. Chatterton, the lessee of the Adelphi, having lost his all, principally at Drury Lane, where he declared "Shakespeare spelt ruin," borrowed money of Clark, who eventually foreclosed, and, with the Gattis, started the Adelphi on a new and prosperous career. This meant the bringing of Pettitt from the Grecian, his first piece at the Adelphi, Taken From Life, being an enormous success.

In a note on Miss Mary Anderson's production of A Winter's Tale in America the Grand Magazine gives an instance of the way in which that fair favourite of fortune and of the public regarded "receipts." On one occasion, before the curtain went up, not only was every seat in the house sold, but numbers of people were always willing to pay for the privilege of standing at the back. One night, in Philadelphia, on the conclusion of the first act, there was, as usual, a deafening round of applause, and Miss Anderson had to go in front of the curtain to bow her acknowledgments. As she got back on to the stage, she turned to a little knot of actors. "What a bad house we have to-night," she said. "A bad house!" echoed Mr. J. H. Barnes, the leading actor of the company. "Why, Miss Anderson, there is only one box empty!" "I know," said Miss Anderson, pouting; "but it ought to be full. That is why I call it a bad house." It was the only "bad house" she had during her American season.

Mrs. Kendal's youngest daughter, Miss Dorothy Grimston, who is appearing this week as Lady Isabel in East Lynne at the Marlborough Theatre, has told the Daily News how she went on the stage. Although, as it were, born to the boards, Miss Grimston had no professional training whatever beyond a few amateur performances at school. "One Monday morning," she says, "I walked into a leading London theatre and informed the manager that I wanted to act. I was given a part to rehearse, and about a month later made my début, under Madame Réjane's management, at the Garrick Theatre in L'Anglais tel qu' on le Parle. This was in June, 1903." Miss Grimston is now "simply dying" to appear in Shakespeare.

Mrs. Kendal, whose name is so strongly associated with the part of Lady Isabel, has two reminiscences connected with the piece. One is of a woman in the audience at a provincial theatre, who, in the harrowing death-scene in the last act, stood up in the pit with tears coursing down her face and cried out "No more! No more!" Another is of a little Yorkshire child who had been "secured" to represent little Willie, saying, in the parrot fashion of the old stage juvenile, "A' cannot see you or eear your voice. A' can ownly eear the singin' of those voices in the shinin' garden. Theear! Theear!"

The great popularity of the part of Joe Mivens, "the simple, honest sailor," as played by Mr. Dan Rolyat in The Dairymaids, is resulting, says the Morning Advertiser, in the frequent attendance at the Apollo Theatre of large numbers of "liberty" men from the various men-of-war stationed within easy reach of London. Thus, the handymen in the pit has become a familiar spectacle, while many naval officers are to be found in the stalls regarding critically the ward-room scene, and laughing heartily at the dilemmas of the cheery surgeon, Dr. Byrne. This reminds us of a performance of H.M.S. Pinafore at Portsmouth, when the "jolly tars" who filled the popular parts of the house took all Mr. Gilbert's irony for sentiment, and applauded the too-eloquent hero and hissed Dick Deadeye with the utmost earnestness and good faith.

A super-master has been telling the Daily Mirror from what callings the London "supers" are recruited. Amongst the classes represented are clerks, small tradesmen, old soldiers, old sailors, young stage aspirants, regular soldiers, sandwich-board men, shop assistants, labourers, river hands, and "actors who have fallen."

"THE SOLDIER'S WEDDING."

Nancy Lee ..... Miss Marion Denvil

Mr. Walter Melville is unquestionably one of the most prolific playwrights of our time, or, rather, of that younger generation which has now begun to make its influence felt in the land. In his latest work, The Soldier's Wedding, Mr. Melville is straightforwardly and frankly melodramatic. The story is an interesting one, and, moreover, it is well told. The hero is Jack Brown, stated to be "of His Majesty's Army," though he can claim no higher designation than that of a private soldier; and the heroine is Nancy Lee. The principal villain is Charles Courtenay. He is a nephew of Colonel Graham, who had befriended the hero because the latter's father saved his life upon a battlefield. Courtenay has a valuable confederate in his evil scheme in Julie de Beauvrais, a young lady who becomes the Colonel's wife. Courtenay presumes to be in love with Nancy Lee, whose grandfather, Nathaniel Lee, an aged farmer, has fallen on bad times. His cottage and household goods are to be sold by auction. Courtenay makes an offer to the girl to rescue her grandfather from his predicament if she will consent to marry him. She considers that the price is too dear, and declines. So we witness the sale of all the old man's possessions. This furnishes a most characteristic scene. The country auctioneer stands at his improvised rostrum and shouts, "Going! going! going!" There is animated conversation between the bystanders, and some of the rival farmers show a determination to outbid their neighbours in a manner that is nothing less than reckless. Horses, dogs, pigeons, ducks, and the usual farmyard denizens come before us, and after some bargaining each lot finds a new owner. Then the house comes under the hammer. Courtenay is the highest bidder, and just as the mallet is on the point of putting the property down to his account, Jack Brown rushes in with a larger offer, and secures the place, which he generously hands back to the old farmer. Of course in time Cupid wins his way, and Brown asks his Colonel's permission to marry, which is given. Then a little plan is conceived by Courtenay and the amiable Julie to accomplish the overthrow of Brown. Apparently they are aware that the Colonel has made a will largely in the young soldier's favour. How to disgrace the latter in the eyes of his commanding officer is the problem to which they endeavour to find a solution. They know that Jack will call to see the Colonel later on in the evening, and it is arranged that Julie shall be fondling the young fellow, and that the pair shall be surprised by the sudden entrance of the Colonel. The latter goes away in the company of his mischievous nephew, and when they return at a certain time they find Julie affectionately embracing Jack, much to the soldier's discomfort. The intrigue, however, fails to answer the purpose for which it was originated, for a would-be burglar, who has seen and heard all, informs the Colonel of the true state of affairs. In the third act Julie shoots her husband, and contrives to get Jack accused of the murder. However, in the last act she is betrayed by her accomplice, Courtenay, and there is a happy conclusion.

We really must congratulate Mr. Melville upon the excellence of the staging. We have already referred to the admirable manner in which one scene is put on. The same care seems to have been shown in regard to all the others. What a wealth of detail there is in the kitchen scene of the second act! It is a real kitchen that we gaze upon. Here are the red-brick tiles on the floor; here is the clothes-line from which is hanging varieties of underlinen; here, too, is the warming-pan one always meets with in country cottages; the grandfather's clock, the roughly-made trestle table, the common chairs appropriate to their surroundings, the plates, the pots, the pans, and other household utensils—even the ancient pestle and mortar are not forgotten. And a canary chirps sweetly in its modest cage as it looks through the old-fashioned lattice-windows upon a pretty garden. Mr. Melville certainly understands how to present a play. He realises, as every producer should realise, that a good setting means much in the telling of a story on the stage, and the scenic effects of The Soldier's Wedding are both artistic and realistic.

As to the acting, it is good all round. In the part of the hero we have Mr. Ashley Page, who contrives to present us with a straightforward, honourable, and soldierly character. Miss Marion Denvil is fascinatingly sweet and engaging in the rôle of Nancy Lee, and her delivery, like that of her stage lover, is beyond reproach. We particularly admired Mr. C. A. Chandler's characterisation of Nathaniel Lee, Nancy's grandfather. He shows us a doddering, white-haired old man, in garb which belongs to an antecedent generation, who hobbles along with the aid of his stick, and whose cacophonous voice is well suited to his years. In the well-worn brown corduroy jacket, the labourer's white trousers drawn tightly round the knees, and the red handkerchief scarf, it might be said that Mr. Chandler looks every inch the personage he is supposed to represent. Miss East Robertson, as the heavy lady, acts with considerable dramatic force; and Mr. Alfred Harding successfully impersonates the wiles and wickedness of Charles Courtenay. Mr. Tom Taylor is seen in a capital study of a good-natured military officer; and all the minor rôles are well placed. A number of delightful selections of music have been composed and arranged for the piece by Mr. Edward Reeves.

The first annual report of the Society of British Composers, which now has a membership of 165, including Sir Edward Elgar, Sir A. C. Mackenzie, Sir C. H. Parry, Sir C. Villiers Stanford, and Dr. F. H. Cowen, is a meritorious one. The chief object of the society is to publish those compositions of members for which publicity cannot be secured by the ordinary medium. The compositions were first played at concerts held by the society, and as a result four pianoforte solos and eight pieces of chamber music were published. Two private concerts were also given, at which "the most interesting and novel works by present-day composers of every nation" were included in the programme.

Presentation.—Mr. Richard Nightingale, who has been for five years acting-manager at the Bacup New Court Theatre, and is leaving to take up a similar appointment at the Empire Music Hall, Dudley, has been made the recipient of a large number of handsome presents. The gifts, which were presented at a farewell gathering held at a local restaurant on Saturday, included a fine travelling-bag and accessories and a gold-mounted umbrella from the theatre staff. A gold medal, bearing the name of the recipient, and subscribed for by frequenters of the theatre, also gave evidence of Mr. Nightingale's popularity.

FAREWELL TO MR. SYDNEY PAXTON.

Mr. Sydney Paxton's farewell concert at the Skating Rink, Southampton, on the 4th inst., was marked by a demonstration of public favour and enthusiasm which has never been equalled in the good old town of Southampton. It needed not the intelligence of the smallest lad present to discover that it was not the beautiful transformation of the interior of the spacious building, or the splendid entertainment provided for the enjoyment of a representative audience, that filled every nook and corner of the hall; but that it was to honour a dear friend, who, during his association with the management of the Grand Theatre and Hippodrome, Southampton, had won their sincere attachment, and who felt they could not allow him to sever his pleasant relations with them without an expression of their warm appreciation of his many social and business-like qualifications. This was the key-note of the evening; and Mr. Paxton must feel a very proud man indeed to have demonstrated in such a marked manner the high esteem in which he is held by his legion of friends on both sides of the footlights.

The hall had been most tastefully decorated, the special floral ornamentations of the stage being much admired. It was the work of Mr. Fred Bailey, of Above Bar, who was also responsible for chaste embellishments of a similar character in other parts of the house. The programme was exceedingly lengthy, and rich in variety and talent, and great praise is due to Mr. Wm. Trussell (manager, Palace), who directed the stage, and skilfully played the accompaniments on the piano for the various artists. One of the successes of the programme was scored by Mme. Ruby Hemming, whose beautiful voice was heard to great advantage in "Il Bacio" and other songs. Mr. Wm. Short, H.M. State trumpeter, who journeyed specially down from London, was another popular favourite. The Coronation trumpet calls also proved a great novelty. Mr. Frank Harwood, a clever actor-vocalist, gave a recital, Not Understood. Mr. Tom J. Morton and Miss Maggie Bowman delighted everyone with their comedy duo, "She loved a policeman." Unthan, the armless wonder; and Dronza, the marvellous mechanical talking head, were successful turns. A taking duet was provided by Miss Lulu Louden and Mr. Tom May; whilst Mr. Maurice Harvey was well received in his impersonations of well-known actors. Many local artists also successfully appeared.

During an interval in the programme an easel was placed upon the stage, and on this was hung a beautifully-executed illuminated address, the work of Mr. F. J. Burcher, embellished with views of the Hippodrome and Grand Theatre, the Chamberlayne challenge bowl, which is held by the Bargate Club, of which Mr. Paxton is president; and the Southern League Shield, which has been won by the Southampton F.C. on six occasions. The text of the address was as follows:—"To Sydney Paxton, Esq.—Dear Sir,—We desire you to accept this address, with the accompanying purse of gold and gift to Mrs. Paxton, in token of the regard and esteem entertained towards you by the very large number of residents of Southampton and the district who have become acquainted with you during your stay in our town.

"Your departure, on relinquishing the positions of resident-manager of the Grand Theatre and district-manager of the Hippodrome, is sincerely regretted. As to your professional ability and the high standard of your ideals and accomplishments, no words of ours would be an effective addition to the splendid tribute so eloquently tendered by Sir Henry Irving on the occasion of his farewell visit to Southampton, but we can say how cordially the sentiments then expressed were endorsed by local people, and how widespread was the gratification so high a compliment afforded.

"The readiness with which you have identified yourself, in various ways, with Southampton's interests, and the generosity with which appeals in behalf of charitable and other movements have been responded to by you—invariably with successful results—have commanded general appreciation, while your courtesy, geniality, and warm-heartedness have secured for you the affection of all with whom you have been associated.

"We feel sure you will make friends wherever you go, and we trust that there are many happy and prosperous years in store for you and yours.

"On behalf of the Testimonial Committee and subscribers, Henry Cawte, J.P., Mayor (Chairman of Committee); R. Andrews, Sheriff; W. Trussell, Deputy-Chairman; H. P. Howell, Hon. Treasurer; W. A. Gleave, Geo. Gear, Hon. Secretaries. Southampton, Oct. 4, 1906."

The Mayor (Mr. H. Cawte, J.P.), Colonel Swalm (American Consul), Mr. and Mrs. Paxton, and the members of the committee, on making their appearance on the stage, were accorded a rousing reception.

The Mayor said he presided over the gathering that evening with a feeling of sadness, for they had now come to the parting of the ways, when they would be losing their genial and kind friend Mr. Paxton. He was just the ideal man for the post of theatre manager, and though he had been a busy man professionally, yet he had found time to take advantage of every opportunity to forward and bring to the front any and everything appertaining to the welfare of Southampton. The Mayor, at the conclusion of his remarks, handed over the "work of art" and a purse of gold.

Mr. Paxton, who met with a magnificent reception, said, in the course of an eloquent speech, that he felt that he ought to be one of the proudest of men that evening, but, let them believe him, he felt most humble. He was proud to think they had thought him worthy of such a glorious testimonial and such an exhibition of regard, but he felt most humble when he thought how little he had done to deserve it. In conclusion, he thanked the Mayor, also Mr. Gleave, Mr. Gear, Mr. Trussell, Mr. Howell, the members of the committee, and all who had in any way helped forward the success of the gathering.

Colonel Swalm then presented Mrs. Paxton (on behalf of the subscribers) with an 18-carat gold curb bangle, upon which appeared a suitable inscription. Previously Mrs. Paxton had received, on behalf of the players of the Southampton Football Club, a magnificent bouquet of red and white flowers—the club colours.

The concert, one of the very best ever given in Southampton, closed shortly before midnight, the massed bands of the Grand Palace and Hippodrome providing a most impressive finale. And then came cheers to speed the parting guest, "Auld Lang Syne" and "God Save the King." The immense audience slowly filed out into the moonlight, bearing away with them ineffaceable recollections of an unique tribute to a popular actor, courteous manager, and a thorough gentleman.

In addition to the presentations mentioned above, Mr. Paxton has been the recipient of a handsome silver loving-cup, subscribed for by the whole of the employees of the Grand Theatre; a silver-mounted umbrella as a token of esteem from the Hippodrome staff; and a silver matchbox from two gallery boys at the Grand Theatre.

MR. BOURCHIER AT LEEDS.

The Gilbert and Sullivan Fête, on the 5th inst., in aid of the Leeds Lifeboat Fund, had the advantage of the eloquence of Mr. Arthur Bourchier, who had appeared in the town the week previous, and journeyed from Newcastle for the purpose of opening the fête. Mr. Bourchier, who was received with the utmost cordiality, spoke as follows:—

Ladies and Gentlemen, it is a great honour as well as a pleasure that you should have called upon me to open this fête in the interests of so noble a cause. My wife bids me tell you how sorry she is not to be present to-day; but she knows you will understand that, to one of the gentler sex, seven performances in one week, plus heavy rehearsals of Lady Macbeth, renders the journey from Newcastle to Leeds and back in the same day a physical impossibility. As I was leaving Newcastle this morning I told her that I felt, so far as I was concerned, it was a case of "journeys ending in lovers meeting." Judging from the very encouraging reception my company received last week in your beautiful and well-ordered playhouse, may I venture to hope that the same sentiment finds an echo in your own hearts towards myself?

I can imagine no more pleasant form of appeal than that devised by your committee. The object of your fête is one which both the late Sir Arthur Sullivan and the, happily, still living Mr. Gilbert would be among the first to encourage. I see by your very charming and effective costumes that you are well acquainted with the delightful operas that have made their names veritable household words all the world over; indeed, the fame of the performances of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas here in Leeds has often reached us in London.

Nowadays it takes at least ten people to write a musical comedy; but when the Gilbert and Sullivan operas were produced musical comedy was practically unknown, and the public was quite content with one author and one composer. They didn't even hire an extra man to write the lyrics. But those days are like the "old, old love" in Patience, long dead, and the comic operas of to-day are spread out among so many people that they are apt to get thin in the process.

The work of the lifeboat man needs no recommendation. His heroism fills pages of our glorious island story, and any friend that helps to keep the lifeboat fully equipped needs must appeal to the community at large. It is in the nature of an old adage that when Leeds takes a thing up it does it thoroughly. This year £500 has already been sent to the fund, and a balance of £400 is expected—£900 in all—apart from what will be realised by this fête. This will be in the nature of a record for your city. It will be in your memory that a year or two ago, when Sir John French opened a bazaar on behalf of the fund, the total raised was £800. These are large sums, when it is remembered that Leeds is an inland city, far removed from the perils of the sea.

At a time when musical Yorkshire has been captivating the hearts of our cousins German, perhaps the most musical nation in the world, the following telegram just received from Germany will prove specially interesting. Mr. W. S. Gilbert, my dear old friend and London theatre landlord, is at present at Wiesbaden. He has just sent me this telegram: "I send hearty good wishes for success of fête. Greatly regret I cannot be present.—Gilbert."

And now I think I have kept you from the various attractions of the fête long enough, so I will conclude by thanking the committee once more for the honour they have done me, and by declaring the fête open for its second day.

DEATH OF ADELAIDE RISTORI.

The above world-famous actress died on Tuesday morning, at her residence in Rome, from pneumonia. She was born at Cividale, a small town in the Friuli, in 1821. At sixteen she appeared in leading tragic parts, and was afterwards for four years engaged in Signora Carlotta Marchioni's Sardinian company. In 1841 she joined the ducal troupe at Parma, and soon made great successes as Medea, Phœdra, Lady Macbeth, and Marie Stuart. In 1847 she married the Marchese del Grillo, and soon after her marriage went out with a touring company of her own through Italy. The tour proving a failure, she joined the company of Signor Domeniconi, appearing at the Teatro Valle, Rome, as Myrrha. In 1855 she was engaged by the Theatre Français. From Paris she went to London, opening at the Lyceum Theatre in 1856, and making a deep impression as Medea. On later visits to London she appeared as Debora in the original of Leah, as Lady Macbeth, as Adrienne Lecouvreur, and as Norma. In the English metropolis, in 1873, she went through the sleeping scene in Macbeth in English. In 1882, at the age of sixty-one, she played the part of Lady Macbeth at Drury Lane in Italian, under the management of Sir Augustus Harris, with Mr. William Rignold as Macbeth and Mr. J. H. Barnes as Macduff. The people of Rome gave a fête at the Valle Theatre on Jan. 29, 1902, in celebration of Ristori's eightieth birthday.

The funeral of Mme. Ristori took place on Thursday, all the Government and city authorities taking part officially in the ceremonies. Magnificent wreaths and other floral tokens were sent by Queen Margherita, the French Minister of Public Instruction, and many other notabilities, and thousands of friends and admirers congregated at the grave. The procession went through the principal streets of the city, and a service was held in the chapel belonging to the Capranica family. Speeches were delivered in the Minerva Church, after which the remains were interred in the family tomb next to those of the great actress's husband.

Miss Winifred Hare has just been engaged at a large salary to play Dick Whittington in the forthcoming pantomime at the Alexandra, Stoke Newington.

The task of turning an interesting novel into an interesting play has been cleverly accomplished by Mr. George Warren. It was fairly obvious that there was excellent material out of which to fashion a good drama in Mr. Edgar Wallace's thrilling novel, "The Four Just Men," but it required no little skill and sound judgment to successfully adapt the story for the stage. Mr. Warren therefore deserves to be congratulated on the satisfactory results of his work.

One of the principal merits of the new play is that the interest increases with every act. In the first scene—garden of an hotel at Cadiz—we meet the leading characters, prominent among which are George Manfred, Jules Poiccart, and Leon Gonsalez, known respectively throughout the play as Messrs. Brown, Knight, and Selkirk. Here also is staying Sir Philip Ramon, the Secretary for Foreign Affairs in the British Government, who has come to Spain to fetch from her convent his niece and ward, Juanita. General Trelovitch, a leader of the Servian revolutionary party who murdered their King, is, too, a guest at the hotel. Brown and Knight assume the characters of English tourists, and Selkirk, who is an adept at disguises, is employed as one of the waiters at the hotel. The "Four" having recently lost one of their number, impress into their service a man named Miguel Thery, whom they intimidate by the knowledge which they possess of his past life. Sir Philip Ramon is the author of a measure known as the Alien Political Offenders Bill, which, if it became law, would deprive the political refugee of his one asylum—England. The Four Just Men, whose boast it is that "they never act from personal motives," their sole aim being to "mete out justice where the power of the law fails," warn the Foreign Secretary that unless he withdraws his Bill they will take his life. Manfred, otherwise Brown, the leader of "The Four," has also arranged the escape from Cadiz of Manuel Garcia, a young artist, who has preached revolutionary doctrine in order to rouse his fellow-countrymen to resent the oppressive measures of a corrupt Ministry. It so happens that Juanita Ramon has met and fallen in love with Garcia, unknown to her stern uncle and guardian. The first act ends tragically. In a duel with swords which Trelovitch is compelled to fight with Brown, he is killed, and thus justice has again been satisfied.

The scene of the second act is the drawing-room at Sir Philip Ramon's house in Portland-place. The Foreign Secretary has given a ball, to which Juanita has secretly invited Garcia. Sir Philip surprises the lovers, and recognises the artist as the man he had seen in Cadiz under suspicious circumstances within a few minutes of the death of General Trelovitch. The girl, in her agitation, betrays the real identity of her lover, and Sir Philip brutally tells her that Garcia will be convicted upon her evidence and hanged. And though he has received the third of the three warnings from the Four Just Men, nothing will induce him to withdraw his Bill. The conspirators ostensibly carry on a business as art publishers at 45, Carnaby-street, where Thery, whom his companions distrust, is kept a prisoner; but he manages to escape through a window, and gives information to the editor of the Megaphone. The story now takes a very exciting turn. Brown and his two associates track Thery to the office of the newspaper, and Brown, armed with a loaded revolver, enters the editor's room, and finds there not only Thery but Sir Philip himself, the journalist, John Blount, and Garcia. They are compelled to take an oath not to stir for ten minutes, and Brown departs with Thery.

The climax is reached in the last act. Sir Philip has been finally warned that his death will take place at eight o'clock. He reaches Downing-street in safety, and all the doors are bolted and barred, and the corridors are guarded by the police. One of "The Four" obtains entrance disguised as a police inspector, and leaves a document in an envelope which, on being opened, is found to contain a paper announcing the doom of the Minister. The clock strikes eight. Then the telephone rings. Sir Philip places the receiver to his ear—and in a few seconds is a dead man. Thery, who is by trade an electrical engineer, has tapped the wires, and a deadly current has been laid on. The Four Just Men have kept their word.

Mr. H. A. Saintsbury, under whose stage direction the play was produced, deserves warm praise for his admirable performance in the part of George Manfred, otherwise Brown. The stern determination of the man hidden under a quiet, suave manner was cleverly shown, and indeed in every detail the character was clearly drawn. Mr. Gordon Bailey acted well as Jules Poiccart, alias Knight; and Mr. Hubert Willis scored all through as Leon Gonsalez, otherwise Selkirk. His numerous disguises were excellently assumed and highly effective in adding to the interest of the play. Mr. E. H. Dobell as Miguel Thery carefully and ably depicted the foreign scoundrel, who stands in terror of those in whose hands he has fallen. Mr. H. Elliott Ball was responsible for a very realistic picture of the plucky, obstinate Foreign Secretary, who pays the penalty of desregarding the warnings of "the mysterious Four." Mr. Leonard Williams was a sufficiently manly, outspoken Manuel Garcia; and Mr. Algernon J. Hicks was an appropriately fierce General Trelovitch. Good work was done by Mr. Wilfrid Evesham as Sir Charles Barrington, and Mr. Legai Robinson as Mr. Greenham, a fussy, foolish member of Parliament. Later Mr. Robinson appeared in the rôle of Billy Marks, a thief, who plays an important part in the plot, and gave a very clever character-sketch. Mr. Edward Russell was a smart editor of the Megaphone; Mr. Harry Gregory was good as Superintendent Falmouth; and Mr. Charles Terric satisfactory as Inspector Howard. Miss Dorothea Desmond proved to be a charmingly girlish Juanita Ramon, but at the same time able to express strong feeling with intensity and effect. Miss Alys Rees scored in a conventional character, Mrs. Travers, an American widow, who says smart things with a pronounced accent. The new play, which was excellently staged, ought, on its merits, to enjoy a most prosperous provincial tour. The appropriate music has been specially composed by Mr. Fritz Hart, and the company is under the direction of Mr. Cecil Barth.

"Pretty Fanny's Way," a farcical comedy, in three acts, by Frederick F. Forshaw, was produced for copyright purposes at the Kennington Theatre on the 5th inst.

T.R.H. the Prince and Princess of Wales were present at the performance of The Bondman, at Drury Lane, on Monday.

Royal Court Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence. — Mr. George Edwardes's company is here this week with The Little Michus, a return visit of which has been highly welcomed. Mr George Graves, in his original part of General Des Ifs, provoked endless laughter; the Michus found able exponents in Miss Thelma Raye and Miss Iris Hoey, their singing being much appreciated; Miss Florence Parfrey proved a charming Madame Michu; Mr. Leonard Mackay as Vert and Mr. W. T. Andrews as Rigaud sang in good style; the Pierre Michu of Mr. George Muller proved exceedingly amusing, and a deal of fun was created by Mr. Jack Cannot as Bagnolet. The choruses were excellent and the staging appropriate.

Shakespeare Theatre, Ltd.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—Oliver Twist, played by Mr. Beerbohm Tree's company, has been the attraction here this week. Mr. William Mackintosh repeated his wonderful picture of Fagin; Mr. Cecil A. Collins acted admirably as Sikes; Miss Marie Polini displayed highly-cultivated powers as Nancy; Miss Jane Savile was a sweet Rose Maylie; Miss Maudie Ray found favour as Oliver Twist; Mr. Tom Macfarlane proved an admirable Artful Dodger; to Mr. Christmas Grose credit is due for his Charlie Bates; Mr. C. H. Croker-King made the most of Monks; Mr. Henri C. Jacobs was an acceptable Bumble; and Mr. Harvey Braham handled the part of Harry Maylie with credit.

Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—For the first time in Liverpool Her Love Against the World has been produced here. The company responsible is that of Messrs. W. H. Hallatt and Walter Howard. Miss Ellen Snow played powerfully as Iris; Mr. Walter Howard made an admirable Eric; every credit is due to Mr. Mayor Cook for his excellent portrayal of the villainous Ulric; Miss Rossie St. John was a capital Nello; and the remainder of the cast worked hard for the success of the piece.

Lyric Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—A very capable array of talent is billed here this week, with Harry Rogerson's company at the head in an extravaganza entitled Herne, the Hunter; Clown Barker and Miss Rozsika and their canine friends delight the audience with a pretty and interesting comedy act; Barrett and Knowles are the cause of uproarious laughter; Gus Harris, an old friend of the Lyric audiences, fully maintains his popularity; Geoffreys and Benson's sketch, Spoofed, is very laughable; Lena Verdi is a capable mimic; A. Aiston is good, as are the Dagonets; Barney Stuart's contributions are loudly applauded.

Star Theatre. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr Harris Fineberg.—The old-time Driven from Home has proved a good attraction here during the week, being well put on by Mr. Andrew Melville's company. Mr. Felix Pitt as Anthony Raybrook played with much dramatic force; the villainous Geoffrey Waring was ably impersonated by Mr. Frederick Sandy; Mr. Percy Dawsone proved effective as Willie, the outcast; much humour came from the efforts of Mr. A. E. Mann as John Anderson and Miss Evelyn Marrable in the rôle of Margaret Bailey; Miss Florence Trevoir handled the character of Barbara Ashdown with care; credit is due to Mr. John Brooks for his Dick Saunders; and Miss Frances Ruttledge did every justice to the parts of Laura and Walter Hatherley, the younger. The drama was well put on.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Lingford Carson; Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—An important engagement has been made at this theatre this week with The Eternal City, an excellent company, under the direction of Mr. J. Bannister Howard, presenting it. In the trying part of Baron Bonelli Mr. D. Lewin Mannering acted with telling effect, making all the strong points possible; Miss Sara De Groot proved a powerful Donna Roma Volona, and when opportunity served fully rose to the occasion; Mr. W. O'Flynn gave the fullest satisfaction as Bruno Rocco; a finished David Rossi came from Mr. Henry Deas; Mr. Edward Comberbach did justice to the minor part of Father Pifferi; Mr. Jack Fortescue both looked and acted the rôle of the Pope; Mr. Herbert Legerton was telling as the police spy, Minghelli; and Miss Violet Campbell held the small character of Nattalina with credit. The choir sang with taste, and the play was presented in admirable style

Royal Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—A capital, mirthful, and musical mélange, entitled Muggins, V.C., is at the top of the programme here this week. Presented by Lew Lake and company, the merry trifle has proved extremely enjoyable. Galletti's monkey comedians were amusing; M. Kokin, a comedian and dancer of ability, had a cordial reception; the coon songs of Yaeger and Yaeger were well received; as comedy duettists the Lurins distinguished themselves; a pretty Japanese scena was provided by Mabel Hind; Frank Couch kept his audience in a merry mood with his amusing patter; Lillie Lassah danced and sang with much taste; and the funny sketch, Counsel's Opinion, presented by Clarisse Heney and company, aroused laughter.

New Parthenon. — Proprietor, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—A programme dear to the hearts of the frequenters of this favourite little place is given this week. The popular Elders are at the top with their latest songs; Hannaway Bros. dance and sing with all the dash of yore; after a long absence in America Joe Huda returns with new songs and smart dancing; Sam Thomson, able Scotch patter comedian, brings his latest successes; Marie Elton sings some acceptable songs; and Alice Poole shows to advantage with her dancing and vocal numbers.

Royal Palace of Varieties. — Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole. —Every Inch a Man is the title of the dramatic sketch presented here this week by the "Royal" stock company, which continues in great public favour. Mr. Percy Boucher evokes laughter with his Teddy Edwards; Mr. Cecil Ravenswood does justice to the part of Alderman Barnet; Mr. Harry Tresham makes a fine Dick Barnet; the heavy part of David Barnet is well handled by Mr. Sydney Grant; as the old soldier, Ben Brown, Mr. E. D. Allen looks and plays the rôle with satisfaction; Mr. Leo Montgomery is Warder Bates; Mr. Robert Wilton is well placed as Major O'Donovan; Miss Florence Palmer is a sweet Vera Maxwell; Mrs. Edwards as portrayed by Miss Beryl Ravenswood leaves little to be desired; and Miss Sybil Hammersley gets a deal of fun out of Martha.

Park Palace, Ltd. — Managing-Director, Mr Walter de Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—The popular Irish comedian, Frank Caffery, heads the bill here this week; Mount and Corelli, society entertainers, have an excellent musical duologue, The Master and the Maid; Lulu Egbert, possessor of an effective contralto voice, presents a pleasing scena, An Outcast on the Highway of Life; an acrobatic comedy act, brimming with fun, entitled Ye Brown Cow Inn, comes from Burg, Hand, and Wise; Allsopp and Beckwith submit a laughable duo I'm Coming Upstairs; the Gallery Boy, a mimic of people he has seen in the theatre, sings several songs in approved style; and Bert Gordon, double-voiced vocalist, is also in the list.

Westminster.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—Will Godwin, with some taking songs, heads the bill here; Tray and Rich, black and white comedians, are humorous, and dance well; Morimura, assisted by the lady Miako, performs some smart illusions; the mimicry of Yorkshire Tom affords satisfaction; Frank Dunlop tells funny yarns in good style; some well-rendered songs come from Phil Rabey; and Lil Hayes, coon comedienne and dancer, is a good turn.

Haymarket.—Licensee, Mr. J. S. Childs.—This place, which has been closed for about two months, in order that alterations and decorations might be effected, again sought public patronage on Monday night. The present proprietor, Mr. Brammall built the edifice some twenty-three years ago, and Mr. Childs, the manager, is well-known. The opening programme contained a number of good things, among them being the Alberto Troupe of Acrobats; the funny Little Zola; Jack Sheppard, the "handcuff king"; the Three Behans, comedy artists; the Sisters Burton, vocalists and dancers; and the Bioscope. The management has resolved to introduce something of a high-class character, and with this intention has engaged for some time the Silver Gleam Prize Band, which is loudly applauded for the popular musical selections it renders Olympia, Ltd. — Manager, Mr. A. W. Young.—Hengler's spectacular comedy sketch, Harum-Scarum, puts in a third and last week; a pretty and interesting performance by Tschernoff's animals is received with gratification; Ben Hur, an able athlete, goes through some remarkable feats with sacks of sand; Charles Leonard Fletcher has an artistic novelty, An Actor's Dressing-room, and impersonates well-known characters; Wilson and Waring's turn with the sketch, A Bit of Nonsense, in which Miss Waring introduces some particularly quick changes, is much appreciated; Bessie Butt sings and dances neatly; as musicians, the Bisera Troupe of ladies display high ability; the Sydney Brothers go through some expert cycling feats; and Flor D'Orville, comedienne, is also in the bill.

Paddington Palace.—Lessee, Mr. M. Montgomery. —The establishing of a stock dramatic company here has met with well-deserved success. This week the striking play, A Woman's Error, has been enjoyed by large audiences. Mr. Albert Sember played with much earnestness the part of Ralph Lawrence; Mr. Frank S. Strickland was the villainous Captain Sudley; Mr. Vernon A. Briscoe afforded every satisfaction as Doctor Foster; a well-handled part was that of the Vicar by Mr. Francis E. Wybert; Mr. H. G. Brandon, an excellent comedian, was a tower of strength as Noah Gosling; Mr. Walter Foster did credit to Stott Seeley; Miss Lina Nazeley acted well as Vivienne; Miss Sara Blumenthal's Sal Gosling was admirably drawn; and Miss Lilian Burns acquitted herself as Vanda.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd.—Principal here this week is the musical mélange, The Prince of Monte Carlo, a merry production, played by Harry Roxbury and company. W. J. Ashcroft had a warm reception for his Irish impersonations; the Monte-Myro Troupe evoked great laughter with their "Adventures in a Café"; the Smythsons Comedy Four submitted a smart mélange, The Lie Alarm; George Newburn, as a mimic, was seen to great advantage; Burnetti gave some clever musical imitations; the Stella Troupe of girl singers and dancers were a pretty turn; Minnie Cunningham, Irish comedienne, had a cordial reception, and Nettie Starr, comedienne and dancer, also appeared.

Roscommon.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Foremost here this week are Ike Scott and Son, comedians, with their latest successes; the Harrison Brothers, comedians, patterers, and dancers, bring a funny item, Quaint Conceits; a good ventriloquial show is given by Lady Fontleroy; Garford, the clown, provides a neat performance with his pigeons and dogs; and in the programme are J. G. Aitken, comedian, and Molly Doon, comedienne.

AMUSEMENTS IN GLASGOW.

Theatre Royal, Ltd. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys. — Mr. Wm. Greet's company is presenting here the powerful play entitled The Shulamite. Mr. Charles Weir gave a clever and finished impersonation of the old Boer farmer, Simeon Krillet. The part of the wife, Deborah, is taken by Miss Evelyn D'Alroy, and proved quite a triumph for this young actress, every phase in the development of the character being shown with convincing fidelity. Mr. W. T. Lovell was good as the English overseer, Robert Waring. The narrow-minded Tante Anna was well acted by Miss Mary Griffiths, and Jan was ably played by Mr. Reynolds Denniston. Miss Marcella Hudson as the Kaffir girl, Memke, completed an able cast. A comedietta, The Widow Woos, was given in front, and proved very amusing.

King's, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—Mr. George Edwardes' Gaiety company is appearing here this week in the second edition of the successful musical comedy, The Spring Chicken. In the rôle of Girdle, Mr. George Gregory is highly entertaining; the part of Mrs. Girdle is also in good hands, Miss Irere Verona playing the character with her accustomed grace and merriment. Miss Gertrude Glyn is bright and winsome as Rosalie; as Dulcie Babori, Miss Gertrude Gilliam sings and acts with excellent taste; Mr. John Braborne is a handsome figure as Gustave Babori; Mr. Fred Leslie, jun., is the Boniface, and displays wonderful smartness and agility; the Baroness Papouche is attractively represented by Miss Nancy Langtyre; Miss Nelly Lonnen (Emmy Lou) excels as a neat dancer, and has a clever partner in Mr. William Spray, who takes the part of young Girdle; Mr. Ernest Mahar's portrayal of the waiter Felix is an excellent performance. Good character-studies are seen in the Baron Papouche of Mr. Frank Hector and in the Landlord of Mr. Jocelyn Hope. The chorus and orchestra and under the able direction of Mr. Ernest Vousden.

Princess's.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Richd. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Mr. Douglas Bruce's company is playing The Girl Who Lost Her Character to crowded houses. Mr. E. J. Collins as the Rev. Robert Everton, acquits himself well as the sympathetic parson; Mr. C. W. Standing, in the dual parts of Jack England and Private Johnson, creates a good impression. In Mr. F. Adair has been chosen as fine a villain in Capt. Caversham as could be wished; Mr. Geo. Mitchell as the repentant forger plays his part in a way to enlist admiration and respect; Mr. C. Renn as the Detective, Mr. G. H. Asquin as George Punch, Mr. John Wilson as George Purvis are all wholly satisfactory. Interest centres in the girl, Molly Vernon, played by Miss E. Clyde, and for her reading of an exacting rôle high praise is due to this actress. Miss Ethel Bracewell, as Rose Seymour, deserves commendation for a well-balanced representation; and Miss Lydia Mannington, as Marian Franklyn, invests that rôle with all the cunning and mystery attached to it. For the Isabella Jones of Miss Daisy Maynard a spice of humour and versatility makes the performance of that lady quite refreshing and enjoyable.

Metropole, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—That ever-popular drama, The Silver King, is being staged at the Stockwell house this week. In the title-rôle Mr. Fred D. Davies displays all the qualifications necessary for the part, and carries through his onerous task with a success which must indeed be highly gratifying to him. Nellie Denver is ably portrayed by Miss Daisy Scudamore; as The Spider, Mr. L. St. George Lowther is one who adapts himself admirably to the rôle of the unpopular person; to Miss Dorothy Radford is given the part of Olive Skinner, and it is no small compliment to say it could scarcely be in better hands. That old favourite, Jaikes (Mr. Ed. J. George), receives the applause from the audience he so well deserves. Mr. Arthur Wright and Mr. Warriss Lindon appear as Elijah Combe and Cripps respectively, and act with much acceptance. Geoffrey Ware is capitally delineated by Mr. Alex. Grant, while Mr. A. Hornby Warburton provides much amusement in the part of Henry Corket. For a juvenile, Miss Flossie Hale Daviss is remarkably clever as Cissy; Mr. Byron Pedley as Samuel Baxter (Detective) is also appreciated.

Lyceum.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Mr. W. Reuben Payne's company is here this week with The World's Verdict. Miss Lily Roselle gives an excellent rendering of Cora Cassilis, the adventuress; while Miss May Axon as Nellie Ashford makes a pleasing heroine. Mr. Harry Stuart as George Ashford plays the hero to the satisfaction of the audience. Miss B. Fitzhugh, as the deserted wife, acts with suitable pathos. A fine part is that of Squire Woodleigh, well played by Mr. Cecil R. Thompson; while villainy is conspicuously brought out by Mr. Albert Guyon as Jaspar Woodleigh, and Mr. W. Reuben Payne as the Land Agent. An exciting part is that of a maniac, thrillingly played by Mr. Eric Hudson. Miss Anena Walton as Sally Jenkins imparts a spice of comedy to the drama, in which she is ably assisted by Mr. W. G. Wesley as Sammy Carrot.

New Gaiety.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. M. Armstrong.—The New Gaiety dramatic company has good reason to be well pleased with the reception accorded the drama, Wife and Fortune. The principal parts are all in capable hands, especially the characters of Capt. Seton Desmond, taken by Mr. Alfred D. Adams; Jack Weston, by Mr. Horace Booth; Mary Weston, by Miss Laurie A. Pardy; and Becky, by Miss Mattie Crawford; while the comical element is well sustained by Messrs. T. E. Conover and H. Hesslegrave.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Hussett.—Joe Elvin heads the bill this week, and is proving as great an attraction as ever. With the assistance of a very capable company, he presents the humorous sketch, entitled Touched. Stelling and Revell are a funny couple, and extremely clever on the horizontal bar; Moon and Morris score a big success as patter merchants, and receive a hearty recall; Lucia and Viati are a clever pair of wire-walkers; Tony Spring is a marvellous barrel jumper. Other good items on the programme are the singing of Jack Woods, the collier; Albertine Mellisch, with her wonderful birds; Daisy O'Malley, comedienne and dancer; and Young Vento, descriptive vocalist.

Zoo-Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The bill here this week is headed by Harry Tate's Motoring sketch, which is proving as big a draw as ever; and Hanvaar and Lee in The Golfer and the Maid, are heartily appreciated. The Di Pace Brothers show great skill as mandolinists; the efforts of the Primrose Quartette are loudly applauded; the Orb Brothers give a diverting turn; Beatrice Willey, Bert Woodward (cyclist), Xley and Hamilton, and Matthews and Race (jumpers) complete the programme.

Pavilion, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—A septette of clever entertainers, strong in vocal accomplishments, well deserve their title, "The Smart Set." Alec Kennedy, a vigorous vocalist, has a fine descriptive song; Bert. Brantford is a quaint comedian, and Agnes Acker has pleasing songs pleasantly sung. Leo Dryden is a strong card in descriptive songs; the Sisters Bartholomew have plenty of dash and go in song and dance; in cycling and acrobatic work of the comic order the Bristons are very successful; Valazzi is a balancer and juggler of infinite variety; Foreman and Fannan get also a big slice of the applause.

Palace.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—Vesta Victoria is again starring here, and proving a bigger draw than ever: her new songs are all smart, with catchy tunes; Fred Land is a clever comedian with some decidedly original touches in his business; Will Van Allen, tramp musician, is really good, and his patter is distinctly fresh and novel; Jack Neil, Scotch comedian, had an enthusiastic recall after two catchy songs; the Sisters Anderson contribute some attractive musical items; a special word of praise is due to Jennie Johns for her fine voice, fetching style, and clever songs; Violet Morgan gives some life-like imitations of popular artists; the Five Whiteleys in a musical and acrobatic turn, are well received, and the patter of Mac and Hill proves popular.

Colisseum.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—Tiller's sketch, The Mad Minstrels, occupies a large portion of the programme here, and the acting and singing of Jessie Templeton, Dorothy Gould, May Sharples, Maud St. John, and the other members of the company evoke hearty applause. Kahn and Kahn give a smart conjuring turn; Redmond Bros. are clever knockabout artists; Terry and Lambert have become first favourites with Glasgow audiences; Mike Cray's comic juggling turn is smartly worked; Marion Scott sings well in a new ballad, and Prof. Dunning's ventriloquial turn is also good. The latest films on the Bioscope complete a lengthy bill.

Queen's.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. M. Armstrong; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—Alec Hurley and company top the bill here, and have met with a cordial reception in the Coster's Friendly Lead. Another turn of special merit is an exhibition of ball-punching by the Horsley Bros.; Ghita Corri, dramatic soprano, a lady with a good voice, gives an excellent account of herself. The other members of the company include Nellie Gannon, descriptive vocalist; Sisters Walmsley, duettists; Fraser and Haley, duettists and dancers; and Harry Wright, vocal comedian. The Bioscope presents a new series of pictures.

Harmonic Concerts.—Musical Secretary, Mr. Wm. Biggam.—For their first comic night this season the Harmonic got together a very good company, the outstanding features being the comic business of N. C. Bostock, J. A. Cassels, and Tony Black, the dancing of T. W. Royal, and the canine drama, The Streets of London, by Capt. Devereux's dogs. In addition, good turns were contributed by Cissy Arris, the Lindsays, Scott Combination, Lottie and Marie Ross, and Nellie Elliene.

WALTHAMSTOW PALACE.

The present week's programme, presented here under the direction of the popular Mr. Barclay, abounds in good things, most of which have the charm of novelty. Cosgrove and Burns, a lady and gentleman equally possessed of comedy powers, are very amusing in their lively turn, which is loudly applauded. A pretty lady, Miss Lily Lena, is heard to great advantage in two good songs, and her audiences would fain see a little more of her dancing. A great reception is given to Dezmonti and Mora, in their act. They combine the most daring feats on the bars with a lot of clever fooling, the combination being most acceptable. On the occasion of our visit Jordan and Harvey once more proved themselves absolute past-masters in the difficult art of fun-making, their new "patter" being as mirth-provoking as anything that has been heard here for a long time. Laughter, loud, long, and continued, follows the doings of an unnamed company in a piece of farcical extravagance entitled Footlight Favourites. This turns out to be a version of a sketch made popular by a well-known company hitherto exploited by a most enterprising manager. In Footlight Favourites the stage is built up to represent the interior of a theatre of varieties, and the extraordinary vagaries of both actors and audience are of a perfectly side-splitting nature. The gentleman who has imbibed "not wisely, but too well," is extremely good; the enterprising schoolboy is excellent; and every member of an exceptionally clever company works loyally to secure success.

A perfect and immediate triumph is achieved by Miss Lily Burnand, who, making her first appearance here, is at once admitted to the inner circle of favourites. Looking very handsome in her lovely costumes, Miss Burnand sings and acts with the assurance of long experience, her rendering of the ditty "When she was in the ballet" being, if possible, exceeded in popular favour by her singing of "The Stowaway." The audience is not slow to pick-up and assist in the refrain of these songs, and Miss Burnand may now add Walthamstow to her long list of conquests. The longest item of the programme is provided by Mr. Leonard Mortimer and his company in a "naval sensation," entitled The Kettledrum. It is difficult to decide whether this is meant to be serious melodrama or uproarious farce, the two ingredients being so adroitly mixed that neither may be called the predominant partner. At the same time, the amalgamation is good of its kind, and attains the desired end of keeping an audience in a state of pleasurable expectancy at one moment and convulsed with laughter the next. The Kettledrum is told in two scenes, firstly the Hotel Monico, and secondly the saloon cabin of the steam-yacht Drum. To judge from the latter the Drum must be a vessel of extraordinary tonnage, worthy of the Kaiser himself, the "cabin" appearing to be as large as a Park-lane drawing-room. Mr. Leonard Mortimer plays Captain Owen Kettle with that breezy alertness that has established him firmly in favour with audiences, his strangely staccato utterances being admirably adapted to the part, and his brisk acting keeping the spectator in a state of constant delight. Mr. H. Lodge Percy gives a dignified and impressive picture of the diplomatist, Lord Esmond-Slade (why the hyphen?) of Arnside. His secretary, Randall Vyner, who is the "villain of the piece," is well played by Mr. Leonard Robson. Mr. Reginald Weighill makes the most of his opportunities as the burlesque General Caranger, and is responsible for many a laugh. Miss Edith Lewis as Donna Inez, "a patriot," who may be described as the villainess of the piece, acts with considerable intensity; while Miss Ida Clifford is admirably fitted both by nature and art to do ample justice to the part of Lady Edna. There is a "crowd" of subordinate characters and well-trained "supers," all of whom do their allotted work well. The dresses and uniforms are very handsome. The programme is finished off with a fine display of new pictures exhibited by Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope.

COPYRIGHT CONVICTIONS.

Elizabeth Reynolds, 39, a street trader, of Sylvester-road, Hackney, was charged at North London on Saturday with offering for sale forty-seven copies of pirated music.

Prisoner, who has a music-stall in Kingsland-road, was visited on the previous Friday night by Walter Frost, agent to the Music Publishers' Association, who saw her displaying the pirated music to two ladies, who were purchasing. The copies were seized, and the prisoner was taken into custody. She now said the music was not hers. It had been thrown under her stall by a man who used to sell it, and the officer was in error when he said she was displaying it to a customer.

A man who gave an address at a common lodging-house said he threw the pirated music under the prisoner's stall. He had given up selling it since the new Act was passed.

Mr. Fordham: The prisoner knew you had given her the pirated music?

Witness: Yes.

The Magistrate: This is practically stealing other people's goods, and I am determined to put an end to the practice so far as I am able. You know perfectly well that you are doing a bad, shabby, and wrong thing altogether, and under this Act I hope the sale of pirated music will be put down altogether. In order to do this the penalty must be heavy. Your own witness says you knew it was pirated music, and you must pay £5 or go to prison for a month's hard labour. The sentence astonished the prisoner, and she said, "Oh, sir, don't!"

Arthur Buckridge, twenty-three, of Canal-bank, Peckham, and his brother George, twenty-eight, of the same address, were charged at Greenwich on Monday with offering pirated music for sale in the Lewisham High-road. Arthur pleaded that he did not know about the Act till Saturday last.

Mr. Baggallay remarked that the Act had already been well advertised in the Press, and advised him to "read the newspapers." George pleaded that he was "helping his brother." Both prisoners were ordered to pay a fine of £5, or go to prison for a month.

A similar penalty was imposed on Charles William Allen, twenty-three, of Porthcawl-road, Lower Sydenham, who was caught offering pirated music for sale at Rushey Green, S.E.

A prosecution was heard at Penge on Monday, when a witness alleged that the district was "a hotbed of musical pirates. Sydney Mills, fourteen, of Arpley-road, Penge, was charged with having ninety-four copies of pirated music in his possession.

An assistant secretary to the Music Publishers' Association stated that, notwithstanding the fact that the new Act had come into operation, the sale of pirated music was still going on, and the previous Saturday four arrests were made. Mills was fined £2 and costs, and the seized music was ordered to be destroyed.

Charles Holland, 26, a coster, of Coppermill-lane, Walthamstow, was charged, at Stratford, on Wednesday, with selling a copy of pirated music. Prisoner was before the Court on Monday, and the case was adjourned in order that the Musical Publishers' Association might be legally represented.

Mr. Mulligan prosecuted, and stated that the prisoner had a stall in High-street, Walthamstow, opposite a bootmaker's shop. About a fortnight ago an agent of the Association seized a number of copies of pirated music from the stall and cautioned Holland regarding the selling of such music. Since that time the prisoner appeared to have left the pirated music in the bootmaker's shop, for the agent on Saturday last sent a girl to him to ask for a copy entitled "Always." Holland went into the shop, brought the music out underneath his coat, and gave it to the girl, charging 2d. for it. Then a constable was called, and the prisoner, who became very violent, was taken to the police station.

Holland now pleaded that he did not sell the music, and complained that the girl who was said to have purchased the music was not called as a witness.

Mr. Frost, an agent to the Association, gave evidence showing that he saw the prisoner sell the music.

The Bench imposed a fine of £5, or a month.

Holland: It is wicked—that is all I can say.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

An illustrated daily paper published during the week an article, with alarming headlines, dealing with the grievances of "supers," stating that "howling mobs" and "rustic crowds" want more wages. What is described as an "authentic advertisement" was quoted as follows:—

"Wanted, a man to combine pulling up the curtain with howling mob. Remuneration, one shilling per night."

It would be interesting to know where such an advertisement appeared. It is probably no more authentic than many of the statements made in the article. Where, for instance, are the "howling mobs" and "rustic crowds" demanding more wages? It may be quite true that in some places the supers only receive 1s. per night, but it is also true that many receive much higher pay. At one West End house during a recent Shakespearian production the supers were paid 25s. per week. Apart from the question as to whether supers, generally, are fairly paid, the article in question shows as little knowledge of the subject as there are reasons for its publication.

Mr. Hall Caine, as in previous years, has thanked in person the employees in the various stage departments for their exertions in the production and presentation of The Bondman. He paid them the compliment of saying that their work had contributed greatly to its success. He has also presented to the several heads of departments a sum of money for distribution among the men.

In reply to inquiries respecting the residue of the balance of the funds of the late Dramatic and Musical Fund, it has not yet been distributed among the societies who are benefited by the portion of the funds already distributed. The sum which Mr. Tree will distribute has also yet to be dealt with.

It is reported that the staff of the Coliseum is being engaged, although it is not likely that it will be as large as when that house was last open.

At the meeting of the committee of the General Staff Branch on Wednesday evening, it was reported that £80 had been paid out in funeral benefits, £21 17s. in benevolent grants, and £20 in sick pay. A number of applications for membership were granted. The branch is forming some twenty organising committees for the London district. Several applications for benevolent grants were dealt with.

The Concert Committee have been informed that they may have the use of the Opera House for the annual concert in aid of the stage employees societies on a Sunday evening in December. Subject to the date being suitable, the London Symphony Orchestra will play at the concert.

The Dean of Westminster has given permission to the British Empire Shakespeare Society to place a wreath at the tomb of Sir Henry Irving, who was the late president of the Society, to-day, the anniversary of his death.

A. WILLIAMS.—The cast of Sir Jasper's Tenant, produced at Sadler's Wells Theatre on Nov. 29, 1865, was as follows:—Captain Catherou, Mr. S. Perfitt; Lieut. Gervaise Catherou, Mr. E. H. Brooke; Godfrey Pierrepoint, Mr. J. C. Cowper; Sir Jasper Denison, Mr. R. Norman; Arthur Holroyd, Mr. E. F. Edgar; Adolphus Dobb, Mr. John Rouse; Caroline Catherou and Mrs. Fane, Miss M. A. Bellair; Marcia Denison, Miss Leigh; Dorothy Tinsgood, Miss Minnie Davis.

MARCO.—We have been unable to discover any reference in "The Era" for the year 1902 to the musical comedy you mention.

J. A. C.—We do not know. A letter addressed to the lady, c/o "The Era," would no doubt reach her in due course.

F. W.—Dandy Dick, by A. W. Pinero, was first performed at the Court Theatre, London, on Jan. 27, 1887, with Mr. John Clayton as the Very Rev. Augustin Jedd, D.D., Mr. A. Cecil as Blore, Mr. E. Maurice as Sir Tristram Mardon, Mr. F. Kerr as Major Tarver, Mr. H. Eversfield as Mr. Darbey, Mr. W. H. Denny as Norah Topping, Mr. W. Lugg as Hatcham, Mrs. John Wood as Georgina Tidman, Miss Norreys as Sheba, Miss M. Lewis as Salome, and Miss Laura Linden as Hannah Topping.

RETLAW.—Miss Ellen Terry's birthday is Feb. 27.

F. A. N.—The Terrible Night was produced at the Canterbury by the Martinettis in March, 1890.

A. Z.—Write to the Agent-General in London of the Colony in question.

OLD PRO.—We cannot find date of final closing; but the New Stangate Theatre, built on the site of the Bower Saloon, was opened Dec. 27, 1875.

E. W. C.—A pantomime, entitled Birds, Beasts, and Fishes, was produced at the City of London Theatre at Christmas, 1854.

LEO.—The first step is to establish liability. Get all the evidence you can, and put it before a solicitor.

C. E. M.—Will the "Smart Set" please communicate with the manager of "The Era" to hear of something to their advantage?

LEX.—Write to S. French, theatrical publisher, Southampton-street, Strand; or to Mr. Arthur Collins, Drury Lane Theatre, where the play was first produced in England.

S. J. B. HART.—The comedy mentioned is certainly not being played at the present time at any of the London or suburban theatres, nor have we heard of any intention to revive it in the near future.

A CORRECTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In your issue of Oct. 6 you stated that I presented A Queen's Messenger at the Theatre Royal, Worthing, on the 4th inst. I have not given any performance whatever of this play.—Yours faithfully,

HAROLD V. NEILSON.

Palace Pier, Brighton, Oct. 6, 1906.

[Our correspondent's error was due to the fact that A Queen's Messenger was announced for performance.—ED. of The Era.]

MR. EDITOR,—Sir,—Owing to a programme error the part of Annie in Are You a Mason? was attributed to Miss Madge Merrique in your last week's notice of the Crystal Palace Theatre, whereas the part was played by yours faithfully, BABS STUART.

MR. GEORGE H. LEE writes to us asking for information concerning his late mother. Her stage name was Minnie Ashley, and she was a ballad singer about 1870-76. She died in 1883. He adds: "I know very little of her, but, believe me, I would appreciate greatly any information you could give me." Possibly some of our readers can oblige. Mr. Lee's address is care of The New Idea Pattern Co., 636, Broadway, New York City.

THE evergreen Horace Wheatley, who realises the Irishman on the stage with all his instinctive geniality and mother wit, is paying a short visit to London previous to starting another long tour.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT
FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,
BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B.
Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes," which is at present required.—St James's Gazette.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1906.

THE MUSICAL COPYRIGHT BILL.

The first crop of prosecutions under the Musical Copyright Act is very encouraging. The magistrates are administering the law with praiseworthy severity, and the fines imposed are deservedly substantial. It is pleasant to observe that the absurd defence of the offenders, to the effect that they were not aware that the new Act had come into force, had a properly contemptuous reception from the Bench.

It is difficult to understand the point of view of persons who see any difference between stealing a loaf of bread or a pair of boots and purloining the product of a man's brains and energy. Yet there must be some who are able to make the distinction, or the Musical Copyright Act of 1906 would not have met with the opposition which it evoked. The very obstinacy of its opponents, however, is a testimony to the patience and persuasiveness of those who managed in the end to engineer the Bill through the House of Commons.

It must not be forgotten that the efforts of those who have finally been successful in getting the Bill of 1906 passed were not confined to that measure only, but had previously been exercised, strongly though vainly, in attempts to obtain the consent of the House to the Bill which was read in Parliament for the first time on July 11 last year, and, unfortunately, through no want of earnestness on the part of its advocates, came to grief. It was received with relentless opposition; and all the efforts of the leading music-publishers and of Mr. T. P. O'Connor—whose work in connection with both Bills has been arduous and skilful beyond praise—failed to induce the opponents of the Bill to come to any reasonable compromise. Still, the hearty co-operation of about a hundred Members of Parliament was secured, and the Government was at last induced to bring in a short Bill itself. This, however, was not done till very late in the session, as the Government would not introduce the measure unless it was to be "non-contentious"; and thus a great deal of time had to be wasted in endeavouring to come to terms with the opponents of the Bill. The interval between the failure to pass the Bill of 1905 and the successful "piloting" of the Bill of 1906 was a dark one in the annals of music-publishing. For a year the valuable property of a large body of taxpayers was left at the mercy of the thieves who were preying upon the talent of the composers and the judgment and enterprise of the publishers of music. The pilfering was prodigious. As many as 300,000 copies of pirated music were seized in one heap, the absurdly inadequate sum of ten guineas costs being ordered against the offenders—if they could be caught. So desperate had the condition of affairs become that a notice was issued by the leading houses in the trade to the effect that the issuing of new works would have to be discontinued until the law was amended. It had come to this—that the costs of purchase and the expenses of publication were being borne by the publishers, while the sole benefit of the successful publications was reaped by the pirates.

We remind our readers of all these facts because it is very easy, when work has been done, to forget those who have borne the burden and heat of the day. Mr. T. P. O'Connor, who drafted the Bill of 1906, and engineered it through the House of Commons with all the persuasiveness, tact, and quiet tenacity which are amongst his many and varied characteristics, might easily have been allowed to go without the reward of grateful acknowledgment which is only the due of his long, disinterested, and able advocacy of the cause. It is pleasant, "for the sake of our common humanity," to notice that the proverbial ingratitude of classes towards their champions and benefactors is not to rule in this instance. As we stated last week, a Committee has already been formed to arrange the details of a dinner at which the popular "T. P." is to be entertained in November by the leading music-publishers and composers on his return from America. The occasion will certainly be taken advantage of to express the gratitude which both the above classes feel to the champion of their cause, and to emphasise the appreciation of the ability, the knowledge of the world, and the gifts of personal charm, delicate discrimination, and unobtrusive but ceaseless energy which have served Mr. O'Connor so well in his battle with the music pirates and his diplomacy with their defenders.

Already the appreciation of Mr. O'Connor's services has found expression. At the annual meeting of Messrs. Novello and Co., at their new premises in Wardour-street, on Wednesday, the chairman, Mr. A. H. Littleton, referring to musical piracy, said that the question had been a serious one. Publishers and composers had suffered heavily; but at last those who had borne so much had a chance of redress. They had waited, said Mr. Littleton, for several years, thinking that a Conservative Government would pass a Bill giving power to deal summarily with the pirate; but it did not come. Now it had come, and had been brought into being by Mr. T. P. O'Connor, to whom, as well as to the Government, they all felt very grateful. Coming from a firm like Novello's, which has not itself suffered very much from musical piracy, this testimony shows how united is the publishing trade in its high estimate of the value of Mr. O'Connor's championship.

THE HIPPODROME.

It is quite certain that The Earthquake has been exciting the curiosity of large crowds of London's amusement-seekers ever since its production by the clever and ingenious Frank Parker, who has in this, his latest sensation, set the seal on a reputation that has become world-wide. Indeed, the popular man behind the scenes at the Hippodrome might be termed the Alexander of stage-management, anxious still for the solution of greater difficulties in the presentation of spectacle. We wonder what our forefathers, who were struck by the realism of The Cataract of the Ganges, would have thought of the amazing cataclysm which forms the second episode of The Earthquake! The scene of absolute havoc is terrifying in its remarkable realism. The toppling column in Claudian, at the Princess's, in the 'eighties, provided a mild form of excitement compared to the burning houses, the street upheavals, and the rising tidal wave at the Hippodrome, where large audiences have acclaimed The Earthquake as the most stupendous spectacle of a remarkable series. The vagueness of superlatives fails to do justice to it, and all we need add is that a second visit confirms the deep impression it created on the first night. Mr. Hal Forde, Mr. Cecil Morton York, and Miss Simeta Marsden present dramatically the main features of the story that holds the spectacle together, and the lady is specially happy in her solo. The mechanical scenery, painted by Mr. Bruce Smith, is in no small degree responsible for the success achieved.

In the first part of the entertainment an interesting stay is made by the Four Fakirs, native Hindoo conjurers. The chief of these is cleverly assisted in the famous Indian basket trick, so often described by travellers, and the smart way in which the illusion is accomplished speaks volumes for the cleverness of the performers, two of whom play instruments that were apparently manufactured for the purpose of producing cacophony. Variety and humour are found in alliance in the turn of Frank and Jen Latona. Frank tells anecdotes previous to rousing the house by a whirling Sousa march played on the slide trombone. The fun is augmented by a mechanical donkey and a dancing nigger. Mrs. Latona (Jen) assumes a "vurry" pronounced "Amurrican" accent, for which there is not the slightest necessity, as she is a native of the county in which Shakespeare was born. She is, nevertheless, a fascinating soubrette, and sings songs at the piano in a way that proclaims her to be an excellent entertainer as well as an accomplished pianist. A new turn to us is Busch's dwarf horse—a very peculiar shaped quadruped, but docile withal. It is put through its paces by a droll dwarf, who plays fantastic tricks with much success. The Ten Genis, with their three ponies, which assist in a smart and intrepid Risley act, deserve well of the audience, who applaud their clever feats enthusiastically. The Kitafukas command breathless attention while one of their number performs a series of daring and difficult feats on the summit of a pole balanced on his partner's shoulder; the De Wynne Brothers preserve the best traditions of head and hand balancing in an exhibition of trained muscle that gives undoubted pleasure; Lavater Lee and his poodles raise shouts of laughter by their amusing doings; Techow has trained the harmless, necessary cat to do his bidding in a most astonishing series of feats; the Gordon Highlanders evoke enthusiasm by the smartness of their manœuvres and evolutions in a lightning drill act; and other turns are the Griffiths Brothers, clowns; O. K. Sato, comedy juggler; Mlle. Doris, equestrian; and the Two Butterflies, aerial gymnasts. Mr. Fred Trussell, the popular manager here, has returned from Morocco, where he had some most exciting adventures.

INJUNCTIONS DISSOLVED.

Interim injunctions which affected Miss Marie Lloyd, Mr. Ernest Shand, the Poluskis, Orpheus (Mr. Ben Sylvester), and Miss Jessie Preston were granted last week against these artists, who had contracts with the London and Cambridge, Shoreditch, preventing them from appearing at the Paragon, on the ground that the Mile End hall was within a mile and a half of the others, and that therefore the artists were "barred" under their contracts.

Mr. Payne appeared for the London Music Hall and the "R. B." Syndicate, and Mr. W. S. M. Knight, instructed by Messrs. Morris and Rickards, for the artists concerned.

After hearing the arguments, the Judge decided that he would grant no order on the applications before him for injunctions, and directed that there should be a speedy trial, as he said the case was obviously one of the greatest importance to the music-hall profession. His lordship expressed the opinion that all the cases should be consolidated, so that a decision might be arrived at upon these contracts. As a result, the injunctions are dissolved.

Mr. Fred Fields, comedian, of Fields and Lewis, is the latest to join the ranks of the Terriers, he being initiated on Sunday last. Mr. F. W. Millis performed the ceremony. Mr. Harry Lester, the indefatigable secretary of the popular fraternity, is recovering from a severe cold.

MASKELYNE THE MATERIALIST.

Mr. J. N. Maskelyne is, first and foremost, an entertainer; but, incidentally, he is an exposer of humbug, and he considers that no doctrine preached is so overcharged with fraud as spiritualism, the pretensions of which he many times and oft exposed at his agreeable séances during his thirty years' or more occupancy of the Egyptian Hall. The latest to challenge Mr. Maskelyne's ingenuity is the Archdeacon Colley, Rector of Stockton, Rugby, who has written to his bankers to pay to the eminent wonder-worker "on his doing, with all the machinery he may need to bring to Stockton Rectory as a conjurer and professor of tricks illusionary, and not as a spirit-medium, any one of the things I, in my lectures during the week of last Church Congress, declared had been done in my presence, or what has since been done and written of in my published pamphlet." The phenomena (?) described in the pamphlet are two in number—viz., the "extrusion" of spirit forms from the left side of the medium, and the conveyance by "Psychic Parcels Post" of several yards of white muslin seventy miles in length in less than five minutes. The archdeacon states that twenty-nine years ago he held a medium in his arms in his own room beneath a chandelier with three gas burners full on. A vapour came from the left side of the medium, "the region of his heart," which developed into a materialised Spirit, apparently human. It walked, talked, wrote its name, ate a baked apple, and did many other mundane things. The Archdeacon's offer to Mr. Maskelyne was afterwards extended so that payment would be made if he (Mr. Maskelyne) could produce similar manifestations "any way, anywhere, at any time, as a conjurer," to those described above.

The experiment was fixed for Monday afternoon at St. George's Hall, which was crowded both with materialists and spiritualists. Towards the end of the afternoon Mr. Maskelyne came on to the stage, and prefaced his performance by a short address. "During the past forty years," said he, "he had had many battles with spiritualistic cranks, and as he was fast approaching the allotted span of life he began to feel rather sick of the whole subject. It was probably the last time he would accept such a challenge as the venerable Archdeacon's. He was appearing on that stage simply as a conjurer. He was no medium; his work was an illusion—mere trickery, in fact; and for the manifestation promised he would be assisted by his old comrade, Mr. J. B. Hanard, who would appear in clerical garb, while he himself would be the 'Doctor.'"

The two operators, with no apparatus visible beyond a couple of chairs, opened the "mystic" proceedings by a little dialogue, in which complaint was made of being haunted by evil spirits. The cure for such a complaint seemed to be a number of mysterious passes; but when Mr. Maskelyne complained of the "colly wobbles," and vapour began to issue from his side, the farcical spirit prevailed, until, from the side of the conjurer—growing, as it were, from his frock-coat—came transversely another spirit: a female form clothed in white. She did not, like a shadow, flee away, but walked to the footlights, and in agitated tones inquired "Where am I?" "Have no fear, sweet lady, you are among friends," was the reply. "Wake up, Doctor, and see what you have created." The Doctor (or, rather, Mr. Maskelyne) did wake up, and discovered the form of Miss Cassie Bruce, who had been spirited on to the stage, without anyone discovering how, beneath the rays of three electric bulbs. The genial wizard was much cheered, and the audience was soon afterwards informed that, "in the event of the £1,000 not being paid within a week, Mr. Maskelyne will sue the Archdeacon for it."

Mr. David Devant, in the course of the afternoon, presented three new tricks—"The Point of View," "The New Aladdin's Lamp," and the "Mysterious Triangle," the last-mentioned a clever experiment in cards.

THE "PALACE" ADVERTISEMENTS.

The Palace Theatre, Ltd., Cambridge-circus, was summoned before Mr. Denman at Marlborough-street on Tuesday by the London County Council for having unlawfully erected a "structure" outside the theatre beyond the general building-line without consent. Mr. Chilvers supported the summons on behalf of the London County Council and Mr. Bodkin appeared for the defence.

Mr. Chilvers said that on Feb. 22 the Palace Theatre Co., which had some other projections beyond the general line of building, erected a wood and plaster "structure" against the front wall, standing on the pavement, 13ft. 2in. high by 7ft. 10in. wide, and projecting from the building-line from 14in. to 2ft. 2in. A wood framework covered with plaster was painted to represent an old stone wall, and a front of glass was let in, behind which were electric lights. At the top was a figure of a pierrette, and at the side a figure of a pierrot playing the guitar. The elbow of the latter was the greatest projection.

Mr. Bodkin: The elbow must stick out if he is playing the guitar.

Mr. Chilvers added that on the glass were painted the names of performers at the theatre. From its nature and size he submitted that it was a structure within the meaning of the London Building Act.

Mr. George Townsend, surveyor, from the architect's office of the London County Council, gave evidence of the nature of the alleged "structure."

Mr. Bodkin (cross-examining): Not much harm has been done?—I can't say.

Don't look so solemn. Do you know of any human being that could be inconvenienced?—A person could be.

Further cross-examined, the witness said he could not describe this as a "frame of wood." There was a door at the side through which the arm could be put for replacing an electric light.

Could you get through?—No.

Could I get through?—Possibly.

Mr. Bodkin (laughing): It is only about that width (indicating about 5in.) (Laughter.)

In further cross-examination the witness said Mr. Bodkin might "squeeze in sideways." (Loud laughter.)

Mr. Denman (deliberately): Yes; Mr. Bodkin might squeeze in sideways. (Laughter.)

Mr. Bodkin: If a case is stated I hope that will not be put down. (Laughter.)

Mr. Bodkin urged that this case was disposed of by decisions in numerous previous cases as to the nature of somewhat similar "things" to the one now under discussion, including advertisements, illuminated signs, and porticos. The governing words of Section 22 of the Act were "no building or structure," etc., and he would submit that such words related to something very different from this frame, which was in no way permanent or by any means part of the face of the building.

Mr. Joseph E. Walker, architect, called for the defence, said the alleged "structure" was simply held up by "wall hooks" and could be removed in about three-quarters of an hour without altering the face of the wall in any way.

Mr. Denman adjourned the summons to consider his decision.

A further development in the controversy between "Archdeacon" Colley and Mr. J. N. Maskelyne is that the latter on Wednesday received a letter from the reverend gentleman's solicitors intimating that he was about to bring an action for libel against the popular illusionist.

CHELSEA PALACE.

A good time is spent by those who visit the handsome hall at Chelsea, where merriment is practically unceasing throughout the evening. The most prolific source of laughter is found in Little Tich, who is paradoxically, but no less accurately, termed "the great comedian." Laughter begins with his first entry, and continues unchecked through this singing of the refrain "What a life!" Later the rôle of a member of the "Gallant 23rd" affords Mr. Tich the opportunity of giving a most indicrous impersonation of a cavalry officer who has trouble with spurs and top-boots, and the antics with which he embellishes the singing of a cleverly written song prove irresistible, and evoke the plaudits of the whole house. Mr. Guy Ryder begins the evening with a song of "Sue," which he supplements with a whistling refrain, but his sibilant powers are given fuller play in imitations of a canary and a thrush, which are enthusiastically cheered. Mr. Ryder, who gains his effects only by means of two fingers placed in the mouth, produces most mellifluous and tuneful sounds, which are heard to especial advantage in excerpts from popular operas, during which an exquisite tone is preserved.

The name of Barnard is immemorially associated with the marionette, and the representation of A Coon's Revelry at Chelsea this week is one that will add greatly to its fame. The puppet show is given on a mimic stage which is cleverly merged into the real, and elaborately mounted to represent a floral grove. A dusky young lady sings a coon melody, during which a piccininny, with the most expressive countenance, disports himself in the oddest fashion. A couple of negro swell comedians having given a duet and dance, the coon returns with a companion, and much fun is made with a motor-car and an obstreperous donkey. The figures are manipulated with rare skill, coming as near to nature as could be, and the cheers that await the clever couple who pull the string were never better deserved. Miss Maidie Scott affects to be "just a comedienne," a title which is only too seldom realised. In the present case, however, it is thoroughly justified, Miss Scott's singing of "The little maid said 'Amen'" and "Everybody works but father" constituting the essence of drollery. There is nothing particularly remarkable in the songs, but what she makes out of them by dint of expression in voice and feature is wonderful, and her reward is deservedly great.

The versatility of Miss Lottie Siegenberg is once more proved in her musical monologue "The Lazy Slavey," in which an amusing portrayal of a housemaid is contrasted with a Spanish song and castanet dance. A well-played solo on the pianoforte is then given, and ere the applause that greets it has subsided, the young lady breaks into a difficult excerpt from "Il bacio." Counsell and Mills also present a varied entertainment in the sketch On the Stage, in which a theatrical agent's assistant joins an applicant for an engagement in a coon song and dance in which the best features of burlesque are presented. Melodrama is also dealt with in comic style, a travesty of The Midnight Mail involving the appearance of a miniature train which steams at express speed across the stage. The sketch has novel features, and is smartly rendered by the clever couple. Miss Hettie Chattell's ability as a male impersonator and a songstress receives equal proof in her song, "That's what I call love," the sentiment of which makes an irresistible appeal to the hearts of all. In her second effusion Miss Chattell declares in the character of a coster that "The feeling's just the same," the verses of which deal with topics closely affecting the patriotic impulse and the national spirit. On the night of our visit the cheers were difficult to suppress, and the popular "boy" might well have gone on indefinitely. The Tally-Ho Trio join humorously, but none the less tunefully, in a parody of "The Minstrel Boy" and a "Good-bye" medley, and later one of the trio reveals the possession of a remarkable voice in a "Ladybird" song, which is well received. Mr. Charles Bignell and "Life Motion Photographs" by the Animated Graphic are included in the programme, the way of which is melodiously smoothed by the strains of Mr. Angelo Asher's admirable band. Mr. Edward Swanborough, the manager, though making a marvellous recovery, has not yet returned permanently to his post, but he is adequately represented by Mr. J. Norman Berlin, one o the smartest young acting-managers in town, who discharges his duties with an agreeable combination of courtesy and tact.

THE MUSIC HALL SICK FUND.

The monthly meeting of the management committee of this society was held at the York Hotel, York-road, on Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Pat Carey (the president) occupied the chair, and there were also present Messrs. W. J. Wainratta (vice-president), Frank Heath (treasurer), H. E. High, W. Brisco, George Fredericks, W. West, J. Mulcaster, and R. S. Baines (secretary).

It was reported that Mr. Frederic Baugh had agreed to become one of the vice-presidents of the society, and had offered to give a matinée performance in aid of the management fund.

The following letter, addressed to Mr. Frank Heath, hon. treasurer of the society, was read. It was in reply to a letter written by Mr. Heath, which appeared in The Era of Sept. 15 last:—

Re M.H.S.F. and V.A.F.

Dear Sir,—I sincerely trust the affiliation of these two Societies will be possible, and although at present the agitation has not assumed great dimensions, I feel certain that overtures will be made to you by delegates of the V.A.F.

I am unable to discuss your figures, but my suggestion was put forth, not haphazardly, but with this idea: When one proposes to "make" one has to have a basis of argument, consequently my basis was the lowest possible—i.e., a penny. Now, with the aid of a competent actuary, a solid basis, giving solid and useful results, should be arrived at, whether that basis be 1½d. or even a fraction over this amount. In a matter of 3000, fractions play a goodish figure.

The only forcible argument against affiliation is, "Why not join the M.H.S.F."? Now, with the V.A.F. a "man-and-wife" turn has to pay £2 12s. yearly to be in any benefit, and to join the M.H.S.F. it would cost them the same amount, therefore they'd have to find £5 4s. per year, a very fair item in these times. A man can generally find one shilling a week, but two shillings is not always convenient.

It was not my suggestion that the M.H.S.F. should sink its identity and be absorbed by the V.A.F., but to be looked upon as the most useful member of the "Music Hall" body corporate, being a further step to that great "Utopia," when variety performers would be entirely independent of outside aids, and much condemned "subscription lists." Believe me, yours very faithfully,

MONTE BAYLY.

P.S.—The actuary would have to take into consideration that we would not need your "death" levy.

Hippodrome, Ipswich, Oct. 9, 1906.

A short discussion followed, the chairman remarking it was open to the treasurer or any member of the committee to continue the correspondence if he felt so inclined.

The names of nearly a dozen new members were submitted to the committee for approval; and the chairman congratulated his fellow-committeemen on the flourishing condition of the society, which was slowly but surely becoming better known amongst the members of the variety profession, for whose benefit it was established years ago.

A hope was expressed that the apathy regarding their own interests in the important matter of making provision for times of sickness was gradually disappearing, and that the M.H.S.F. would in due course receive much increased support from music-hall artists.

The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

To Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M.P., who is now in America, special honour will be paid on the third Sunday in November (18th) by composers, song-writers, and publishers, who desire to celebrate by a complimentary dinner to the popular Irish M.P. the passing of the Musical Copyright Act, 1906, promoted by him. The arrangements, which are now well in hand, are being carried out by a preliminary committee, consisting of the following gentlemen:—Sir Hubert Parry, Sir Alexander McKenzie, Sir Charles Villiers Stanford, Mr. Edward German, Mr. Hamish MacCunn, Mr. Michael Maybrick, Mr. Leslie Stuart, Mr. Ivan Caryll, Mr. Paul A. Rubens, Mr. Lionel Monckton, Mr. Howard Talbot, Mr. Alfred Littleton (Messrs. Novello and Co.), Mr. Arthur Boosey (Messrs. Boosey and Co.), Mr. William Boosey (Messrs. Chappell and Co.), and Mr. F. H. Pedgrift.

To Mr. Bransby Williams, who is more than gratified with his success in the States, several flattering offers have been made to induce him to stay, but he has no intention of breaking faith with English managers, and will therefore sail for home per the new liner Caronia on Nov. 6, in time to rehearse pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow. A star part in drama is one among the many inducements held out to the young actor to remain in the States.

Master Sydney Leno, a son of the late comedian, intends to follow in his eminent father's footsteps, and has announced that he will shortly make his début. Previous to this he will appear as one of the Ugly Sisters in his own version of Cinderella, in which his sister Georgina will play the Fairy Godmother. He will superintend the entire production, which is to be on the 26th at Wandsworth.

Miss Emily Soldene's farewell matinée at the Palace Theatre will be held on Tuesday, Nov. 13, when a most attractive programme will be presented. At the request of Mr. Alfred Butt, the duties of hon. secretary have been undertaken by Mr. Richard A. Northcott, the well-known journalist and musical and dramatic critic, and the souvenir programme will be illustrated by Mr. John Hassall, R.I., and Mme. Melba has consented to act as the president of a special ladies' committee, with Miss Ellen Terry as vice-president. Earl Carrington, K.G., Lord Glenesk, Lord Rothschild, and nearly all the Agents-General for the Colonies are among the patrons.

Among the incidental items will be a humorous skit, called The Wise Phrenologist, in which Miss Soldene will examine the "bumps" of several pretty actresses. This is an elaboration of an idea which was carried out at one of the Palace Theatre festivals, when Professor Cross examined the bumps of Arthur Roberts. If that comedian could be secured to "assist" in the "demonstration" its success would be assured.

Miss Edna May, on her resignation of the part of Julia Chaldicott in The Belle of Mayfair at the Vaudeville, was so it is stated, overwhelmed with offers for the variety theatres, and various extravagant sums were suggested as the salary of the "belle of New York." It is, however, certain that Mr. Harry Day, the well-known dramatic and variety agent, offered the popular lady £2000 for a ten weeks' engagement, which she would certainly have accepted had Mr. Charles Frohman given his consent. Mr. Day cabled over to the States in order to try and persuade the American entrepreneur to alter his decision, but to no purpose, and Miss May had reluctantly to decline, and did so in a very nicely-worded letter. When so much "vapouring" clouds the atmosphere it is well to let in the "light of Day."

The Livermore Brothers did much to sustain the higher traditions of burnt-cork minstrelsy in the provinces, and their entertainments were always well organised and charged with the highest refinement. Their senior and chief, Mr. Lechmere Livermore, has now passed away, after a short retirement, at his residence at Tooting, and was buried on Tuesday at Norwood Cemetery. We have dealt with the deceased gentleman's career in another column, but we should add that neither he nor his brothers were connected at any time with the combination known as the Christy Minstrels. The Livermores did not trade on the reputation of Christy.

The complete plans for Mr. Walter Gibbons's latest enterprise, the Willesden Empire, having been passed by the Middlesex County Council, the building of the new music hall has now been started by the contractors. The house will be opened on Whit Monday, 1907. The plans for Mr. Gibbons's other new hall, the Tooting Hippodrome, which will be one of the largest in the Kingdom, are practically completed. This house will be quite unique so far as its auditorium and general character are concerned.

The anniversary of the historic Middlesex will be celebrated on Thursday evening, Oct. 25, and the Brighton Alhambra anniversary on Thursday evening, Dec. 6. The Middlesex celebration is fixed for an earlier date than usual, in order to suit the convenience of several artists who have consented to appear. Mr. J. L. Graydon, the popular proprietor, always makes this a gala night.

"La Débutante" is the name of the new ballet which is to be produced at the Empire shortly, with Mlle. Genée in the title-rôle. The novelty is designed by the versatile, ingenious, and artistic Mr. Wilhelm, and the composers are Messrs. Glaser and Cuthbert Clarke.

Miss Marie Tempest is extending her stay at the Palace Theatre, owing to the fact that Mr. Charles Frohman has been unable to find a theatre in which to "present" this gifted artist in the forthcoming new play. She will on Monday next vary her extensive song list by singing some of her Geisha favourites. On Thursday Miss Tempest tried, for the first time at the Palace, Goring Thomas's delightful song "A Summer Night," accompanied by Mr. Frank Lambert, the 'cello obbligato being played by Mr. C. Coenen, one of the members of Mr. Herman Finck's orchestra.

Mr. Chris Davis, the well-known and successful sketch writer and black-and-white artist, has on the stocks The Village Band for George Mozart, who will also shortly produce, by the same author, a new burlesque society drama, in which he will portray all the characters. Mr. Davis is also writing a dramatic sketch, in four episodes, for Fred Eustace and company, and The Queen of Clubs, an extravaganza, to be produced by Miss Kitty Ransome and company.

The first Grand Ladies' Night of the Pimlico Masonic Lodge, of which Bro. W. E. Willson is the Worshipful Master during the present year, was held at the Holborn Restaurant (Crown Rooms), W.C., on Thursday last, Oct. 4, 1906. After a sumptuous banquet, to which seventy sat down, a concert followed, under the direction of Bro. Jack de Frece and Bro. Dave Cohen, at which the following well-known artists appeared:—Mr. George Mozart, Mr. Malcolm Scott, Mr. Arthur Aldridge, Mr. Percy Honri, Mr. Arthur Reece, Mr. George Newburn, Mr. Dennis Drew, Mr. Harry Taft, Mr. R. Clifford, Mr. Robert Machaelis, Mr. Emlyn Jones and his Ladies' Quartette, Mme. Adele Lyon, Miss Anita Clifford, and Miss Sylvia Du Barry. The proceedings concluded with a ball, the music being by the Criterion Ladies' Orchestra. The whole affair, which did not terminate until 3 a.m., proved a huge success, every visitor being delighted with the enjoyable time spent.

The new Tivoli, in Lime-street, Liverpool, will open at the end of November. Mr. Marks, of the Park Palace, is to be the manager, and the licence will be applied for in his name on the 23rd inst.

Miss Lelia Roze, who with her husband (Mr. E. Downes-Martin, J.P.) has enjoyed a glorious summer holiday at their estate in co. Down, must surely hold the ladies' record for sea-fishing this season, having landed on a single hand line forty-five skate in one afternoon, the largest weighing 40lb., the whole catch being considerably over 5cwt. Mackerel have also been plentiful, fifty minutes' trawling of a single hook landing four dozen and five fish to Miss Roze's basket. The launching of the new yacht the Edwina (named after Mr. and Mrs. Downes-Martin's little daughter) was most satisfactory. She is a roomy, comfortable boat, and sails well. It is with much regret that Miss Lelia Roze is ending her sea picnic parties for the present, as she resumes work on the 29th in Birmingham, and is in London for pantomime, as she is engaged to play the part of the Prince in Cinderella at the Marlborough.

The final of the clog-dancing contest promoted by the veteran Mr. J. H. Wood at the Hippodrome, Accrington, last week, took place at the house mentioned on Saturday night, when the judges—E. H. Doyle and J. G. Burns—awarded the belt to W. Brennan, Uddington, Glasgow, and gold medal to George Macintosh, of Motherwell, N.B. J. Copeland, jun., Middlesbrough, and Andrew Easton, Ashington, also secured honours in this most interesting competition. On the announcement of the verdict, George Macintosh, the gold medallist, challenged the winner to dance twenty steps and shuffle—the stipulated number in the contest for the world's championship, won by the lamented Dan Leno.

Mr. Ernie Mayne, who has just finished starring on the Stoll tour, suddenly finds himself thrown out of pantomime owing to the liquidation of the Grand Theatre, Edinburgh, where he was engaged to play Idle Jack. Here's a snap for some manager!

Mr. Philip Sefton ended his season at the Old Welsh Harp on Saturday last, the magnificent ball-room being packed. His next season there commences at Easter. He has in active preparation a new and original musical duologue by Fredk. Bingham (author of "The Gipsy Countess," Counsel's Opinion," &c.) entitled The Banana King, which he will shortly produce with Miss Harrie Brookes. He is resuming work on the halls as a single turn at the Tivoli, Manchester, on the 22nd inst.

The Society Pierrots under the direction of Mr. Billy Keene, will sail for Colombo and India on Friday next from Tilbury per R.M.S. Omrah, returning at the end of May next. They are the first pierrot show, or entertainment run on pierrot lines, that has ever gone to India.

The "season" at Tynemouth Palace came to an end no Saturday evening, and the last concert was marked by two interesting presentations. A number of admirers and friends presented a smoker's cabinet to Mr. Lindon Travers, the entertainment manager, and a gold ring to Mr. Henry Sprake, the conductor of the orchestra. Mr. Travers, in responding on behalf of Mr. Sprake and himself, said that next year, if facilities were granted, the grounds between the Palace and the shelter would be laid out for al-fresco concerts. Mr. Lindon Travers has been re-engaged as manager, and the place will open for two weeks at Christmas, for a short season at Easter, and from Whitsuntide until the end of September.

The annual matinée performance, by the kind permission of Mr. George Harrop, in aid of the Chief Constable's Clothing Fund, at the Palace, Blackpool, on Wednesday afternoon, drew a crowded house. The whole of the Palace and Tower artists gave their services, and in response to her promise, Miss Florence Baines ("Miss Lancashire, Ltd.") motored over from Preston to show her sympathy with the movement. She was enthusiastically acclaimed, and received four bouquets. A special feature of the entertainment was a prologue written by Mr. George E. Martin, and recited by Mr. Cyril Chantler. George Gilbey gave £5 besides his services, and it is expected that £400 will be handed over to the fund.

The Winter Gardens, Blackpool, show a profit for the year amounting to £10,446 10s. 1d., which, with £137 1s. 5d. brought forward, makes an available balance of £10,583 11s. 6d. After paying £5,706 17s. 11d. for interest on debentures, &c., the directors recommend a dividend of 4 per cent. upon £69,460, the share capital of the company (payable free of Income Tax), which will absorb £2,778 8s. The sum of £1,000 is to be written off the electric installation, £500 is placed to reserve, and £598 carried forward.

Calder's Comedy Company presented for the first time on Oct. 8 at the Muncaster Theatre, Bootle, a new and original thirty minutes' musical comedy, in three scenes, entitled The Dandy Duke We expect to hear of arrangements for its production in London shortly.

A remarkable bioscope film will be shown at the New Cross Empire on Monday. Some weeks ago Mr. Ernest Bridgen was fortunate in obtaining permission from the Woolwich Arsenal authorities to take a "picture" of the mechanics at work in the Government factory. This permit has never been given before, and probably will never be accorded again to a theatrical manager. Be that as it may, these moving pictures, showing how great guns, bullets, shells, and armoury of every description are made, will be exhibited exclusively at the Moss-Stoll Empires, commencing at New Cross. Mr. Bridgen is to be congratulated on his enterprise.

Mlle. Rozas was on Monday night within an ace of losing all her valuable spaniels and troupe of dogs belonging to her canine hippodrome. After their performance at the Colston Hall, Bristol, the lady saw them safely housed and fed at the Hatchet stables (the old and well-known establishment used by professionals for the stabling of animals), and at about 1.30 in the morning the Merchant Venturers' College was in flames, the building only being separated from the stables by a small street and a spirit distillery. If this had caught nothing could have saved the narrow thoroughfare. The firemen worked hard, and stopped the conflagration from spreading. What with the distressing cry of poor people who expected every moment to be homeless, the shouting of orders and noise of fire engines, and the barking of the dogs, the night was a terrible one. Fortunately the animals are all safe, although Mlle. Rozas received a great shock.

The announcement of the reopening of Mr. John Henry Cooke's Circus in Fountainbridge, Edinburgh, on Monday, will be welcomed by hosts of his admirers, young and old. The veteran equestrian manager is a great favourite in the northern metropolis, and his annual winter season is always eagerly looked forward to. He has made many strong engagements for his forthcoming term, and as the programmes will undergo a change weekly, he may confidently hope for a large share of the patronage to which his energy and eagerness to please the public fairly entitle him. Mr. Fred Lewis, the acting-manager of last season, will again be in the post in which his urbanity and courtesy have made him so many friends.

The Music Hall Ladies' Guild, the latest benevolent organisation of the profession, has relieved its first case at Liverpool. It was a distressing maternity case, and after telephoning inquiries to the popular Ma Egerton, of the American bar, a telegram was sent by Miss de Grey, "Give all help necessary, and Guild will cover expenses." The new coterie is entirely a social and charitable society, and is not connected with the Variety Artists' Federation or other professional union. Negotiations are in progress with the directors of the London Pavilion for holding a matinée there in aid of the charitable objects of the Guild. It is proposed that the entertainment shall be entirely provided by ladies, and that the mere male shall sell programmes. Miss Marie Lloyd, Miss Lily Burnand, Mrs. Fred Karno, Mrs. Fred Ginnett, and Mrs Butler are the leading spirits of the young society, the secretary being Miss Lee Grey.

Mr. Edward Lauri, of the famous Lauri family, has succeeded in booking with Messrs. Moss and Stoll his musical protean mélange, entitled In Her Boudoir, which is composed of the best ingredients of opera, musical comedy, and farce without horseplay. The production is distinguished by the special starring engagement therein of Australia's premier opera-bouffe artist, Miss May Beatty, and Miss Nina Osborne, a songstress, who also hails from the country which gave us Melba. Mr. Lauri goes to the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin, for pantomime, and will produce next spring a musical play without words, entitled A Gardener's Dream.

The "Rayne Date-book" has just had notoriety thrust upon it by being quoted as an authority in the celebrated "Barring-clause actions." Affidavits in these cases were made to the effect that the halls in question were more than a mile and a half apart according to Rayne's map, which is recognised by artists, managers, and agents as the standard work of reference. It is a frequent saying amongst professionals that if you consult this little waistcoat-pocket volume, the information obtained will be as "right as Rayne."

Mr. H. B. Marinelli, the "universal" agent, has just opened his new, extensive, and most elaborately-fitted offices on the Place Boieldieu, Paris. Amongst other innovations he has organised a special branch for theatrical matters. In his new offices will be found every modern convenience: reading-rooms for artists and private rooms for managers, who can transact their business, and telephone direct from his offices all over the world.

Mr. Medley Barrett, who has been snatching a brief holiday at Ostend before the serious duties of pantomime claim his attention, was persuaded whilst there to give his celebrated entertainment at the piano at an English school, and was acclaimed to the echo by a large audience. He was gratified to hear at a café chantant that one of the most admired numbers was an English song—Mr. Henry E. Pether's ballad "The Playground in the Sky."

The Terriers gave their first social of the season on Sunday at their headquarters, the Dover Castle, Westminster Bridge-road. About eighty were present. Amongst those who contributed to the evening's harmony were Walter Norman, Tom Packer, Miss Gillman, Ernest D'Almaine, Miss Ada Norman, Lloyd Morgan, Percy Linton, Miss Zasiho, Will Charlton, Harry Barlow, Mr. Sam Stockton, W. L. Murray, Fred W. Millis, Mr. Harry Gage, George Preston, and Miss Collins. Mr. F. W. Millis occupied the chair, Mr. Fred Neiman the vice-chair, Mr. J. C. Moore presided at the piano, and Mr. Walter Norman was the M.C. The comfort of all was well looked after by the secretary, Harry Lester.

Dr. Walford Bodie, who has again been creating a furore at the Paragon, will on Sunday (to-morrow) give a lecture and demonstration at the Canterbury, entitled "What is a Miracle?" which will touch on hypnotism, scientific medicine, Christian Scientists, and the Peculiar People. The whole proceeds will be given to the Waterloo Hospital for Women and Children. On this special occasion Dr. Walford Bodie will introduce some of his London cures.

Mr. Arthur G. H. Hunt, the new proprietor of the Royal Albert, Canning Town, E., is worthily following the example of his predecessor, Mr. Chas. Relf, and has generously placed his hall at the disposal of the Seamen's Hospital Society for two nights, viz., Thursday and Friday, Nov. 8 and 9, when the usual entertainments will be given in aid of that charity. Offers of help from members of the music hall profession will be gratefully received. Any ladies or gentlemen who would like to assist at these entertainments (thus benefiting a most deserving institution), and who can reasonably hope to appear, are asked to communicate with the honorary secretary, Seamen's Hospital, Albert Dock, London, E.

Mr. R. W. Allum's long and honourable connection with the Brixton Theatre will receive due recognition on Tuesday evening next, when his friends in Brixton are honouring him with a grand complimentary concert at the Brixton Hall, Acre-lane. Among those who have promised to appear are George Mozart, Phil Ray, Tom Craven, little Maudie Francis, Edie King, Sydney Gandy, Clara Hubbard, Blanche Marion, Lina Mucklow, Lily Allen, Rose Hamilton, and many others.

Mr. Frank Gerald has been elected general-secretary—not manager—to the Variety Artists' Federation Committee, receiving 63 votes out of a possible 126. His opponent, Mr. C. Bartram, secured 42. Seventeen members did not vote, and four were disqualified.

La Sylphe, the famous "spider" dancer, makes her first appearance in the provinces next Monday at Liverpool Olympia. During the following week she will be at Glasgow Empire. A New Yorker by birth, La Sylphe—known in private life as Edith Lambelle—is now twenty, and has been on the stage since the age of six. For the last two years she has been exclusively engaged at the Alhambra. At Olympia, La Sylphe will give a Spanish dance, the Parisian gigolette (an astonishingly rapid and high-kicking dance to galop music), and an Arabian dance. She lives on fruit and vegetables. "Meat," she says, "would make me fat, and I should be unable to get through my work. I practise three hours daily." She made her first appearance in London at the Palace Theatre, a house that makes a speciality of sensational dancers.

Miss Vesta Tilley, now happily recovered from her recent indisposition, will make her reappearance at the Hackney Empire on Monday. "It will probably surprise you to hear that I rarely learn any of my songs thoroughly before going on the stage," said Miss Tilley to the writer during the course of a brief chat. "Just now I have a new song in hand about a policeman, and at present am making a careful study of the men in blue I chance to pass. I do not run about after all the policemen, you know, but just take mental notes of their various walks and attitudes. I have done the same thing with all my most successful songs. When I produced 'On Furlough' the first time in Nottingham, I knew neither the words nor the tune thoroughly, and introduced the gait and different expressions extempore." Miss Tilley says she has not travelled by train for quite an age. Her motor has whirled her North, South, East, and West over thousands of miles. And she feels all the better for it.

Mr. Henri Gros, who has carried on his valiant defence of the music halls under the depressing effect of illness, is now, we are glad to be able to state, greatly improved in health. On Tuesday he was present at the Chelsea Palace, of which he is managing-director, and was agreeably impressed by the prosperity which is attending that popular palace of variety.

Gillin, ventriloquist, opens at the Palace Theatre on Monday next, when he actually makes his London début. He has a very high roof to his mouth, which he considers a great advantage in the polythonic business.

We regret to have to record the death of Mr. William E. Burke (of Burke, Andrus, and Frisco, the well-known sketch comedians), father of Miss Billie Burke. Mr. Burke, who was in his 63rd year, expired on Friday, the 5th inst., at Huddersfield, where he had been appearing at the Hippodrome in the sketch London to Madrid. Being suddenly taken ill on Saturday evening, Sept. 29, while preparing to come home, he was removed to the Huddersfield Infirmary, and notwithstanding the best medical attention he succumbed from gastritis in the presence of his sorrowing wife and daughter.

Born in Waterford, Knox County, Ohio, the deceased gentleman was originally apprenticed to a druggist in Fredericktown, Ohio. Later he enlisted in the Army and fought for the North in the Civil War, and being seriously wounded in action was honourably discharged. An opportunity presenting itself he joined a circus and was speedily promoted to the front rank, singing and making famous many songs. He came to England about eight years ago, appearing at the Palace Theatre with a sketch entitled Trafalgar Square at 4 p.m. His fortnight's engagement extended to six months. Since then he has appeared at every hall of note, both in London and the provinces, with his popular entertainment After the Ball. At the time of his death he was just about to join the Society of Water Rats. Miss Billie Burke, his beloved daughter, was to have opened at the Palace on Monday, but that engagement is postponed, as she and her bereaved mother intend retiring into the country for a while. Miss Burke, it will be remembered, was one of the principals in The Duchess of Dantzic, The Blue Moon, The School Girl, &c., and took the leading character in the recent Coliseum Revue. She has played principal girl in London and Liverpool pantomimes and has travelled through America, Russia, Germany, Austria, &c.

The funeral of the deceased took place, amidst every sign of sympathy, on Tuesday, the remains being laid to rest in the family vault at Hampstead Cemetery. A service was previously held at the St. Paul's Church, Avenue-road, N.W., by the Rev. Herbert Berry, M.A., who later performed the last sad rites at the graveside, around which a company had assembled, including his daughter and many friends. The beautiful black casket encasing the remains was completely enveloped in a mass of choice floral tributes, which included a handsome cluster of roses, orchids, lilies, and ferns from the widow, a laurel wreath with a knot of violets from Miss Billie Burke, a wreath from the International Artists' Lodge, a cushion from Mr. and Mrs. Allendale, wreath of lilies from Messrs. Arthur and Jimmy Hart, a broken harp from Mr. and Mrs. Andrus, wreath of white chrysanthemums, orchids, and ferns from Miss Elinor Souray, of orchids and arum lilies from Mr. and Mrs. Bruce, a cluster of roses sent by American relatives, and wreaths from Miss Maud Cooper, Mr. Stanley Carey, Miss Duncan Burnett, Mr. and Mrs. Matthews, Mr. and Miss Theodora Roussell, Mrs. E. Revett, and from the management and staff of Huddersfield Hippodrome. Mrs. and Miss Burke are deeply grateful for numberless messages and tokens of sympathy, which they desire to acknowledge through our columns, it being impossible to reply individually.

At the London meeting of the International Artists' Lodge on Sunday a discussion arose with regard to the candidates for the executive at the coming general meeting; and it was agreed that lists be made at the London office, and that the sixteen nominations, including Mr. H. Mountford, now nominated by Mr. Lee and seconded by Mr. Schafer, should be added to this list, and that the same should be sent out to members in England.

Many members present felt that the notices of arrears sent out from Berlin were unsuitable for English members. The reason that many members were in arrears was not because they did not want to pay, but because, not being readers of Das Programm, they were often not aware of the fact. There were also often many difficulties in the way of payment. For instance, a brother in arrears had been, and was, in Australia, and had kept moving from place to place. Brothers should be notified from the English office and also in English. The meeting then proposed a resolution that a special letter be written to Berlin requesting that a list of payments of all members up to date be sent to the London office so as to enable everyone to know exactly how each stood.

It was agreed that the barring of the Poluskis and Orpheus from appearing at the Paragon be dealt with by the Legal Committee on Tuesday next at 1 p.m. Brother 1226 explained to the meeting the differences existing between English and Scotch law, and suggested the advisability of having a legal adviser in that country. Brother 1226 proposed that Mr. Donald Sinclair, of Sinclair and Blair, 144, West Regent-street, Glasgow, be nominated. The meeting then closed.

Miss Marie Lloyd has secured the rights of a new song, written by Mr. Fred Bowyer, the well-known writer of pantomimes and the author of that highly successful number "A little bit of sugar for the bird." The title is "She took six easy lessons for a guinea."

Mr. Walter Gibbons desires us to contradict a widely-circulated rumour that he is about to retire from the Duchess Palace, Balham.

Owing to hoarseness Miss Lil Hawthorne was compelled to rest after Monday night's performance at the Holloway Empire, staying off the remainder of the week.

Mlle. Renée, the clever instrumentalist, has just returned from a most enjoyable visit to Paris. She will shortly be seen again at the London Pavilion, where she has met with many previous successes. At the conclusion of her stay at the Piccadilly-circus house she will return to the Folies-Bergère, Paris.

Mr. Matthew Brodie has struck such oil with the new sketch, A Drummer of the 76th, that he had offers for the West End after the first performance. He opens at the Paragon on Monday. Mr. Brodie's "find," Miss Dorothea Vivian, has been warmly welcomed.

It is not often the case that we get two Chung Ling Soos on one bill, but this, however, has been the case this week at the Grand, Bolton, where the Great Chung Ling Soo has drawn crowded houses during the week; and the Great Little Chung Ling Soo, the principal feature in Mlle. Haydée's miniature theatre, has caused endless amusement by the life-like impersonation of the great Chinese conjurer. Mlle. Haydée, whose miniature theatre has met with such success in the provinces, concludes to-night a run of eighty weeks, and is booked to open on Monday at the Alhambra, Paris.

PARIS ECHOES.

Our Parisian music-hall correspondent says:—"I trust The Era readers will excuse me for having neglected for some time to send the 'Echos de Paris,' but as the music-hall season in reality has only just commenced, I will endeavour to obtain their forgiveness by sending them, in a short and concise form, the most interesting news concerning Paris music-hall doings."

The event of the week has been the reopening of the Paris Hippodrome, entirely transformed, and under the joint management of Messrs. Houcke and Bostock. The house has now the finest stage in Europe, and will certainly rank as the most beautiful structure in Paris. The opening programme included the following turns:—The Mirza Golem Persian Caravane; Professor Emile Gauthier, on his aerial platform; the Luppu Wortley aerial artists in their wonderful flying act; the Mokis Indians, just imported by Mr. Bostock, in their weird and fantastic dances; Les Masarts; Les Regals; Mlle. Jenny's performing elephants; Capt. Devlin's American Zouaves; and a host of other attractions. The programme ran very smoothly for a first night, and Messrs. Houcke and Bostock must be congratulated on their huge success.

Gadbin is at the present moment the hero of Paris. He is drawing great crowds to the Folies-Bergères, where he is run over every evening by a 40 h.p. automobile containing six persons. Strange to say, the other day he was nearly run over in reality; fortunately he was only knocked over, but this has prevented his appearance for six nights. He reappeared on Wednesday evening at the Folies-Bergères, where he met with an enthusiastic reception.

Managers are really at their wits' end to find blood-curdling sensations; but, unfortunately, this is the absolutely indispensable element for the music-hall public. Parisians are no longer content with the beautiful and artistic; they must have the "thrill," and this attraction is a real "thriller," as the public is never certain whether the man will get up after the automobile has passed over him. Some whisper that there is a "trick." However, if there is one, the impression is as realistic as it is possible to be.

"Le Tireur D'Or," the charming ballet, still continues its successful career. The Olympia is doing a very good business, the principal attraction there being the aerial ballet Iris.

Mme. Colette Willy and M. Paul Frank, in their new play without words, have created quite a sensation. Mme. Colette Willy is the wife of the popular dramatic author, M. Willy.

The Théâtre Marigny, which will close to-day the most successful season it has had since it has been built, is still drawing crowds. The audiences are composed, so to say, exclusively of English and Americans. This theatre may really be called the "Opera" of music halls.

The programme, which of the highest order, comprises the Reed Pinaud Troupe in their most comical, refined, and up-to-date pantomime, entitled An Evening in an English Music Hall. This has really been the hit of the season. A more artistic production cannot well be conceived, and Mr. Reed Pinaud, who is himself a most accomplished artist, deserves great credit for such a production. During his performance the house is absolutely convulsed with laughter, and certainly the success of the close of the season at Marigny is due mainly to the Reed Pinaud Troupe.

Miss Ruth, in her classical Indian dances, has also created quite a sensation. Her performance is really perfection, and is absolutely refined. Amongst other acts, we may mention Mlle. Marzella, with her parrots, Maletzky, and the Akimotos Troupe of Japanese Jugglers. There has been some talk of keeping the Marigny Theatre open during the winter months, but nothing has been decided up to the present.

The Alhambra programme continues to be still about the best in Paris. The able, active, and enterprising manager, M. Neighbour, always maintains the standard of excellence which has secured for the house the reputation of being the finest music hall in Paris. In the programme we remark the Koh-i-noor Girls, La Belle Davis, the Three Rainats, Troba, Simms and Simms, &c.

Messrs. Houcke and Bostock have negotiated with the Circus Busch of Berlin for the purchase of the entire scenery, costumes, and material of Busch's great pantomime India. Mr. Gustave Hagenbeck, the well-known Hamburg animal-dealer, is to superintend the production and supply the animals appearing therein. This most gorgeous and grand spectacle, which employs no fewer than 300 performers, will be produced at the Hippodrome in the first days of November.

The Casino de Paris, under the new management of M. Chancel, will reopen on Saturday next. The programme will comprise two ballets and several variety turns.

Wrestling is going to be the rage of Paris next month. Competitions for the world's championship are to take place at the Folies-Bergères; the championship of the city of Paris is to be decided at the Cirque Métropole; and other lutteurs will contest for supremacy at the Casino de Paris. Wrestling seems a November fashion, as all Paris music halls are relying on it for that month, during which, as a rule, receipts are rather low. When, however, the managers take on wrestling the houses are generally packed.

A. C. M. E.

Quite an interesting episode occurred at the Argyle Theatre of Varieties, Birkenhead, on Saturday last, the closing night of a most successful visit from Mr. W. J. Ashcroft, the original "solid man." The audience included a numerous party of gentlemen, who had journeyed specially from Manchester to Birkenhead to renew acquaintance with the veteran comedian, and the fun was naturally materially increased, to the evident delight of those in the know.

Miss Clarice Mayne finished on Saturday at the Palace, and carries away with her a re-engagement for two years further at that house. She has recently had a flattering offer to go to America on the Keith Circuit, but owing to her forthcoming appearance at the Tivoli in a special production, she has been compelled reluctantly to refuse. Miss Mayne made her début under the guidance of Mr. James W. Tate, the gifted pianist and composer.

Miss Fanny Robina, with her medley, "The Albert Hall Concert," and Florry Cooper, with "The stars are angel faces," have been meeting with great success at the Queen's, Poplar. They start with Billie Bint on a long tour on Monday, commencing at the Palace, Plymouth.

Musical novelty marks the doings of George and Arthur Phern, in their two-scene sketch A Concert Rehearsal. Arthur plays a tune on a street-door, his performance having a most interested listener in the postman. The partners, who have been devotees of St. Cecilia for years, procure melody and harmony from "phernaphones," in which the tone of a single-stringed fiddle is much increased in volume by a bell attachment. Their tunes on rattles are very pretty and effective.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

WITHOUT any possible shadow of doubt that admired song, "Hello, Hello, Hello! (It's a different girl again)," by George Arthurs and Bennett Scott, is to be the principal boy's song of the year. Every manager of note in the kingdom has already secured this taking number. Needless to say, and almost superfluous to add, it is published by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, who, as heretofore, seem to be "scooping the pool" with pantomime hits.

MR. DAVID DAY has accepted for immediate publication Mr. Fred Lincoln's comical song, "A week and a day; or, how they made a fortnight." It is by A. E. Lawrence and R. P. Weston.

THE two really most popular songs of the moment are "In the shade of the old apple tree," and "Put a little bit away for a rainy day," and pantomime producers—who are nothing if not keen business men—in addition to securing the very latest novelties, always rely on two or more popular favourites, and this accounts for the abovementioned songs being so extensively underlined for inclusion in the coming annuals.

MR. FRED W. LEIGH'S "Bridget" and "Why do the girls love Charlie?" are in great request, artists having in mind the enormous hit made by this favourite author-composer's "Molly, I love you." Specially-written band parts are issued of both numbers.

"CHEYENNE" ("Shy Ann"), by the writers of "Navaho," is rapidly gaining favour with the high lights of the theatrical world as Boxing-Night approaches. Its bold, swinging melody and romantic, pretty story make it eminently suitable for a "production" number. This is another of Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter's panto. specials.

MR. HAMILTON HILL'S opening song in America will be Edward St. Quentin's admired number, "Queen of love."

MR. DAVID DAY has in the press a pretty song calculated to dispel the "blues," and to put an audience in a cheerful mood. It is entitled "Sunshine Row," and is by Maurice Scott and George Bruce.

Two writers to whom the profession should be deeply indebted for very many of the best ditties of the time—to wit, Harry Castling and A. J. Mills—have collaborated in a comic song for Mr. Fred Earle, entitled "For my corn began to shoot," and also in one of the best parodies extant of "In the shade of the old apple tree." Messrs. Francis and Day have both in the press.

MR. TOM LEO has received a tempting offer to visit America. Whether he accepts it or not, his celebrated somnolent serenade, "Too lazy to live," has come to stay, as the pantomimes of 1906-7 will testify.

MR. FRANK COYLE sang for the first time last week at the Tivoli, Manchester, a new song entitled "The Two Flags," by Albert Hall, a comic descriptive ditty, full of humour and satire.

ARTHUR WALLIS and Geo. Encyl Lewis's compositions are meeting with unqualified success. "Pale Moonbeam," their latest "effect song," will be a prime pantomime favourite. Other new numbers are "The girl with the roguish smile," and "Fooling."

MISS FLORRIE GALLIMORE is singing with great success nightly at the Tivoli, South London, and the Paragon Mr. George A. Steven's latest song, "Caroline." This is an excellent pantomime number, suitable for either principal boy or girl. It is published by the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., 100, Charing Cross-road, W.C.

MISS BILLIE BURKE will, at a very early date, produce at the Palace, Shaftesbury-avenue, an entirely new song-scena, which the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., have in the press.

THE Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., have just placed with Miss Ella Shields Harry Von Tilzer's latest coon song, "Home, sweet home, sounds good to me," which is expected to be as big a success with her as "Alexander."

ADVICES from New York state that Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter's song, "Moonshine," by Silvio Hein, has made a great hit in "Miss Wilson—that's all!" being the strongest number of the star, Miss May Irwin. Another very big success is the same firm's "My Irish Rosie," by Jerome and Schwartz, now sung by Miss Hattie Williams in The Little Cherub. Mr. Haymann, Mr. Frohman's New York manager, has also specially selected two of the Anglo-American house's songs for inclusion in The Rich Mr. Hoggenheimer, namely, "Any old time at all" and "Kitty, Pretty Kitty."

MR. J. F. LAMBE has written a new and original song, in conjunction with Harry Castling, entitled "'Twas the favourite song of the singer." The author and composer have received many tempting offers for sole rights, but have decided to grant a limited number of permissions free.

THE Von Tilzer-Shapiro Co. have this week purchased the publishing rights of Mr. J. F. Lambe's song, "Be advised by your father," which has proved such a phenomenal success in the hands of Miss Jessie Preston.

THE ELLIOTTS AND SAVONAS IN WAKEFIELD.

During the past week packed and enthusiastic houses have gathered nightly at the Hippodrome, the great attraction being the wonderful and picturesque performances of the Seven Savonas and the marvellous tricks of the Cycling Elliotts. These are probably the most popular turns ever put on at the Hippodrome, and, owing to the enormous success, the management have retained their services for one week longer. It is safe to say that the scenes of enthusiasm will be continued during the week, and I would advise those who are thinking of paying a visit to go early and make sure of a seat.—The Wakefield Advertiser and Gazette, Oct. 9, 1906.

MR. JIMMY SHIELDS, a one-legged dancer who is seldom seen in London, opens at the Hackney Empire on Monday, when he commences the Stoll tour of twenty-three weeks.

MISS BESSIE BUTT, who to-night completes her sixty-fourth week under Mr. Stoll's management, leaves the Moss-Stoll circuit on Monday next to appear for one week at the T. R., Halifax, resuming the Stoll tour on the 22nd inst. at Leeds.

MESSRS. OLIVER AND HOLMES, the well-known variety agents, of Leicester-square, write to say that their claim from Miss Lillian Lowe, ballad vocalist, was for commission and money lent, and that that lady's salary was £450 per annum.

THAT clever young author-actor, Mr. Fred S. Peake, whose dramatic sketch, The Hypocrite, has met with such deserved success, has been trying a new comedy sketch at Greenwich during the week. On Wednesday evening he met with an accident, a pistol going off somewhat unexpectedly at close quarters. Though badly burnt, he pluckily struggled through to the end, and only collapsed after taking two well-earned calls.

GUS ELEN.

A SUCCESSFUL FISHERMAN.
HIS EXPLOITS OFF DEAL.

Mr. Elen is an ardent sportsman, and always secures a few weeks' holiday during the year in which to follow his favourite pursuits of shooting and fishing. Mr. Elen, whether at work or play, is very thorough, which the following record of his fishing exploits off Deal testifies. During his three weeks' holiday he has captured 125lb. in weight of fish. The catch consisted of cod, whiting, pouting, plaice, eels, dogfish, soles, &c. The largest cod weighed 11lb., and he had the unusual luck of frequently getting two large soles at each haul. 36lb. of fish was his largest day's catch, and these he despatched for distribution amongst the stage employees at the Oxford. Mr. Elen says: "I had a lovely time. I lost a couple of exceptionally large fish, being over anxious to 'gaff' them, and in consequence severing my line with the hook. I got a pull from them similar to that which I might expect if Hackenschmidt got hold of me." The charming wife of the coster comedian is also an ardent fisher, and entered with much zest the ladies' fishing competition on the pier at Deal.

BOW PALACE.

Since the exterior and interior improvements have been accomplished the Bow Palace looks remarkably spic-and-span. The hall has been redecorated throughout, and the auditorium as well as the stage has been furnished with the latest electrical appliances for lighting. Inside the house the scheme of colour has been well chosen, and the general effect is one of artistic cosiness. For the most part the walls are covered with a dark red paper, the ceiling is pale blue, and the pillars bestow their affections upon cream and green. Other improvements and embellishments have been carried out behind the curtain. New scenery has been painted specially for the Bow Palace, and three new cloths, one representing an Eastern palace, another a conservatory, and a third a pretty sylvan scene, are particularly noteworthy. Mr. Charles Harvey, the able acting-manager, this week offers a capital programme, one of the most popular features of which is provided by Mr. Fred Moule and Mr. E. D. Nicholls' company in the comedy sketch The Battle of the Belles, the first-named gentleman being the author. It is really a laughable item, and the manner in which Mr. Moule enacts the rôle of Kendal Croat, the laughing publican, and Mr. E. D. Nicholls assumes the idiosyncrasies of Samuel Flatfoote, the waiter with the "stuttering feet," is enough to make a misanthrope put on a merry face. The other people in the cast—Mr. Courtney Robinson as Hector Rodney, Miss Ada Lucelly as Laurie Linden, Miss Cathleen Cavanagh as Brenda Croat, and Miss Ada Frank as Johanna Dick—appear to advantage. Messrs. Bernard and Weston contrive to be intensely amusing with their patter, and they are, too, pretty active on their pedal extremities. Miss Lucy Coventry shows herself to be a versatile comedienne and a gifted dancer; and Mr. Sam Redfern, who is a great favourite in the East End, goes strong in his negro comedy, his song "In the cottage by the wood" being much applauded.

Miss Marie Reeve is a pretty and accomplished young lady who is heard to advantage in a couple of songs. "The Cingalee" is one. It is a lyric and is rendered in the sweetest way you could imagine. Another item in her programme is not less dainty. Its subject is "When poverty comes to the door," and it is delivered with appropriately sympathetic feeling. Mr. Bert Harrow is, indeed, as he styles himself, a rum fellow. His facial expressions are extremely whimsical, and he brings out to the fullest extent the humour of his lines. For genuine merriment we can commend Mr. Harrow. Sand dancing extraordinary is the kind of thing that Mr. Frank Cumminger—a record-breaker in that line—indulges in. He certainly strikes one as a remarkably agile and light-footed individual, and his terpsichorean efforts receive the hearty approval of his audience. Charles and Arthur Danby are, to say the least of them, an entertaining couple. They are comedians and dancers of no small merit, and their lines about "walking round the world" are exceedingly amusing. One might go far before finding two such smart comedians. Then, in the person of Miss Minnuie Moran, there is a delightfully engaging vocalist, who simply enchants with her singing. Another department in which she excels is dancing, and in that she is as sprightly and light-hearted as a lady of limited summers could wish to be. Mr. Clarence Corri's Musical Comedy Sketch Company present an absurdity, Rough on Tuff, written by Mr. Edgar Dereeve, with music by Mr. Corri. The little piece is most attractive, and goes with a fine swing from beginning to end. Messrs. Joe Nightingale, Leonard May, Stuart Ethall, Hyland Shea, and Leslie Digby, and Miss Winnie Raynor in the principal parts all work together with excellent effect, and the little piece has been made welcome. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux exhibit an interesting series of animated pictures.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE EUSTON.

One of the most novel acts that it has been our good fortune to witness for some time is that which Mr. Henry Mack is presenting at the Euston this week. He gives it the title—all stage monologues have a title now—of "Late Home." An inebriated husband is supposed to return to his domestic hearth in the small hours, and interviews the village pump, which he mistakes for the missus, and to which he recites, between intervals of objurgation, snatches of "The Charge of the Light Brigade." But that is not all. Mr. Mack no sooner takes off his gloves than he covers his hands, in a way entirely invisible to the audience, with a pair of an entirely different colour. The second pair being removed, he shortly after is wearing orange-coloured kids, which he dons in a way that is quite inexplicable. He also sheds several pairs of cuffs, which are immediately replaced by others, and when, at the finish of his turn, he has half undressed himself, he suddenly assumes—without any help, and in the twinkling of a bedpost—the rigid respectability of a frock coat. Those music-lovers who assisted at the first production of Black Justice must have reached middle age by now, and still the negro farce is being played at the Euston with as much success as ever by that happily-associated combination, Big Ben Brown, Little George Le Clerq, and company. There are some fresh incidentals introduced; but the dialogue and funny business between magistrate and policeman remain much the same as they were twenty years ago. The two comedians mentioned play admirably into each other's hands, and the result is a quarter of an hour's hearty laughter. Mr. Burt Shepard introduces parodies at the piano; Mr. Harry Anderson is responsible for "My best pal is my old gal"; and Miss Alice Blandford does her best to justify her title of the "New Zealand nightingale." The majestic and magnificent Alexandra Dagmar has a song which gives keen delight to the audience in "When the band played the Men of Harlech," which should find an immense vogue in the coming pantomimes. Miss Dagmar, however, is nothing if not versatile, and gives a famous impersonation of a Viennese soubrette, also waking memories of the snow-clad peaks of the Alps in her tirade of Tyroléennes, in which she is quite an adept. Stories, likewise, take up some portion of her time, and she is very amusing in an anecdote concerning herself.

The Five Dandies are responsible for a refined entertainment, to which Mr. Harry Corner and Miss Queenie Essex, who were seen to advantage in the Coliseum revue, contribute clever numbers. The treatment of nursery rhymes is novel, and the specimens of various songs—patriotic, coon, and sentimental—are quite in the best spirit of parody. Practical fun is the outcome of those favourite clowns and acrobats, Rezene and Robini, who are responsible for a comic interlude, entitled "The Policeman and the Baby"; and we have in Mr. George Mozart one of those humourists possessed of the satirical instinct, and able to give it full play, in a skit on full-blooded drama, such as entertained our forefathers at the Coburg, and ourselves at the Adelphi. The racing episode, Rogues of the Turf, has been seen in the guise of melodrama at a suburban theatre, and is therefore not altogether unknown to Londoners. It is by Max Goldberg—otherwise Mr. John F. Preston, who plays the part of an honest old trainer most effectively. He is ably assisted by Mr. Herbert Wordin as the apprentice jockey, Mr. George Harwood as Captain Dudley Clifton, Miss Hilda Shirley, a fascinating villainess, and Miss Madge Nelson as Nellie Flaxman. Real thorough-breds are introduced in the paddock of the Manchester racecourse on the day of the Manchester Cup. The episode is handsomely mounted and illustrated. The Abdullah Arabs are a dozen Moorish acrobats who form extraordinary pyramids, and are whirlwind performers. Mr. Fred M'Avoy is Mr. Adney Payne's popular lieutenant here, and has a hard-working and courteous assistant in Mr. Charles E Wellman.

QUEEN'S PALACE.

The Queen's Palace is forging ahead in popular favour, and is being better patronised now than ever before in its existence. A capitally-arranged programme this week includes Miss Arabella Allen, the well-known Dickens impersonator. Miss Allen treats us to three different characters, each of which is excellently portrayed, considering that they are of the male order. Her Quilp is a distinctly praiseworthy study, and it seems rather a peculiar choice for a young lady of much personal attractiveness. Her speech from "David Copperfield" was also admirably rendered and admirably acted. In the rôle of the very humble clerk she shows us a weak-minded, smooth-tongued hypocrite whose exhibitions of feminine ferocity, when the object of that ferocity has passed out of his sight, accentuate the puerility of his nature. Miss Allen certainly strikes us as being an able interpreter of the great novelist's creations, but we would like to see the young lady in some feminine characters. A particular pleasing singer and dancer comes along in the person of Miss Florrie Cooper. Her delivery is sweet, clear, and tuneful, and she has a pleasing presence. Her verses about people whose life's work is concerned with the sea are rendered with much expression and sympathetic feeling. Mr. Fred Harrison is extremely entertaining as a funny Chinaman; and Mr. Russell Carr excels in the direction of ventriloquism. Both Mr. Carr and his dummy are dressed in military fashion, and a very smart couple they look, and not less smart than their looks is their cross-talk. Mr. Russell Carr, by the way, is a son of Mr. Fred Russell, both father and son being celebrated in one branch of the profession. Miss Fanny Robina is quite a versatile vocalist, and her variations in the singing line prove most acceptable.

The Cirnocs, who describe themselves as "handcuff kings," appear in an interesting act, in which one gentleman releases himself from all kinds of manacles. Mr. Cirnoc is not content with merely removing the handcuffs and other prison contrivances from his person, but he shows the audience how it is done. Perhaps his show would be more attractive were the spectators kept in ignorance of the handcuff-opening trick, as there is plenty of "business" in the act otherwise. We are told that this is Mr. Cirnoc's first appearance in England after an engagement on the Continent for two years, and he now offers to forfeit £50 if he cannot release himself from any regulation handcuff or manacle. The Glenroy Troupe, consisting of three female and two male performers, are seen in a series of admirably-executed speciality dances in a scena bearing the title The Lads of the New Brigade. Especially commendable are their Scottish and Irish dances. A lively and laughable knockabout turn is that of the Reed-Oetzmann Troupe in their absurdity On Tour in the Tyrol. We witness some exceptionally neat Continental pantomime work while these people occupy the stage. The Harrold Company are presenting the sketch The Enemy of Man. The playlet, if rather weird and fanciful, is certainly of the kind to keep one's attention riveted to the stage for the time being. Mr. W. J. Mackay is persuasive, hypocritical, and uncanny as Satan, and the character is artistically acted. Mr. George Howarth as the poor artist who gives way to temptation in a dream and Miss Ina Alston as his wife admirably fulfil the requirements of their parts. The beautiful pictures of the new Bioscope conclude the evening's entertainment.

DUNNING AND KAHN AND KAHN, who are now on the Moss and Stoll circuit, have nearly forty weeks on the road, after which they return to town with Messrs. Payne and Gibbons.

DEATH OF LECHMERE LIVERMORE.

The announcement of the death of Mr. Lechmere Charles John Livermore will be received with much regret by a large circle of friends in and out of the profession. The deceased, who passed away at his Tooting residence on Saturday at the age of sixty-one, was a gentleman of wide experience and great activity, and with him is removed one of the few remaining pillars and entrepreneurs of burnt cork minstrelsy, which has now fallen into disfavour. He was the senior member of the firm of Livermore, proprietors of the only and original Court Minstrels. His brother Horace, the surviving member of the firm, is now director and manager of the Palace Theatre, Bristol. Mr. Lechmere Livermore made his first appearance at Drury Lane Theatre at the age of eight, in conjunction with his sister Ada, and scored a success, for at that time they were the smallest artists upon the stage. Shortly after this Mrs. Livermore, the mother of the Livermore family, secured for a short season the Adelaide Gallery, now known as Gatti's, in the Strand, and it was here that she introduced her clever children to the public as juvenile comedians, consisting of Master Lechmere Livermore, Miss Ada Livermore, Master Louis Livermore, and Master Horace Livermore, then known as the Infant Keeley. The family made a hit, and, after a short run in London, toured the provincial theatres, where they gave the entire entertainment.

After two or three years in the theatres, Mrs. Livermore was persuaded to try the halls. Here, again, they met with success, but, owing to the authorities prohibiting sketches, Mr. L. C. J. Livermore decided to try burnt cork, and, in conjunction with the Sainer family, started a juvenile troupe of Court Minstrels to tour the small towns. The families not agreeing, Mrs. Livermore decided to go back to the halls with a small troupe of Court Minstrels consisting entirely of the Livermore family and a cousin of theirs, George Gassoigne, who was professionally known as little Joe Brown, and who is now an assistant to Mr. Horace Livermore in Bristol. After touring the whole of the provinces and nearly every hall in London in the 'sixties, Mr. L. C. J. Livermore in 1870 persuaded his other two brothers to start a larger company of Court Minstrels, and take all the largest halls in every city. After travelling with indifferent success for about a year they were not discouraged, but quickly paid return visits, and so built up a world-wide reputation as high-class entertainers, and the name of Livermore Brothers Court Minstrels became a household word.

Having been so successful all these years, Mr. L. C. J. Livermore, in conjunction with his brothers Louis and Horace, invested a large amount of their capital in Jersey by purchasing the Britannia Hotel and livery stables, in Bath-street. Here the deceased gentleman took up the management, and during his stay of over five years made many friends. He was a Past Master of the Yarborough Lodge of Freemasons and Provincial Grand Officer. Being of a roving disposition, however, he resolved to rejoin his brothers, and travel with the minstrels once more, and disposed of the Jersey business, which, by the way, was a great success.

In the year 1887, in conjunction with his brother Horace and Mr. Ernest Sheldon (brother-in-law), he converted the Circus, in the Haymarket, Newcastle-on-Tyne, into a first-class variety theatre. Mr. L. C. J. Livermore only some few months ago retired from active life through illness, but unfortunately he did not live long to enjoy the fruits of his many years' labour, but passed peacefully away at his residence in Tooting, surrounded by his family.

MR. PAUL VALENTINE'S BENEFIT.

The Canterbury Theatre of Varieties was comfortably filled on Friday evening, last week, when a testimonial benefit performance was held in honour of Mr. Paul Valentine, the well-known teacher of dancing and ballet master. A very strong committee had been formed to assist in carrying out the arrangements in connection with the performance, and in order to ensure a good house, and many of these gentlemen were present. Mr. George Adney Payne was the chairman and treasurer for the testimonial, and Mr. Fred Miller acted as honorary secretary. The committeemen were Messrs. Henri Gros, Henry Tozer, H. H. Wells, J. L. Graydon, George T. Maxwell, Richard Warner, Richard Wake, Tom Maltby, W. G. Grimes, Harry Masters, C. Blyth-Pratt, Fred McAvoy, Joseph Lyons, Jesse Sparrow, Charles Beecham, William Greet, Fred Fredericks, Isaac Cohen, Donald Munro, Hugh Moss, Horace Marriott, Tom Claxton, George Mozart, Ernest de Vere, George Scott, H. J. Hitchins, Albert Gilmer, Harry Tich, Joe Elvin, John Lawson, J. W. Cragg, David Cowis, Charles Meggy, and Archie Howells.

The programme was a capital one, both as to quantity and quality, and the evening's entertainment proved most enjoyable. The items on the programme included the Abdullah Arabs, pyramid artists and tumblers, including Fatima, the wonder child; Adrim and Oram, acrobats; Big Ben Brown and Little George Le Clerq and company, in sketch, Black Justice; Mr. Arthur Conquest and company, in The Sioux; Clark and Hamilton, comedy duo; Mr. T. E. Dunville, comedian, in "The Channel Swimmer"; Doreen Girls (Paul Valentine's); Miss Maud Esmond, burlesque artist; Drew and Alders, comedians; Happy Fanny Fields, the jolly American-Dutch girl; Les Fleurs, Continental song and dance artists; Miss Florrie Gallimore, comedienne; Mr. George Mozart, comedian; Miss Victoria Monks; Miss Constance Moxon, comedienne; Oakley and James (Bert and Polly); the Poluskis, comedians; Miss Annie Purcell, in Dutch character songs; Mr. Arthur Pearl, comedian; Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope, with up-to-date pictures; Miss Bijou Russell, American coon singer and dancer; Mr. Ernest Shand, comedian; Stewart and Morgan, harmonious vocalists; and Little Tich.

HOLLOWAY EMPIRE.

Mr. C. W. Adams, the acting-manager at the Holloway Empire, was compelled on Tuesday evening to offer an apology for the absence of Miss Lil Hawthorne, the popular comedienne, who was suffering from a severe cold. The unavoidable disappointment was, of course, to be regretted, but fortunately he had been able to arrange for the appearance in Miss Hawthorne's place of Miss Jessie Preston. That vivacious lady, who opened with a song the refrain of which is "Be advised by father," made a decided hit as "Mary, his Scotch Bluebell." Miss Preston gives a humorous portrayal of the heroine of the song first introduced by Mr. Harry Lauder. Her Scotch dress and wild "Highland fling" are equally effective in evoking the laughter of the audience, and she sings the tuneful ditty with much spirit.

One of the most amusing turns of the evening is that of the Harmony Four, whose mixture of music and comic business meets with the full approval of the audience. One of the four is a quick, active performer, who employs himself most industriously and successfully in causing laughter by his quaint antics and funny exits. All the members of the Harmony Four possess good voices, particularly the tenor, and the quartette which they contribute is admirably rendered. Their reception at Holloway has been of the most cordial character. Paulinetti and Piquo distinguish themselves in a gymnastic act, one of them playing the part of clown. The performer who is responsible for the more serious part of the business appears first in full evening dress, but while supporting himself head downwards on the horizontal bar he discards these garments one by one and appears in the ordinary costume of the gymnast. He is exceedingly skilful in his work on the bar, and receives excellent assistance from his partner. Mr. Clemart, the ventriloquist, brings along quite a little party, and voices his figures very smartly. They include a nursemaid who walks on the stage by herself, a baby in a perambulator, and a naughty boy. The last-mentioned slyly kicks the unoffending infant, causing it to have a fit of crying. The imitation of the child is remarkably clever, and Mr. Clemart's patter is also racy and amusing. Miss Lilian Warren sings two songs, "The Banquet in Misery Hall" and "A little boy called Taps." Both of these are illustrated by pictures thrown on the screen. The songs are well rendered, and the audience joins heartily in the choruses.

The sketch called Casey's Court looms largely in this week's programme, and the entertainment given by the youthful artists, led by Mr. Bob King as Mrs. Casey, presents many laughable features. The "midget comedians" continue to make excellent use of their opportunities, and the comic business introduced in this bustling scene is carried through with much spirit. Mr. Bob King as the Irish dame deserves every credit for a capital performance, and altogether Casey's Court is acknowledged to be one of the best things in the current bill of fare. Mr. Will Mitcham, musical comedian, gives a close imitation of a Milanese piper, and a solo which he plays on the saxophone is greeted with applause. Miss Maud Ross, comedienne, is also in the list of contributors. On the American Bioscope is shown a series of pictures depicting a safe robbery at a bank by two men who are tracked by a clever dog. The chase after the criminal couple proves highly exciting and sensational. On the night of our visit an extra turn was given by a gentleman vocalist, who gave "We'll be lovers all the while" and "I fear no foe in shining armour." He was greeted with loud applause. The overture "Marche des Petits Marmousets" is ably played by the orchestra under the direction of Mr. Henry W. Evans.

SHEPHERD'S BUSH EMPIRE.

"Refinement, luxury, and high-class varieties" is the alluring prospect held out on the bills at Shepherd's Bush Empire, and the promise is redeemed both on the stage and in the auditorium in a way characteristic of every hall associated with the name of Moss and Stoll. The art of "bluff" has long been a favourite pursuit of Mr. Will Evans, who takes the members of the audience into partnership in his essays to sing a new song of his own composition. He is interrupted by an individual in the stalls, who asks Mr. Evans to sing one which the speaker has in his possession. The comedian obligingly consents, not, however, without certain personalities regarding the author, and later offers the reward of a couple of pairs of gloves to any member of the fair sex who will render the chorus. A lady in the stalls at length obliges, after which the author himself is compelled, in stentorian tones, to repeat the refrain. The interlude is inexpressibly funny, and causes shouts of laughter. Further merriment is made when the genial clown appears as a Spanish dancer, and later puts on the skirts of a première danseuse assoluta, and executes a pirouette in the midst of the most eccentric corps de ballet that was ever seen.

Another perennial favourite is found in Mr. Albert Christian, to whose artistic vocal abilities we have often paid tribute. Mr. Christian renders his songs in character, appearing first in monastic garb to sing "A merry monk am I." The scent of the ozone is brought over the footlights in the second contribution from Mr. Christian, who makes a striking appearance as a man-o'-war's-man. "There's a little flag on high," his newest song, breathes the spirit of that sound and robust patriotism that has ever been the distinguishing mark of the Briton. The flag that braved a thousand years the battle and the breeze is extolled in invigorating rhyme, set to a stirring tune. Delivered in Mr. Christian's cultured style, and employing the best resources of his fine voice, its effect is instantaneous and complete, the entire house joining in rapturous plaudits of the singer, who is repeatedly recalled.

Frivolity is conspicuous in the entertainment presented by the Leslie Brothers, who well carry out their description of "comic musicians." A specimen of their musicianly talent is given in a stirring duet on cornet and saxhorn, which is greatly appreciated. Pranks at the piano are afterwards performed by an excitable individual, who converts everything possible to the purposes of fun, shrieks of laughter resulting from his oddities. Bassoon and shepherd's pipe are subsequently combined in harmony, while "Annie Laurie" sounds quite quaintly, as rendered on the Australian cattle bells, which are not unlike those to be heard in our own meadows. The interlude is varied by a solo on what is called a "musical face," one performer succeeding in extracting some resemblance to a tune from the cheeks of his partner, who stands by with mouth wide open.

A powerful attraction of the bill is Professor Selkirk's spectacle, In Bonnie Scotland, in which a hundred local children are engaged. The marching and counter-marching, and other military evolutions of the youngsters, dressed in tartan plaid, is very inspiriting, and the cheers of the audience at the spectacle, which is staged in the elaborate fashion customary with Mr. Selkirk, are hearty and spontaneous. The Sisters Caselli, who are unexcelled in their speciality dancing, go through their legmania feats with rhythmic grace and precision, and admiration for their high kicking and posturing is loudly expressed. The fun of the "Zoological comedy" presented by the Donaldson Brothers, Ardell, and company is well maintained, the sights and wonders of the "Zoo" being burlesqued in freakish fashion by the able comedians who take part in the popular piece. The American Bioscope supplies clear views of the most interesting subjects; Miss Nora Emerald proves her ability as a comedienne; and others in the strong programme are Miss Kate Cohen, vocalist; and Preston and Balmaine, illustrated song singers. The new resident-manager at Shepherd's Bush is Mr. B. G. Maclachan, and the duties of assistant acting-manager are fulfilled by Mr. Jess Smith.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

The fairs ahead for next week are Bakewell, Fazeley, Southam, Burley-in-Wharfedale, City Road (Bradford), Hereford, Salisbury, Shipston-on-Stour, Axminster, Banbury, Ivinghoe, Maidstone, Market Bosworth, Newbury, Wigan Carnival, Daventry, Arnold, Chichester, Clitheroe, Devizes, Leek, Oundle, Princes Risborough, Sawbridgeworth, Sleaford, and St. Austell.

The honorary solicitor for the London district to the Showmen's Guild, Albert A. Strong, Esq., LL.B., has removed from 4, Eastcheap, to 70, Gracechurch-street, E.C. His telegraphic address is "Kratos, London," and telephone No. 11804, Central. We advise London showmen to make a note of this change of address.

Our West of England showmen readers will be glad to have word of their staunch friend and champion, Mr. Geoffery W. A. Norton. It will be remembered that, with the utmost reluctance, Mr. Norton broke away from his work amongst the show-people of the West and went to British Columbia, with a view of making a settlement there. He writes to us from Vancouver, under date Sept. 18: "I have been in Canada over a month, and though I like this part of the Dominion immensely, the labour question on the Pacific Coast has become acute, and until that rights itself I should be sorry to take up land. So I am returning to Cornwall by s.s. Lake Erie on Sept. 29, from Quebec, and will look you up at The Era Office about Oct. 10. I am glad to think that I shall again be associated with showland, and doubt if I could ever bring myself to parting from my 'kiddies.' So The Era can have my services as before in the West of England.

"Here, were it not for the immense distances, a showman could make good money; but his time here has not yet come. The only roundabout and side-shows that I have seen in Montreal, Winnipeg, and Victoria, B.C., would fare badly in the West of England as far as patronage were concerned: our people would not put such stuff on the road. Here and in Victoria and in a few other towns of importance there are small theatres, mis-called 'Grand,' which hold about 700 to 1,000 people, and give really good variety shows, at prices ranging from 15 cents to 35 cents. They are crammed nightly, and vary their programme once a week. One particularly good film I noticed, comic and very Yankee in style, and I hope to get hold of it for one or other of my showman friends.

"When I have been in mining camps, Indian villages, and ungetatable towns, where money is plentiful, I have often wished that I could transport one or other of the shows I know and see the dollars being raked in and over-fist. I hope to be at Liskeard Fair if all goes well, and I can hear those drums and organs now; and after all this wandering it will seem quite like being home again when I step into 'all the fun of the fair' and shake my friends' hands."

We regret to see that our report of Marlborough Fair does not contain the name of a big show. The other entertainments were of an interesting character, and included the well-known varieties of local showmen and London showmen who take Marlborough on their circuit of fairs. Prominent amongst these were J. and H. Jennings, with steam horses, gallopers, swings, and rifle saloons; Professor Gillham, with boxing booth and shooting gallery; Matthews, with juvenile set of ostriches and rifle saloons. The other entertainments were Edwards's rifle saloon and throwing games; and fair-ground varieties by Bond, Nail, Wellington, and Bunce.

The splendid fair at Peterborough is nearly always overshadowed by the coincidence of Nottingham Fair, and one result of the clash of dates is that Peterborough does not receive that attention its importance warrants. It will be seen, however, from the list of high-class concerns that it is well appreciated by the crowd of shows taking this circuit. There were two magnificent cinematograph theatres, the concerns of Wm. Biddall and Barker and Thurston. La Neve and Norah Sullivan, the Sandows of the ground-booth, in their expert demonstrations of muscularity and strength; Ling's fine art show; and the novelty booths of Messrs. White and Buckley. Thurston's exhibited their gondola set, motor-car track, and ostrich circus. The other riding masters were Messrs. Horne and Parr, and Barnett with park swings; rifle saloons and bottle batteries were provided by Messrs. Holmes, Parking, Thompson, and Gray. There were long avenues of throwing games, pannum, toy, and variety stalls, and amongst the providers of these were Messrs. Pont, Johnson, Harris, Gray, and Holmes.

At Lymington Fair the amusements were in the capable hands of the local showman, Bartlett.

In pursuance of his business tour of the back-end fairs the Rev. T. Horne will hold a meeting on the fair-ground next Sunday at Hull. It is hoped that, as at Gloucester, the Mayor, or some other prominent local gentleman, will preside over the meeting, which will be of a public character. For the time and place of meeting see our advertisement columns.

Bridport Fair, on Oct. 3, had for its entertainments Anderton and Rowland's cinematograph and coliseum of varieties and Jones's cinematograph and empire of varieties, Marshall Hill's switchback, Townsend's steam horses, three small side-shows, and the usual attendant throng of swings, shooters, and throwing games.

Following Gloucester Fair was the fair at Cheltenham, and to this went a considerable number of the exhibitions and attractions we noticed as being at Barton Mop—Jacob Studt and Sons' splendid theatre, Purchase's menagerie and waxworks, and many other attractions.

At Macclesfield were the well-known concerns of Messrs. J. Green, J. Walker, Hibbert and Sons, I. Richards, Montgomery, Harrison, E. P. Holland, Watson, J. Barker, Whatmore, Ormerod, and many others.

Our friendly warning to the Corporation of Darwen has borne excellent results. It will be remembered that the General Purposes Committee recommended the stoppage of music and the earlier closing of the fair. When the matter came up before the Council for endorsement it was met with strenuous and successful opposition. Councillor Pickup moved that the proposal of the General Purposes Committee be crossed off the minutes, and he said that if they were going to increase the loss they had on the markets last year by the sum of £110, which was received from the proprietors of shows, they were going to do injury to the whole body of ratepayers. Councillor Dickworth, in seconding Mr. Pickup's amendment, stated that Darwen Fair was an old-established institution, and much appreciated by the workers, who would feel that their feelings were being trampled upon if it were stopped. He did not think that a single retiring member of that Council would be re-elected at the ensuing elections if he advocated the abolition of Darwen Fair. Councillor Caterall urged that the fair was a source of enjoyment to crowds of people, who for many reasons were not able to get away to the seaside during the Wakes Holidays, and he felt confident that to hamper or hinder the showmen in their efforts to amuse the people would be a serious and regrettable blunder. There were none to speak in favour of the General Purposes Committee recommendation, and the motion that it be deleted from the minutes was carried by a large majority.

At Barry Dock, Mr. John Johnson's Victoria Theatre of Varieties is a great success. His enterprise and up-to-date ideas of what a portable theatre should be is in striking contrast to the old style of years ago. The interior of the theatre is fitted throughout with comfortable seats, and private boxes may be enjoyed by the patrons of the theatre.

As usual Retford staties was under the able management of Messrs. Tuby and Sons, who exhibited their coliseum of living pictures and varieties, sets of gondolas, steam horses, swings, and a Winchester shooting-range. The other amusement caterers and stall-holders were:—Messrs. Hunt, Gillatt, and Illingworth. The next fair at Retford is dated for March 23.

Handsworth Wakes, which began on the 5th inst. and lasted till Monday, was a real old English fair. The attractions included P. Collins's whirly-whirly, No. 2 cinématograph, and three-abreast swings, Braham's monkey show, Harry Cullis's boxing pavilion, overboats, swings, cokers, and stalls by Mrs. John Hayes, and stalls and other varieties by J. Humphreys, J. Humphreys, jun., Wagastaffe, Cooper, and Black.

At Alcester Mop were Clarke's electric motor-cars, Strickland's motor-cars and galloping horses, Butlin's Juvenile motor-cars and horses, Chipperfield's cinématograph exhibition, Wright's fine art exhibition, Professor Ruby's X Rays exhibition, shooting saloons, swing boats, cokernut sheets, Emmas, stalls, and attractions by Messrs. Clarke, Strickland, Wilson, Jerrison, Dobson, Jones, Taylor, Herbert, Monnox, Lewis, Kemp, Connor, and many others.

Evesham Pleasure Fair was maintained by the following high-class concerns: Clarke's electric motor-cars, Sid White's helter-skelter and tunnel railway, Strickland's galloping horses, Wadbrook's theatre of varieties, Wright's fine art exhibition, Professor Ruby's X Rays exhibition, Clarke's, Strickland's, and Wilson's shooting saloons, Clarke's and Strickland's park swings, and concerns by Messrs. Dobson, Kemp, Butler, Jerrison, Taylor, Chipperfield, Lewis, Cooper, Connor, Wright, and others.

The Showmen's Guild will hold its annual meeting for Yorkshire and the near North at Hull Fair on Sunday next in Payne's Bioscope Exhibition at three in the afternoon. The Mayor will preside, and other local gentlemen will attend. See also the advertisement of the Roundabout Proprietors' and Showmen's Union meeting on the Monday following; both gatherings are urgent and important.

At the "Eden" Theatre, Hemel Hempstead, one evening last week, a benefit performance was given for the funds of the West Herts Infirmary, under the distinguished patronage of the Right Hon. T. F. Halsey, J.P., the Medical Staff and Committee of the Institution, and a goodly number of the local gentry. There was a crowded audience, and the play was "the modern morality," The Middleman. It is highly characteristic of Mr. Whitmee's enlightened management, and also creditable to him and his talented company that they should have taken so practical an interest in the local charities.

At Burton-on-Trent the shows were—Buff Bill's menagerie, Lawrence's marionettes, A. Twigdon and J. Proctor's cinematographs, and Mackie's novelty booth. The machines were—P. Collins's two sets, switchback and ostriches, Ware's galloping horses, Twigdon's giant wheel, and gem horses, motors, &c., by Neal, Chapman, and Mercer, and P. Collins's helter-skelter. The shooters were by Hall, Neal, Saunt, and Weir, football games by Jerrison, Tootill, James, and Dyche; throwing games and variety stalls by Saunt, Mercer, Case, Charlton, Tootill, Westrop, Weir, Mercer, and Proctor.

At Barkerend for the Feast were—Crichton's cinematograph, Relph and Pedley's wheeling-the-whirl, Redfern's swinging motors, Waddington and Son's ostriches, Burgin's steam yachts, and the motor-car sets of W. H. Marshall and H. Waddington. Manual swings by Riley, Williams, and Redfern; shooting concerns by Burgess, Houldsworth, and Williams. There were twenty-four Emmas and coker sheets, six roll-up boards, and other games, six pannum stalls, and two football frames, provided by the enterprising showmen taking this round.

At Maesteg, Wales, the entertainments were under the control of the local showman—E. Danter, and with him were associated Messrs. Stockton and White, with novelty booths; Ford and Son, and Scott, with riding machines; Scott, Squires, Oxford, Jones, Deakins, and the well-known aggregation of fairground novelties of Danter and Sons.

An esteemed correspondent on the Cheshire and Lancashire round points out a singular omission in our short historic notice of the work done by the late and much-revered James Dean. It appears that in our list of the names of men intimately associated with him in the good work of founding the Guild, we omitted to mention one who for many, many years was amongst the band of hard workers who placed the Guild upon that firm ground that it now occupies in public esteem. We regret that the list we mention did not include the name of Robert Dixon, son-in-law of James Dean, and we recall now to Mr. Dixon's credit, that when the society was being founded he was its first honorary secretary. Until quite recent days Mr. Dixon was on the Executive Committee, and for many years was the honorary treasurer, and still remains an honorary vice-president.

There is a movement on foot at Braintree to abolish the old Charter Fairs, held in the streets of the town in the May and October of each year. One of the fairs was granted by King John and the other by Queen Anne. The King John Charter has mysteriously disappeared, and all attempts to trace it have failed. At Braintree it is probably the same difficulty that the showmen had to grapple with at Great Marlow—the congestion of traffic makes it inadvisable to hold the fair any longer in the open streets. The Executive of the Showmen's Guild will make all necessary inquiries, and endeavour to arrange a friendly compromise with the Braintree authorities.

Pontypool.—This capital Welsh Fair was well maintained by Mr. John Studt's motor-cars, zoological roundabout, and swings. The principal show was Brewer's cinematograph, and the entertainments of a minor character were provided by Messrs. Butlin, Wunspur, Freeman, and others.

Pembroke Fair, on the same round, was well maintained by Haggar and Son's bioscope, and the side-shows were those of Messrs. Samuel, Scarrott, and Blower. The machines were those of H. Studt and Son. The other entertainers were Messrs. North and Roberts, and the usual crowd of local stallholders.

There are two fairs at Hingham in Norfolk. The principal fair is the one held in the spring, and dated for March 7. The October hiring fair is only attended by a few local stallholders. This year, however, Scott and Son's circus visited the town on Oct. 9, which, of course, attracted large crowds. The other entertainers were Wheatley's boxers, and Messrs. Dack and Son's stock, Poll and Gizzi, with machine novelties. The throwing games were by Osborne, Poll, Gizzi, and others.

NOTTINGHAM FAIR.

By the Rev. T. Horne.

T'was Goose Fair cracked the merriest "wheeze,"
Where Babel's babble filled the breeze;
Glad Goose Fair's gambols oft would cheer
The country-side through half the year.

The title "Goose Fair," now almost universally given to Nottingham's historic pleasure fair, cannot be traced back more than four hundred years, and it is undoubtedly owing to the fact that large numbers of geese were driven there for sale from the stubble land of Nottinghamshire and from the Fen-land of both Lincoln and Cambridge. The first appearance of the words "Goose Fair" is in "The Nottingham Records," under date 1541, and runs as follows: "Particulars of the Chamberlain's Expenditure. Item, we demand allowans for xxij stalles yat the Sheryffes had on Gose Fair dey."

There are also some interesting records of a later date, as the following in 1634: "Scarlett gownes to walk the fayre. This companie are agreed that all the Aldermen and Cloathinge (livery) shall wayte on Maister Maior to walke the fayre on Saint Matthewes daye nexte, in their scarlet gownes; and this order, for the grace of the towne, to have contynewance for ever."

Of course, it goes without saying that the makers of history whose fertile imagination scorns the base alloy of actual fact have woven around Goose Fair many pretty stories, and one of them is worth repeating. "There was once upon a time a certain college don who was so dissatisfied with his experience of married life that he determined his only child, a boy, who had been motherless from infancy, should be kept from ever seeing (until his wisdom tooth was fully grown) deceitful womankind. When this period of safety had been reached the father took the full-fledged man to the fair, and instead of being utterly absorbed by the shows and other attractions of the fair, he was entirely amazed and overwhelmed with the charm and beauty of the women of Nottingham. The father and the son (according to the old ballad) have this dialogue. The youth says, as he gazed upon the beauties of Nottingham:—

"Oh, father! what are these?"
"Birds," said the Don, "they call them Geese!"
"Sweet, charming birds!" exclaimed the lad,
"If I had one I should be glad!
But see, they don't attempt to fly!
I'll go and catch one, father, should I?
We'll take it with us to our cell,
And I'll be bound to treat it well!"

George Hickling (the venerable poet of Cotgrave), in one of his local rhymes, thus described the fair of fifty years ago:—

We pass the Trent "bridges" and enter the town,
And straightway we haste to that place of renown—
The centre of tumult—the great market square,
With which in all England there's none can compare.

And thus soon warms to his subject:—

There's Wombwell's menagerie and Holloway's stage,
And all the most wonderful things of the age:
Fat pigs and fat children in plenty are there—
Descriptions of giants and of dwarfs rend the air.
Then there's Indian wars and Waterloo's battle,
Engagements in China and wonderful cattle;
There's "grand exhibitions" and high learned ponies,
And hares which perform, and astonishing conies;
Here your portrait is taken, and here you are weighed,
And here try your strength if a penny be paid.
"Tom-fools" and fine actors in glittering array
Exhibit their tinsel in beams of the day;
Then you see "Punch and Judy" at the turn of the street,
And jugglers and tumblers in plenty you meet.
Here's monkeys and donkeys, and animals funny,
And birds of fine plumage from lands which are sunny;
Here's an elephant huge that can "stand on his head,"
And a man eating fire as if it were bread.

* * * * * *

Then down the bazaars we elbow our way,
And gaze on the gorgeous, the tempting display:
There's gingerbread husbands and gingerbread wives,
And fourpenny trumpets and sixpenny knives.

Probably nowhere else in the wide, wide world is the annual fair so great and all-absorbing an institution as it is at Nottingham. The official figures supplied by the Corporation will give some indication of the business importance to show-people and fair-ground traders of this immensely popular fair. Over 300 standings have been let for shows of all kinds, riding machines in endless variety, throwing games, bazaars, pannum stalls, and the other numberless amusements of a popular fair

The revenue to the city funds in tolls amounts to £1,500

Another significant fact for the people eager to chant the requiem of popular fairs is that thousands more excursionists than last year's big total came into Nottingham to keep Goose Fair.

All the great Trunk lines ran specials for the fair days. The Midland brought people from Leeds, Bradford, and the Yorkshire towns served by their system—Manchester, Liverpool, and the Lancashire area, the Derbyshire towns, and from Birmingham, Walsall, and Wolverhampton, Peterborough, King's Lynn, Stamford, Bristol, Cheltenham, and Gloucester, St. Albans, Luton, and Kettering, Bedford, Wellingborough, and Northampton, Lincoln, Newark, Leicester, Loughborough, Chesterfield, and Sheffield. The Great Central Railway had an excellent service of specials on their line, including the direct London to Nottingham, from Liverpool, Manchester, and big towns on their routes, with Cleethorpes, Hull, and the Eastern coast towns. From Sheffield and other Yorkshire towns the G.C. had to considerably strengthen their ordinary trains, and also ran a few trains in duplicate. The Great Northern Railway Company also brought crowds of sightseers from their territory. Special and strengthened ordinary trains from Hertford, Hitchin, Peterborough, and Grantham; Luton, Hertford, Grantham, and Bottesford; Louth and Horncastle; Boston, Billingborough, and Sleaford; Lynn, Holbeach, and Spalding; Birmingham, Wolverhampton, and Walsall; Halifax, Bradford, Leeds, Batley, and Wakefield; St. Ives and March; Yarmouth, Ipswich, and Lynn.

For three whole days the town is given over to the display and to the whole-hearted enjoyment of the fair. The vast area of the city market and various spaces in side streets are completely covered with the shows and other amusements provided by the enterprising itinerant entertainers. Traversing the heart of the town from east to west, from north to south, you make your way through long avenues and streets of stalls, and these in many instances are the enterprises of the shop-keepers, before whose very doors the stalls are erected. For the time being Cheapside, Long-row, Chapel Bar, Angel-row, South-parade, and Exchange-row are lined with the stalls of both travelling and permanent traders. As your train empties itself into the station you are immediately carried along in the great stream of your fellow-travellers, who have journeyed from all parts of England to Nottingham Goose Fair. At once you feel the power and attraction of the fair. Your pulse beats to the music and joy of it, and you find yourself speedily on the fair-ground and in the full swing and glorious abandonment of England's greatest open-air carnival. Here are huge concerns of every kind, designed by the art of man for the delight of his fellows, each one a marvel in its own peculiar feature of attractiveness: you may ride electric motor-cars, circling round a fixed track that gives you all the exhilarating excitement of up hill and down dale rapid speeding without any of the attendant dangers of the way.

If your fancy flies high, you may be wheeled and whirled through the air in Japanese ships, whose astounding vagaries of motion test the courage and enterprise of the daring voyageur. You may career round the racecourse on galloping horses, you may feed your fancy full by riding a long-limbed ostrich in a Kaffir circus, or you may imagine yourself sweetly gliding on the waterways and lagoons of Venice in your own electric-driven gondola. If you are of a bucolic temperament you may ride your own racing cockerel or farmyard rooster; and last (if you like it so) you may enjoy a trip in a Chinese junk, or be carried skyward in steam yachts or airships. When you have fully enjoyed all these (or any of these) you may patronise England's premier menageries—Wombwell's—or any of, or, better still, all of, the cinematograph theatres, each one the best of its kind and each different to the others. But what pen can describe this group of big shows, when we say that it includes such experts of the fair-ground as George Kemp, T. Payne, E. Lawrence, J. Proctor, A. Twigdon, and Mrs. F. Collins, and that the side shows have at their head that "prince" of the mystic art Samouda, and with him amongst the side-show exhibits is found J. Westray with his freak animals? The riding masters on the fair-ground this year are P. Collins, with two motor machines, one set of racing cockerels, and one helter-skelter; John Collins, with the wheely-whirly, the four-abreast gallopers, and the twin ships in the air; Arthur Twigdon, with two switchback sets and one big wheel; Edmund Holland, with Japanese airship, "wheeling the whirl"; F. Holdsworth, with slipping the slope; and M. Curzon, with set of juvenile horses.

The photographic concerns were those of Messrs. J. Caddick and C. Warwick; and amongst the stall-holders were W. Jennings, H. Sharp, the Brothers Warwick, and Mesdames Mulhearn, James, and Hall.

Of course, the enterprising smart writer of the popular press has been making copy out of the fair. One writer who ventured to attack the fair in a London daily has provoked the following answer from a resident of Nottingham, and we are glad to see that the answer in defence of the fair has been given as much prominence in the same paper as the criticisms of the special article writer.

This is a letter of protest on behalf of Nottingham folk to ask how you could send a mere Philistine (such as your representative shows himself) to give his bald and inadequate account of the charms of Goose Fair. The mere fact that he expected to find it in a field shows that he was not the right man for the job. Just as though Nottingham people ever did things in that half-hearted Southern fashion!

How can any newspaper reader gain the smallest conception of the golden vision conjured up by the words "Goose Fair," except it be presented to him by the pen of a Nottingham man or woman?

For who but they can remember the days when the gilded shows seemed fairy palaces of surpassing beauty and height, and one's infant soul rejoiced to think that so much sheer noise could be produced all at one time in one place. Our chief financial interests also rested with Goose Fair; it was a time for rifling of money-boxes, bulging with long-hoarded pence, and the poignancy of the situation, when it was discovered that the smallest man of the company had so carefully hidden his whole capital of 7d. that he was quite unable to find it again, can be better recollected than described.

Dislocation of business, forsooth! How can that compare with the fact that for three days in the year the whole child population of the favoured district is walking in pure fairyland, firmly convinced that these gigantic splendours and the dimly-lit booths with their wondrous sights, that have sprung up in a night, are of more than human origin? And for the rest of the population? It is a time of carnival, made joyous by associations.

No, sir, Nottingham folk work with so much whole-heartedness all the other days of the year that they can afford to play whole-heartedly on these three.

ANSWERS TO SHOWMEN.

W. C. (Chelmsford).—We take it that as it was at Mitcham, so it will be at Writtle. The local authorities will take the proper and legal course of petitioning for the abolition of the fair, under the statute provided for that purpose. The Showmen's Guild will send a counter petition, and the Home Secretary will then have the matter properly before him. The Guild cannot move on mere hearsay and gossip. All that we can do is to organise the local showmen and the inhabitants to fight for their fair rights.

J. T. and Others.—See answer above. The same thing applies to Weston Green. Until the notice of proposed abolition is issued by the Home Office and advertised in the local press the Guild, as representing the organised showmen, cannot take action. It is for you and your fellow travellers to watch very persistently the appearance of the Home Secretary's notice in the local press, and in the meanwhile to be ready for the defence.

E. Bert Davies.—Write in according to your promise.

J. B. (Stepney Green).—Send your name in full and we will put you in communication with Mrs. George Foottit. George Foottit, jun., is now performing at the Cirque Métropole, Paris. We have answered your query, but require from all our correspondents full name and address, as a guarantee of good faith, but not necessarily for publication.

W. C. Sorrell.—Send to F. Savage, carriage builder, Oxford-street, New North-road, London, N., or to Tidman Bros., Bishop's-bridge, Norwich.

THE LAST OF THE DUCROWS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Will you kindly allow me sufficient space to call the attention of the members (home and abroad) of the circus profession to one of the most deserving cases for assistance I ever met—viz., that of old Andrew Ducrow, who, is, I believe, lineal descendant of the great Ducrow, and the last of that celebrated family of equestrians? Old Andrew was connected with Mr. James Newsome's circus for forty-nine years, and subsequently was with Mr. Caban for five years. I saw the old man a few weeks ago on the South Shore Sands, Blackpool, assisting at a "Three balls a penny" stall. The poor old fellow is in extremely needy circumstances. I shall be pleased to send my little donation if you, Sir—or, failing you, someone else—would kindly undertake to receive subscriptions on behalf of the "last of the Ducrows."—Yours faithfully,

HARRY DALE,
Last of the Jesters,

Ohmy's Circus, Barrow-in-Furness,
Oct. 9, 1906.

George Gorman, 17, pleaded guilty at the Clerkenwell Sessions on Wednesday, to stealing a cycle from a friend, named James Keeley. Mr. Purcell told the Court that the prosecutor had been awarded £5 as compensation. The prisoner had been employed as a dancer by Mr. Thomas Barrasford, who had "discovered" him dancing in the streets to an organ. He had toured the provinces, and Mr. Barrasford was willing to book him there again in order that he should be removed from the bad company into which he had obviously fallen. Mr. Barrasford having said that he was willing to give the prisoner another chance, Mr. M'Connell, K.C., ordered his release on recognisances.

THE EDEN THEATRE AT HEMEL HEMPSTEAD.

IMPORTANT TO PORTABLE THEATRES.

Mr. Alfred Whitmee is fighting an important battle in the interests of proprietors of portable theatres. The position of affairs has taken a somewhat serious turn. A few weeks ago we detailed the story of Mr. Whitmee's success in obtaining a temporary licence from the magistrates, and also the active sympathy the portable theatre received from a number of the town councillors when the matter was brought before them under the supposed powers of their building by-laws. This was followed by an outburst of puritanical prejudice in the local press, and a wordy war took place in the correspondence columns of the principal newspaper. Mr. Whitmee very wisely consulted the executive officials of the Showman's Guild, and under their guidance determined to rest satisfied with his dignified and most courteous answer to the misrepresentations of the enemies of the theatre that had already appeared in the press during the controversy.

We should not have referred to this determined attack on portable theatres at any length but for the necessity that is now laid upon us of showing the utterly unreasonable and one-sided nature of the local opposition to the Eden Theatre. We feel obliged to do so now, because we fear that in other parts of the country the puritans (if the opponents of the portable theatre succeed in their endeavour at Hemel Hempstead) may be encouraged to persevere in the crusade against the popular and cheap amusements afforded by similar theatres.

Writing under the signature "Ernest Robinson," the principal objector to the people's theatre makes the following points:—

1. That the average person who attends a place of this kind is usually ill able to afford it, and consequently foregoes more necessary things, and that the trade of the town suffers in consequence.

2. He could not understand the petition which Mr. Whitmee had presented, signed by 1,150 residents, in favour of the theatre, and that Superintendent Frogley had expressed his inability to understand the petition, for there was no town of the size of their town in England which had better halls.

3. There were also, he argued, far better forms of pleasure of a similar type to be had in the town during the winter months, and that the theatre was not only needless, but detrimental to the trade of the town.

To these attacks upon the pleasures of the people, and upon his own enterprise in particular, Mr. Whitmee thus replied:—

Sir,—A letter appeared in your last issue over the signature of "Ernest Robinson," which I feel calls for a reply from myself in defence. In the first place he gives a gratuitous insult to the whole of the ladies and gentlemen who were kind enough to sign our petition to the magistrates by inferring that they are ill able to afford to visit a theatre. Mr. Robinson takes three points, which I will briefly reply to.

1. The average person who attends a theatre can well afford to, and I defy Mr. Robinson to prove: (a) That he goes without the necessaries of life to do so; and (b) that the shopkeepers suffer in consequence of his visit to the theatre. Even were the whole of our audiences working-men and women earning but a meagre wage, I maintain, Sir, that they need a little relaxation and recreation, just as much, if not more so, as their richer and more fortunate brethren. In fact, their work is often of such an arduous nature that a little relaxation is an absolute necessity to them. Again, I maintain that the artisan classes of this town are better able to afford an occasional visit to my theatre than they can afford to lose a whole or a half-day's pay, a possible railway fare, and a 6d. admission to see a football match. In the latter case, the whole of the money spent is lost to the town; in our case it is re-circulated in the town among the shopkeepers principally, for the whole of the company, numbering nearly two dozen, are for the time being residents in the town, and spend their salaries therein.

2. "Supt. Frogley said 'he could not understand the petition,'" says Mr. Robinson. Had that popular and ever-courteous officer been a member of the theatrical profession he might have told the gentlemen of the Bench that, although there are two halls in the town, neither is large enough to erect the scenery of the larger and best "fit-up" companies, and also that, at present, owing to the prevailing depression in theatrical tours, there are very few on the road.

3. "There are better forms of pleasure in the town during the winter." Does Mr. Robinson insinuate by this that our entertainment has an immoral tendency, and is detrimental to those who patronise it? Has Mr. Ernest Robinson ever been inside the Eden Theatre? Also is he a householder and a ratepayer? If not, what mandate does he hold to dictate to the "powers that are" the nature of the entertainments which shall be provided for the inhabitants of this town?—Your obedient servant,

ALFRED WHITMEE.

To still further complicate matters, and in some measure to intensify the prejudice against the theatre, advantage was taken of the supposed powers under the building by-laws to assume a possible right of refusal to erect the theatre by the Buildings Committee of the Town Council, acting through their surveyor. This attack, however, failed in its purpose, for the well-known test case of the Urban District Council of Nantyglo and Blaina, Mon., v. Edward Ebley, portable theatre proprietor, governed the case, and the Council took no steps in the matter. There, apparently (despite the unfair attack of the Eden theatre by prejudiced correspondents in the press), the matter ended. It appears, however, from later information, that the enemies of the theatre merely retreated for a time in order to concentrate their forces, concluding that their best opportunity would be when Mr. Whitmee again applied for a dramatic licence to cover the winter season. Mr. Whitmee writes us that a petition is being prepared against his application, backed by a somewhat noisy but, as regards numbers, insignificant section of the extreme puritanical faction and the "unco' guid" of Hempstead.

Mr. Whitmee is being supported, and his petition for licence is being signed by some of the most influential people of the town and district. The opinion is being widely expressed by those who know the real necessities of the working-classes and others that it is wise to have good, clean, and wholesome entertainment. We heartily wish Mr. Whitmee and all the friends of the drama at Hemel Hempstead a triumphant victory over the forces of prejudice and ignorance.

As indicating the character of Mr. Whitmee's theatre and the work of his excellent stock company, we give the list of plays produced during the last fortnight—Fallen Among Thieves, The Shaughraun, The Middleman, Dred, Jane Shore, Blow For Blow, The Private Secretary, The Maid of the Mill, and The Robbery of the Mail.

Again has Mr. George Ginnett's fine sketch, Turpin's Ride to York, crowded the Hippodrome, Stockton-on-Tees. His reputation in animal training is well remembered, and stands pre-eminent in the North.

The directors of the Tower-Palace Company, Blackpool, have decided to recommend the usual 6 per cent. dividend on preferred ordinary shares, and the same per cent. on the ordinary shares (free of Income Tax). Again £9,000 will be allowed for depreciation, while £398 10s. 5d. goes to the reserve fund, this being the amount of the interest on the reserve invested. After allowing for all the above, there is a balance to carry forward of £1,794 11s. 9d., as compared with £717 14s. 5d. last year, a highly satisfactory result of the year's working

"THE DRUMMER OF THE 76th."

Historical Sketch, in One Scene, by Louis Coen, Produced for the first time at the Camberwell Palace on Monday, Oct. 8.

Napoleon Buonaparte ....MR. MATTHEW BRODIE
Marshal Lannes .....MR. CHARLES HOWE
Napoleon's Attendant .....MR. GEORGE REX
Frau Wagner .....MISS AUGUSTA TULLOCK
Charles Buonaparte Leront Cervoni MISS DOROTHEA VIVIAN

Varied views of the First Napoleon have been presented on the greater and lesser stage, but seldom has he been seen in such an agreeable light as in the sketch produced at the Camberwell Palace on Monday. The tone of the little piece is distinctly superior to that of the average sketch, and though it depends mainly upon its dialogue, the effect upon the audience was such that they were kept completely engrossed. The prominent figure of the piece is a little drummer-boy belonging to Napoleon's army, which has just achieved a victory over the Austrians at Ulm in 1805. Charles Buonaparte Leront Cervoni—for that is the name of the youngster—has no love for campaigning, and would far rather be at home with his mother. He has been wounded in the foot, and seeks shelter in a cottage owned by Frau Wagner, a peasant woman, who is ready to do anything to send the hated French back over the frontier. The boy falls asleep in an armchair by the fire, but is disturbed by the entry of Napoleon, accompanied by an attendant, who orders the lad to leave. Charles' protests gain the attention of the Emperor, who is attracted by the boy's engaging manner, and bids him stay and share his supper. He learns that the boy hails from Napoleon's own native Isle of Corsica, and the mention of his mother's name awakens memories of a "flirtation" which the Emperor had with her in his younger days, and the presumption that the lad is his own son. Charles speaks often and reverently of his mother, and when he laments his inability to write to her Napoleon offers to indite the missive. The boy hands him three francs which he has saved up to send home, and the Emperor, before sealing the packet, supplements the amount with a contribution of his own. An orderly enters with despatches, and Charles, learning that he has been talking to no less a personage than the Emperor, implores forgiveness on his knees. Bounoparte says he will punish him by making him a page attached to his own staff, and gives him a despatch-bag as his first charge. When the boy is left alone, Frau Wagner, who has been listening in the adjoining room, returns, and seizing a hatchet, demands the despatch-bag. The boy resolutely refuses, and as he cries out for help the woman strikes him a fatal blow. Napoleon rushes in, and giving orders for the woman to be shot, raises the dying drummer-boy, who expires in his arms.

A pathetic ending is thus given to the episode, which is nevertheless brightly written, sentiment and humour being cleverly mingled throughout. An ideal little drummer-boy is found in Miss Dorothea Vivian. Her fragile figure, clad in a neatly-fitting costume of the Napoleonic guard, was exactly suited to the part, which gained in significance by the intelligent manner in which it was acted. Miss Vivian spoke her lines confidently, cleverly assuming the various shades of expression so that not a single word, whether of sentiment or humour, was lost. Mr. Matthew Brodie, whose long service in the West-end theatres enables him easily to surmount the difficulties of the part of Napoleon, admirably assumed the dignity and sternness of Buonaparte in the full flush of his victorious career. The moments of sentiment were no less tenderly portrayed, and the anguish of the Emperor, as he clasped the dying boy in his arms was vivid and affecting. Miss Augusta Tullock, an actress of long experience, dealt artistically with the rôle of the vindictive Frau Wagner, and the parts of Marshal Lannes and Napoleon's attendant were well played by Mr. Charles Howe and Mr. George Rex respectively. Great attention has been paid to costumes and mounting, and the sketch is embellished by some effective music written by Mr. George Byng. The piece was warmly received throughout, the performers being heartily recalled at the close.

GRAND, CLAPHAM.

An exceptionally interesting programme is being presented here this week, and it is small wonder that standing room only is the order throughout the house. The ball of amusement is started rolling by Johnny Johnson, who has a capital whistling song, and as a siffleur shows himself possessed of considerable ability. Sibb and Sibb are paying another return visit here, and delighting all with their clever act on the trapeze. These artists have added some new tricks to their already entertaining turn, and hearty applause is awarded them. Miss Victoria Monks, on account of her great success, has been retained for another week, and it is evident by the warmth of her reception that she has made herself a thorough Clapham favourite. She has a couple of capital numbers, in each of which she appears to the greatest advantage. They are "London Town" and "Elizah Brown," and the way "the boys on the top shelf" take up the chorus is sufficient evidence of their popularity. This artist has undoubtedly quite a style of her own, and the applause she gets on concluding is certainly not more than she deserves.

Among others who stand out prominently in the programme is Mr. Charles Norton, who is presenting a mimetic monologue, in which he introduces several leading music-hall artists, including Joe Elvin as a bookie, R. G. Knowles, Eugene Stratton, and Wilkie Bard. He has remarkable powers as a mimic, and he certainly comes out of the ordeal well, obtaining many recalls. Mr. Tom Costello is again delighting habitués of this hall with another visit, and the reception he gets shows how popular he is. His first song about that much-talked-of question the reduction of the Navy, is excellent in its way, and is undoubtedly a clever number. His second number, dealing with woman's rights, is one of the best this comedian has ever sung, and with the side-splitting patter with which he intersperses the verses serves to keep the house in a continuous roar of laughter. Mr. Costello also receives a deputation of "women suffragettes" on the stage, and as a result the fun waxes fast and furious, the end coming all too soon. A turn quite different from any on the programme is that of D'Arc's marionettes, which are very smartly worked by a lady and gentleman. The wonderful state of perfection to which these have been brought make their performance most interesting. Imitations are given of various artists in the profession, numbered amongst which are Happy Fanny Fields, George Lashwood, May Henderson, and Eugenie Fougère, with her famous dance "La Maxixe." Ethel Arden and George Abel are presenting their amusing sketch Three of a Kind, which runs as smoothly as ever, and extracts the maximum amount of laughter from the audience. A turn which everyone looks forward to is that of the bioscope, and those shown this week are quite up to the usual standard. Rosie Lloyd has a capital song about "Never introduce your fellow to a girl"; and the Three Florodora Girls have a very pleasing little comedy entitled Rival Sweethearts. A capital evening's amusement is brought to a conclusion by Dale and O'Malley, two comedians with quite different styles. Their clever patter, into which they introduce several "smart American jokes," renders their turn one of the most entertaining on the programme. The orchestra, under Mr. David Dealer, are heard to advantage in their overture "Tancredi," and Mr. Harry Ketteman, the manager, does everything possible for the comfort of his patrons, in which he gets every assistance from his acting-manager, Mr. E. W. Lurring.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not re-booked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows:—

MANCHESTER, LIVERPOOL, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALAN W. YOUNG,
Empire Theatre, Liverpool.

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. W. LEA,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT,
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

TRADE MARK

THE INEXPERIENCED CHAUFFEUR. Code Word, BROSSERIE.
The amusing adventures of an amateur chauffeur, who runs his car into everything—fruit stalls, bicycles, a nurse and her baby and numerous others, to the indignation of all parties concerned.
198ft. The Subject £3 6s. 0d.

THE WITCHE'S CAVE. Code Word, BRUINE.
A young country bumpkin is cajoled to enter a witche's cave, where all sorts of black magic is revealed to him. Very ingenious disappearances.
379ft. The Subject £6 6s. 4d.
Colouring, £3 extra.

TRAVELS OF A BARREL. Code Word, BROU.
The droll adventures of a man rather the worse for drink, who goes to sleep in a barrell. Naughty boys fasten him in, and the barrel is rolled over hills and through water. Fine quality.
230ft. The Subject £3 16s. 8d.

A DAY IN THE COUNTRY. Code Word, BRUMAIRE.
Mr. and Mrs. Brown are invited to spend a day in the country, but their Host and Hostess gave them all kinds of hard work to do, and only offer them water to drink. In great disgust they decide to return to town. Grand photographic quality.
445ft. The Subject £7 8s. 4d.

A DESPERATE GIRL. Code Word, BURGRAVE.
A dramatic incident in the life of a domestic, who, betrayed by her master's son, tries to drown herself and young baby. Her lover rescues her, brings her back to his father, where all is forgiven.
626ft. The Subject £10 8s. 8d.

CHILD'S REVENGE. Code Word, BUIS.
Another Grand Film! A father going out shooting gives chase to poachers. In revenge one of the poachers pushes him over a plank bridge into a gorge, where he is killed. His young son who has been following him, then gives chase, and, calling in the police, eventually traps the poachers to the same gorge, where he pushes one over, and the other is shot. Very dramatic, and occurs amongst wonderful mountain scenery.
345ft. The Subject £5 15s. 4d.

THE BELL-RINGER'S DAUGHTER. Code Word, BUCHEUR.
A grand story of intense human interest. The Bellringer's daughter betrayed by an evil villain, who adds gambling to his many vices, turns her out in the street with her little daughter; after, he robs the safe of the Church where her father is bell-ringer. She, in desperation, leaves her little daughter on the steps of the Church, the child is taken in and adopted by the old man, not knowing who she is, and ten years pass—the mother, daughter, and grandfather are happily united. Very pathetic. Wonderful views from the belfry of the Church.

IS THE CHRONOPHONE A SUCCESS? YES.

When we put our "Chronophone" on the market many predicted for it "a short life," but any unbiassed mind who has watched our advt. for the last month will admit with perfect truthfulness that it is an UNPARALLELED SUCCESS, and has already commenced its work of reformation—To Revolutionise Cinematography. At the HIPPODROME, BARROW-IN-FURNESS, the town went "Mad on the Chronophone," and Mr. R. Silvester experienced a fortnight's unabated enthusiasm over his latest and greatest enterprise. At BERWICK-ON-TWEED, CORN EXCHANGE, in the fortnight following his "Sensational Send Off," at Barrow-in-Furness, Mr. R. Silvester experienced a still greater success, and on more than one occasion before the doors were opened the Police found it necessary to draw their batons to keep order among the impatient crowds waiting in the streets approaching the Corn Exchange. For the last three weeks, at the OLYMPIA, NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, the CHRONOPHONE, under the auspices of the American Animated Picture Co. (Proprietress, Miss AUDREY APPLEBY), has been an UNPRECEDENTED SUCCESS. Contrary to what usually happens when a new thing is run for three consecutive weeks, the houses for each successive week have been greater than those for the preceding one, and Miss APPLEBY has witnessed the unique sight of an eager and expectant sea of faces and packed houses for three weeks running TO SEE AND HEAR THE CHRONOPHONE.

No. 142. THE STOLEN BRIDE.
AN EXCELLENT STORY, WHICH GRIPS AN AUDIENCE. FULL OF FUN AND FANCY AND EXCITING INCIDENT. BEAUTIFULLY FINISHED.
A tyrannical father intends to force his daughter into a distasteful marriage, but she is in love with a courageous and resourceful young fellow who intends, at any cost, to frustrate the plans of the tyrant. The day for the unfavourable wedding arrives. Apparently the father is to have his way; but no, the young lover puts a spoke in his wheel. To reach the church the party must cross a river; at this point the young lover scores. He scuttles the father's motor-launch, rescues the girl in his own, and holds the father's life as price of his sanction to their union. AN EXCITING AND BRILLIANT FINISH.

PAUL'S LATEST FILM.

THE ? MOTORIST.

A motor-car is seen at the gateway of a villa, with motorist carefully handing his lady into the car, and they drive off and soon get up a good speed. A careful policeman thinks they are exceeding the limit, and waves to them to pull up, but they decline, and he stands right in the way of the car, being caught up by the front gear, and carried away for some yards, until he is eventually dropped off, and one of the car heels goes over him. The policeman collects the pieces of himself, and resumes his attempt to uphold the law. The motor-car then goes on, until a public-house is seen to entirely stop the way, and the policeman thinks he has now caught his prey. The car, however, does not stop, but continues its journey right up the front of the house, to the dismay of the fast-assembling crowd. The car goes motoring right across the clouds, makes a friendly call on the sun, calmly circling round its circumference, then resumes its cloudy journey, and reaches the planet Saturn. The motorist continues his wild career round the highway of Saturn's ring, but eventually rides off the unusual track into space, and the car is seen falling gracefully through the clouds to earth, until it drops through the roof of a building which turns out to be a Court of Justice, &c., &c.

ANOTHER WINNER.

CABBY'S DREAM.

FULL OF MYSTERY, HUMOUR, AND CLEVER TRICKS, AND YET

ALL NATURAL SCENERY.

TONED (not simply stained) DIFFERENT COLOURS THROUGHOUT.

RECEIVED WITH SHOUTS OF LAUGHTER EVERYWHERE.

Although this Picture has only been on the market three days, at the time this ad. was written, it has already obtained

A PHENOMENAL SUCCESS.

Tableau I.—Cabby, No. 99,999, has evidently eaten a pork pie for supper, and is very drowsy, for he is discovered on the rank, on the box of his "growler," soundly sleeping and "dreaming those happy hours away."

THE DREAM.

Tableau II.—"Here y'are, sir. Keb, sir!" Mr. A. Presto, the renowned magician, has just finished his turn at The Empire and leaves the theatre in our cabby's cab, admired by the crowd outside the theatre.

Tableau III.—Arrived at his destination, Professor Presto tenders the legal fare. "I say, Governor, what's this?" A heated discussion ensues, and cabby at last agrees to toss for it. "Heads!" He now wishes he had cried tails, for heads pour in from all sides, and the Professor transforms himself out of evening dress into stage attire. Then the fun starts fast and furious. The cab appears to be inexhaustible, and trick follows trick in quick succession; even the poor old horse is not secure from the power of the conjurer. Cabby can stand it no longer. "I'll fetch a copper!"

Tableaux IV. & V.—Cabby seeks and finds the object of his search.

Tableau VI.—The policeman can see nothing wrong, but the Professor plays yet another prank on both cabby and policeman. Exit the cab with the policeman inside, evidently on his way to take the part of Bottom in "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

Tableau VII.—Cabby is rudely awakened from his troubled sleep by the jeers of the other cabmen on the rank, as he has just lost a job through being asleep.

"BONNIE SCOTLAND."

A NEW DEPARTURE.

Next week we inaugurate a NEW DEPARTURE in the Bioscope profession—the Serial Publication of Films, of which the First Two Numbers will then be ready. This series will supply a pictorial representation of all that is wild and weird and lovely in Scotland, that land of historic associations.

Its production occupied a large staff of experienced operators, under the personal supervision of Mr. Charles Urban, during the whole of last season, and it will form, when complete, the most comprehensive animated representation of Scotland and its Beauties ever published.

Interesting alike to the Tourist, the Sportsman, the Student of National Life and Customs, the Lover of the Romantic and the Seeker after the Unusual, in addition to portrayals of deerstalking, golfing, grouse shooting, stock raising, quarrying for granite, the battlefields, castles, rivers, locks, mountains, passes, etc., details of Whale and Herring Fishery, Crofter Life, and the Cave Dwellers will be introduced.

Many of the scenes will be revelations even to those supposed to be familiar with every phase of Scottish Life, Character, Natural Advantages and Environment, containing, as they do, items not generally suspected to exist. Every point of the Beauty and Natural Life of Scotland, from the Border to the far north of the Outer Hebrides, has practically been covered, with the co-operation of the North Western, Caledonian, and Highland Railways, and David MacBrayne's steamers.

ATLANTIC WHALING.

Of this marvellously fascinating and unusual series we quote as follows from "The Times," Oct. 11th:—

"The latest purpose for which the cinematograph camera has been employed is the illustration of the adventurous and hazardous life of the whaler. At the Alhambra may now be witnessed, in a series of thrilling pictures, the pursuit and capture of a whale in the Atlantic. The series begins on board the whaling vessel, a strongly built screw steamer, leaving the station, with its crew bustling about making preparations for the expedition. Soon the broad ocean is reached, and well in front of the picture is seen an animal of enormous length and bulk plunging wildly through the waters. The whale has been harpooned, and in its furious efforts to escape it lashes the sea into waves as high and foam-crested as if a storm were blowing. It is a curious experience, indeed, to watch from one's firm and stable seat the rolling ocean, the wild rushing and pitching of the huge and unwieldy whale, the sea birds flying about, intent only on their search for food; and, what adds greatly to the realism of the scene, to listen to the swish and roar of the disturbed waters. Next the whaling vessel comes into view, with the crew busily engaged making fast the dead body of the animal floating by its side. The dissection of whales for the commercial products they afford is also shown. At the station are seen two whales—one measuring 81ft. and the other 78ft.—with their enormous humps crowded with seagulls. The birds fly off at the approach of a crowd of men who, armed with long knives and spears, are soon hard at work cutting up and disembowelling the great carcases. The skin is quickly removed, and the blubber, for which the whale is hunted, is exposed to view. So thick is this coating of fat that the men, as they walk over the carcase, sink deep into the yielding mass. 'Atlantic Whaling' is, of course, but one item in the Alhambra programme. It is well worth seeing, not only as a life-like picture of a remote and perilous calling, but as a curious example of ceaseless search for novelty by purveyors of public entertainments."—TIMES, Oct. 11th, 1905.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Cavanah, C.A.—The Little Michus, that most delightful of comic operas, has made a striking success this week. This is the first visit of Mr. George Dance's company with the piece. Miss Alice Coverick and Miss Ethel Boyan, in the title-parts, sing and act with a degree of natural grace that is perfectly charming; Miss Florence Hylton is excellent as Madame Michu; and Miss Bessie Mackenzie, who possesses a fine soprano voice, appears as Mlle. Herpin. A great deal of the humour of the opera is dependent on Mr. Foster Courtenay in the part of General des Ifs. His conception of the character is intensely humorous. Mr. Gilbert Childs is a highly successful Bagnolet; Mr. William Everard uses his excellent tenor voice to good purpose as Gaston Regaud; and the graceful dancing of Mlle. Marjorie is heartily applauded. Mr. Otto Manns conducts the orchestra with conspicuous skill. The company is under the experienced management of Mr. Hugh Nolan.

PALACE THEATRE. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert. Mr. Rousby's Around Paris, with brilliantly depicted scenes and ingeniously contrived electrical lighting effects, is received with the utmost enthusiasm; and Miss Katie Lawrence's songs are encored again and again. Among the other members of an exceptionally strong company are the Brothers Ashley, in an extremely amusing comedy sketch; Lambert and Hands, vocalists of exceptional merit; Mr. T. W. Johnson, a smart comedian and dancer; Miss Jeannette Hall, the lady baritone, another enjoyable turn; Mr. George Antill, a very droll comedian; Mr. Clive Watts, an exceedingly versatile artist; and the ever-popular Mr. Tony Iveson. The new series of bioscope pictures, The Prospectors, is much appreciated.

ABERTILLERY. — THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessees, Messrs. Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; General and Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. W. Ventom.—Mr. Haldane Crichton opened on Monday night with his drama, For Better or Worse. The cast is a very strong one, and every part is well played. Miss Chrissie Dunbar was perfect as Belle Bavestock and Miss Elsie Marriott Watson was charming and sympathetic as Olive Heathcote. Endless amusement was caused by Mr. Willie Black as Horatio Ranter and Miss Jennie Hallworth as Melinda Little, Miss Hallworth's singing being greatly appreciated; Miss Bales as Aunt Gertude is very good; Miss N. De Lacy is a great favourite as Dolly Delaney; Mr. George Clive is good as Captain Hilliard; Mr. Scott Leighton's portrayal of Major Crawford is admirable; Mr. Owen Remonde is capital as Lieut. Dalrymple, and Ned Earnshaw could not be better placed than with Mr. C. Caldcleuch.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Mr. Walter Melville's company is here in a return visit with Her Second Time on Earth. Mr. Frank R. Robertson submits an earnest embodiment of Jack Carlton; Mr. W. H. Porter is duly callous as Guy Brand; Mr. Leonard Aardale brings all his well-known dramatic ability to bear in the character of Beppo the Italian, with satisfactory results; Mr. John Nolan submits a capital study in the part of Capt. Norman; Mr. Will Corrie is amusing as Teddy Butterfly; Mr. Cyril Vernon must be highly complimented for his artistic touches as Tom Norman; Miss Hilda Beverley gives a finished picture of Dora Grey; Miss Marie Kildare is amusing throughout as Kitty Rosebud; Miss Polly Marsh is responsible for an excellent character study of Eliza Burk; Miss D. Hildebrand is thoroughly at home in the part of Laura Norman.

HIPPODROME — Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Vandy, Potter, and Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Parsons.—The Boccacios, Italian singers and instrumentalists, give a musical treat; Mr. Arthur Aiston is a smart ventriloquist; Miss Georgina Leonard scores with some excellent songs; the Dagodets are funny; and Dandy George must be complimented on his clever performance with his dog Rosie. The Three McDonalds are well received; and the Hippo. pictures complete a good show.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Williams.—The Blue Moon is being presented here this week by Mr. Monillot's company. Mr. Ainslie Burton's irresistible humour and quaint sayings and doings as Moolraj cause him to be a favourite at once; and Mr. Chas. Stephenson is also responsible for many of the laughter-creating situations. Miss May Audrey is a chic Millicent; Mlle. Naudin is a capable Chandra Nil; whilst Miss Dorma Morgan is successful with her capital impersonation of Evelyn; and Miss Mary Glanbrane is good as Lady Brabasham. Mr. Victor Wallace's Major is cleverly portrayed; Mr. Arthur Radcliff sings and acts well as Jack; Mr. Basil Mercer's Bobbie is an excellently played rôle; and Mr. Fred Inwood's Prince is in every way a success.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Fairbairn.—Mr. Hall Caine's dramatised version of his novel, The Christian, is being performed here this week by Mr. Croke's excellent company. Miss Grace Chalmers plays the arduous rôle of Glory Quayle with an intensity and a pathos which strongly appeal to the audience. As the Hon. John Storm, Mr. Frank Tennant deeply impresses the audience, and wins applause; Mr. Chas. E. Dering gives a truthful portrait of the cleric, Archdeacon Wealthy; Mr. F. Scarth is good as Lord Robert Ure; and Mr. W. Briscoe Owen as Horatio Drake gives due prominence to a very important character in the story. Effective impersonation is also given to Father Lamplugh by Mr. Edwin Ling, the "Faro" King by Bert Conway, Mr. Lorimer by Mr. Fern Pounds, and Messrs. C. Hill, Kingston, and W. Noy in minor parts. Miss V. Welborne is sympathetic as Polly Love; Miss Molly Hayden gives us a true portrait of the old Scotch lady who has a wholesome contempt for professional humbugs and pretenders.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—This week's bill includes a musical comedy with a big cast, The Lost Coon, in which Dina Morris and her famed troupe of Southern belles appear in military costume, and sing and dance coon songs. Mr. Stephen Blythe is a capital baritone actor-vocalist; and comic and other song and patter "turns" are contributed by Percy Curry and Annie Cohen. The Sisters Hayden, a trio of fine vocalists, give a humorous medley of song; the Seddons are good as the lady juggler and comic waiter in their farcical act; Mephisto and Marie give a smart "turn," the former's serpentine twists and contortions being clever; Stanley and Vandyke are good in their musical sketch, A Broken Promise; and the bioscope, as usual, is both edifying and amusing.

ATTERCLIFFE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. H. Beagle.—So great was the success of Mr. John H. Tomkinson's Royal Gipsy company here last week that the management have retained them for a second week.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. H. Laycock.—This week a strong programme is headed by Miss Marie Loftus, who, in addition to giving several songs in her own piquant manner, presents her burlesque song-skit, entitled Singers Past and Present; other turns are furnished by Ernesto, a smart and clever juggler; the Lorrisons, in a highly amusing interlude; the Two Zampas, baton manipulators and speciality dancers; Miss Lola Patey, comedienne; Mr. E. C. Clayton's Attergraph pictures; Mr. Charlie Gardener, comedian, and Mr. Frank Hope, trick cyclist.

AYR.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—On Monday Mr. Chas. Macdona's company opened a three nights' engagement in A Country Girl. As Geoffrey Chaloner Mr. Martin D. Pitt acted well and sang better; the Rajah of Bhong had a capital exponent in Mr. Bernard Vaughan; Sir Joseph Verity was remarkably well played by Mr. W. C. Billington; and the same may be said of Mr. George Stone's Granfer Mummery. Mr. W. Besley Beltram was very good as Douglas Verity; and Mr. Frank Weir, in the part of Barry, was irresistible. Miss Blanche Courtney's Nan was sweetly played; Miss Violet Leslie made an admirable Marjory Joy; and Miss Rita Narcelli was equally good in the part of the Princess.

BACUP. — NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Dudley Harcourt.—Mr. T. Morton Powell's company is here on a return visit with the drama, Honour Thy Father. Mr. Walter M. Cameron submits a masterly representation of Gabriel Garth; Mr. Bertram Rose is seen to advantage as Jack Halyard; Mr. W. R. Winning's performance as the callous villain, Duncan Bly, is sufficiently repulsive; Mr. Fred Rolls as Mike Copplestone gives a humorous study of that character; Mr. W. H. Melrose is amusing as Ned Pennycomquick; and Mr. Claude Merton does well in the dual parts of John Merry and George Bloggs. Miss Winnie Donovan is pleasing as Mercy Merry, and Miss Kate Newton scores as Gertrude Garth; Miss Mabel Coleman gives a highly finished study of Lillian Garth, and Miss Lizzie Morley is a sprightly Poppy Cornleigh. Dr. Sleek finds an able exponent in Mr. Frank Eden, and Mr. W. Newman as Police-constable Creagh is well placed.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company in The Midnight Wedding is here. Mr. Paumier plays Paul Valmar in an effective manner; Miss Annie Saker is a powerful Princess Astrea; the Lieut. Eugene von Streisburg of Mr. Ulick Burke is capital, and Mr. Clinton Baddeley is a capable Capt. Rudolph. Father Gerrard is well presented by Mr. W. S. Hardy; and Messrs. James E. Page as Sergeant Max, Percy Compton as Corporal Otto, and Algie Spalding as Private Bobo provide excellent comedy.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company in The Freedom of Suzanne is here. Mr. Hutchison plays most effectively the part of Charles Trevor; Miss Mabel Love piquantly and with great artistic versatility portrays Suzanne Trevor; Miss Annie Stalman is effective as Lady Charlotte Trevor; and Mr. F. C. Thurstans does well as Fitzroy Trevor.

TIVOLI THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage-Manager, Mr. Thos. Whiting.—The Emilions, comedy acrobats, do some clever tricks; and Mike Cray, comedy juggler, causes much laughter; Dan Robins sings some good baritone songs; Henri Bekker, assisted by Mlle. Maie, proves a pleasing conjurer; Dora Lyric, comedienne, does well, and the McKays, comedy duo and lightning oil-painters, are smart.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A Long.—Bathonians are favoured this week by the engagement of Mr. Lewis Waller's company (under the direction of Mr. Peter Davey) in Brigadier Gerard. Mr. Loring Fernie is excellent in the title-rôle; Miss Maude Hoffmann as the Comtesse de Roquelaure is admirable; Talleyrand is cleverly handled by Mr. George Mallett; Mr. Arthur Somers sustains the character of Napoleon with distinction.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—During the temporary absence of Mr. Schuberth, his predecessor, Mr. William Trussell is renewing old friendships. Two clever acrobatic eccentrics are Hall and Earle; Maude Prenton is a delightful comedienne; Will Driscoll continues to shine as an expert dancer; Daisy Morell, with her dashing figure and style, is always welcome; a fine reception is accorded to Walter Emerson, the well-known tall comedian; Oakley and James give an entertaining turn; Deane, Tribune, and company, in a protean sketch, Application, are responsible for boisterous fun; Rowland Hill, comedian, is an old friend; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are of the best.

BATLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Whitty.—Mr. Robert Perris's company is here in the exciting American play, A Fight for Millions. The play is admirably staged and presented with much acceptance by the company. Messrs. John C. Carlyle, Hugh Newburn, Harry Howe (an admirable low comedian), and Karl H. Edwards are capable exponents of their respective parts. Misses Alwynne Ermon, Nora Kingsley, Elma C. Turner, Mabel Howe (an intelligent child-actress), and Kitty McPherson deserve praise for earnest and successful work.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. George Alexander's company (including Mr. Stephen T. Ewart and Miss Jean Sterling Mackinlay) opened here on Monday with His House in Order. Mr. Stephen E. Ewart must be commended for his clever impersonation of Hilary Jesson. Miss Jean Sterling Mackinlay deservedly shared the honours with Mr. Ewart by her delightful interpretation of Nina; Mr. T. Edward Pearce as Filmer Jesson, M.P., played with admirable effect; and Mr. George Fitzgerald could hardly be excelled as the pompous Sir Daniel Ridgeley. Miss Augusta Haviland was excellent as Lady Ridgeley, and Miss Elaine Sleddall as Geraldine furnished a perfect impersonation. Mr. Luke Forster, in the small part of Dr. Dilnott, played extremely well; and Mr. Ernest R. Holloway furnished a character-sketch of much merit as Pryce Ridgeley.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General Manager, Mr. J. De Freece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—The Kentucky Four top the bill, and have been most successful in their plantation songs; Mr. Arthur Reece upholds his reputation with a capital selection of songs; a big hit has been made by Claude Ginnett and company with their funny sketch Rejected Remounts; Mr. Morny Cash is a droll comedian, with good chorus songs; and that dainty and accomplished comedienne, Miss Winifred Preece, gains many admirers. Mr. Milner Verren, tenor vocalist; Laurie Wylie, with his original mimicing mannikins; Mlle. Onra, the daring equilibrist; Miss Rosa Rossetti, the musical girl; and the Palace pictures are also attractions.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John S. Walker.—The Ten Loomies, who head the bill, provide a rare fund of amusement with their musical sketch; Kahn and Kahn astound all with their illusions; Mr. G. H. Elliott, the chocolate-coloured coon, sings and dances in good style; Terry and Lambert return with their attractive comedy sketch; and a capital entertainment is provided by the De Paci Bros., guitarists and mandolinists. Prof. Dunning, ventriloquist; Redmond Bros., acrobatic comedians; and Miss Marion Scott, comedienne, complete the bill.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—This week the Alhambra Dramatic Company, which so far has been so successful, produce another drama, A Fatal Fortune, by Mr. St. Aubyn Miller. Mr. Percy M. Stevenson as Captain Seaton Desmond portrayed the adventurer with undoubted realism; Miss Nina Blake-Adams, a clever emotional actress, impersonated with rare skill the rôle of Mary Weston; as the hero, Jack Weston, Mr. Horace Denton acted with spirit; and the repulsive character of Daniel Salmon was admirably portrayed by Mr. Cyril Grier. The humour of the piece was in the hands of Miss Effie Macintosh, an inimitable Becky, and Mr. Tom H. Solly as Tim Larks. Mr. H. Arnold Allen deserves praise for his impersonation of George Thornton; and the rôle of the discarded wife, Beauty Glitters, was cleverly interpreted by Miss Norah Caronne.

BILSTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. H. Battersby; Manageress, Miss Battersby.—Hardie and Von Leer's company is presenting Two Little Vagabonds to large audiences. Miss Valerie Cresdin's Marian Thornton is a very fine study; the Brabara Scarth of Miss Lillian Stuart is intelligently acted; Mr. Douglas Vigors as George Thornton and Mr. Edward McLean as Captain Darville both fill their rôles with much acceptance; Dick and Wally are both safe in the hands of such experienced "juveniles" as Miss Lucy Beaumont and Miss Gladys Vernon; the "Gaffer," Dido, Cough Drop, and Biddy Mullins are capitally portrayed by Messrs. Lionel Ellis, Frank Gordon, Gerald Valentine, and Miss Violet Vivian, the quartette making a very characteristic group.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—The Great Awakening is on a first visit here, and has created an excellent impression. Miss Maud Hildyard plays the somewhat exacting rôle of Lola Selby with skill and ability; James Selby is powerfully sustained by Mr. Martin Sands; and the adventurer, Guy Rogan, is in the capable hands of Mr. Charles R. Linney. In the dual rôle of Sir Henry Merton, Bart., and Jock Merton, his son, Mr. Bernard Copping displays much force and versatility; Mr. Charles Evelyn as Captain Harry Lambert, and Miss Doris Digby as Molly Merton, are both most efficient. Mr. Willie Scott is an amusing Billy Brass; and Miss Isa Bellington a good Selina Worts.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Mr. George Gray and his sketch company, in The Fighting Parson, present a most attractive entertainment, and are meeting with every success here; Mr. Dan Thomas, a capital comedian, is a pronounced favourite; Ike Scott and Son are entertaining duologue artists; and Rose and Grayson also score heavily in a musical interlude. Miss Edna Cragge, an accomplished comedienne has many admirers; and Mr. Tom Wootwell, an admirable comedian, and Austin and Conway, vocal duettists, are leading attractions. Brown's Royal Bioscope also adds variety to the programme.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Miss Olga Nethersole has made handsome amends this week for her long absence by appearing in four of her latest and greatest creations. On Monday she held a crowded audience fascinated with her marvellous embodiment of Sapho, supported by the clever acting of Mr. Frank Mills as Jean Gaussin. Mr. William Clark, Mr. Julian Royce, Mr. A. T. Hendon, Miss Agnes Tina, Miss Mary Relph, and others also rendered able support. On Tuesday Miss Nethersole was no less successful as Paula, in The Second Mrs. Tanqueray; and on Wednesday her conception of Carmen proved another gratification. Mr. Frank Mills as Don Jose, Mr. Julian Royce as Lucas Mendez, Mr. Eric Maturin as Don Manuel Sarceda, and Miss Molly Pearson as Dolores, the peasant maid, lent principal support. On Friday Miss Nethersole appeared as Marguerite Gauthier in Camille, from "La Dame aux Camelias."

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—The Prodigal Son, which, with its stupendous mounting, appeals with all the effect of a Drury Lane success, reveals the powers of that rapidly rising and handsomely equipped actor, Mr. Norman Partriege, who, it is fair to say, is applauded as much for his graceful and intellectual acting as for his local association. Mr. Henry George, the favourite actor of many seasons, bears himself with fine dignity as the Governor; Mr. H. Hewetson makes a powerful impression as the unselfish Magnus; Mr. Fred Epitaux acts vigorously and well as the Factor; Miss Mima Renouf invests the rôle of Margaret with excellent point and emphasis; Miss Cecil Cromwell displays the fascinations of Helga in a most alluring manner; and Miss Lily Hall Caine differentiates the rôles of mother and daughter with deep-drawn pathos and sweet artlessness; Miss Alma Murray lifts the rôle of Anna into much prominence.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Victor Turner.—This week Florodora is presented here by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company, and Mr. Daly Cooper, as the hypnotist, Tweedlepunch, is the favourite of all with his exquisitely comic portrayal of the part. Mr. Joseph R. Tate scores as Gilfain; Mr. R. Courtice Dutton sings and acts with well-directed energy as Abercoed; Mr. Harold Perry plays the lover's part of Capt. Donegal in a highly satisfactory manner; Mr. Edwin Oxlee is successful as Leandro; Miss Edith Housley is much applauded for her vivacity as Lady Holyrood; Miss Nellie Bowman acts the rôle of Angela in a most taking style; Miss Gladys Elvey sings well and imparts the true dramatic touch to the part of Dolores; and Miss Maud Brock as the typist, Miss Gladys Ray as Valleda, and the entire chorus and cast acquit themselves admirably, the "Pretty Maiden" number being given with much eclat, and to repeated encores.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chris. Felton.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company opened here on Monday in The Sin of Her Childhood. Miss Madge Devereux produced a most sympathetic effect as the repentant and persecuted heroine, Mary Haysel; little Ivy Rochfort as Little Mary, and, later, Eric Dugdale, did remarkably well; Mr. Austin Milroy simulated the callous and selfish traits of Stephen Haysel in the most convincing manner; Mr. Charles Fancourt portrayed the kindly and good qualities of the Rev. Alan Grey in a pleasing and natural fashion; Miss Jennie Douglas Hicks acted as the dipsomaniac, Maria Haysel, with realistic malevolence; Mr. Wordley Hulse was successful as Capt. Thornton; Mr. Hugh Brady displayed much wit as Barney O'Reilly, Miss Nelly Hook proving a valuable ally as Eliza Muggins; and little Dot Moss kindled enthusiasm with her songs, dances, and banjo solos as little Hannah Spry.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—A capable company, headed by Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds, is presenting The Golden Ladder here this week. Miss Austin attains a high standard of merit in her acting as Lilian Grant; Mr. Edmonds displays clever resource as the Greek adventurer, M. Peranza; Mr. William Clayton receives much applause for his able manner as the young missionary, Thornhill; Mr. Joseph Rowlands lends timely humorous support as Samuel Peckaby, and is well assisted by Miss Nellie Graham as Mrs. Peckaby, Miss Winifred Acton as Victoria Alexandra Peckaby, and Miss May Ediss as Lily; Mr. J. Milne Taylor acts with clever effect as Michael Severn; and Mr. Fred Acton as Jim Dixon, Mr. W. Chambers as Dr. Lemair, Miss Teresa Haynes as Mrs. Dixon, Miss Fanny Williams as "the Tearer," and Mr. Eric Thompson as Rao are successful.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY. — General-Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Mr. Arthur Carlton's company is cordially received here in Sutton Vane's successful play, In Sight of St. Paul's. Mr. Chichester possesses a worthy exponent in Mr. Arthur Armfield; Mr. Ernest R. Allen ably sustains the part of Tom Chichester; Mr. H. W. Domony shows skill as Harry Chichester; Mr. George W. Dapier makes an outstanding character of John Gridston; Mr. Edward Valentine as Fretley Burnside acts a useful rôle well; Miss Cissie Bellamy conveys a pleasing impression of the ward, Aileen Millar; Miss Lallah Davis acts with much effect the part of Cynthia Dell, otherwise known as "the Panther"; and Miss Jennie Hackness, Miss F. Valentine, Miss Amy Randolph, and others score in this well-staged production.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company is appearing here with much success in Her Forbidden Marriage. Mr. Henry Lonsdale gives a meritorious rendering of the rôle of George Madison; Mr. Louis Hector expounds villainy as Devereux in a most able form; Mr. Leonard Maxwell fills the rôle of Geoffrey Broughton satisfactorily; Miss Nellie Bonser is prepossessing and clever as Lucy; Miss Octavia Noel acts with style and ability as Lady Lancaster; Mr. Beresford Whitcombe is dignified as Sir George Lancaster; Miss Barbara Gott is impressive as the Mother Superior; and the juvenile rôle is cleverly taken by little Lucy. Mr. George Elsworthy as Benjamin Wardle, Mr. Rawdon Vivian as the clergyman, and Mr. James Raymond as the doctor act well; and the comedy rôles of Patty and Timothy are ably and respectively played by Miss Denny Fitzherbert and Mr. Fred de Vere.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — EDEN THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. J. Huntley.—The attraction here this week is Mr. Alfred B. Cross's company in The Manxman. Miss Minnie Watersford receives much applause for her sympathetic portrayal of Kate Cregeen; Mr. Alfred B. Cross as Pete is seen to advantage; a good rendering of Philip Christian is given by Mr. Beresford Lovett; the Cæsar Cregeen of Mr. James Dillon is grimly amusing; Ross Christian is capably presented by Mr. Dudley Stuart; Miss Mona Spearing plays exceedingly well the part of Miss Christian; and Miss Dorothy Duncan as Nancy is well placed.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone. — A pleasing evening's entertainment is provided here this week by Miss Claudia Lasell and company with The Sweet Girl. The title-rôle is undertaken by Miss Lasell, who besides being a fine vocalist is also a painstaking and charming actress. The comedy element is supplied by that capable actor Mr. Fred Eastman, who in the part of Count Leibenberg scores a great success; Miss Alice Lethbridge appears as Fitzi Weyringer, and dances herself into instant favour; Mr. Algernon Newark as Anthony Straus and Mr. George de Lara as Prosper Plewney assist in the fun-making, and Miss Grace Hunter is well placed as Countess Lizzi.

GRAND THEATRE.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Fergusson.—The Walls of Jericho is being presented here again this week by Messrs. Dauncey and Leveaux's company. Mr. A. E. Anson's portrayal of Jack Frobisher is worthy of the highest praise, and Mr. Alfred S. Barber is again successful as Hankey Bannister; a new but capable Lady Alethea in found in Miss May Taverner, and Miss Nona Wynne is all that could be desired as Lady Lucy. Mr. Cecil Warde as the Marquis of Steventon and Mr. A. W. Tyrer as Henry Dallas likewise merit commendation.

PALACE. — General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Edwin Boyde heads a strong bill here this week. Another favourite turn is Diamond and Beatrice in a musical act. Other contributors are Rose and Calvert, the comedy couple; Fred Bronte, actor-vocalist; the Brothers Lavelle, acrobats; Lily Eplin, comedienne; Ariel and Astarte, gymnasts; Charles Beanland, comedian; Sinclair and Parr, in a novel vocal scena; and Ambrose Thorne, comedian.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. A. C. Moody.—Lovers of the sensational are amply rewarded by a visit to the Royal, where the American domestic drama, entitled An Actor's Romance, has been successfully presented by Miss Lillian Beszant's company. Mr. E. Kardley-Howard in the rôle of Harold Davenport gave a powerful performance; Mr. Cecil Fowler scored as Robert Livingstone; Mr. Harry Agur-Lyons as Jack Woodford met with due recognition; Mr. Harry Wren was good as Charley Cummins; Mr. Percy Warlow played well the part of Ikey Isaacs; Miss Beatrice Hone won favour as Louise Davenport; Miss Florence Nelson as Florence Hastings, Miss Marion Ryder as Phyllis Davenport, and Miss Alice Leon as Mary were commendable in their parts. Miss Lillian Beszant as Dotty Dillingham was much applauded for a pleasing and artistic performance.

HIPPODROME.—Mr. Good's season here continues to prove successful. This week's bill of fare includes May La Vella, a versatile instrumentalist; Mabel Blanche, a quick-change artist and international dancer. Another change of pictures supplies a capital number in the programme. Mr. Good took a complimentary benefit on Wednesday, when extra attractions were billed.

GAIETY.—Proprietor, Mr. John Grantham, J.P.; Manager, Mr. Arthur James.—Appearing here with success are Nichol Pringle, vocalist and clog-dancer; Austin O'Mard, baritone; Dodd and Preston, in their dancing illusionary act, entitled Istar; Minto, female impersonator; Elbon Bros., comedians; Pinero, a clever gymnast, and the Gaiety Bioscope with a new series of pictures.

BOOTLE.—MUNCASTER THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Manager, Mr. H. Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—Miss Emma Litchfield's company in A London Actress is paying a return visit here this week, and proving an attraction. Mr. Stuart Cleveland is responsible for a manly delineation of the part of Sergt. Major Crawford, and Mr. Douglas Howard makes a good Lieutenant Kingston. The difficult rôle of the fascinating adventuress, Hilda Mannering, is cleverly played by Miss Litchfield, and Phyllis Crawford is sweetly pourtrayed by Miss Maud Steeples. Mr. John Worth as Captain Mannering acts with much power, and Mr. George H. Doyle deserves special mention for his playing of Mosee Mendoza. The comedy portion is well sustained by Mr. Carl Vallender as Pat Maloney, Miss Beatrice Annesley as Biddy Maloney, and Miss Maud Saxby as Nellie.

BOSTON.—PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. Saphrini.—An interesting programme here is headed by the Henderson and Stanley Quartette; Marcus Boyle is successful; the Smalleys give a fine performance on the triple bars; Gilroy is a ventriloquist above the average; Ada Whitton is a smart male impersonator; and Harold Ray, comedian, Lily Seal, coon vocalist, and the Bioscope conclude an excellent show.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, David Allen and Son; Sole Lessee Mr. Monillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company occupies the theatre this week. On Monday Faust was given, the artists receiving an enthusiastic welcome from a full house. This opera was beautifully produced. Miss Ethel Cadman as Marguerite delighted everyone by her singing and acting; Mr. Seth Hughes' performance of the name-part was good, especially in the garden scene; Miss Rosina Beynon, who has a charming voice, did well is Siebel; and Mr. George Neilson as Mephistopheles, and Mr. Frederick Earle as Valentine were admirable. Great praise is due to Mr. Harrison Frewin, who conducted. Lohengrin, Il Trovatore, Carmen, The Marriage of Figaro, Cavalleria Rusticana, Tannhäuser, and The Bohemian Girl are also in the repertory.

BRADFORD. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's production, The Blue Moon, was presented here on Monday. A crowded audience simply roared with laughter at Mr. Edward Lewis's assumption of Moolraj and Mr. Bert Gilbert's humorous acting as Private Charles Taylor. Miss Florence Smithson's sweet voice was heard to advantage in the songs allotted to Chandra Nil, the singing girl; Mr. Leslie Gaze scored a success as Major Vivian Callabone; Mr. Herbert Clayton was a manly Captain Jack Ormsby; Bobby Scott was brightly played by Mr. G. Mudie, jun.; Mr. Thomas Holding was picturesque as Prince Badahur, and a genuine success was scored by Miss Lulu Valli as the pert and pretty Millicent.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—A return visit of Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company with Mr. Walter Melville's stirring play, The Female Swindler, is a strong attraction here. Miss Florrie Kelsey still retains the part of May Andrews, playing with her accustomed success; Mr. A. Kenyon Gray is again a capable exponent of James Oliver; John Coulson, the criminal investigator, is now in the able hands of Mr. Joseph Millane, and Mr. John Belton plays with effect the character part of Abraham Mikestein. To Mr. H. Wright is allotted the task of filling many rôles, in which he displays commendable versatility. In the title-rôle Miss Grace E. Leslie acts with power and effect.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss Empires, Limited; Resident Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Wilkie Bard was prevented, by temporary indisposition, from putting in an appearance on Monday, when Walter Curtis, the humorist, and Johnson, an entertaining coloured dancer, deputised with success. The Ten Gems contributed a wonderful performance as Risley acrobats; as comediennes, Irene Rose, Nettie Starr, and Nellie Stratton appeared with success; excellent vocalism was submitted by Lee Voces; E. J. Sheldon's ability as a sifleur met with favour; the Stella Troupe of dancers and singers submitted a bright turn, and the simultaneous dancing and humorous patter by Sandford and Lyons elicited applause. C. L. Fletcher also appeared.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Arnold, jun.—Three of a Kind, under the direction of Ethel Arden and George Abel, proves a diverting sketch; Andie Caine is a smart comedian; the Three Brothers Curran, boxers, meet with applause; Frank and Free are entertaining comedians; Frankie is a clever boy juggler; as acrobatic humorists and dancers Bishop and Vale are smart; Bijou Russell is an expert sand dancer, and some excellent views are shown by Raymond's Bio-tableaux.

BRIDLINGTON. — ROYAL PRINCE'S PARADE. — Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—Messrs. Adeler and Sutton's Pierrots commenced their fourth week's engagement in the Grand Pavilion on Monday before a large audience. The newcomers are Mr. Arthur Sutcliffe, in humorous songs and monologues, and Mr. Frank Dunlop, Welsh comedian. Miss Emilie Tait's sweet voice is heard to advantage; Mr. Maynard Dakin, the talented manager of the company, has established himself as a great favourite here, his amusing songs being a source of delight. Mr. James A. Lowe, the solo pianist and accompanist, is most accomplished.

THE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. J. W. Delmar.—This popular place of amusement commenced the winter season on Monday evening. Mr. Delmar had secured the patronage of the Mayor and Mayoress of the borough (Alderman and Mrs. Sawdon) and members of the Corporation. The turns included Mr. Godfrey Parriss, comedian; Mons. Cire, in musical speciality; Mr. Eric Thorpe, in character songs; Miss Gertie Harrison, soprano; Harry Plowden, in amusing songs; Miss Mabel Thornton, clever comedienne; and Mr. J. W. Delmar, in an amusing conjuring act. On the opening night Mr. Chas. Danton, one of the popular members of the Waterloo Pierrots, appeared.

BRIGHTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson and their Shakespearean company opened here on Monday with The Merchant of Venice. Mr. Benson gave a fine impersonation of Shylock and Mrs. Benson made a graceful and charming Portia. Mr. Clarence Derwent acquitted himself admirably as Antonio; Mr. George Buchanan's Bassanio was effective; Mr. Edward A. Warburton as the Prince of Morocco displayed finished elocution; Mr. George R. Weir was very humorous as Launcelot Gobbo, and Miss Helen Haye's Nerissa, Miss Gwladys Wynne's Jessica, Mr. Percy D. Owen's Duke, and Mr. H. O. Nicholson's Gratiano deserve commendation. The programme for the week also included Much Ado About Nothing, Richard the Second, As You Like It, Hamlet, The School for Scandal, Henry the Fifth, and Twelfth Night.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company is here this week with Between Two Women. Mr. Godfrey Tearle is admirable and impressive as the Rev. Philip Carten; Miss Molly Malone gives a sympathetic portrayal of Violet Thornton; Miss Elizabeth Watson is forcible and convinc Goward is an excellent Mrs. Hake; Miss Violet Gould is good as Mrs. Fleming Smyth; Miss Jennie Wigney is a pretty Nora; and Miss Hylda Davies and Miss Vera O'Connell are good as the Sisters Dunlop. Miss Marie Daltra is an acceptable Miss Foden and Miss Minnie Willett a capable Sophie Hake.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Melot, conjurer, takes first honours at this house this week, his performance being received with shouts of applause; Bob Hamilton is a funny Scotch comedian; Conway and Garland are a clever pair; Captain Ralston is good in his naval act; Harry Coates, singing navvy, has a good voice; Elsa Brull and Arthur Helmsley in a musical divertissement, Fun in a Music Shop, are diverting; the Lavalls are smart acrobats; and Tom Fancourt and Jennie Rubie in a comedy turn are excellent.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—Opera House (New Hippodrome).—Proprietor, Mr. H. Dudley Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Waller.—Some clever turns are engaged here this week, opening with Babs Lloyd, who sings and dances herself into favour; Salida and Vone, American Creole singers and dancers, meet with general applause; a clever comedian and grotesque dancer is Mr. Alfred Bishop; and Lack and Ford score heavily as the "indiarubber man and the twister." An interesting and bewildering exhibition is presented by Primavesi, a clever magician; the Three Sisters Geronde prove themselves good vocalists and expert dancers; the Bouncing Dillons appear with eminent success, and are responsible for some genuine fun; and the Raymond Bio-tableaux winds up an excellent show.

BURY (Lancs.).—Theatre Royal and Opera House, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—This week we have a revival of Claudian. As the wealthy nobleman Mr. William Maclaren acts powerfully, and is well supported by Miss Lily C. Bandman as Almida. Mr. Douglas Earle impersonates Agazil with ability; Mr. Owen Chambers is capital as the Tetrarch; Mr. C. T. Chalanor is an amusing Belos; and Miss Maud Garth as Edessa and Miss Lena Oswald as Galena are both worthy of mention.

Circus of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—A good all-round programme here includes the Waldrons, in a laughable sketch, entitled The Silly Burglar; Hardeen, the handcuff man; Lady Julia, the ape with the human brain; Raglus, tennis ball manipulator; Kendrick and Laura, entertainers; Les Belles Americaines, vocalists and dancers; Phil Raby, vocalist; and Sadie Simpson, coon comedienne. The Ottograph pictures are very good.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead; General-Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead, jun.—The bill here includes the Seven Wulfrunas, acrobats and tumblers; Tom and Marie Montramo, in a musical sketch; York, Mac, and York, in a sketch entitled The Widow's Worries; Avon and Crest, contortionists; the Levitts, champion vaulters; the Brontes, in a comedy duologue, Saucy Maud; Dawson Dewick, comedian; and Beatty and Blanche, duettists and dancers.

BUXTON.—Opera House.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. A. Willoughby.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company appeared in Oliver Twist on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. The company was headed by Mr. Stanley Drewitt, who made a realistic Fagin, his acting in the last scene being particularly good. The part of Bill Sykes was in the capable hands of Mr. James Skea; Miss Edith Anton Lang gave a faithful rendering of Nancy; and Miss Dorothy Marsden, in the character of Oliver was thoroughly appreciated. Other parts were well played by Mr. Charlie Clark as the Artful Dodger; Mr. R. C. Hunter as Charlie Bates; Miss Dorothy Mayhew and Mr. Page Lawrence, as Rose and Harry Mayhew. The well-known characters of Bumble, Mrs. Maylie, Betsy, Brittles, and Giles were also faithfully represented by Mr. Edward Walsh, Miss A. Lingham, Miss Cicely Oates, Mr. T. Williams and Mr. J. C. Appleby.

CAMBRIDGE.—New Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—The town's performances opened most happily here on Monday night, when a large audience witnessed Mr. Frank Curzon's company in The White Chrysanthemum. Mr. Horace Mills is always good, and as Lieutenant Chippendale Belmont is really very funny; Mr. O. E. Lennon as the heathen Chinee, Sin Chong, works indefatigably, his dancing being much admired; Mr. W. H. Rawlins is another excellent actor, and as the Admiral scores all through; Lieutenant Reginald Armitage is remarkably well played by Mr. F. Pope-Stamper, he being also the possessor of a very nice voice; Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., is good as Private Perks; Miss Nora Guy is a sweet and winsome Sybil Cunningham; Miss Katie Vesey is a great success as Cornelia Vanderdecken, her dancing and singing being full of "go"; Miss Daisy le Hay fills the small part of Betty Kenyon gracefully.

CARDIFF.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. Redford.—After a short absence we have a return visit of Mr. Tree's company in Oliver Twist. Mr. Wm. Mackintosh, in his clever portrayal of Fagin, made such a great impression on his last appearance, that full houses have been the rule this week; his wonderful make-up was again the cause of much comment. Mr. Cecil A. Collins gives a remarkably fine realisation of the ruffianly Bill Sikes; and Mr. Harvey Braban scores a great success in his part of Harry Maylie. Oliver Twist is creditably acted by Miss Maudie Ray; and a striking delineation of Nancy is presented by Miss Marie Polini. Mr. E. C. Buffam gives an excellent interpretation of Mr. Brownlow; and Mr. C. H. Croker-King as Monks, and Mr. T. P. Haines as Mr. Grimwig are both responsible for some capital acting. Miss Elsie Carew (Mrs. Maylie) and Miss Saville (Rose Maylie) deserve mention for their well-rendered parts.

King's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—The Coal King is a piece of special interest to South Wales, and its visit to Cardiff is attracting large audiences at the King's. As Tom Roberts, the manly mine-manager, Mr. Lauderdale Maitland submits a pleasing impersonation; and Miss Gertrude Valentine presents a capital rendition of Grace Shirley. Sir Reginald Harford has a dignified exponent in Mr. Lionel Thompson; while as Walter, Mr. Escott Robson acquits himself most capably. Mr. Frank Dalton is at home in the part of Dick Shirley; and Mr. Alfred Terriss (Jim Williams) and Miss Sybil Coghlan (Araminta) deserve the success which crowns their comedy work. Miss Sinna St. Clair shows marked ability in her handling of the character of Mad Ann. The staging of the drama is good, the pit-bank scene being a most effective display.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—The Donaldson Bros. and Ardel, in A Zoological Comedy, are always a mirth-making turn, and this week their performance has been up to past records; Albert Christian, in his well-rendered character songs, is a great favourite; the Leslie Bros. are a couple of smart comedians and clever musicians; and the Caselli Sisters are the neatest of dancers. Harry Marte is a new comedian who certainly knows the way to step-dance; In Bonnie Scotland is still a credit to the training and capabilities of Prof. Selkirk; Preston and Balmaine's illustrated songs are well rendered; and Kate Cohen, a pleasing vocalist, and Nora Emerald, a chic comedienne, are two artists of merit. The bioscope, with a series of capital pictures, completes the programme.

CARLISLE.—H.M. Theatre.—Lessees, Trustees of R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Stanley.—Mr. Dickie Clare and company in a musical farcical piece entitled Lucky 'Liza are a big attraction here this week. Mr Clare is successful as Silas Slim; Mr Leonard Maitland creates amusement by his impersonation of Paul Pettitoe; Miss Madge Brownie makes a hit in the title-rôle; and Miss Vesta Brownie is a delightful Virginia Bladerwick

The Palace.—Proprietors, The Palace Theatre, Ltd., Carlisle; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—Caicedo, king of the wire, tops the bill here this week, and delights everyone by his clever feats of equipoise; Martinetti and Grossi are entertaining and amusing; Zeta Grey and company meet with applause; lovers of good singing appreciate the basso, Mr. W. G. Webber; Herbert Madden, vocal comedian, scores in pleasing style; an excellent triple bar act is submitted by Onda and Leon; the Sisters Lunelle, soubrettes and dancers, create a favourable impression; and the Pepiscope presents capital films.

CASTLEFORD.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Hy. Masterman.—Messrs. W. H. Hallatt and Walter Howard's company (under the personal direction of Mr. Howard, the author) is paying a visit here with Her Love Against the World. Mr. Walter Howard as Eric, Earl of Strathmere, is an excellent foil to the more pronounced and unscrupulous methods of the Prince of Ravensburg, ably enacted by Mr. Mayor Cooke; Mr. Raymond Wood does exceedingly well as Prince Othmar; Miss Ellen Snow deserves praise for her treatment of the rôle of Princess of Idalia; and the brothers, Heinrich and Fritz, are drolly represented by Messrs. Henry B. Lewis and Richard Webb; and Misses Lizzie Lennon and Kathleen Allen make a vivacious and engaging pair as the sisters, Katinka and Gretchen. Miss Victoria Douglas acquits herself creditably as Shulah; and a commendable study is that of Miss Rosie St. John as Nello.

CHATHAM.—Barnard's Palace.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Harry Pleon tops the bill here, and is supported by Addie Dorina, protean artist; Gladys William, serio; Will Farrell, comedian; Fred S. Peake and Co., in The Gallant Captain; Daisy Reed, comedian; Lacey's Erascope; those original comedians, Walton and Lester; and the Monte Myro Troupe of eccentric pantomimists.

Gaiety Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Capt H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. F. J. Donne.—Here we have Walter Levetio, comedian and dancer; Mlle. Sylvesto, in smart contortionist act; Fred Holland, the Surrey cricketer, who scores with his songs; and Florence Yaymen, whose burlesque coon songs and eccentric dancing are greatly enjoyed. Henri Cazman is on a return visit, and his entertainment, Le Café-Chantant, goes as well as ever; the Avolos give a clever and daring exhibition; Miss Agnes Molteno, vocalist; Harry Cotton, comedian; and pictures by the Edisonograph complete the attractions.

CHELTENHAM.—Opera House.—General Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—This week Mr. Geo. Dance's company is paying a return visit in The Cingalee. Mr. Jack Crichton made an immediate hit as Chambhuddy Ram, his comic business being smart and original; Miss Gladys Guy as Peggy Sabine sang very agreeably, especially with Mr. Crichton in duets; Miss Georgina Middleton sang sweetly as Nanoya, "My cinnamon tree" being well received; Mr. Cyril Dare as Hon. Harry Vereker was distinguished; Mr. Ethelbert Edwards did justice to "Four little maids of Ceylon" in the rôle of Bobby Warren; Miss Margery Clark was acceptable as Lady Patricia Vane; Mr. Helier le Maistre had a good reception as Boobhamba; and Mr. Grafton Williams was decidedly quaint as the High Commissioner. Miss Essie Perrin, the solo danseuse, was responsible for a chic pas seul and graceful skirt dance.

CHORLEY (Lancs.).—Grand Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Hemingway.—Mr. T. Arthur Jones and company are here with Life's Sweetest Sins. As Captain Harold Marston Mr. Jones is excellent; Mr. Robert Sawin (the business-manager of the company) is responsible for a capital rendering of Kimberley Coutts; Mr. Clem Horlock also being good as Rev. Edward Gray. Mr. O. Douglas and Mr. Fred Wilson are effective as Dr. Colbrooke and Ernie Wodstone respectively; Mr. Edgar Morgan undertakes Bob Tanner with conspicuous success; Miss Hazel Dent admirably portrays Doreen Rivers; Miss Mary Ainslie sympathetically plays Fay Colbrooke; and Miss Elsie Walton is quite satisfactory as Bess Grayson.

CLYDEBANK.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert I. Montague.—Somebody's Sweetheart, the attraction here this week, is being presented by Mr. Ed. Harris's No. 1 company. Mr. W. H. Kirby as Martin Blabbs is a host in himself, and much of the success of the comedy is due to his untiring efforts. Miss Molly Hackett, with a fine voice, does well in the title-role; Mr. E. H. Betram is highly successful as Stanton Ashleigh; Miss Cardella Knight acts and sings nicely as Zora; Mr. D. B. Watson gives a good account of himself as Stephen Leverton; and Lem Lee has a capital exponent in Mr. I. Templar Ellis. Old Joe is safe in the hands of Mr. Reg. Hugh Hamber; and Miss Millie Gordon also calls for mention.

COLCHESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton.—The Streets of London is being presented here for six nights by Mr. Eade Montefiore's company. Mr. William Rokeby is genuinely funny as Badger; Mr. Riddell Robinson ably sustains the part of Gideon Bloodgood; Miss Dorothy Cacey is a distinctly captivating Alida Bloodgood; and the parts of Paul Fairweather (Mr. Chas. Kean), Lucy Fairweather (Miss Winnifred Ingham), Jonas Puffy (Mr. J. Manville), Puffy, jun. (Miss Florence Moore), and Mark Livingstone (Mr. R. Palgrave), are nicely taken.

Hippodrome.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Mr. J. K. Reynolds and company, in Conscience, head this week's bill; Pasquali Brothers, head-balancers and tumblers, pay a return visit, their reception being very gratifying; the Ongars present a series of tasteful dances; Natalia and Diana are a graceful pair of aerial gymnasts; a powerful descriptive vocalist is Susie Marney; and an attractive ventriloquist, Cavalli.

CONSETT.—New Theatre.—Lessee, Mr Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Messrs. Armadale and Warren's company, in the sensational drama The Face at the Window, is appearing here this week. Mr. T. W. Dunscombe makes the most of the part of Paul Gouffet, and Mr. Lionel D'Aragon renders a good account of himself as Le Loup; Mr. Alfred Warne is well placed as Henri de Brisson; Mr. Percy Horton is a capable Lucien Cortier; and Mr. C. Alan Hineson revels in the part of Peter Pottlebury. Miss Eugene Magnus plays Marie de Brisson with commendable ability, and as La Pinau Miss Marie Tennant is entirely satisfactory. Miss M. Leslie Cudd is good as Babette. Excellent houses have been the rule during the week.

CORK.—Opera House.—Manager, Mr. John Horgan.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company is here this week with The Eternal City. In the sinister rôle of Baron Bonelli Mr. D. Lewin Mannering proves himself an actor of unusual talent; Mr. Henry Deas gives an excellent picture of the hero, David Rossi; Miss Sara de Groot as Donna Roma Volano is intensely passionate, her acting being artistic and finished; Mr. J. Fortescue makes a venerable Piux XI. In the character of Princess Bellini Miss May Fortescue is capital, and Mr. W. O'Flynn is a picturesque Bruno Rocco. Mr. J. Poole Kirkwood, as Chief of Police, Mr. Court as General Morra, and Mr. Herbert Legerton as Minghelli, are all that could be desired. The staging is perfect.

Palace Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—The star turn here is Smaun Ting Hpoo, a diminutive man aged twenty-three and weighing only 22lb., who is a clever horizontal bar performer and also performs on the rings; Playfair and Nikola, who describe themselves as papiergraphists, produce some lovely pictures with pieces of paper, their turn pleasing immensely; the Moet-Chandon Trio of gymnasts give a wonderful performance, and receive much applause; the Kimberley boys, comedians, sing and dance well; the Sisters Darnton contribute pleasing duets; Kisbey indulges in an amusing monologue; Aley Spencer, comedienne, contributes an agreeable musical turn, and Brown's Bioscope shows a series of new humorous pictures.

COVENTRY.—The Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—A crowded house gathered on Monday night to witness Mr. George Dance's principal company in The Duchess of Dantzic. Miss May Glenn achieves a big success as Catherine Upscher, otherwise the Duchess, while it would be difficult to find one more suited to the part of Napoleon than Mr. Gilbert Yorke; Mr. Ernest Torrence gives an imposing rendering of Francois Lefebvre; Mr. Steve Fitzgerald presents an amusing impersonation as Papillon; Mr. Alec Johnstone is seen to advantage in the dual part of Philippe, afterwards Vicomte de Bethune; Miss Maggie White as Renée de St. Mezard and Miss Buena Bent as Lizette are both capitally suited; Miss Dulcie Garland and Miss Lillian Blythe being respectively responsible for Duchess of Berg and Princess Borgese.

The Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. T. M. Sylvester.—At this popular house of amusement Mr. Erne Payne, vocalist, is one of the chief attractions; Harry Bancroft gives some well received numbers as a descriptive vocalist; Lee and Kingston are responsible for considerable amusement with some funny business; Emmy Ames is a huge success in her novelty scena entitled Emmie's Christmas Tree; Miss Venie Clements, impersonator and vocalist, is successful; Mme. Collard introduces some clever boarhounds, who go through a number of capital tricks; C. Emlyn Jones introduces his Emerald Ladies Quartette with marked success; Joe Almasio appears in a mixed turn as a juggler and jumper; Ada Parer is a coon songstress and dancer. The Hippodrome pictures conclude the bill.

CRADLEY HEATH.—Empire.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton.—Mr. Junius Booth with his own company is here in Monte Cristo. Mr. Junius Booth in the title-rôle holds the audience spellbound. He is ably assisted by Miss Clare Elstob as Mercedes; Mr. Augustin Bowerman's Danglars shows careful study; Mr. E. H. Templeton as Noirtier gives a finished interpretation; Mr. C. W. Crowe as Fernand Mondego is effective; Mr. Leonard Marshall as M. Morel acquits himself in an able manner; and Miss Alice West as Sophie Danglars acts with much expression.

CREWE.—Lyceum Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor, J.P.—Crowded houses showed their appreciation of Mr. George Dance's company in The Duchess of Dantzic, billed for the first three nights of the week. Miss Elma Morris as Sans Gene submitted a meritorious impersonation; Miss Gladys Dale was a charming Renée de Saint Mezard; Miss Florence Radnor a graceful and dignified Empress; Miss Isabel Vivian a capable Lisette; and Miss V. Kennerley as Caroline Murat and Miss M. Easiland as Pauline did well. Mr. Frank Bradley played throughout with conspicuous cleverness as Napoleon; Mr. C. Burrunston Williams made an excellent François; Mr. Frank Attree an amusing Papillon; and Adhemar found a capable exponent in Mr. S. H. Curzon, Mr. Vernon Deville being good as Captain Regnier. Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company, in Oliver Twist, came here on Thursday.

CROYDON.—Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—The tuneful and picturesque musical play, The Blue Moon, is being admirably staged by Mr. Robert Courteridge's company. Mr. Alfred Clark is satisfactory in the rôle of Major Vivian Callabone; Mr. Alex. Fraser acts and sings with good judgment as Captain Jack Ormsby; Mr. A. Wykes Ashdowne just touches the right note as Bobbie Scott; Mr. Alfred Beers is quite up to the mark as Moolraj; Mr. Reginald Switz gives a brisk and racy performance as Private Charles Taylor; Mr. Arthur Soames plays with dignity and expression as the Prince Bahadur Samatsinjhi of Kharikar; and other characters are played with credit by Messrs. Hugh Glendon, George Park, Frank Halett, Edward Noble, Edward M'Dearmid, and Chas. Francis. Miss Kathleen Cartaret makes a pleasing Lady Augusta Brabasham; Miss Ethel Callanan is an enchanting Evelyn Ormsby; Miss Clarice Lockstone makes a pleasing impression in the title-rôle; Miss Florence Imeson presents a cheerful front as Millicent Leroy and meets with a cordial reception; and Misses Loie Lochner and Margery Seymour are captivating as Oma and Ramah. The costumes and accessories, the Oriental dresses and uniforms, and the graceful band of chorus ladies are worthy of special notice.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Herrick.—Mr. Andrew Melville's company in the drama Driven from Home is the attraction here this week. Mr. Felix Pitt as Anthony Raybrook is convincing; Mr. Clement Wakefield as Walter Hatherleigh is distinctly good; Mr. G. Thorne as George Clissold does well; Mr. Frederick Sandy gives an excellent portrayal of Godfrey Waring; Mr. G. Lawrence ably sustains the part of Peter Pettifer; Mr. Arnold Winter is amusing as Tom Mortlake; Mr. Henry Helling is a clever representative of Adam Marley; Mr. Percy Dawson admirably impersonates the outcast Willie; Mr. A. E. Mann does good work as John Anderson; Mr. Harry Cornwall represents Jabez Thomas in a telling manner; and Mr. John Brooks submits a good delineation of Dick Saunders. Miss Florence Trevoir as Barbara Ashdown is well placed; Miss Evelyn Marrable is delightfully entertaining as Margaret Bailey; Miss Madge Muriel is commendable as Jane; and Miss Florence Creigh creditably fills the dual rôle of Laura Raybrook and Walter Hatherleigh the younger.

Empire Palace of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Hugh Emmett.—A high-class entertainment is being given here. The Novellos are exceptionally good in their unique act, India in Europe, introducing trained elephants and pony; Herbert La Martine is a capital comedian and novel dancer; the Sisters St. Julian are refined duettists and dancers; Walter Heriot is smart in a quick-change sketch, An Anglo-American Alliance; Lennie and Hast give an interesting turn; the Three Delaries, in the demon grotto, submit a clever trapeze performance; H. A. Moore is a successful mimic; Nellie Farrell sings and dances in a highly creditable manner; Talbot and Pierce deserve warm praise for their singing act, The Spider and the Fly; and the dramatic sketch, Under the Seal, is acted with completeness by Miss Margaret Parker's company. Mr. Eustace Jay is a popular and energetic manager.

DARLINGTON.—Theatre Royal and Hippodrome.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Miss Florence Baines and company are here with Miss Lancashire, Limited. Miss Baines as the "Lancashire Lass" is clever, and her singing is a feature of the comedy; Mr. Burt Burton makes a typical Jew; Mr. Will Casey as Herbert Fox is very funny; Mr. Walter Hicks gives a capital rendering of the butler; Miss Pattie Groves scores as Bridget Thompson; Mr. Patrick Evans as Harry is seen to advantage; Miss Muriel Johnson's portrait of Bertha is suitably imposing; and Mr. David Donaldson as John Higgins is smart and true to life.

DARWEN.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. M. A. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson.—Mr. Frank Ayrton and company occupy the boards here with The Power of Gold. Mr. Charles Whitlock gives a fine impersonation of the Malay doctor; Mr. Richard Oliver is good as Paul Judson; Mark Harley is ably undertaken by Mr. Albert Sefton; Miss Lilla Wilde presents a good interpretation of Lady Brandon; and Mr. Frank Ayrton and Miss Madge Seymour as Sammy and Norah respectively supply the comedy element.

DERBY.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Albert Orton.—Mr. Arthur Hardy's company is paying a return visit this week with Beauty and the Barge. Mr. Blake Adams scores tremendously as Cap'n Barley; Mr. Edward Coventry plays Lieut. Seton Boyne, R.N., in a thoroughly manly fashion, and is to be congratulated on his efforts; Edith Smedley has a charming exponent in Miss May Fairclough; Mr. Pennington-Gush appears to advantage as Herbert Manners; and Miss Mary Pemberton figures agreeably as Ethel Dallas. Major Smedley is well accounted for by Mr. Walter Pemberton; and Miss Mone Robin as his long-suffering wife merits praise. Mr. Thmoas Pauncefort as Augustus is capital; Tom Cod, the mate, is well depicted by Mr. Fred Knight; and John Dibbs is faithfully portrayed by Mr. Charles A. White; whilst Miss Ruby Wyndham is an effective Mrs. Baldwin. Other characters that should be specially mentioned are the Mrs. Porter of Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite, the George Porter of Mr. Ewart Drake, and those played by Messrs. Arthur Flinders, W. R. Hammersmith, Henry Reade, A. Thorncroft, and H. Richford respectively. The scenic effects are again very good. The pièce de résistance is preceded by Cosmo Hamilton's Jerry and a Sunbeam, ably presented by Miss Pemberton and Mr. Pennington-Gush.

Palace.—Lessee and General Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—Lillie Soutter supplies the star turn here this week her vivacity and versatility securing her the favour of all; Sid Cotterell and company appear in a lively comedy entitled The Substitute, which is provocative of endless mirth; the Ettenas, rolling globe artists, give a clever and highly entertaining performance; the Elgars excel as vocalists; and L. B. Athos scores with his character acting; Harry Levaine has some capital songs; and his patter is very funny; while the Sisters Edwardes submit an acceptable turn of song and dance. On the Bioscope figures a capital picture entitled "The Bell Ringer's Daughter."

DEVONPORT.—Metropole Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King.—Mr. John Grant's company is presenting here a stirring drama dealing with the exciting events in Egypt in '85, entitled At Duty's Call, which proves a great draw in the garrison town. Mr. John Grant undertakes the leading part of Harold Alison, a captain in the British Army, and his acting is of a finished description; as the villain Mr. Harry Scott acts well; Mr. Ernest St. John has a lifelike make-up as General Gordon, and Mr. Harry Ugar as Teddy O'Hallaron is exceedingly funny. Miss Lily Crammonde as Dora Drummond is the leading lady and a capable actress, and Miss Beatrice Western is a creditable Salema, a slave girl.

Grand Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. C. F. Williams; Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Grant.—A very good house assembled to witness the performance by the stock company of the domestic drama, entitled What Women Suffer. Mr. Edward Lloyd undertook the dual rôle of Wilfred Coventry and John Coventry, and in addition to his other accomplishments, proved himself a quick-change artist of no mean ability; Mr. J. Durford Geddes, a new member of the company, created a most favourable impression as Squire Geddes; Mr. Alfred Brandon sustained his reputation as an able exponent of stage villainy; and Mr. Tommy Gough as Tod Potts was irrepressible as ever. Miss Ethel Kay and Miss B. Whitney as Edith Coventry and Nance Meredith respectively infused plenty of pathos into their respective parts; Miss M. C. Livesey was a very good servant, and little Miss Kathleen Saunders justified the opinion we last week expressed of her acting.

Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—A programme, both interesting and diversified, is this week submitted at the popular Plymouth hall. Herbert Darnley's sketch, Moving In, is an absurdity of absurdities, and certainly attains its object as a mirth-provoking factor; Lieut. Travis introduces many novel and acceptable features in the ventriloquial business; Florrie Cooper is heard to great advantage in the attractive song, "The stars are angel's faces"; the Mayvilles' marionette entertainment is well put on and cleverly manipulated; Howard and Collison make the most of their attractive sketch, The Porter and the Parcel; and Fanny Robins' medley, "The Albert Hall Concert," is an acquisition to the programme. The remaining items, namely, Bert Danson (comedian), Billie Birt (comedienne), and Vernon's pictures are acceptable.

DEWSBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager Mr. J. H. Asquith.—The Love that Women Desire an excellent drama, is the attraction here this week. The evil genius of the piece, Squire Abingdon, affords Mr. J. O. Stewart, who has a commanding personality, opportunities for strong characterisation. Miss Lalla Stanhope embodies the heroine, Sybil Thorburn, a charming and convincing impersonation; the crafty Madge Abingdon is a strong acting part, of which Miss Alice N. Livesey is a most admirable exponent; in the rôle of Philip Carnaby, Mr. Fred Lloyd is prominent, acting with power and good effect as the manly hero; Mr. John Hignett creates much amusement as Dennis O'Rourke; the bucolic policeman, Sowerberry, is naïvely represented by Mr. J. W. Wilkinson. Able character-acting comes from Mr. Leonard Montgomery as the outcast, Frank Hardy; Mr. G. Carlton Wallace fills with strength and incisiveness the rôle of the treacherous Richard Abingdon. Miss Violet Haye plays Pattie Swift very smartly. Good work is shown in the character interpretations of Messrs. Gilson Brooke (Dr. Brandreth), Hugh Wallace (Rev. Arnold Cathorne), E. Morris (Amos Gibson), and Miss N. Griffiths as Mariquinha.

Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. George Weldon.—Claver and Piccolo arouse marked interest and approval for the talent they exhibit in a remarkable equilibristic and juggling act; Miss Winnie Scott, a refined coon impersonator and dancer, gives a meritorious performance; the Fimans present their vaudeville act, consisting of song, dance, and dialogue, and the merits of this "original comedy creation" find favour; the Falcons, who also appear in a new comedy act, deserve praise for a clever acrobatic hand-to-hand balancing performance. Other enjoyable turns are the Nettas (entertaining vocal harmony duo), Ethel Loftus (the Country Girl), Ernest Pace (bass vocalist), and the novelty equilibrists, Le Brun and Irene.

DONCASTER.—Grand Theatre and Empire.—Managing Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—The Earl and the Girl is the attraction here this week. Mr. William Cromwell is excellent as Jim Cheese; Mr. Robert Hyett as Dick Wargrave, can be congratulated on his vocal ability; Mr. Stanley Harrison's impersonation of the Hon. Crewe Boodle is praiseworthy; and Mr. A. E. Coleby successfully sustains the rôle of A. Bunker Bliss; Downham, the American solicitor, is effectively portrayed by Mr. Frank Cane, and Mr. Talk is carefully played by Mr. Arthur Cassidy; Mr. F. W. Pattrick scores in his assumption of Mr. Hazel. Miss Gertrude Simpson is charming as Elphin Haye, being a pretty danseuse as well as an acceptable songstress; Miss Nellie Grant scores as Mrs. Shimmering Black, and Miss Helen Langton is a winsome and clever Miss Virginia Bliss; Miss Florence Wix undertakes the part of Liza Shoddam with satisfactory results.

DOVER.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, The Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. F. C. Dew.—A Royal Divorce, under the management of Mr. W. W. Kelly, has been drawing crowded houses this week. This enthralling play, admirably staged, has Miss Edith Cole as the impersonator of the Empress Josephine, and it is not too much to say that every time this talented lady enacts the rôle she seems to improve upon her previous performances. Mr. Frederick Victor as Napoleon is quite at home in the part; Mr. Percy H. Vernon is a capital Talleyrand; Mr. Graham Woods in the character of the Marquis de Beaumont proves his worth; and Grimaud (Mr. Geo. Hudson) leaves nothing to be desired. Miss Agnes Imlay as Marie Louise has a Royal presence, and in the scene between the Empress Josephine and herself is seen at her best. Miss Maggie Cardiff plays the little King of Rome with a delightful absence of staginess. On Friday night the band of the 1st Battalion The Buffs assisted in the Waterloo scene, that evening being set apart for a benefit to Miss Edith Cole.

The Empire.—Proprietors, The Vaudeville Syndicate; Manager, Mr. B. H. Harland.—A change to two houses a night has now been instituted at this house, and crowded audiences are the result. Lillie and Lottie, musical experts, head the bill this week; Harry Gold, in his scena, Cloudland, is well received; Baker E. Belphor is assisted by beautiful lantern slides in his songs; Riley and Taylor are entertaining as patterers; and Miss Bertha Norwood is a vocalist and dancer of dainty appearance and great ability. Miss Carlotta de Yonson's company appears in a sketch entitled The Dandy Detective; and Raymond's Bio-tableaux complete a capital evening's amusement.

DUDLEY.—Opera House.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—The White Chrysanthemum paid a first visit here this week. Mr. Charles Schmidt is robust and effective as Admiral Armitage; Mr. H. Langdon Bruce gives an earnest portrayal of Lieutenant Armitage; and Mr. H. E. Garden is a distinct success as Lieutenant "Chippy" Belmont, his droll humour being irresistibly amusing. Mr. Richard Telford works hard and deserves great praise as Sin Chong, the Chinese cook; Mr. James Dallas is highly diverting as Private Perks; Miss Nellie Groves is particularly pleasing as the American heiress Cornelia Vanderdecken; Miss Emily Taylor is a graceful Betty Kenyon; and Miss Muriel George in the rôle of Sybil Cunningham, who possesses a voice of marvellous sweetness and compass, acts in fascinating style.

Empire.—Managing Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. Nightingale.—A wonderful exhibition of strength is being given here this week by John Marx, the strong man; "Mr. E." is well received in what is aptly described as an amusing and novel performance; the Danbys, comedians and dancers, are old favourites; the Evalos are amusing in their jocular juggling act, and also give a clever acrobatic performance; Dolly Wright is a descriptive vocalist with a sweet voice; Burg, Hand, and Wise appear in an amusing act, entitled Ye Brown Cow Inn; the Empire Bioscope continues to be a strong attraction.

DUMFRIES.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. W. Potts; Manager, Mr. Payne Seddon.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company was here for four nights, commencing on Monday with The Christian. Mr. E. Stanton Sharp acted with power and feeling as John Storm; Mr. P. Gedge Twyman was very much at home as Lord Robert Ure; Mr. Harry Colbeck was good as Father Lamplugh; Mr. Percy Johnson and Mr. Phipps Stanley were most successful as Parson Quayle and the Archdeacon; Miss Laura Walker displayed power and sweetness in her impersonation of Glory Quayle; and Miss Alice Maude was well placed as Mrs. Callander.

DUNDEE.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—Mrs. Brown Potter and company appear this week in two plays, Mary Stuart, Queen of Scots, and Forget-Me-Not. On Monday evening the former play was presented before a good house, Mrs. Brown Potter giving a most impressive impersonation of the unhappy Queen, and being recalled at the end of each act again and again. The part of Lord James Stuart was powerfully played by Mr. Edwin Stanley, and Mr. Lawrence Grant was excellent as Bothwell. Mr. Harold Payne was effective as Rizzio, singing his song in excellent style. Mr. Harry Kendal gave a capital rendering of the part of Darnley, and Mr. John Cabourne as Lethington was amusing. All the other rôles were in excellent keeping, and the scenery and dresses were most effective.

Palace Theatre.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—The Sisters Sprightly have been retained for another week, and these clever artists keep the audience in the best of humour during their "turns"; Hess and Lisbon display an astounding amount of agility on their roller skates; Palette, a lightning artist and smoke painter, is very clever, as are also Steeley and Dowton in a burlesque interlude, Olla Podrida. Billie Burns renders several sentimental songs with great success, and Minnie Fenton, Scotch comedienne, Jack Foley, Maude Mortimer, and Louise Hurman all keep the house in a happy frame of mind. Vernon's Bioscope, as usual, completes the attractions.

Gaiety Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—Mr. Whitmore Ledger's company provide delectable fare this week in the shape of The Curate, a musical comedy drama of an enjoyable nature. As Gilbert Westwood, a Russian spy, Mr. Whitmore Ledger is seen to much advantage. As Dick, the Trumpeter, Miss Haltee Jeffreys is a big favourite, while Mr. Clifford Spencer and Miss Agnese D'Aragon as Mr. and Mrs. Simon Peter Muggs are responsible for much enjoyable comedy business. All the other parts are well filled, and the piece was welcomed with many signs of approval by a large house on Monday. Sheila M'Neil, a clever Scotch comedienne, also appears, and her turn proves very acceptable.

Empire Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Owing to the success last week of the Prince Edward Pictures, the management have wisely retained them for another week. In addition to the pictures, several variety turns app

EXETER.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. E. J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford. — Mr. Popple (of Ippleton) is the attraction here this week. Mr. Morris Harvey as Freddy Popple is excellent, and keeps the "house" in roars of laughter; Mr. Fred Maguire as Jacques Kenyon renders his numbers in good style; Mr. Tom May as Platt is all that can be desired; and Mr. Herbert Dickeson ably sustains the part of Norman Popple. Miss Maimie Brickwell is a vivacious La Bolero. She acts, sings, and dances in capital style. Miss Claire Pridelle scores a success as Violet Brinton, and she is recalled again and again for her songs. Miss Lulu Louden is good as Louise the maid.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—This week the theatre is occupied by Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's company in the charming drama, The Silver King. It is many years since the piece was played in Falkirk, and on Monday evening it was accorded a hearty welcome. Miss Daisy Scudamore admirably played the part of Nellie Denver. As Wilfred Denver, Mr. Fred D. Daviss gave a capital interpretation; Cissy was represented by a delightful child actress in Miss Flossie Hale Daviss, whose gestures and actions were very natural; Mr. L. St. George Lowther as "the Spider," made the most of his part; Mr. Edward J. George's Jaikes was a particularly fine study; Miss Dorothy Radford acted nicely the part of Olive Skinner; as henchmen of "the Spider" Messrs. Arthur Wright, A. Hornby, Warburton and Warriss Lindon all filled their parts well.

FARNWORTH.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. Morton Powell.—Mr. Frank E. Burdett's company appears here this week in The Indian Mutiny. Mr. George Steel as Lieut. Manley gives a very good rendering; Mr. John Davidson as Major Ingleby makes the most of his opportunities; Mr. Cyril Harrison plays Capt. Manley in a convincing manner; Mr. Charles Boult as Ra Goonga is to be complimented on his capital assumption; and Mr. Villiers Stanley as Nebu Singh is all that can be desired. The comedy element is in the capable hands of Mr. Cecil Morand, who, as Terry O'Brien, keeps the audience in a continual titter; Miss Agnes Kingston as Kate Ingleby plays naturally and gracefully; and Miss F. Melrose as Ghuz-Nah also gives a capital impersonation. The part of Mrs. Ingleby has a sympathetic representative in Miss Lillie Grey.

FLEETWOOD. — QUEEN'S THEATRE. — Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. H. Snelson.—Miss Evelyn Moore's company is this week playing The Crimson Club. The chief heavy parts are ably taken by Mr. F. G. Kay and Mr. J. F. Heyward; and Mr. W. Shaw as Richard Fenton, the hero, is good. Mr. Percy Shaw supplies plenty of humour in his rendering of the part of Reginald Garside, and his whistling solo is well received. Miss Florence Delmar as the female villain is excellent; whilst Miss Barrassford as Muriel is petite and dainty The piece is played under the personal direction of Mr. Percy Shaw.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company is here this week with The Village Blacksmith. Mr. Sam Livesey must be congratulated on his clever impersonation of John Strong; as Captain Leo Mr. Joseph Carter achieved a decided success; Mr. Edwin Maydew is an effective Lucas Marlow; Mr. George Wilton makes the most of Sir John Harman; Mr. Thomas E. Marshall plays with humour as Jeremiah Parkins; and Mr. George V. Campbell scores a success as Billy Twigg. Miss Bertha Hanbury is a clever Harry Strong; Mrs. T. C. Livesey a commendable Sal Parkins; Miss Casele Le Grande a sympathetic Ruth Parkins; Miss Edith Giddens an excellent Martha Mopps; and Miss Maggie Edwards a capable Kate Strong.
